LAST HOPE BLASTED.

Fate of Gunmen Is Sealed.

Four Slayers of Rosenthal Doomed to Die in the Chair Tomorrow.

Final Appeal for New Trial Is Denied by Chief Justice Goff.

Gov. Glynn Has Already Said that He Will Not Stop Executions.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, April 11.—The last hope of four gunmen condemned to die on Monday for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, seemingly was blasted tonight when Supreme Court Justice John W. Goff, to whom a final appeal for a new trial had been made, declined to reopen the case.

At a prolonged hearing today, Justice Goff, who was the presiding judge at the trial of the gunmen, listened to the testimony of new witnesses produced at the last moment by counsel for the doomed men. Late in the afternoon, after Dist.-Atty. Charles S. Whitman had been given his opportunity to offset the newly-offered evidence with testimony by witnesses of his own, Justice Goff took the case under advisement, announcing that he would give a decision tonight.

For more than four hours the justice toiled over the record of the day's proceedings. Then, a moment

RAINY EASTER BACK EAST.

Bad Outlook for Atlantic Coast, Bright Skies for the West.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, April 11.—A rainy Easter morning for North and South Atlantic Coast and many of the Gulf States, but bright skies for the remainder of the country, was the final judgment tonight of the Weather Bureau forecaster on the problem common to all the land. No hope was held out to the South Atlantic, East Gulf and Southwestern Gulf States, but a gleam of cheerfulness went to the North Atlantic States, with the prediction that the rain there would last only for the morning hours, with clear weather to follow.

THE CITY. Los Angeles harbor, representing a $50,000,000 utility, was formally dedicated to world traffic yesterday in an elaborate demonstration, with [illegible] persons participating.

Proponents of a State building here, fearing opposition to an initiative petition appropriation may defeat the project, will renew their request tomorrow before the Council and Supervisors.

Deputy District Attorney was convinced yesterday, after questioning Lillian Palmer, the girl mother, that she did not poison Mary Kilfoil, as charged by Phil Kilfoil, alleged betrayer of the child.

Plans to transform county school grounds into flower gardens, through prize offers, were made public yesterday before a gathering of teachers and trustees.

Chinese Consul-General of San Francisco yesterday married a Celestial native daughter with Christian ritual and ceremonial.

Following public appeal, citizens yesterday contributed 8000 eggs for distribution to poor and sick children, leaving none disappointed.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA. Two suburbs of Pasadena may be annexed if petitions now circulating are effective.

That there is oil in the Imperial Valley is the opinion of experts.

Treasury stock is not votable as collateral, according to the decision of a judge in the Imperial Valley.

A Redlands physician was seriously injured when struck by an auto in a wreck.

PACIFIC SLOPE. Young Republican League organized at an enthusiastic meeting in San Diego yesterday, where the keynote of the coming campaign was sounded.

A decision by the Supreme Court overturns the ruling of the prison directors as to paroles.

GENERAL EASTERN. The impeachment of President Wilson is demanded by the editor of the Northwestern Agriculturist, according to a special telegram from St. Paul last night.

Preparations are in readiness for the execution of the four gunmen at Sing Sing tomorrow.

WASHINGTON. The programme of "Thomas W. Wilson" was contrasted yesterday in Congress with the conduct of Woodrow Wilson as President. A magazine article written by "Thomas W. Wilson" some years ago was read into the record of the Panama Canal controversy.

The Federal Board of Mediation succeeded in settling the trouble with the Baltimore and Ohio telegraphers.

MEXICO. Reports in Washington indicate that Spain is greatly wrought up at the treatment of its citizens in Mexico and a sudden climax is feared.

Carranze has left Juarez and says he is on his way to see Villa.

Prompt amends by Huerta greatly relieved the situation at Tampico.

FOREIGN. European scientists say the proper time to dine is in the morning.

Editor of "Northwestern Agriculturist" Calls His Policy Treasonable.

Proof Sheets of His Accusations Sent to Senators Gronna and Clapp to Press the Plea for Public Trial of the President, Whose Past as a Magazine Agitator Is Now Under the Magnifying Glass.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MINNEAPOLIS (Minn.) April 11. Nothing short of impeachment of President Wilson is demanded of Congress by P. V. Collins, editor and publisher of the Northwestern Agriculturist. Collins charges the President is guilty of treason in proposing to pay Colombia $25,000,000 for the Panama Canal Zone. Proof sheets of his article, which will be printed next week, have been sent to Senators Moses E. Clapp and A. J. Gronna and other members of Congress. The editorial calls on Congress to impeach the President and block the treaty.

HEAVY ARTILLERY AGAINST REPEAL.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The heaviest artillery that opponents of repeal of Panama tolls exemption for American ships can bring to bear will be trained against the administration's flat repeal policy before the Senate Committee on Interoceanic Canals next week. Every possible argument that can be raised is to be brought forward in the hope of prevailing on the committee to make an adverse report on the bill as it passed the House, and failing in that, to lay a foundation for continuing the fight in the Senate itself.

In addition to the general resolution to defeat repeal there will be arguments by Democratic Senators who agree that exemption for American ships is in violation of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty and that the government should reverse its policy, but hope the means to bring this result about can be tempered with an amendment reassuring the sovereignty of the United States over the Panama Canal.

Whatever may be the report of the Canals Committee—and there is a possibility that several proposed measures may be reported without recommendation—administration and opposition leaders conceded that the first fight will be over an effort to amend the Sims bill, which passed the House.

Champions of the President's position insist there will be no compromise. They adhere to their confident predictions that toll exemption for American coastwise ships will be repealed.

TWO WILSONS ON REVIEW.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, April 1.—Thomas W. Wilson wrote a magazine article in 1879 in which he sharply criticised the Congress of the United States. This fact was brought to the attention of the House of Representatives in a speech delivered today by Representative Johnson of Washington, a Republican.

"Who is this 'Thomas W. Wilson?' " asked Representatives Murdock of Kansas and Hamilton of Michigan.

"He is Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States, and Woodrow Wilson is this Democratic administration," replied Representative Johnson, who read extracts from the article of Thomas W. Wilson published in the International Review of 1879.

"Thomas W. Wilson," explained Mr. Johnson, "says Congress is a deliberative body in which there is little deliberation and a legislature which legislates with no real discussion. He says that committees cannot properly do the work and that full debate at the right time is not allowed. Thomas W. Wilson says that under the Cabinet form of government platforms mean something and that broken promises will end in broken power. He says also that the President can seldom make himself a leader and that Cabinet officers are but little better than chief clerks."

Representative Murdock again interrupted with:

"Who is Thomas W. Wilson?"

"I have said," replied Mr. Johnson, "that he is Woodrow Wilson, the President who is leading in this gradual overthrow of representative government and has, as Senator Crane says, for the time being obliterated Congress."

Representative Johnson then resumed reading extracts from the magazine article, entitled: "Cabinet Government in the United States." He said the magazine named (now defunct) circulated both in this country and in England. Thomas W. Wilson was quoted as follows:

"Congress is a conglomeration of inharmonious elements; a collection of men representing each his neighborhood, each his local interests; all of it is at best only a limping comparison between the conflicting and innumerable localities represented. There is no guiding or harmonizing power. . .

"The President can seldom make himself recognized as a leader. He is merely the executor of a sovereign legislative will; his Cabinet officers are little more than chief clerks or superintendents of the executive departments who advise the President as Getting Together.

YOUNG REPUBLICAN LEAGUE OF CALIFORNIA IS ORGANIZED.

BY LOU GUERNSEY.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, April 11.—One thousand clean-cut and energetic young men and women from all parts of the State with the interests of the people as a whole and the Republican party at heart met here today and organized at the Coronado Hotel the Young Republican League of California. The gathering was representative of the Republican party throughout the State.

The hope that from among the young Republicans assembled here today would sound the keynote of the coming campaign and that its utterances would be as inspiring as a clarion call was splendidly realized.

It was an inspiring sight to see these virile, patriotic youths of this great State get together under the starry banner of true Republicanism for one common purpose, the welfare of the State and nation.

That the movement started today will result in further strengthening the Republican party for the campaign that will continue until election in November, there is not a doubt. The Young Republican League means victory for the Republican ticket down the line. Ten thousands of the flower of California young womanhood and manhood are already identified with the league.

Whenever the young blood of the Republican party has manifested an active interest in the party's welfare success has crowned the efforts. And the Old Guard of the State and nation joyously greets the young Republicans of California, looking to them with complete confidence for that cooperation and inspiration which shall result in avenging the betrayal of the Republican party and the restoration of peace and prosperity which have ever been the fruits of Republican governmental policies administered by Republicans.

Enthusiasm knew no bounds. It was one of the most effective political gatherings ever held in California. Eloquent speakers recruited from the young guard recalled and recounted the illustrious roll of mighty leaders under whose patriotic guidance and management this country has progressed as no other nation in the world in the past sixty years. They told of the glorious pages of history written by great Republicans since Lincoln, and under whose auspices this country has become the greatest forward-moving agency for patriotic government the world has ever known, and they said we should profit by their experiences and precepts which have brought prosperity and happiness to the people.

Organization work will be carried on in every precinct in California by active and loyal young Republicans from now until election day. Not one precinct will be overlooked by these keen young Republicans.

Graver Anxiety Over the Mexican Policy Than at Any Time.

Foreign Outlook Overshadows Arrest of Americans at Tampico.

Rebels Bank Hopes on Prospective Meeting of Villa and Carranza.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, April 11.—At no time since the inception of the present Mexican revolution have Washington officials been more apprehensive regarding the war's effects upon the United States than at present.

There are at least two, and possibly three, black clouds on the horizon which must be dispelled before Washington will feel free to draw an easy breath. Just now it is feared that any one of them may at any moment burst in such a way as to bring the deluge and force drastic action in Mexico. The factors which are causing great apprehension are: The reckless character of Villa's acts in expelling Spaniards from Northern Mexico by the hundreds and confiscating their property, while the State Department representations in the matter are either ignored by Carranza or are met with a refusal of compliance with Washington's requests.

The destruction of foreign property at Tampico as the result of the fighting there between Federals and rebels, despite the warnings of Admiral Mayo, the American naval commander at that point.

The arrest of a paymaster and several marines of the United States navy by Federal officers at Tampico, and Admiral Mayo's demand for not only an apology but the firing of a salute of twenty-one guns to the American colors.

In the first two of these phases of the Mexican situation which make it now so portentous for the United States, this government is involved with the governments of Europe. In the last only the United States and Mexico are concerned and the present indications are that this particular incident will be safely passed over without any conflict.

Probably the most serious is the complication ensuing with Spain as the result of the expulsion of Spaniards from Torreon by Villa.

It was learned today that the Spanish government at Madrid has taken up this matter directly with Ambassador Willard at that capital and is beseeching the United States to act in behalf of its subjects.

While Secretary Bryan said that he was not advised of any fresh representations, as unofficially reported, he was aware that the Spanish government had taken the matter up with Ambassador Willard.

Spain has objected vigorously to the expulsion of her subjects. Being powerless to act with Carranza in her own interests, she has repeatedly urged action on the United States.

It is known that the total failure of the State Department's representations to bring about satisfactory results has created an unpleasant impression in Madrid. This has been evidenced by the Spanish requests at that point releasing the United States from this service at the only point where Spain had any alternative other than the United States.

Carranza turned Mr. Bryan down flatly on his first protest against the expulsion of Spaniards from Torreon and refused to interfere with Villa. Mr. Bryan has since asked Carranza not to tolerate a general policy of expelling Spaniards wherever found by the rebel leaders in Mexico, though conceding their right of expelling individuals whom they have reason to believe have been aiding the Huerta government.

To these representations Carranza has made no reply, and in the midst of the negotiations has departed suddenly from Juarez for Chihuahua. There is no hope of obtaining any real satisfaction from him, in the opinion of the well-informed here, at least not until the United States government shows some disposition to use more than words.

REBELS JUSTIFY DEPORTATIONS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Constitutionalist headquarters here issued a statement tonight defending the expulsion of certain Spanish residents of Mexico as an act in accordance with the Mexican constitution and supported by international law. The deportations were ordered, the statement says, "to prevent them from giving further assistance to the enemy, and to protect them from the people who might, under present peculiar

QUICK AMEND BY HUERTA.

Prompt Disavowal Relieves Situation at Tampico.

Admiral Mayo's Report Sent to President Wilson.

Redress for Affront Said to Have Been Made.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The tense situation created here by the arrest of American marines by Mexican authorities at Tampico was greatly relieved today with the receipt of Gen. Huerta's prompt repudiation of and apology for the action, forwarded from Mexico City by Charge O'Shaughnessy. Although no definite statement was obtainable in official circles, it was broadly intimated that the necessary redress for the affront had been afforded.

Reporting developments to the Navy Department, Rear-Admiral Mayo, in command of the American naval force at Tampico, cabled that he had demanded that the Mexican commander salute the American flag in apology for the affront within twenty-four hours from 6 o'clock Friday evening. No further message had come from Admiral Mayo when the department closed tonight.

Admiral Mayo's report was forwarded to President Wilson at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., where he is spending the Easter holidays.

Officials at the State and Navy Departments considered the statement from Huerta full and frank. It promised an immediate investigation of Col. Hinojosa's action in arresting the marines and parading them publicly through the streets, and the official statement issued by the State Department added that Gen. Huerta had promised that "if the investigation should develop a greater responsibility on the part of Col. Hinojosa, the penalty applicable to the case will be imposed by the competent authorities."

HUERTA'S GOOD FAITH.

Gen. Huerta's good faith was accepted, apparently without reservation, and it was pointed out that it was but fair to await the result of the promised investigation and discipline of the Mexican officer responsible for the humiliation of the American navy. The Navy Department, it was said, has issued no instructions to Rear-Admiral Mayo directing either the withdrawal or enforcement of his demand for a salute. Officials here are disposed to rely on that officer's discretion and are certain he has been informed of the unqualified terms of Gen. Huerta's explanation.

Some doubt was expressed as to whether the salute could be demanded for what was termed an "irresponsible act" by a subordinate officer, especially in view of the prompt and full apology from the government in Mexico City. One official, who is an authority on naval precedents, said he knew of no instance in which a salute had been given the American colors in like circumstances.

This officer, delving into yellowed archives for a precedent, found nothing more closely resembling the Tampico case than a Civil War incident in which a British man-of-war enforced a salute from a Confederate shore battery and then declined to return the courtesy for fear such action would be construed as recognition of the Confederacy.

MADRID'S PROTEST.

New representations from the Spanish Foreign Office through Ambassador Willard at Madrid, asking assistance for the exiled Spaniards at El Paso, brought forth the comment that everything possible is being done to secure the return of the exiles, the protection of their property in Torreon and the prevention of like action in case of subsequent Constitutionalist successes elsewhere. Secretary Bryan again explained that he had instructed Consular Agent Carothers to demand of Gen. Carranza that the case of every Spaniard be considered separately on its merits and that there be no more wholesale deportations because of race.

A belated report to the Navy Department from Rear-Admiral Howard at Acapulco, sent Thursday night, said all was quiet at that port, towards which the Zapatistas are moving from the southwestern interior. Two ineffective bombs were dropped by the aeroplane Topolobampo at the Federal gunboat Morelos near Topolobampo. The Mexican commodore has hoisted his flag on the Morelos.

The gunboat Tampico, which has passed through many vicissitudes since defecting to the rebel cause, was reported to be "pumping out water."

ENTERED MEXICAN LINES.

Three American Soldiers, Who Disobeyed Orders, to Be Court-Martialed at Eagle Pass.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

EAGLE PASS (Tex.) April 11.—Arrested last night by Mexican Federals in Piedras Negras, opposite Eagle Pass, three enlisted men of the Third Field Artillery, U.S.A., were surrendered late today to American army officers on demand of United States Consul William P. Blocker at Piedras Negras.

The three soldiers, who entered the Mexican town in civilian clothing, were placed in the guardhouse at the border patrol camp here and will be court-martialed for alleged disobedience of orders. Soldiers had been instructed, it is said, to remain away from the Mexican side of the Rio Grande.

The release was affected only after a personal conference between Consul Blocker and Federal General Guardo, the Consul's formal request having been refused.

CARRANZA TO SEE VILLA.

HAS AN IDEA HE MAY NOT COME BACK ALIVE.

Decision to Confer With Ex-Bandit Is Brought About by the Change in Sentiment in Last Few Days Caused by Constitutionalist Excesses at Torreon.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

JUAREZ, April 11.—Before leaving for the south this morning Gen. Carranza held a conference lasting more than three hours with a number of revolutionary leaders. The first chief made it plain that his departure had been hastened by the fear of international complications as the result of developments in the last five days.

The general intimated that his decision to meet Villa immediately had been brought about by the simultaneous receipt of advices from the rebel representatives at Madrid, London and Washington to the effect that there had been a change in public opinion throughout the world and that something must be done to neutralize the conviction that the Constitutionalists were little better than bandits.

The representations made by British Consul Myles are said to have upset the general, but the published version of the Consul's communication contained no inkling of the demands that were actually made, according to an officer in Carranza's confidence.

Upon taking leave of his associates Carranza solemnly made the statement they might never see him again, but he did not explain why he felt that his life might be in jeopardy.

Although the special train was scheduled to leave at 7 o'clock it was nearly 11 o'clock before the commander-in-chief swung aboard and said goodby to the multitude that had assembled to wish him Godspeed.

It is known that Gen. Carranza with his Sonora troops will go to Yermo or Bermejillo to meet Villa, and those who are in a position to know assert that the conference will deal with the expulsion of the Spaniards and the threats made to send out the Jews.

A message from Secretary Bryan was received last night asking for a prompt answer to the protests already filed.

According to a telegram from Mexico City, which was given wide publicity tonight, rebel leaders assert that neither Villa nor Carranza will ever reach the capital owing to the existence of a plot on the part of the Federals to commit some overt act to force intervention.

The message states that an attempt will be made to blow up one of the warships off the east coast and at the same time to destroy one of the large buildings in El Paso.

While American officials are inclined to accept the rumor with the usual reserve, the Constitutionalists affect to be greatly agitated. Announcement was made tonight that Carranza had arrived at Chihuahua in safety but no details of the trip were given.

SAY FEDERALS ARE GAINING.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MEXICO CITY, April 11.—The united Federal armies facing Gen. Villa's revolutionary forces are gaining in their attack on Torreon, according to War Office advices received here at noon today. The dispatches say the Federals have succeeded in cutting the rebel lines between Gomez Palacio and Torreon.

COMMANDER AT TAMPICO EXPRESSES HIS REGRET.

VERA CRUZ, April 11.—A wireless dispatch received today by Rear-Admiral Fletcher from Rear-Admiral Mayo at Tampico reported that Gen. Morelos Zaragosa had expressed his regret at the arrest of the American marines who landed in Tampico on Thursday to obtain a supply of gasoline, and requested he be given twenty-four hours in which to consult with the government at Mexico City concerning the affair. Owing to bad communication between Tampico and the capital this time was readily granted by Admiral Mayo.

Gen. Zaragosa made a request today of Gen. Maas, the commandant here, for more ammunition, and a supply was sent to Tampico tonight on a merchant vessel. The sending of this ammunition leaves Vera Cruz without a supply and none is expected here until a consignment arrives from the capital.

A wireless dispatch sent from the gunboat Dolphin at Tampico to the battleship Florida off Vera Cruz said the cruiser Des Moines had left the dock at Tampico on Friday afternoon with 300 refugees on board, and that the cruiser Chester had 140 refugees on board and expected more.

The dispatch added that passes had been issued for about 1000 persons and there still were about 500 Chinese to be cared for. Admiral Mayo reported that he was accepting refugees on his ships without taking into consideration their nationality.

The admiral strongly recommended to Admiral Fletcher that he send to Tampico two well-provisioned transports, saying that he did not know how long the present situation would continue. He added that if the transports were not furnished promptly he would be forced to send the battleship Connecticut to Vera Cruz for coal with refugees on board.

Conditions at Tampico were reported to be in about the same state as they were on Friday, except that the rebels had added the Panuco River to their possessions.

Rear-Admiral Cradock of the British naval fleet, made a tour of inspection up the river yesterday, but returned today.

INTERVENTION IN MEXICO DEMANDED BY SPAIN.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

MADRID (Spain) April 11.—The Spanish Foreign Minister today asked Col. Joseph E. Willard, United States Ambassador, to Spain, to request the government at Washington to intervene in favor of the 1000 Spanish subjects expelled from Torreon, according to official news received by the Spanish Cabinet from Mexico, the expelled Spaniards are in a critical situation and the government decided to approach the United States government in their behalf, independently of the measures Spain is taking to bring her subjects back to their own country.

conditions, commit acts of violence against them."

The statement insists, however, that not all Spanish residents of the district involved were expelled, the order applying only to those whom Constitutionalist authorities had reason to believe were in league with the Federals.

Since Spain had full knowledge of the terms of the Mexican constitution in this regard, the statement argues, when her citizens settled in Mexico "their government cannot now set up the plea that they have been dealt with in an unlawful manner."

The statement also repudiates reports from Mexico Federal sources that Villa and his men are bottled up in Torreon. It asserts that 1200 Federal soldiers deserted to the Constitutionalist army during the fighting at San Pedro, which ended Thursday "with a complete victory for Villa's troops."

WILSON PLAYING GOLF.

President Takes No Interest in Mexican Situation and Secludes Himself With His Family.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS (W. Va.) April 11.—Though press dispatches and official messages describing indicents at Tampico in connection with the arrest of American marines, were before President Wilson tonight, he showed no interest in the situation and divulged no information whatsoever.

After playing twenty-five holes of golf in the morning and taking another buckboard ride in the afternoon, the President secluded himself in his suite of rooms with his family. At first the President showed a disinclination even to receive any information about the Mexican situation, sending word that he came here to rest.

Later press dispatches were shown him, saying Admiral Mayo's report of the incidents at Tampico had been forwarded here to determine if the United States were satisfied with the Huerta apology, and informing him that a salute to the flag had been demanded. The President received the news without comment.

THE DENVER KIDNAPING.

Five Men Held for Complicity in Assault Upon the Rev. Otis L. Spurgeon.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

DENVER (Colo.) April 11.—Five men accused of conspiracy and complicity in the abduction and assault upon the Rev. Otis L. Spurgeon, a minister of Des Moines, Iowa, here last Sunday night, were arrested tonight on warrants issued on indictments found by the Denver county grand jury in session today. No details of the charges made against the men were given out, and the grand jury will continue its investigation of the kidnaping tomorrow afternoon, holding a special session for that purpose.

The men who were arrested are being held without bond. It was against Catholic priesthood that the Rev. Mr. Spurgeon spoke, and his utterances in that connection were said to have caused a riot at his lecture last Saturday night and his subsequent abduction.

Barney Sylvester, the chauffeur who drove the automobile in which the Rev. Mr. Spurgeon was taken to Henderson, Colo., by his abductors, was among those arrested. The others are Frank Nugent, a chauffeur; Frank Soran, William Dolan and Jerry Cronin.

It was understood a score or more "John Doe" warrants had been issued tonight by the grand jury, and many witnesses had been subpoenaed for tomorrow's session.

RABBI REQUESTS WARDEN TO DELAY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

OSSINING (N. Y.) April 11.—Warden Clancy of Sing Sing prison received today a message from Rabbi Goldstein, Jewish chaplain of the New York Tombs, asking him to use his authority to postpone the execution of the four gunmen until Thursday, but not later, as Friday and Saturday were the most holy days in the Passover. The warden failing to do so, he asked that the request be communicated to Superintendent of Prisons John B. Riley. Mr. Riley, who was in the prison at the time, declined to honor the Rabbi's request. The doomed gunmen, when they were visited by Judson H. Lee, the Episcopal rector, and Prison Chaplain Cashin, exhibited little trace of the high spirits they showed last night.

"These men have had their hopes raised and crushed so often," said Dr. Lee, "that the elasticity and power of response is gone. Nothing less than an order for their reprieve would overcome the dispirited state into which they have fallen."

Hundred and Fifty Tons of Dynamite on the English Vessel Salved. The Crew Rescued.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ST. THOMAS (D. W. I.) April 11.—Abandonment of the British steamer Crowdon which went ashore on April 6 off Barhuda Island, was decided on today. The 150 tons of dynamite forming her cargo was salved, but the coal on board was lost. The ship's officers and crew are all well and will return to England shortly with the exception of the captain who remains at Antigua to give evidence at an inquiry into the wreck.

or two before 10 o'clock, he appeared at the door of his chambers and briefly and quietly announced to the waiting crowd of newspaper men that he had denied the application for a new trial, adding merely that his opinion would be given out as soon as copies of it could be prepared.

GLYNN'S STAND.

Gov. Glynn declined to make any statement concerning his future course in the gunmen's case or to comment in any way upon Justice Goff's decision. Earlier in the day the Governor had forecast his attitude by saying the case should rest entirely in the hands of the court.

The Governor displayed the keenest interest in the progress of the proceedings today. He kept in touch with the different steps through local and New York sources, digesting eagerly every new phase of the testimony as it was presented.

Asked if he would have anything to say about the decision when the full text was received by him, the Governor said he probably would not. This was taken to indicate the last hope for the gunmen had passed, and they must die on Monday.

Justice Goff made his decision known by briefly announcing that he had denied the motion for a new trial.

At the hearing today Charles G. F. Wahle, chief of counsel for the prisoners, said that seven new affidavits had been obtained, but that the signers of only three of them would be called on to testify. He added that all sorts and conditions of persons had volunteered various bits of evidence, but that counsel had run down many of these stories only to find a majority false. The proceedings were developed here when Judge Goff ordered a young man who delivered a note to him stopped before he could leave the room. The man was placed on the witness stand. He said he was Gustave Beck and had come to deliver a note to E. B. M. Browne, a rabbi, who has been working in the gunmen's behalf. The note had been handed to him in the hall of the Courthouse. That was all he knew about it.

Rabbi Browne, on the stand, said he had been working in the gunmen's behalf at the request of several Jewish societies. He disavowed all knowledge of the mysterious note the young man had delivered, and its contents were not made public at the time. The rabbi read it but would say only "it is a secret."

Carl Dresner, a bartender and signer of an affidavit stating that he had seen the now notorious informers, Bridgie Webber, Harry Vallon and others speeding away in an automobile from the scene of the Rosenthal murder, was called to the stand.

Dresner testified that on the morning of July 13, 1912, he was standing at Fiftieth street and Seventh avenue from 1 o'clock until shortly before 2 o'clock a.m. This was three days before the murder. He said he saw Rose, Webber and Vallon in front of a cafe and heard Rose urge Webber and Vallon to "put it over on" Rosenthal, when the latter emerged from the place with his wife.

Coming down to the time of the murder, Dresner swore that he was standing on the steps of the Elks' Club, which is diagonally across the street from the Hotel Metropole, where Rosenthal was killed, when he heard shots; and then a gray car raced by him through Forty-third street. Sam Schepps was on the running board and in the car he saw "Bridgie" Webber, Harry Vallon and Shapiro. Two other men were in the car, said the witness, but they were not any of the gunmen now in Sing Sing. He said he told Policeman James Kelly what he knew during the week Becker was convicted.

Desner insisted that he had kept still because he had been in fear of his life. He had lost that fear now, he added.

Dist.-Atty. Whitman tried to get the witness to tell just who he was afraid would kill him. Dresner said "there were plenty of people" in New York to be afraid of. He was unable, however, to give any names.

"I was taking no chances with gunmen and stray bullets," he explained.

"Why didn't you come to me and tell me the story," asked the District Attorney.

The witness laughed loudly. "Why," he said. "if I had gone to you and told that, I'd never even had a chance to get out of the criminal courts building without being shot. I doubt whether I should have been alive fifteen minutes, after I started to tell you the story. Jack Rose's friends would have put it over on me. You can depend on that."

The District Attorney asked Dresner why he failed to warn Rosenthal when he heard Rose say to Webber and Vallon, "go put it over on him." The witness said he "didn't want to get into any trouble."

When Mr. Whitman concluded, Wahle, attorney for the gunmen, questioned the witness about his fear of Rose, Webber and Vallon. Dresner repeated that he had been afraid that these men or their friends "would have got me if I had told a story involving them." The next witness was William K. Burwell, a professional billiard player of Waterbury, Ct.

Like Dresner, Burwell stuck to the text of his affidavit as made public yesterday, which described how he had seen Rosenthal shot down. The witness was shown pictures of the four gunmen and he swore that the man he saw fire at Rosenthal was not among the four. Before beginning his cross-examination, Dist.-Atty. Whitman instructed five men in the courtroom to stand up.

"Do you know these men?" he asked.

"I do," said Burwell. "They are Connecticut policemen. I have known them all six years or more."

Mr. Whitman then plunged into the witness's police record. Burwell admitted that he had been arrested many times and that in sporting circles he was known as the "St. Louis Kid."

Questioned by counsel for the defense, the witness said he realized he would be asked about his police record, but that he knew he had important evidence and that it was his duty to come forward and present it. Justice Goff asked Burwell for a minute description of the man he saw shoot at Rosenthal. Burwell said the man was about five feet, eight inches tall, of medium build, had a dark, soft hat on and was "sharp-faced." The witness didn't know whether the man had a high, sharp nose such as Harry Vallon has. Samuel Kalmanson, formerly clerk in an East Side store, was next called. He testified that he and a friend were walking through Forty-third street near the scene of the murder when they heard shooting. A man with a smoking revolver bumped into him, he said.

Here the witness was shown a photograph of Harry Vallon and he identified it as the man who held the revolver. Mr. Whitman's cross-examination failed to shake him.

While there appeared to be little chance of the Governor's taking any eleventh-hour action in the gunmen's cases, it was regarded as settled that the Secretary of State's office planned to keep open late tonight and possibly tomorrow. A reprieve from the Governor must be filed with the Secretary of State.

FROM THE DECISION.

Justice Goff, in his opinion denying the motion for a new trial, pointed out that on behalf of the defendants nineteen affidavits had been presented, fifteen of which should be disregarded as consisting "mainly of hearsay, impressions and matters that are irrelevant and immaterial."

Consideration of the other four affidavits, those of Dresner, Burwell, Kalmanson and Reo, the court said, must include their oral examination and cross-examination in open court.

After reviewing at length the testimony presented in the affidavits, the decision says:

"It would be a violence of my conscience and judgment to say that the proffered evidence given by the witnesses whom I have seen and heard would probably have changed the verdict if given upon the trial which resulted in the conviction of the defendants. On the law and the facts they have had a fair trial, and a jury of their fellow-citizens has pronounced them guilty. The court of last resort has unanimously affirmed that conviction. Appeal has been made for executive clemency and in these last moments, a year and five months after the conviction, when the crime itself is almost forgotten and human sympathies are deeply touched at the prospect of four human beings paying the highest penalty known to law, strenuous efforts are made to arrest the judgment of the law.

"Were these efforts directed alone to human sympathy there would be but one answer. But they are not directed to human sympathy. They are directed to an instrument of the law, whose sole duty is to administer justice, and no matter how harsh it may seem to be, it is nevertheless justice to deny the motion."

PHOENIX FETE MARKS NEW ERA.

San Francisco to Hold Three Days' Celebration.

Several Exposition Buildings Will Be Thrown Open.

First of Next Month to See a Gorgeous Display.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, April 10.—The wonderful reconstruction of the city of San Francisco will be celebrated on the 1st, 2nd and 3rd of next May.

The celebration will be in the grounds of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition. It will consist of a series of special events, lasting three days and including a grand masquerade and fancy-dress ball. One of the most striking features in connection with the celebration of the reconstruction of San Francisco will be the fact that some of the events and the masquerade ball will be held in several of the completed buildings of the exposition, which have been completed ready for being thrown open to the public for these amusement purposes nearly a year prior to the opening of the exposition.

This celebration will be conducted under the auspices of the Portola Executive Committee. A special committee for this celebration has been appointed by the Portola Executive Committee, who are now actively engaged in arranging for the celebration, as follows: Thornwell Mullaly, chairman; Marshall Hale, Dent H. Robert, James Woods, M. H. de Young, P. T. Clay, F. W. Kellogg, Frank T. Burt, R. A. Crothers, H. D. H. Connick, A. H. McCarthy, Walter S. Hobart, Walter S. Martin, E. M. Greenway, George Filmer, J. Frank Moroney and Vincent Whitney.

Machinery palace, the largest structure of its kind since the days of the Amphitheater at Rome, will be thrown open to the public for the first time.

There will be displayed the mural paintings and exposition statuary which is to dwarf on its completion any similar exhibition ever given on the American continent. It will be the first public display of the paintings and statuary being produced by the corps of exposition painters and sculptors.

The exposition jewels, illuminated for the first time, will be on display in the esplanade before the exposition buildings.

ATHLETIC CONTESTS.

During the day there will be notable athletic and aviation contests. Some of the exposition concessions will be open for the first time.

In the evening the grounds will be ablaze with illumination, and the great machinery palace will be turned over in its entirety for the first great pre-exposition ball. There will be floor space where the audiences of San Francisco's three largest theaters could all be dancing at the same time, and still there would be ample space for as many more.

Mayor Rolph and the Supervisors of the city have arranged that the May Day Festival on May 1 shall be held in the exposition grounds and the committee in charge of it will be announced later. Five thousand school children will take part. They will be given free admission, together with their teachers. Price of admission for Friday will be reduced to enable parents and public generally to see the exposition.

Dancing about the mammoth flag pole, 250 feet in height on the exposition lawn will be a new departure in May-day observances, one that the moving-picture films will carry worldwide. The May-day exercises will be under the direction of the Municipal May Day Committee, appointed by Mayor Rolph. The grand ball, the aquatic, aviation and athletic contests and the big Sunday afternoon concert will be directed by the special committee named by the executive board of the Portola festival.

THE SUNDAY DISPLAY.

Sunday afternoon there will be a public display of the exposition paintings and statuary and a grand band concert, which is to be unique in its kind.

"San Francisco rebuilt" is the occasion for the "Phoenix Fete," which the celebration will typify. It will be given on a scale comprehensive enough to embrace the entire population of the bay cities at the same time. The matter of reduced rates is being taken up with the railroad companies so that excursions may come from throughout the State.

Working in conjunction with the Portola Committee is another composed of exposition painters, sculptors and architects. They are arranging some special events commemorating the occasion.

Chief among these will be a plan for mural decoration of the great ballroom in the machinery palace. They have proposed that this decorating shall be done in open competition by San Franciscans. One wall of the machinery palace will be divided into 100 spaces. Each competitor will be assigned to one space and the committee of artists and sculptors will award prizes for the most artistic display. This is to be a display of talent rather than of wealth. A limit will be placed on the amount that may be expended on any space and the award will be for artistic merit rather than for ornate display.

San Franciscans themselves who attend the grand masquerade ball will make the final award for the grand prize. Each ball ticket will contain a coupon and the holder, after inspecting all the decorations, will vote this coupon for the one that pleases him most. It will be both interesting and instructive to note how nearly the opinions of the masses on "What is art?" will coincide with that of the highbrows on the committee.

An idea of the extent of the space in the machinery palace may be gained when one learns that among the special events there is being planned an aviation meet inside the machinery building. The entire course to be covered by the aviators in their flights is within the walls of the machinery palace.

Five other exposition palaces will be open to the public and there will be a display of mural paintings and statuary all afternoon and evening.

San Franciscans who have been reading and hearing of the exposition jewels will have their first opportunity the night of the fete to observe the jewels themselves. They are a new departure in the line of illuminative decorating, something which has not been attempted at any former exposition. Those who have seen the two private displays of the partially-completed diadem say that the effect is the most wonderful that has yet been achieved in electrical illumination.

Not even at the Portola festivals has an entertainment been planned on so elaborate a scale as that for the first grand ball in the exposition buildings. It is expected that not less than 4000 couples will take part in the grand march. Special arrangements will be made to secure moving-picture films of the ball. These will be shown in theaters around the world.

In itself, the "Phoenix Fete" will be unique. It will commemorate and mark the close of the reconstruction and restoration period. It is to be a holiday for the builders, a joint celebration of the captains of industry and the thousands of toilers who made the rebuilding possible. With them will be the gallant woman's brigade, those who fed and cared for the hungry toilers, making their lives worth the living while the rebuilding progressed. It marks the completion of the reconstruction period and the beginning of the exposition period.

TWO DIE IN AUTO WRECK.

Two More Are Badly Injured When Machine Turns Turtle Near San Francisco.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

DOUGLAS (Ariz.) April 11.—John J. Detloff, manager of a theatrical company, and Miss Hazel Schilino were killed, and Fred Harris, a Bisbee merchant, and Miss Mary Land were seriously injured, when Harris's automobile, in which the party were driving to this city, turned turtle on the State highway early today. Harris may die.

LEAK IN MOTOR DEPARTMENT.

Secretary of State Dismisses Stenographer Who Gave Advance Copies of the Lists.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, April 11.—An investigation by the Board of Control of the complaint of L. G. Reese, public stenographer, that some insurance companies were obtaining lists of the new automobiles recorded with the State, developed today that there had been a leak for four days in the motor vehicle department of the State Treasurer's office.

Investigation showed that Mrs. Grace Galbraith, stenographer and clerk, had taken advantage of the absence of Frank Cole, head of the department, to allow her sister, Miss McKenna, to make advance copies for the Western Motor Record of San Francisco, which is in the business of supplying lists of automobile owners to insurance companies and tire sellers.

Mrs. Galbraith was dismissed by State Treasurer Roberts today after she had been made to confess that she had taken the lists home and that her sister had copied them.

THE TIDE LANDS CASE.

Right of the San Pedro Lumber Company to Be Argued in Los Angeles This Week.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 11.—The Kerckhoff-Cuzner Mill and Lumber Company was eliminated from the rehearing of the so-called Los Angeles tide lands cases in the Supreme Court at Los Angeles next Monday by a decision handed down here by the court today. The right of the San Pedro Lumber Company to valuable tide lands fronting on swamp lands, both of which the company has been using, is to be argued before the court in Los Angeles next week. That, one of the justices said in chambers, is the most important undecided question relative to the titles to the disputed Los Angeles waterfront.

SMOTHERED TO DEATH.

Man Overcome in a Fire in San Jose Succumbs While on the Way to the Hospital.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN JOSE, April 11.—William Sinkwitz, 40 years old and unmarried, was smothered to death early today in a fire which did $4000 damage to the Superior lodging-house and restaurant on North First street in the center of the business district. Charles Plummer and Jack Spillman, firemen, dragged Sinkwitz out of the burning building. He died on the way to the Emergency Hospital.

FIRST CHERRIES SHIPPED.

Somebody in New York City Will Enjoy the Grand Pleasure of Eating the California Fruit.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, April 11.—The first box of California cherries to be shipped east this season was dispatched to the New York auction market today. This is the earliest in years that the first cherries have been sent. The fruit was grown in the orchards of Ernest A. Gammon on the Sacramento River near Courtland.

CLOSE GRASS VALLEY SCHOOL.

Sudden Epidemic of Contagious Disease Compels Quick Action by the Authorities.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

GRASS VALLEY (Cal.) April 11.—Owing to the prevalence of smallpox, the public schools here have been ordered closed by the State Board of Health. In order to stop the spread of the disease, especial steps are being taken by the authorities. A campaign of compulsory vaccination was begun today when virus was administered to school children.

BLOWN THROUGH A WINDOW.

Louisianian Who Sought Death Via the Gas Route Will Probably Succumb to His Injuries.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SHREVEPORT (La.) April 11.—After locking himself in a room, stopping all crevices and turning on the gas, Charles Bills succumbed to a desire for a final cigarette and struck a match. He was blown through a window and is expected to die. The house was partly wrecked.

HOW GOVERNORS GOVERN.

Seventh Annual Convention of the State Executives Will Be Held in Madison, Wis., in June.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

MADISON (Wis.) April 10.—The seventh annual conference of Governors will be held here beginning June 9, according to announcement today. Twenty-five Governors have already given assurance of their attendance and a number of former Governors are expected. Members of the Cabinet and other men prominent in public life have been invited.

Militia and Regulars to Attack San Francisco.

Force to Land on Beach and Advance Against City.

Maj.-Gen. Arthur Murray to Command Joint Troops.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 11.—Maj.-Gen. Arthur Murray, U.S.A., commanding the joint army and militia maneuvers to be held in the Western Department this summer, issued today the following particulars for the coming campaign:

For California, from August 1 to August 15, a maneuver campaign to be participated in by the regular army and organized militia stationed in California, to consist of an attack and defense of San Francisco to include, if practicable, a landing on the beach by the attacking force, and an advance against the city.

For Washington from July 1 to 11 a joint camp near American Lake to be participated in by a battalion of the Fourteenth Infantry, regulars from Ft. Lawton, Seattle, and the mobile troops of the organized militia of Washington.

For Oregon, a joint camp in a suitable terrain now being selected to be participated in by the Twenty-first Infantry of regulars from Vancouver barracks, and the mobile troops of the organized militia of Oregon. July 13 to 22 is the tentative date selected, Oregon camp.

For Idaho, a joint camp in the vicinity of Portland, Or., in a terrain to be selected, to be participated in by the Twenty-first Infantry regulars, and the mobile troops of the organized militia of Idaho. July 14 to 22 is the tentative date.

For Utah, from August 2 to 11, a practice march, probably from the vicinity of American Fork or Lehi to Ft. Douglas, Salt Lake City, with problems in minor tactics en route and more problems and field firing on arrival, to be participated in by a company of the Twenty-first Regular Infantry from Vancouver barracks, Washington, and the organized militia of Utah.

For Montana from August 10 to 19 inclusive, in camp, a joint camp on a terrain to be selected as near as possible to Montana, to be participated in by the battalion of the Fourteenth Infantry, regulars, from Ft. George Wright, Spokane, and the organized militia of Montana.

Water Company Alleges that the Pacific Electric Is Shooting Its Return Current Through.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 11.—The Yorba Linda Water Company of Los Angeles doesn't like to have the Pacific Electric Railway Company use its pipe line to bring back to the power stations the electricity used to propel its trains, and appealed today to the Railroad Commission to put a stop to it.

It is alleged in the complaint on file that the current that escapes between Richfield and Stern stations, Orange county, is being conducted back to power headquarters through the iron water mains that parallel the railroad tracks, and that the electricity has done serious damage to the pipes.

M'ALPINE'S WIDOW SUES.

Brings Action for Large Sum Against Three Accident Companies, One in Los Angeles.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

DULUTH (Minn.) April 11.—Mrs. Sarah McAlpine, widow of the late John McAlpine, whose mysterious death by shooting last year caused a sensation in lumber circles and on the Pacific Coast, today filed suit in the District Court against three accident insurance companies to recover amounts aggregating $89,000.

The Fidelity and Casualty Company of Ne wYorw is defendant in an action to recover on a $50,000 policy; the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance company of Los Angeles, Cal., is sued for $15,000, and the London Guaranty and Accident Company, Limited, is asked to pay $24,000.

McAlpine, who was said to be a millionaire, died August 15 last.

PELLAGRA KILLS ANGELENO.

Son of the Late Luther B. Vaughan Succumbs to Disease at Hospital in Richmond, Va.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

RICHMOND (Va.) April 11.—John B. Vaughan, 32, brother of Joseph Vaughan and Luther B. Vaughan, Jr., of 251 East Eighty-third street, Los Angeles, Cal., and a son of the late Luther B. Vaughan, for many years a prominent tobacconist of Richmond, died of pellagra at Memorial Hospital today following an illness of several months. The case was one of the most unusual ever treated at the institution. During his last days the patient was in a state of coma most of the time. In the early stages of the disease a rash in the shape of a ring appeared around the neck and on the arm. Later the patient suffered from extreme nervousness and great loss of flesh.

WEBB KENYON LAW UPHELD.

Supreme Court Rules that Kansas May Supervise All Shipments of Intoxicating Liquor into that State.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

TOPEKA (Kan.) April 11.—The Webb-Kenyon law passed by Congress, which gives the States control over liquor shipments, met the favor of the Kansas Supreme Court today. As a result of the decision Kansas will take charge of all liquor shipped into the State.

"Without this law no State has any more control over liquor than it has over the shipment of wheat and corn," said Justice R. A. Burch, who wrote today's opinion. "We believe that the liquor traffic can be made subject to the same regulations and white slavery and obscene literature and that Congress has the same power to regulate the shipment of liquor as it has to prohibit transportation of white slaves."

TOPEKA (Kan.) April 11.—The Webb-Kenyon law passed by Congress, which gives the States control over liquor shipments, met the favor of the Kansas Supreme Court today. As a result of the decision Kansas will take charge of all liquor shipped into the State.

"Without this law no State has any more control over liquor than it has over the shipment of wheat and corn," said Justice R. A. Burch, who wrote today's opinion. "We believe that the liquor traffic can be made subject to the same regulations as obscene literature and white slavery and that Congress has sufficient power to regulate the shipments of liquor as it has to prohibit transportation of white slaves."

Reclamation.

IRRIGATIONISTS ENDORSE LANE.

Denver Convention Thanks Him for His Work.

Inspires Faith in the West by Ideas of Publicity.

An Interstate Commission Is Recommended.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

DENVER (Colo.) April 11.—The irrigation conference called by Secretary of the Interior Lane after the consideration of problems relating to the reclamation of arid lands, closed tonight. The conference had been in session since Thursday.

The final act of the delegates was to adopt a resolution of confidence in Secretary Lane. The resolution, adopted by unanimous vote, follows:

"Be it resolved, that on behalf of the people of the arid West we extend to the Hon. Franklin K. Lane, Secretary of the Interior, our sincere and profound thanks for the revolution he has accomplished in the spirit and method of the administration of the reclamation act.

"That by adopting a policy of frank publicity in all irrigation affairs and of cordial co-operation between the Department of the Interior and the water users' associations, Secretary Lane has inspired new faith and courage in the people of the West and has identified the operations of his department with the best traditions of American statesmanship."

POSTAL SAVINGS FUNDS.

Investment of postal savings bank funds in the bonds of irrigation districts was urged upon Congress at the last session.

The action was taken upon the report of the Committee on Irrigation Districts. Another section of the report which was adopted in full, provides for the underwriting of irrigation district bonds by the Federal government.

NON-MINERAL GRANTS.

The only section of the report upon which there were negative votes was one recommending grants of non-mineral lands to the States for the purpose of financing irrigation projects. On the adoption of this resolution the delegations from California, Nebraska, New Mexico, Oregon, South Dakota and Texas voted "No."

Besides adopting the report of the Irrigation District Committee, the conference late today adopted a resolution prepared by John D. Reavis of California and introduced by A. R. Thompson of Oregon, providing for the selection of a permanent Interstate Irrigation Commission.

REAVIS'S RESOLUTION.

The resolution follows:

"That the Governor of each of the fifteen States participating in this conference appoint a committee of not exceeding three individuals; that such commissioners meet and form an Interstate Irrigation Commission, which shall meet periodically and shall consider matters of interest in respect to irrigation, individual, corporate or reclamation projects, and shall be empowered to submit to the Secretary of the Interior for his consideration, its recommendations concerning government connection with irrigation projects.

"That in appointing the first commission each Governor shall include one or more persons who have been delegates to this conference."

DESERT LANDS REPORT.

The delegates adopted the report of the Desert Land Committee, a prominent feature of which was a recommendation that title to land be granted by the government when settlers or promoters have expended large sums without being able to accomplish the results prescribed by the present law.

THE CAREY ACT.

The amended report of the Carey Act Committee, embodying in part the suggestion made last night by Assistant Secretary Jones for Federal aid in financing such projects by loans to farmers, also was adopted.

RECONSIDER NEWLANDS ACT.

The conference voted to reconsider the approval given last night to the pending Newlands-Broussard drainage and flood-prevention bill, and then laid the entire matter on the table. The vote to reconsider was nine to six, each of the fifteen States represented having one vote.

The States voting for a reconsideration were:

Colorado, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah, Washington and Wyoming. Against reconsideration: Arizona, California, Idaho, Kansas, Nebraska and Texas.

The effect of today's action was to place the conference on record as refusing to indorse the drainage bill pending in Congress.

Last night a resolution presented by the California delegation was adopted by the conference indorsing the Newlands bill. When the resolution was adopted, the Western Governors' Conference was in session in another part of the capital. At a secret session of the Governors today the action of the irrigation conference was reported and met with instant opposition. When the irrigation conference began its work the Governors were on hand. Gov. E. M. Ammons of Colorado obtained the adoption of a rule giving each State one vote in the conference. Then Gov. William Spry of Utah took the floor. He asked for information as to the act of the conference last night. Chairman Jones read the California resolution. Gov. Spry then asked for a reconsideration of the vote by which the resolution was adopted. That opened the battle. [illegible] Fairweather of California defended the action of the congress. Then Gov. Carey took the floor.

CAREY'S REMARKS.

Gov. Carey began by saying that he did not believe the conference understood the provisions of the bill. "This bill would require ten years before anything could be perfected," declared Gov. Carey. "The measure carries appropriations totalling $600,000,000 and not one specific appropriation bears upon the reclamation of arid lands."

"Mr. Chairman, have you read this bill?" he demanded abruptly.

"I have not," replied Assistant Secretary Jones.

Gov. Carey then accused George H. Maxwell of California of having worked against the reclamation bill when it was pending in Congress.

"It is acknowledged, Mr. Maxwell, that you represented the railroads in an effort to bring about the sale of land in scrip," he added.

The Californian sprang to his feet. "I can't permit that statement to go without saying that it is absolutely false," he shouted.

"Was it not so reported?" demanded Gov. Carey.

"I don't know what was reported," retorted Maxwell, "but I know I never made such an acknowledgment as you have charged."

Vigorous pounding with the chairman's gavel brought the passage to a close, and Gov. Carey resumed his speech. He declared that the Newlands bill was not in the interest of the West, but of the East and South.

"I appeal to you men today not to embarrass us when we are trying to do something for the West," he concluded.

MAXWELL'S DEFENSE.

Mr. Maxwell then took the floor with a vigorous defense of himself and the Newlands bill. Under the provisions of this measure, the sum of $20,000,000 a year for ten years will be turned over directly to the Reclamation Service," he said.

Gov. Ammons: "I don't know whether this is a good bill or a bad bill, but I know that it is not within the province of this conference to indorse it. I do not wish to condemn the measure, but simply to be silent on the whole subject."

Gov. Spry: "I agree with Gov. Ammons. Indorsement of a measure of this kind is not a part of the work this conference was called to do. I don't believe this conference should be asked to wash the linen of any other part of the country. There are enough matters to be considered that bear directly upon the prosperity of the Western States."

Gov. Oddie: "Those gentlemen from California, when the Carey Act Committee's report was being considered last night, threw cold water on the few little things we are trying to get in the arid States."

This brought a denial from the California delegation. After some further sparring a vote was taken on the motion to reconsider. It was adopted. Then, friends of the Newlands bill asked a recess until 2 o'clock before taking a vote on a motion to lay the considered California resolution on the table. This was voted down. The motion to lay on the table was then passed. The line-up of State on the three roll calls was the same.

The committee on the Carey act projects prepared a fresh report in place of the one which failed of adoption by the conference last night.

TEXT OF REPORT.

The report, which was submitted to the conference follows:

"Whereas, certain projects under the Carey acts are uncompleted and the States have found it impossible to secure their completion.

"Therefore, be it, resolved: First, that the lands included in any of the Carey act projects now uncompleted may be patented to the State whenever the Secretary of the Interior is satisfied that such action will insure the completion of the project and the protection of all the rights of settlers on such project, and on conditions that will guarantee such protection. Second, that in all such projects where the State declared itself unable to complete the projects, the national government proceed with the completion of the projects under special appropriations or with any other funds that may be or become available or subject to such regulations as the Secretary of the Interior shall approve and that on the completion of such projects, the national government shall extend authority to settlers in making settlement on them."

DAYLIGHT TRAIN HOLD-UP.

One Passenger Shot, Dangerously Wounded; Another Leaps in Fright and Is Killed Under the Wheels.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

NEW ORLEANS, April 11.—A daylight hold-up of passengers on Illinois Central train No. 34 was attempted today near Tangipahoa, La. Two robbers, after shooting and wounding a negro porter of the name of Allen, escaped without obtaining any loot.

Soon after the train left Tangipahoa the robbers entered a day coach filled with negroes and commanded the passengers to hold up their hands. One bandit flourished a pistol and the other began to search the passengers. A man named Allen attacked the man holding the gun and was shot through the body. It is reported he was dangerously wounded. Lude Anderson, a negro passenger, leaped in fright from the train and was run over and killed.

As the negro fell one of the robbers pulled the bell cord and when the train slackened they jumped and fled through the underbrush.

BOEHM UNDER ARREST.

Man Alleged to Be Wanted in Los Angeles Held for Trying to Fleece a Moving-Picture Manager.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NORMAN (Okla.) April 11. — A man known as E. A. Boehm of Chicago, but who declares he is the son of an Austrian nobleman, was arrested here yesterday charged with attempting to obtain money under false pretenses from the manager of a moving picture theater. It is alleged that Boehm claimed he represented a Sebring (O.) concern.

According to local officials, Boehm is wanted in several cities, including Denver and Los Angeles, as Edward A. J. Frieherr von Wallstattan of Austria, it is alleged. Boehm was married to the daughter of a Kansas City broker in May, 1913.

GEN. BRAGG'S WIDOW DIES.

Fond Du Lac Mourns Woman Who Accompanied Husband During His Career as a Diplomat.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

FOND DU LAC (Wis.) April 11.—Cornelia Colman Bragg, widow of Gen. Edward S. Bragg, famed leader of the Iron Brigade, Minister to Mexico and Consul to Hong Kong, China, died here today, approaching her eighty-fifth birthday. Mrs. Bragg was born in Rochester, N. Y., and was a grand-daughter of Col. Nathaniel Rochester of Virginia, commissary-general in the Revolutionary army and founder of the city of Rochester, which was named after him.

Gen. Bragg was president of a bachelor's club here in 1854, when Mrs. Bragg, coming here on a visit, forced his resignation from that body. She accompanied her illustrious husband on his trips to Mexico and China and was with him in San Francisco during the earthquake.

She leaves an only daughter, Mrs. Francis H. Sherman, widow of Commodore Sherman, U.S.N., of Oak Park, also four grandchildren. Her second daughter, Mrs. Bertha Bragg Scriven, died in Washington last February.

"IT PAYS TO THINK"

Public Utility.

ESHLEMAN OVERRULED BY THE SUPREME COURT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 11.—A decision affecting the jurisdiction of the Railroad Commission over water companies operated primarily and almost exclusively in conjunction with land companies, was handed down by the Supreme Court today.

The court held that such companies might sell water to a few clients outside the particular land project with which they might be associated without coming under the classification of a "public utility," even though the company's articles of incorporation might class it as such. The decision was in the case of the Del Mar Water, Light and Power Company of San Diego county vs. the Railroad Commission, in which an appeal was taken from the commission's decison that, inasmuch as the company had sold water to a group of residents of Del Mar, who were not vendees of the South Coast Land Company, with which the water company was tied up by contract, it was a public utility subject to the commission's ruling.

In deciding the question, Justice Melvin, who wrote the decision, said: "The serving of water to the seventeen inhabitants of the old town of Del Mar was not sufficient to make the water company a public utility."

ESHLEMAN OVERRULED AGAIN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 11.—The Supreme Court's decision yesterday, annulling the order of the State Railroad Commission forbidding the Oro Electric Corporation to enter Stockton on the ground that the electric company now operating there was giving good service at reasonable rates, is expected to have far-reaching effects. According to the decision, all cities whose charters so stipulate have the right to grant public service franchises unless the voters surrender such authority to the Railroad Commission. The commission's order in the Stockton case was made under Section 50 of the Public Utilities Act, which declares that no corporation in certain kinds of public service, shall begin the construction of a system without obtaining from the Railroad Commission a certificate that present and future convenience and necessity require or will require such a system.

Hopeless.

ABANDON RADIUM "CURES;" USELESS SAY DOCTORS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, April 11.—All hope of curing cancer by radium has been abandoned by some of the foremost surgeons and research workers of the country, who declared at last night's meeting of the American Society for the Control of Cancer that the failures of radium outnumber cures 100 to 1.

That nothing is of avail against the most dreaded disease but use of the knife was the opinion advanced by Dr. William H. Mayo of Rochester, Minn.

Operation is the only cure, but radium or ray treatment is in order as a temporary palliative, where operations are impossible, according to Dr. Francis G. Wood, director of cancer research at Colombia University. Failures from radium outnumber the cures 100 to 1, he said. Another generation will be required, he said, to furnish knowledge on the real cause and actual nature of cancer. Experiments for thirty-five centuries show that heredity plays small part, if any at all, in its appearance.

That a change in the habits and customs may reduce the disease to some extent was a ray of hope held out by Dr. Mayo, who also said any cancer could be cured if operated upon in its early stages.

"If we could only tell how to avoid it I would be glad, because I am frank to admit that we do not know," he asserted. He said that the statement that the use of meat was one of the habits to be avoided in connection with cancer prevention had been wrongly attributed to him.

The only optimistic note at the meeting was struck by Dr. J. Collins Warren, chairman of the Harvard cancer commission who, after reviewing its work, stated that the prospect for progress in combatting cancer had never seemed so bright as now. Immediate discovery of the causes of cancer could scarcely be expected, but the scientific commission in research work had entered upon a field where progress was sure though slow, he declared.

GIRLS! CLEAN AND BEAUTIFY HAIR NO DANDRUFF—25 CENT DANDERINE

Stop washing hair! Try this! Makes it glossy, soft and abundant.

Surely try a "Danderine Hair Cleanse" if you wish to immediately double the beauty of your hair. Just moisten a cloth with Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one small strand at a time, this will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or any excessive oil—in a few minutes you will be amazed. Your hair will be wavy, fluffy and abundant and possess an incomparable softness, luster and luxuriance.

Besides beautifying the hair, one application of Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; invigorates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

You can surely have pretty, soft, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will just get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed.—[Advertisement.

HUNT MISSING CLERGYMAN.

Two Men Descend Air Shaft of Abandoned Mine at Danville to Find Temperance Worker.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

DANVILLE (Ill.) April 11.—Two men descended the air shaft of the abandoned mine at Westville today but found no traces of the Rev. Louis R. Patmount, the temperance worker who disappeared on March 31. There is suspicion in some quarters that he has met foul play as a result of his anti-liquor activity.

In every Protestant church in Danville tomorrow an appeal will be made for volunteer searchers. It is hoped 500 men will report for duty at Westville on Monday morning, when the search will be resumed with renewed vigor.

Railroad Record.

FIND THORNTON DISAPPOINTING.

Doesn't Shake Up Things as Londoners Expected.

Wants to Be Accessible to All His Employees.

But May Make Great Eastern Model of Railroads.

[BY CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, April 11.—Henry W. Thornton, the American general manager of the Great Eastern Railroad, who formally took up his new duties on Tuesday last, has greatly disappointed some of his critics by his behavior since his arrival here.

He has not attempted to reorganize the Great Eastern yet. He is proceeding almost like a conservative Englishman. His visits to the offices of the road have been so far only two and both were short. Mr. Thornton intends first to settle down himself and his family.

In a talk Mr. Thornton said he does not intend to make a single move until he knows the Great Eastern thoroughly. He will move cautiously, but he does firmly believe in two general ideas regarding railroad management, namely, a thorough acquaintance with the employees of the Great Eastern road and his own personal accessibility.

Some reporters who were unable to see Mr. Thornton on the first day said that he has already put on the customary aloofness of the English official, but this was due to the fact that his clerks had not recognized the existence of a new regime and did not wish to bother Mr. Thornton with the cards of reporters. This did not occur on the second day.

Mr. Thornton says he believes in taking the public into his confidence and hopes that the public will take him into theirs.

Despite his cautiousness, Mr. Thornton made, in the eyes of the London newspaper critic, one terrible mistake. He was found smoking cigarettes on duty. It is contrary to all traditions for the general manager to smoke and work at the same time.

Meanwhile Mr. Thornton is calmly facing what Lord Claud Hamilton's speech in praise of the new general manager has made one of the most difficult tasks an American or any other foreigner has ever undertaken in this country.

WOULD TRAIN PARENTS.

Full Discussion of Their Responsibility to Be Had at Convention in Washington.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Full discussion of the responsibility of parents to see that their children are trained in good citizenship has been provided for in the programme of the third international congress on the welfare of the child, which will open here April 22. Announcement was made of this portion of the programme today and Judge Lindsay of Denver, a leader in juvenile court work, will be one of the principal speakers. The general subject to be presented is: "Parents' Responsibility in Training Children for Self-support, Home-making and Good Citizenship."

Among others to discuss the citizenship aspect of child-training will be James E. West of New York, chief scout executive of the Boy Scouts of America.

A feature of unusual interest on the programme is the address of Mrs. Zeritza B. Furnajieff of Sofia, official representative of the Bulgarian government, who will tell of the "Aftermath of the Balkan War" for the mothers and children of Bulgaria.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MUNCIE (Ind.) April 11.—Muncie, a city of more than 30,000 population, will be without a saloon after June 9, according to the County Commissioners, who late today decided the contest filed by the "wets" by confirming the certified vote of the recent local-option election, when the city voted "dry" by a majority of 462 votes. The "wets" announced they would appeal to the Circuit Court. The vote of the Commissioners was two to one.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 11.—Of especial interest among resolutions adopted at the annual meeting of the joint board of the State Normal School trustees held here today and yesterday, is one introduced by Judge George C. It is proposed to use one fund for normal students whose work is threatened by lack of money, while the other fund will be applied to the benefit of bright pupils in the training departments.

Life's Seamy Side.

PERMITS PAROLE AFTER A YEAR.

Supreme Court Decision May Aid J. J. McNamara.

Overturns Ruling of Board of Prison Directors.

Members Still Have Power to Reject Applications.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 11.—According to a decision handed down today by the Supreme Court, every prisoner serving a first sentence in the State Penitentiary may apply for parole after serving one year of the sentence imposed. Second-termers may apply for parole after the expiration of two years.

This decision overrules a long-standing regulation of the Board of Prison Directors which heretofore has held that a prisoner must have served one-half of his net sentence before he was entitled to apply for a parole. Instead it is made mandatory on the directors to consider applications for parole in accordance with the wording of the statute which established the right of parole. Several hundred prisoners in San Quentin and Folsom are affected, including Abraham Ruef, J. J. McNamara and Henry P. Dalton.

The decision was rendered in the test case of James H. Roberts, serving five years for forgery. It does not affect the right of the prison directors to withhold a parole, although they must hear the prisoner's application for one. Justices Melvin, Henshaw, Lorigan, Sloss and Angellotti signed the decision, Justice Shaw dissenting.

As bearing on the probable effect of the decision, one of the justices said later in chambers that he believed it would be chiefly instrumental in stuffing the pigeon holes of the prison directors. He had in mind the power which the board retains of rejecting any application, however early or late it may be received.

First White Woman is Sentenced to Be Hanged—Murder of Man to Be Expiated on the Gallows.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

TALLAHASSEE (Fla.) April 11.—For the first time in Florida's history a white woman was yesterday sentenced to be hanged for first degree murder. Sister Johnson, aged 35, was found guilty of killing John W. Hittington, aged 70 years, a farmer, four years ago at Altha, a small country town.

Gueringer Must Hang.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

KANSAS CITY (Mo.) April 11.—Vic Gueringer, convicted a week ago with participating with five other men in an attack on Mrs. Gertrude Shidler, a nurse, was denied a new trial today and sentenced to be hanged May 28 next.

FEAR STRIKE IN ROME.

Railway Men and Government Are Preparing to Lock Horns at Walkout Next Wednesday.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

ROME, April 11.—Both the railway men and government are preparing for the struggle which it is anticipated will begin next Wednesday if the railroad employees carry out their threat to begin a general strike. The railroad men are keeping secret their plans for the contemplated walkout.

The government has ordered all the prefects in the kingdom to return to their posts, and also is organizing a service along the coasts and will put it into operation in case the strike is called. Warships will be used in this service, but principally for carrying the mails.

TO WELCOME THE DAUGHTERS.

Vice-President Will Address Them and Mr. Wilson Will Receive Them in the White House.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Vice-President Marshall will deliver the address of welcome to delegates to the annual congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution, which meets here April 20 for a week's session. Mrs. William Cummings Story, president-general, announced today that President Wilson had sent a letter of regret, pleading official duties.

Speaker Clark also will address the delegates on the opening day, as will Secretary McAdoo of the Treasury Department and Edmund Wetmore, president-general of the Sons of the American Revolution.

President and Mrs. Wilson will receive the delegates at the White House on the second day of the session, and later, memorial services for Mrs. Charles Warren Fairbanks and Mrs. Adlai Stevenson, former president-generals, who died during the year, will be held.

UPHOLDS JUSTICE WEDDINGS.

Decision Affecting Thousands of Marriages in Chicago Handed Down in Municipal Court.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, April 11.—Marriages in Chicago by justice of the peace were held legal and binding today by Municipal Judge Martin, who discharged Edmund H. Polk, a justice of Lyons township, who had been charged with illegally performing a marriage ceremony.

The validity of thousands of marriages in Chicago by justices had been attacked on the ground that the Municipal Court law depriving justices of judicial power had taken away their right to perform the ceremony.

Judge Martin ruled that the act of uniting in marriage was a ministerial act, not judicial.

WOMEN MAY PARADE.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Women government employees may participate in the woman's suffrage procession May 9 as individuals if they so desire without fear of violating the civil service regulations. This is the substance of a letter from Atty.-Gen. McReynolds to Mrs. William Kent, wife of a California Congressman, made public today.

THE SIEGE OF WALL STREET.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

NEW YORK, April 11.—The men of the Wall street district are to be besieged for a full month by the woman suffragists, beginning next Thursday. The Woman's Political Union will open headquarters and have a large committee of women on duty for a month with daily noon meetings.

SOUTH PASADENA ISSUES.

Voters to Settle Important Municipal Questions Tomorrow—Trustees Seek Re-election.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SOUTH PASADENA, April 11.—In Monday's election three Trustees are to be chosen and voters are making issues of a separate municipality, the completing of the sewer system according to plans of Messrs. Olmstead and Gillelen, and the providing of an effective fire-fighting service for the city by the municipality, either by purchase or condemnation of the water systems now serving it before seeking a water supply from outside sources.

The three City Trustees up for re-election, J. P. Whitmore, Warren S. Carter and Don S. Gates, are united in declaring for local improvements, while the opponents of these men, H. E. Lanfair, I. W. Hinman and J. L. Walker, have not as yet stated their platform.

A City Clerk is to be elected, John W. Scott, the incumbent, seeks re-election, and the other candidate is B. V. Garwood. For City Treasurer Cyrus E. Mungor, incumbent, Charles Cramer and Benjamin Price are in the field.

Other questions are the turning over to the State Railroad Commission the power of control over public utilities serving the city, and the establishment of an industrial district in the Arroyo Seco—in the latter the rock crusher being the bone of contention. In the statement furnished by the rock-crusher faction it is set out that the establishment of an industrial district in the Arroyo would not work a hardship on the residents in the west part of the city, and that the rock crusher would be the means of saving a considerable sum of money in the paving of the streets.

On the other hand if the people vote to amend the city ordinance, the City Council states that the Arroyo will become an industrial district in which all forms of manufacturing concerns may operate and that the law could not be rescinded except by the vote of the people.

Precincts will remain exactly the same as they were at the last election, but the polling places have been changed in some cases. The polling place for precinct No. 1 will be at the Lincoln Park schoolhouse; precinct No. 2, No. 915 Meridian avenue; precinct No. 3, City Hall; precinct No. 4, tent on the northeast corner of El Centro street and Fair Oaks avenue; precinct No. 5, tent on the east side of Oneonta Park station, and precinct No. 6, tent on the west side of Oneonta Park station.

EASTER SERVICE.

At the Methodist church special services will be held at 11 o'clock. The choir will render two Easter cantatas under the direction of Ernest Hesser. At the Christian church the Sunday-school will have charge of the evening service, and at the Baptist church Miss Mabelle Clark of Los Angeles will be the soloist and a specially prepared programme of Lye Muir will be given.

Federal Mediation Board Uses Good Offices.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Through the good offices of the Federal Board of Mediation and Conciliation, a settlement was effected today of differences between the Baltimore and Ohio railroad and about 2000 of its telegraphers and telephone operators. Negotiations have extended over several months and at one time a strike was threatened. The settlement provides for a direct wage increase of about $75,000 a year, or an approximate increase of about 6 per cent. The new schedule is to date from March 1 last.

Vacation privileges have been extended to about 1200 men. The overtime rate in line offices was increased from 30 cents to 35 cents an hour and in relay offices from 40 cents to 45 cents an hour.

MINING AT STANDSTILL.

Decision of Operators of Pennsylvania Produces Stagnation in the Soft Coal Region.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PHILADELPHIA, April 11.—Soft coal mining in Central Pennsylvania was virtually at a standstill today because of the decision of operators here yesterday to close the mines pending settlement of the prolonged wage dispute with the workers.

At twenty mines notices were posted today stating that the mines would close tonight. At a number of these the men had not been working since Thursday and few of the regular forces were on hand today.

The operators who decided to close are said to control 85 per cent of the Central Pennsylvania soft coal tonnage.

COAL CONFERENCE DEADLOCK.

Miners and Operators of Western Kentucky Fail to Come to an Agreement as to Working Conditions.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

LOUISVILLE (Ky.) April 11.—The joint conference between representatives of union coal miners and operators of Western Kentucky, district No. 23, over working conditions and a wage agreement for the next two years, which has been in progress here almost two weeks, was adjourned today without any agreement being reached.

The points which caused a deadlock in negotiations are reported to have concerned working conditions involving cost of productions. Further negotiations, it is said, will depend on the decision of the employers as a body. Thirty-two mining companies and more than thirty-six thousand men are involved.

UNION-LABOR RIOT.

This Time the Clash Was Between Men of One Faith, but the Non-Union Police Finally Restore Order.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

PITTSBURGH (Pa.) April 11.—Members of the United Mine Workers who came here yesterday from points in the Pittsburgh district to question their officers concerning the wage-scale negotiations, at noon today abandoned efforts to hold a meeting. The hotel at which the meeting was to be held was the scene of much disorder and it was necessary for the management to summon police reserves to quiet the "insurgent" and "administration" forces. Thomas Robertson and E. D. Reed, leaders of the "insurgents," declared that twenty-five picked men had been sent to the hotel to break up the meeting. It was decided to try to hold a meeting at Monongahela next Monday.

PURE FOOD CLEARANCES.

New Bureau of the Department of Agriculture, in Charge of J. S. Abbott, formerly of Texas.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, April 11.—A clearing-house for pure food and drug information collected by the Federal and State governments has been established in the Department of Agriculture. Announcement was made of the temporary appointment of Dr. J. S. Abbott, formerly of the Texas Food Commission, as head of the new department. As soon as Dr. Abbott takes a civil service examination his appointment is expected to be made permanent.

The new work has been taken up in fulfillment of a suggestion made last November by Dr. Alsberg, chief of the Bureau of Chemistry, at a conference here of State food and drug commissioners, during which it was brought out that there was much duplication of work by the States in making tests and other food and drug work.

Dr. Abbott is a graduate of University of Chicago, was formerly connected with the Southwestern University Medical College and was chemist on the reference board of the Texas Cotton Seed Crushers' Association. He already has taken up his work here.

Diplomatic Bill Appropriates Money to Purchase a Separate Building in the Capital City.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The diplomatic and consular appropriation bill was reported to the House today from the Committee on Foreign Affairs. Besides the authorized purchase of embassy buildings at Mexico City, Tokio and Berne, the measure increases the State Department contingent fund by $33,000 so as to increase the rental allowance for the embassies at London, Paris, Berlin and St. Petersburg to $15,000, and at Rome, Madrid and Vienna to $12,000.

The bill carries $50,000 for the international congress on alcoholism at Washington next year and authorizes the President to invite foreign countries to send delegates.

A Genuine Piano Sacrifice

As stated heretofore, this is a genuine sacrifice of perhaps the largest and finest stock in California. I must sell out. Conditions beyond our control have arisen that make it necessary for us to quit altogether. I must immediately return to Oregon. I ought to be there now. I have offered this store, with fixtures, furniture, a lot of elegant rugs and carpets, everything, including stock and good will, to several different music houses, but I couldn't find any man or set of men with sufficient capital.

If I sent these pianos north I would still have to sell them and have the additional expense of boxing and hauling and freight and insurance, so I prefer to pocket my loss, sell the pianos as they stand for what they'll bring. Southern California homes now have the benefit of the greatest drop in piano prices that has ever been offered, and I'm sending pianos into hundreds of homes that had never dreamed of being able to own such beautiful instruments. Not only that, but lodges, clubs, associations, have sent their representatives to us to get the benefit of these literally smashed and slaughtered figures.

Brand New $95
Brand New Genuine Mahogany $115
Brand New Largest Size $135

Note Some of the Prices!

The best made Player Pianos, ordinarily priced at $700, I'm selling for $320. For plainer styles I'll take $265—$900 and $1000 fanciest Player Pianos are reduced in the same ratio. Regular upright pianos, brand new and warranted makes, are only $115 and $135 and the plain styles are only $95. There are also numerous standard makes such as Kranich & Bach, Hardman, etc., all marked to go for only $85. Not brand new, of course, but as good as new. Also numerous more elaborate styles at $130.

No Reasonable Offer Refused Now!

The world's most beautiful instruments including the famous Bush & Berts, Decker, Hazelton, Kimball, Kimball-Acmelodic player pianos, Pianola Player Pianos, Smith & Barnes, the famous Bungalow Player Pianos and also the best of all the finest player pianos, the player piano de luxe, and scores of other well known makes are here.

To pay all cash isn't necessary. I'll take as little as $1.00 a week on any number of these pianos. You can take your choice from dozens of the most beautiful brand new Player Pianos for $15 a month, and some from $10 or $12. Almost any reasonable offer as to terms will be accepted.

Positive and Bona Fide Savings!

Tell me the price you wish to pay and I will give you a piano at that price. Tell me the terms you wish to make and I will let you have a piano on those terms. This is no time for argument. The situation is urgent and if you have any possible use for a piano or a player piano don't put off coming, but call at once, make your selection immediately. No such opportunity as I am now presenting has ever before, or will ever again, come to Los Angeles.

Music Rolls Discounted Too

Hand-Played Contract Rolls Also Included!

Now that our Victor talking machines have been disposed of we are going to commence the sale of all music rolls for all the various makes of modern player pianos. Remember, these are not obsolete types of rolls, but latest "88-note," and will be sold at heretofore unheard of reductions as follows:

$ 5.00 worth, now only...$3.50 $20.00 worth, now only..$11.00
$10.00 worth, now only...$6.00 $40.00 worth, now only..$20.00

Special Monday and Tuesday—With every $10 Purchase a 75c Player Roll FREE.

Why Buy Fire Sale Pianos When You Can Buy Unblemished Instruments Cheaper?

If a man offered me a fire sale piano I would insist upon a guarantee on that instrument that would pass the closest scrutiny of my lawyers. Water is a piano's greatest enemy. Heat warps its woodwork and affects the temper of its strings. Steam is death to glue joints in case-work, sound-boards and pin-blocks.

Remember, therefore, in buying a piano that no matter what other stores may offer in the way of alleged inducements on new or damaged or slightly damaged instruments, this store, because of the great necessity for immediately closing, offers the greatest possible inducement on brand new, fully guaranteed pianos, backed not only by the manufacturer's warranty, but by the famous money-back Eiler's guarantee. You're sure of an entirely satisfactory purchase in this closing-out sale.

CALIFORNIA BUSINESS MAN GETS QUICK RELIEF FROM STOMACH ILLS

R. W. Gray of Los Angeles Gives Mayr Remedy Credit for Good Health.

R. W. Gray, a business man of Los Angeles, and proprietor of a furniture establishment at 5878 Moneta avenue, was for a long time a victim of stomach disorders. Mrs. Gray was similarly troubled.

They took Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy. Then Mr. Gray wrote: "My wife and I have both taken Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy and both are well now. Your medicine is fine, and we have some yet in the house. If I should get sick I would sure send for more."

Such letters from happy users of this remedy come in from all parts of the country. Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy is known everywhere. The first dose convinces—no long treatment.

Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy clears the digestive tract of mucoid accretions and poisonous matter. It brings quick relief to sufferers from ailments of the stomach, liver and bowels. Many declare it has saved them from dangerous operations; many are sure it has saved their lives.

Because of the remarkable success of this remedy there are many imitators, so be cautious. Be sure it's MAYR'S. Go to the Owl Co.'s Stores and ask about the wonderful results it has been accomplishing—or send to Geo. H. Mayr, Mfg. Chemist, 154-156 Whiting St., Chicago, Ill., for free book on stomach ailments and many grateful letters from people who have been restored. Any druggist can tell you its wonderful effects.

CARDINAL LOGUE ON HOME RULE.

No Religious Discrimination, Says Ireland's Primate.

Fears Ulsterites' Kick May Upset the Measure.

Intimates the Protestants' Power Will Be Shorn.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BELFAST, April 11. — Cardinal Logue, the Roman Catholic Primate of Ireland, today consented to give a brief interview upon the home rule controversy. His Eminence was traveling from Dundalk to his palace at Armagh when he received the reporter.

"I never interfere in political matters," said the cardinal, "but I will say that in my opinion the Irish people, with the exception of some of those in the northeast, are enthusiastic for home rule, and not, as is so often said, indifferent at heart.

"I do not believe the Protestants really fear religious discrimination under the operation of home rule. They are afraid, however, of losing their long-standing monopoly of the good things of this country. If they have any real fear of unjust religious discrimination under home rule government there is no reason for such

"But the people in the northeast are making so strong a fight against the passage of the home rule bill that I am afraid it will result in alterations which will destroy its working value."

The cardinal's attention was called to some bitter criticism of Ireland, in which a polemical and widely-circulated Orange pamphlet attributed to Cardinal Logue, without giving reference to date, place or manner in which these criticisms were made.

"I do not recall ever having criticised the United Irish League," replied the cardinal. "I do not interfere in such political matters.

"Fifteen years ago, in connection with a row some young fellows stirred up, I criticised the Ancient Order of Hibernians. It was purely a parochial affair, but I understand it is now used in a manner to give it national significance."

Phrases alleged to have been used by Cardinal Logue in connection with the United Irish League were, "a cruel tyranny, an organized system of blackguardism."

No one was found at the Union League of Belfast who could say where and when the cardinal was supposed to have made these criticisms of the United Irish League and in their literature distributed by this organization these words were quoted as being directed against the Ancient Order of Hibernians and only in reference to a local matter.

BIGGEST FUEL CONSUMER.

The Pittsburgh District Uses Twenty-one Million Tons of Coal and Coke Annually.

[New York Tribune:] The Pittsburgh district of Pennsylvania is the greatest consumer of fuel in the world, and in magnitude of coal traffic it is pre-eminent. In population Pittsburgh ranks fifth among the cities of the United States, having as "Greater Pittsburgh" only about one-sixth of greater New York, but in the consumption of coal alone Pittsburgh nearly equals that of the largest city in the country. It is estimated (no accurate data being available) that Greater New York consumes between 20,000,000 and 20,000,000 short tons of coal annually.

The Pittsburgh district in 1912, according to Edward W. Parker, of the United States Geological Survey, consumed 17,721,783 tons of coal and 1,000,000 tons of coke, or a total of about 22,700,000 short tons, or 10 per cent. more than all the boroughs of greater New York. Moreover, Pittsburgh also consumes millions of cubic feet of natural gas. The quantity of coal sent to New York harbor ports for local consumption, for bunker trade and for transshipment to coastwise and foreign ports is between 35,000,000 and 36,000,000 short tons. In 1912 the total coal business of the Pittsburgh district, including local consumption and shipments East and West, amounted to 59,150,179 short tons. The coke used and handled was approximately 14,000,000 tons, making a total of about 73,000,000 tons, or nearly twice as much as the coal going to New York harbor.

The quantity of coal shipped by rail and water to Pittsburgh and through Pittsburgh to points West in 1912 was 42,801,134 short tons, an increase of 4,160,226 tons over 1911. All of this increase was in rail shipments, as those by water fell off about 100,000 tons. The shipments to Pittsburgh were, by rail, 7,850 tons, and by water, 9,943,- tons. The shipments to points west of Pittsburgh were, by rail, 24,- tons, and by water, 1,993,350 tons. The shipments from the Pittsburgh district to eastern points, all of which do not go through the city, amounted in 1912 to 15,349,045 tons against 13,169,866 tons in 1911. The shipments of coke in 1912 were, to Pittsburgh, 4,962,207 tons; to the west, 5,684,566 tons, and from the Pittsburgh district to eastern points, 1,294,056 tons.

TUNNEL UNDER BOUNDARY LINE.

CALEXICO, April 11.—A tunnel on the Arizona and San Diego Railroad, which will probably be one of the most-talked-of in America, is soon to be begun. It is only 620 feet in length, but it is unique in that it is the only tunnel in North America that crosses an international boundary line. It will be the only place in the United States where one may go out of the country into Mexico through a hole in the ground.

THE CALMETTE INQUIRY.

Former Wife of Caillaux Says Editor Never Offered Money for Any of the Letters.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, April 11.—Mme. Gueydan-Dupre, former wife of Joseph Caillaux, and her son, Francois Dupre, testified today at the inquiry before Magistrate Boucard into the killing of M. Calmette, editor of the Figaro, by Mme. Caillaux, that M. Calmette never had offered them directly or indirectly, money for documents relating to M. Caillaux.

Mme. Gueydan-Dupre said she had never been approached by any one with a view to arranging an interview with M. Calmette. She also affirmed that she had not communicated to M. Calmette the contents of letters or documents of any kind, and asserted that she had been surprised at the publication of the "Thy Joe" letter. The witness said that at the time of the pumblication of this letter she had telephoned M. Caillaux and he had told her that he knew she was too loyal to have given it out.

M. Boucard had summoned the Princess de Mesange-Estradere, former society editor of the Figaro, to confront Mme. Gueydan-Dupre at the hearing today, but the princess was out of the city. The princess some time ago testified that at the time of the divorce of M. Caillaux and Mme. Dupre, three letters were destroyed by agreement in the presence of notaries, but that Mme. Dupre had retained photographs of the letters.

[BY CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ROME, April 11.—Holy Week and Easter church functions are the attractions of the last few days of the Rome season, but the usual social entertainments have not been interrupted. The number of Americans here, which is already great, is increasing.

Receptions and bridge parties continued throughout the week.

Miss Deacon is visiting her sister, the Princess Albert Radziwill, and has been much entertained.

Mrs. Thomas N. Page, wife of the American Ambassador, gave a reception this week. Among the guests were the Contessa de Thomar, Marchesa Lante Della Rovere, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Belmont and Don Marino and Donna Elsie Torlonia, formerly Elsie Moore.

The Marchese de Alcedo gave an elaborate dinner in honor of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Moore. The Spanish Ambassador was one of the guests.

Mme. De Gebbard, who, with her daughter, is very popular, in Rome, gave a dinner for Conte Papadopoli, at which Miss Deacon, Prince Rospigliosi and the Marchese and Marchesa Marignoli were guests.

Other dinners this week included those given Louis Tiffany and Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Moore.

Contessa Dentice di Frasso, formerly Georgina Wilde of St. Louis, is slowly recovering from an attack of typhoid.

ENTERTAIN IN PARIS.

[BY CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, April 11.—Mrs. Ferris Thompson gave a reception this week for Comtesse de Seguier, the Comtesse de Montebello, the Princess Rospigliosi, the Comtesse de Costlogon, formerly Miss Blake of New York; Comte Flury, the Comte de Castellare and the Marquis of Fresnoy.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Warren Lamson, parents of the Comtesse Cardelli, have arrived in Paris for a long visit. They are from Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew W. Rose are at the Meurice.

Henry W. Cannon is at the Elysee Place Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Wheeler are at the Carlton after returning from Nice.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Alexander have left the Ritz for Monte Carlo.

DOINGS IN LONDON.

[BY CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, April 11.—Earl of Granard and Countess, formerly Beatrice Mills, have gone to Ireland, where Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Mills will be among their Easter party at Castle Forbes.

The Duke of Roxburghe and Duchess, formerly May Goelet, have arrived from Cannes and went to Floors Castle, where they will remain to the end of the month. They will have a big party for the United Border hunt steeplechase at Kiloc on April 20 and 21. After that they intend to come to London to remain until August, when they are going to Byreslaugh Lodge for grouse shooting, after which they will go to the Berkshire moors.

Winston S. Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, has gone to Madrid for Easter.

Hon. Almeric Paget and Mrs. Paget, formerly Pauline Whitney of New York, are in Paris.

The Earl of Craven and the Countess, formerly Cornelia Martin of New York, have gone to Cannes for two weeks.

The Countess of Essex, formerly Adele Grant of New York, made her first aeroplane flight this week in the plane of Claude Grahame-White.

King George and Queen Mary intend to spend a quiet two weeks at Windsor Castle before going to Paris. The King will, however, undoubtedly, be unusually busy on account of the political situation and the Queen is expected to pursue her researches into the vast hidden treasures at Windsor, of which she has already unearthed so many, especially old furniture and priceless china.

Queen Mother Alexandra is recovering from a bad attack of the grip. She will remain in London over Easter.

The London season will not reopen before April 20, when the opera season at Covent Garden commences with Mme. Melba in "La Boheme." There is a long list of distinguished box holders, including Gertrude, Lady Decies, Lady Mountstephen, the Hon. Mrs. John Ward, formerly Jean Reid; Mrs. Bradley Martin, Mrs. Urban Broughton, J. Pierpont Morgan, Mrs. R. McCreery, Mr. and Mrs. Almeric Paget, Washington Singer, Alfred G. Vanderbilt and of course, the King and Queen.

O'GORMAN REVEALS PLAN OF OPPOSITION.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Senator O'Gorman, chairman of the Interoceanic Canals Committee and leader of Democratic opposition to the repeal, plans to make an argument before the committee next week against the administration's position on the ground that this government now is negotiating in its proposed treaty with Colombia a clause whereby Colombia's vessels of war may have access to the canal free of tolls. The clause is identical with one in a previously-negotiated, but never-enforced, treaty with Colombia which Great Britain approved. The argument will be made that if Great Britain conceded the right of the United States to exempt Colombian war vessels, it is inconsistent for Great Britain to maintain now that the United States may not exempt American coastwise shipping.

Among men summoned before the Canals Committee next week to discuss the tolls controversy are Joseph H. Choate, former Ambassador to Great Britain; Henry White, former charge of the American embassy in London and later Ambassador to France; Dr. Benjamin Ide Wheeler, president of the University of California; Frederick W. Lehman of St. Louis, former Solicitor-General of the United States; Oscar S. Straus, once Ambassador to Turkey and former Secretary of Commerce and Labor; George L. Record of New Jersey, who was a member of the Platform Committee of the Progressive party at its Chicago convention in 1912, and many others. On the list to be heard, besides several Senators, are representatives of many Pacific Coast, New Orleans and industrial and commercial organizations.

MAP OUT AN ITINERARY FOR QUEEN OF BULGARIA.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, April 11.—Plans for the announced visit of Queen Eleanora of Bulgaria to the United States will be laid before the State Department in Washington on Tuesday by William Caspar, representative of the Queen, who arrived in this city last Thursday, and Clayton Rockhill, recently appointed Consul-General of Bulgaria in New York City. Arrangements for the Queen's journey to the cities now included in the itinerary are being rapidly arranged. Interest in the visit is attested by a stream of messages from all parts of the country.

MISSION TO SOFIA.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Miss Mabel T. Boardman, head of the American Red Cross, announced today the selection of Miss Helen Scott Hay, an enrolled American Red Cross nurse now in charge of the Western Suburban Hospital at Chicago, as superintendent of the proposed school for trained nurses at Sofia, Bulgaria.

The appointment is the result of an appeal made to the Red Cross by Queen Eleanora of Bulgaria, who is to visit this country next month. Queen Eleanora asked help in instructing Bulgarian women in nurse work. She herself was a Red Cross nurse during the Russo-Japanese and Balkan wars.

FRUIT LAXATIVE FOR SICK CHILD GIVE "CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS."

Cleanses tender little stomach, liver, bowels without injury.

Every mother realizes that this is the children's ideal laxative and physic, because they love its pleasant taste and it never fails to effect a thorough "inside cleaning" without griping.

When your child is cross, irritable, feverish, or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels and you have a well playful child again. When its little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember a good liver and bowel cleaning should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on each bottle.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs." Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other fig syrup with contempt.

Preparation Is Life's Most Important Event

Success is correctly anticipating how to meet future conditions.

Obviously these anticipations have to be more general than specific. In other words we can anticipate circumstances better than individual acts.

It is our primary training that has to do with our attainments more than we sometimes suspect.

Proper preparation will help us to estimate our strength and weakness, both mentally and physically. Also the peculiar kind of endeavor our ability is best suited to.

The best education teaches us, first, early as possible to fix a definite kind of endeavor as our life's work, and then to do the most important part of our work or play first, and as much of the smaller details as we have time afterward.

The great question of life," like Stevenson says of Happiness," is how to begin, and Happiness is one of the results of proper training.

It is like desirable companions, if too eagerly or directly sought after, never found. In fact, it is always a result, and the most lasting kind, comes from the satisfaction of a desire that has to do with the benefit of mankind.

For instance, to know we can have a live nerve removed from an acking tooth without pain is satisfying indeed.

This is being accomplished daily as well as crowning, filling and extracting by Homer's new analgesic method.

Much social unhappiness comes from a bad breath, this is one of the symptoms of Pyorrhea.

Every one should watch for bleeding or receding gums, teeth slightly sore or loose. These are indications of Pyorrhea also.

Dr. Homer's specilties are: Treating Pyorrhea and making teeth without plates; giving a full set of teeth without plates or ordinary bridge work, if two or more roots remain in either jaw.

Associated with him are men who make plates to restore natural expression and prevent shrinking of gums.

DR. HOMER, with offices in the Orpheum Bldg., 636 South Broadway, says: Getting ready to do is more important than the doing.

Appeal.

CLARION CALL TO REPUBLICANS

Dudley W. Robinson Sounds Keynote at Convention.

Appeals to the Young Men to Redeem California.

Says Time Has Come to Drive Out Johnson Cohorts.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, April 11.—Dudley W. Robinson, in sounding the keynote at the convention of the Young Republican League of California here today, spoke as follows:

"Fellow Americans: Never has there been a call of our country or our State that appealed to a more patriotic spirit or inspired a loftier purpose than the spirit and purpose which prompts this gathering. Amidst the turmoil of changing times and political experiments a still alarm of danger has thrown a hush of apprehension over the land. Differences of opinion are being attuned harmoniously in the responsive vibrations of all true American hearts to the deep and solemn note of patriotism.

"An un-American administration at Washington, elected by a minority of our people while the majority was divided by factional strife, breaks down the bulwarks of our prosperity and stultifies our national character before the world.

"In Sacramento a squad of political spoilsmen, in an effort to promote their fortunes by widening the national breach, is exploiting and debauching the structure of our State government to construct a political machine.

"In this crucial hour, this country appeals to the manhood and womanhood of its youth, regardless of parties, to infuse their blood and their spirit in the arteries and tissues of the magnificent political fabric which our fathers have bequeathed to us.

"We are Republicans. Republicanism is not a matter of occasional choice—it is a state of mind springing from a national heredity and education. Republicanism is the expression of the best that is in the typical American character.

"The true American is not hysterical, nor is he a fanatic. He is independent, he is self-reliant, he is sober, he is fair. He insists upon his rights. He despises hypocrisy and counterfeit. Petty strife, intrigue, treachery and treason revolt him.

"It is characteristic of the average American citizen to believe in the great destiny of his country and to take pride in its development not only at home, but as a power among the nations of the world. He breathes in the air of freedom and independence, and instinctively strives to make himself a fitting example of the manhood of his country.

"He believes that conditions in the United States should be kept fit for the development of its men and women. He takes pride in the opportunities it offers to the oppressed and unfortunate of all the world. But he insists that when they come here to share its blessings they shall become part of a loyal and united people in spirit and in fact.

"For all of these things the Republican party has stood from the day of its birth. Conceived as the instrument to wipe out slavery, to shame political perfidy, to rebuke and eradicate national pusillanimity, and, in a word, to establish our national integrity at home and before the world, its foundations were predestined to support a magnificent and permanent structure.

"The Republican party is not and never has been a campaign device. It is an essential element of our national being—the column which forms the center of seven decades of upbuilding. It would border on tiresome repetition for me to enumerate the accomplishments of the Republican party. It is enough to say that whenever constructive progressive measures have been added to our system of government and whenever the nation has taken a stride forward in its world mission, from the time of Abraham Lincoln, it has done so under the auspices of a Republican administration.

"The unanswerable proof of the fact that the Republican party is the most magnificent vehicle of political progress that ever existed since society was organized is demonstrated by our present social conditions and is written in the brilliant pages of our history. The reason for this record is found not in the cunning of party devices or the perfection of partisan machinery, or the skill of its leaders in political campaigns, but in the fact that deep in the hearts of the great majority of our citizens are worthy and patriotic impulses which impel them to united action for the perpetuation of our principles and institutions. No better name can be given to this than Patriotic Americanism.

"As surely as the magnet draws the needle this force unites the flower of our manhood and womanhood in the hour of national necessity under the political designation of Republicanism.

"No stronger proof of the assertion that Republicanism has become an element of typical American character is needed than the overwhelming registration of the men and women of California as straight Republicans. There is no political machine in California, either holy or unholy, which bears the name Republican. We are gathered here today to inaugurate the organization of Republicans for united action.

"The necessity for our work found its beginning some seven years ago. An organization known as the Lincoln-Roosevelt League was formed within the ranks of the Republican party in California. That factional movement was led partly by men who desired to accomplish reforms within and through the Republican party and partly by disappointed politicians who wishes to erect a political machine controlled by themselves.

"You remember, as I do, how the so-called leaders of the Progressive party protested to us in those days again and again that they had no intention of disrupting or injuring the Republican party, but that they intended to accomplish their avowed purpose of purification within the party. Probably no argument was more potent in drawing to the banner of those treacherous politicians was elected president and Ralph Hathorne of San Francisco was elected vice-president. Walter B. Fawcett, a leading young Republican of Alameda county, was nominated for secretary by C. L. Shinn of Sacramento and elected without opposition. Spencer Thorpe was elected chairman of the Executive Committee, which will be composed of members from every young Republican club in California. C. E. Vahey of San Bernardino, Kenneth Adams of San Francisco and Spencer Thorpe were elected members of the committee on organization.

The Resolutions Committee was composed of Fred C. Fairbanks of Pasadena, H. F. Jones of Fresno and E. E. Wheelock of San Diego.

The ringing declaration of principles framed by this committee [printed separately in another part of The Times this morning—Ed.] was adopted with a whoop that shook the very foundation of the great hostelry.

With the declaration of principles as their battle cry, the young Republicans of California will go forth to meet the would-be destroyers of their party.

SOUNDS KEYNOTE.

Dudley Robinson, chairman of the Executive Committee of the Young Men's Republican Club of Los Angeles, was then introduced and delivered the keynote address. It was enthusiastically received and Robinson was accorded an ovation.

CONGRATULATIONS.

Secretary Fawcett then read congratulatory telegrams from the following prominent Republicans; Senator John D. Works, Senator Albert Cummins, Hon. Samuel M. Shortridge, Senator George C. Perkins, A. H. Hewitt, Gustave Brenner, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, and Robert Sweeney, vice-president of the State Committee.

Loud applause greeted the reading of each message of good cheer, and encouragement.

BACK IN THE FOLD.

Ralph Hathorne, a leader in the progressive and civic life of San Francisco and Gov. Johnson's campaign manager in that city in 1910 when Johnson ran as a Republican, delivered a rattling five-minute speech. Hathorne said he quit Johnson and his clique of fake reformers because he had betrayed the people. He said the old Southern Pacific machine was a mere toy compared to the Johnson-Earl-Lissner-Finn machine. "It is the most powerful political machine west of the Rockies," said Hathorne. "And has been built out of the taxpayers' hard-earned wages."

DETAILS OF THE MEETING.

The meeting was called to order in the large assembly hall of the Coronado Hotel by E. L. Davin, president of the Young Republican Club of San Diego. Davin welcomed the visiting delegates. Spencer Thorpe, president of the Young Republican Club of Los Angeles, nominated Davin for temporary chairman, and Oscar Horn of Los Angeles seconded the nomination. There were no other nominations and Davin was unanimously elected. In accepting the honor Davin delivered a brief address in which he said that the Republican party has always been the party of action, and that at no time has it ever been negative in matters of legislation, certain self-constituted "Progressive" bosses to the contrary notwithstanding. He declared that the Republican party has made mistakes, but that it has always been large enough to rectify these mistakes within its own household. He called attention to the fact that every sound, sane, rational progressive law standing upon the statutes of this State today and to which Gov. Johnson and his associates are continually pointing was placed there by the Republican party which both the young and aged Republicans are so zealously upholding. He said the organization of the State-wide young Republican movement will bring hundreds of well-meaning Republicans who were deluded into following Johnsonian rainbows back into the G.O.P. ranks.

"The prosperity of the State and nation depends upon the success of the principles which the Republican party for more than fifty years has continually advocated," said Davin. "The formation of the so-called Progressive party was a stupendous blunder. Thousands of splendid men and women who were fooled by the catch phrases and high-sounding theories of the Johnson party are coming back into the Republican party where they belong. The Progressive party is absolutely dead as a national party; it is making its last stand as a State outfit right here in California. The overwhelming Republican registration clearly shows what the people really think of the freaky and extravagant Johnson administration."

He said there was no necessity of a third party, unless it be to gratify personal ambitions.

Five-minute talks were made by C. L. Shinn of Sacramento, Lane D. Webber of San Diego, Bartlett of Los Angeles, Judge St. Sure of Alameda and many other well-known Republicans.

NEXT MEETING.

The next meeting will be held in San Francisco the latter part of May. United States Senator W. E. Borah of Idaho will deliver the main address. A squad of young Republicans will then start with Senator Borah and tour the State. A monster rally will be held in Los Angeles the first week in June. Other speakers of national prominence will accompany Senator Borah.

One hundred stalwart young Republicans of Los Angeles arrived yesterday in a special train and took a prominent part in the organization work. Every county south of the Tehachepi was represented by a goodly number and many of the northern counties.

That the convention will prove to be another long step toward reuniting and regenerating the party is certain. The Young Republican League of California will play an important role in the smashing of the Johnsonian machine in this State. And that's just what its red-blooded members intend to do.

Among those who participated in the convention were, Los Angeles county—Spencer Thorpe, E. N. Marnell, Alfred L. Bartlett, George M. Rosecrans, Oscar L. Horn, Frederick C. Fairbanks, Dudley Robinson, Arthur G. Gage, W. H. Willis, Frank Blair, Alex Comstock, Edgar F. Hughes, Charles L. Chandler, Fred Spring, Elmer R. McDowell, Lewis H. Brown, A. L. Baldwin, Archie Gety, Wallace Williams, A. H. Loefler, C. E. Scott, W. F. Carderwood, A. C. Jansing, C. H. Windham, C. Oliver, Samuel H. Pardue.

DECLARATION OF PRINCIPLES OF YOUNG REPUBLICAN LEAGUE

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, April 11.—The following is the full text of the declaration of principles adopted here tonight at the organization of the Young Republican League of California:

"We, the representatives of the Young Republican organizations of the State of California, in convention assembled at San Diego, announce the following declaration of principles:

"We reaffirm our allegiance to the great Republican party and pay our tribute of respect and veneration to the memory of the greatest Republican of all—the great emancipator, Abraham Lincoln.

"We are Republicans because we have an ineradicable faith that the Republican party is the only party which is an unfailing instrumentality for producing efficient and economical administration of affairs of State and nation; because it is the only party which is sure to enact such legislation as will produce economic conditions which make real prosperity possible. Republican party for fifty years has kept step with changing social conditions and during that period, while in almost continuous control of affairs, the United States has grown from a comparatively provincial nation to a position of world-wide power. We observe with deep regret the vacillating, retrogressive foreign policy now in force and deplore any departure from the Monroe doctrine, which has been the guiding rule wisely followed by our Presidents for generations in their treatment of international affairs. We denounce the present administration of this State as the most profligate in the State's history and we charge that the present Governor is directly responsible for the shameless increase in the cost of administering the government. We challenge the administration to demonstrate wherein the affairs of State are conducted as economically or as capably as were its Republican predecessors. The increase of 65 per cent., or around six and one-half millions of dollars in the appropriations of the Legislature of 1913 over those of the Legislature of 1909, is indication of the extravagance of the present Governor. The increase represents an oppressive and unnecessary burden on the taxpayers of the State and a waste of public treasure.

"Without regard to fitness or efficiency, henchmen of the Governor have been loaded on the pay roll of the State and where no sinecures were open new livings have been created for the faithful camp followers. The people of this State are weary of boss government and they welcome a return of the Republican party to control. We are not unmindful of the fine constructive statesmanship of Republican legislatures in this State. It is a splendid record. We condemn the aggressions of unscrupulous big business and with gratification we review our party's record in restraining the same.

"The Sherman Anti-Trust law and the Interstate Commerce Commission are twin measures passed by Republican Congresses which have been most efficacious in this regard and have been repeatedly and successfully invoked to regulate and control monopolies. We hold that a canal built by American genius, labor and capital—through American territory—should be free and open to American vessels plying from one American port to another and that any treaty not recognizing this fundamental right is contrary to reason and we condemn the national administration for its high-handed efforts to repeal the free toll act as regards such action as a disgraceful surrender of American rights.

"The national administration has taken a long step backward in American diplomacy and its action is an affront to the pride and independent spirit of a great people. We believe that the protective tariff will be to the best interests of the producers of California, not only in the citrus industry but in every avenue of trade. We believe that the home market is the best market in the world and we would throw about it such reasonable safeguards as will preserve our American producers and workers from coming in direct competition with the underfed, underpaid labor of Europe. We hold the Democratic tariff responsible for the business stagnation in the country everywhere prevalent.

"Our ranks are open to all patriotic men and women in California. We congratulate them upon the great privilege of walking in the paths heretofore familiar to our country's greatest men: Lincoln, Grant and McKinley. We regard with satisfaction the fact that complete woman's suffrage is in this State a settled issue. We believe that the granting to woman of the right to vote is in the interest of purer politics and is a guarantee that matters affecting the home will be settled in the interest of right and morals.

"We believe that Republicans of this State should, wherever possible, assist the advocates of woman's suffrage to secure for women the right to vote. The Republican party is the party of youth, of virility and promise, and is the only party which will endure. It has seen many periods of storm and stress but it is now, as it always has been, the hope of all who have witnessed the successive devastations of Democratic administrations. We extend a message to confidence and good cheer to our brother Republicans throughout the State and nation, and bespeak a new era in politics with the young Republican movement fructified. The Republican party of this State through the pernicious activity of a few bosses and the faithlessness of our present Governor suffered defeat and temporary disorganization. We, the young Republicans of the State of California, do hereby repudiate any affiliation with or allegiance to those certain leaders whose influence has proved to be a detriment rather than an aid to the cause of our party."

SANTA ANA, April 11.—Arriving home from a motion-picture [illegible] last night, Mrs. Ellis H. Smith [illegible] a burglar in her house at [illegible] North Broadway. After putting [illegible] her car Mrs. Smith entered [illegible] a rear door and walked to the [illegible] hall where she hung up her hat. [illegible] she was leaving the hall a burglar ran from a bedroom and out [illegible] front door. Mrs. Smith got only a glimpse of him. He had [illegible] the room, dumping contents of [illegible] reau drawers upon the floor. [illegible] as can be learned he found [illegible] to his fancy.

THE POLITICAL WATCHTOWER

Now is the time for all good men and women to come to the aid of their country by tossing their Easter top-pieces into the ring and run for office. Already, yet, a thousand or less of able-bodied males supposed to [illegible] in their right minds are industriously polishing stump speeches, [illegible] to corral the campaign cigar [illegible] and getting the dope on the [illegible] fellow in preparation for the [illegible] battle of the ballots. And before we proceed, remember, dear [illegible], that the "ballot is more deadly than the bullet," with humble apologies to any staunch I.W.W. with "Progressive" tendencies.

Joking aside, the campaign is upon [illegible] and we are prepared for the shooting.

Of course, Hiram W. Johnson is the "Progressive" candidate for Governor. He was selected four months ago by [illegible] Earl, Tom Finn, "Limitation" Wallace and two other bosses. As Johnson is the whole "Progressive" party in California the "backroom-primary" experts couldn't very well turn Hiram down. And John Eshleman, Meyer Lissner's representative on the Railroad Commission, is the "Progressive" candidate for Lieutenant-Governor. No sane person will deny this. Eshleman was picked by the same sanctimonious quintette after the famous "backroomprimary" was fixed. And it's so down the line for every other State officer on the "Progressive" ticket. The candidates have been cut and dried by the Earl-Lissner-Finn ticket framers and the "Progressive" voter has absolutely no choice, the direct primary to the contrary notwithstanding. The Democrats have unlimited Gubernatorial timber or at least there are bunches of Bourbons for office. A dozen Democrats are avowed candidates for Governor. The leading candidates are Fred H. Hall, Bakersfield; Senator John B. Curtin, Sonora; Edward White, Watsonville; Senator John Sanford, Ukiah; Charles King, Kings county, and ad infinitum. Signor [illegible]ttinetti announced his entry into the race three weeks ago and then removed himself and declared he would not run unless the "demand was unanimous." Since that time he has discovered, via kind-hearted friends, that the demand was un-unanimous, and he will continue to pick flaws in politics at Woodrow's pleasure. Hall and Curtin are the leading candidates. [illegible] is behind Hall, while the anti-[illegible] faction of Democracy is supporting Curtin. White is touring the State, but his chances are slim, so say his friends.

Sanford will probably drop out shortly. He is far from being physically fit for a hard campaign. King is a farmer and says it's time the State had a farmer for Chief Executive. Oh, yes, there's Sidney McMahon Van Wyck, Jr.—almost overlooked Sidney. Now, Van Wyck has gained considerable fame as a coupon-cutter and is doling out money to railroad companies for fare and Pullman service gadding about.

A number of strong Republicans have been suggested for the nomination for Governor; but sentiment seems to have crystallized upon Dist.-Atty. Fredericks of Los Angeles as the probable nominee, although others will contest for the honor in the primary.

Eshleman is the "Progressive" candidate for Lieutenant-Governor. Oscar Farish and Lorin A. Handley of Los Angeles are egged on by their friends to run for Lieut.-Gov. Wallace's job. Farish is the leading [illegible] rumored for the place, to [illegible]. If Keesling does not run for Governor he will probably try for Lieutenant-Governor. Milton Schmitt of San Francisco, a Republican Assemblyman, will probably run for this [illegible]. There are several other prospective candidates. One thing is certain: the Republican candidates will [illegible] picked at any "backroomprimary" frame-up.

For the United States Senate, Francis J. Heney and Chester Rowell [illegible] fight it out for the "Progressive" [illegible]. Rowell is the choice of Johnson and Lissner but Earl wants Heney. Earl and Chester don't mention each other's names in polite society. Former Mayor James D. Phelan of San Francisco and Frank [illegible], union labor soap boxer, a [illegible] for the Jeffersonian toga nomination. Phelan has the support of the State Central Committee and [illegible] generally? Griffin should [illegible] poor second in the primaries. Samuel M. Shortridge of San [illegible]; Congressman Joseph [illegible] of Alameda and State Senator Albert E. Boynton of Oroville [illegible] Republican candidates. Shortridge and Knowland are straight [illegible], while Boynton was the "Progressive" leader in the 1913 session. He has repudiated Gov. Johnson and the Earl-Finn clique and returned to the Grand Old Party fold.

For Congress in the Tenth District, which takes in the greater part of Los Angeles, Leo Youngworth will probably fight it out with Congressman W. D. Stephens for the Republican nomination. It is doubtful if the "Progressive" bosses pick any one to [illegible] upon. Dr. R. W. Hill, well-known Democrat, may run. Job Harriman [illegible]

In the Ninth Congressional District Congressman Bell will probably run as a "Progressive." Former Mayor [illegible] of Long Beach and Editor [illegible] of the Long Beach Telegram, [illegible] Republicans, are out for the [illegible]. It is not unlikely that one or [illegible] other will step aside and unite [illegible] against Bell.

[illegible] Superior Court judges are to [illegible] this fall. The following [illegible] will be candidates to succeed [illegible]: Willis, Monroe, Wilbur, [illegible] Myers, Shenk, Morrison, [illegible] Taft and Hewitt. The last [illegible] mentioned were appointed by [illegible] Johnson. Following are some [illegible] avowed candidates for the [illegible]: Justice Sidney Reeve, W. S. [illegible], Frank Blair, Joseph Coyne, [illegible] R. Bainbridge, Elmer Mc[illegible] and Stephen G. Long. The [illegible] contests promise to be in[illegible].

[illegible] candidates are already out [illegible] Attorney. Chief Deputy [illegible] Ford, Frank Allender, Tommy [illegible] and Lewis Cruickshank. [illegible] is a Republican, and is looked [illegible] a winner. Woolwine and [illegible] are Democrats. Allender is an independent. Of [illegible] candidates for this office are [illegible] the ballot as non-partisans. [illegible] hopes to ride into this important office on the Socialistic and [illegible]

[illegible] Third District, now filled by [illegible] F. E. Woodley, a Gov. [illegible] appointee, a number of candidates are gunning for votes; Dan Riley and Tobias Harris, two Republicans, will oppose Woodley, who will try to fill his own shoes.

Candidates for the Fifteenth Assembly District in the county are coming out in droves. The same for the Senatorial districts. Republican leaders are confident they will elect the Republican nominee in every legislative district in Los Angeles county. Both the "Progressives" and Democrats will probably have complete tickets in the field.

County Assessor Edward Hopkins will have City Assessor Walter Mallard as his chief opponent. Hopkins is a Republican and Mallard an Earl man. W. C. Mushet will not run; he is for Hopkins.

Sheriff W. A. Hammel will try for a fourth term. Former Sheriff and Collector of the Port John C. Cline will oppose him. So will Constable George Lyons and Samuel Browne, a secret service man. Cline has the support of Will White and E. J. Werdin.

Judge N. P. Conrey of the Appellate Court is a candidate for presiding judge of that court. Judge Craig of the Superior Court and attorney Gesner Williams will make it a triangular contest. Judge Conrey was named by Gov. Johnson. Judge Craig is a real Republican and Williams a Democrat.

Register!

THE WATCHMAN.

THE PRODIGAL SONS AND FATTED CALVES.

THEY are coming home and they are welcome—these prodigal sons of the Republican party who were lured away by the fleshpots of Progressivism and won to the affections of such a political courtesan as Hiram Johnson. They see the handwriting on the wall and eke in the registration books. They are coming in out of the wet and coming early to avoid the crowd. They are coming like smoke, or like thunder, like the devil—any way you might choose to put it.

Come on! Come on!

In the parable of Holy Writ, the fatted calf was served in a feast of rejoicing when the Prodigal Son came home. And since Progressivism has made a great show of piety, accepting as its leaders such theological scholars as E. Tobias Earl, Guy Eddie, Francis Heney, Chester Rowell, Tom Finn and that hear-general in the battle of Armageddon, Hiram Johnson, it is not strange that the prodigal sons returning to the Republican party should be familiar with the Biblical story of the fatted calf. And being familiar with it, it is not strange that they should expect all of the fatted calves to be turned over to celebrate the home-coming of the prodigals; that the highest honors and the most important offices should be gracefully extended to those who are returning with so much alacrity to be welcomed in the arms of the G.O.P.

For, God, how fond they are of veal!

It is also true that many of these prodigals have had some experience in the matter of holding political jobs and are accustomed to dining on food purchased by taxpayers' money. No doubt their eagerness to assume the arduous task of holding public office is augmented by the desire to show the Republican party that they have not returned to be drones, that they are not ashamed of their emancipation from the folly of Progressivism and that they want to be conspicuous in the campaign—especially when the gong rings for dinner. No doubt they are also influenced by the belief that the members of the Grand Old Party, whose loyalty never swerved and who fought with sturdy defiance against the overwhelming odds of faddism, trickery and Progressive dishonesty, are too fatigued and worn to now bear the brunt of the battle, and would be grateful for a chance to retire on the eve of a brilliant triumph.

Who could doubt the motives of our zealous prodigals? We rejoice at their enthusiasm and prize their eagerness, and are greatly elated that they have come home. But it so happens that the sturdy veterans of the fierce campaigns are not so fatigued as our solicitous prodigals think. Another thing, which it does not give us pleasure to say, is this: Our friends have been so long out of the party and dwelling in an atmosphere foreign to Republicanism that it seems best that they should first serve an apprenticeship in the ranks before assuming the generalships and captaincies. We do not question their integrity; but, nevertheless, the fact remains that once before in the midst of a hard-fought battle they went over to the enemy.

Yes, indeed, our prodigals are welcome back. But even in the parable our sympathies were always with the faithful son who remained at home and worked hard. We always thought that the fatted calf should have been killed in his honor, as an object lesson to his meandering brother, and that after the prodigal son had remained on the old farm and did a few days hard work to show that it wasn't wholly mother's cooking that brought him back, that then he might also have had a fatted calf killed to celebrate his home-coming.

That is something of the way we feel toward our Progressive prodigals. They should be content to wait until they "have been licked off"—or spent a few contrite hours on the mourners' bench before asking for the highest honors in the State.

Appeal.

TAFT LEADS RECALL FIGHT.

AGAINST UPSETTING COURTS BY POPULAR VOTE.

As Head of Bar Association Former President Is Urging Lawyers to Do All in Their Power to Stall Movements Regarded as Revolutionary.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DENVER, April 11.—The national movement for the recall of the judiciary and of judicial decisions is meeting with concerted opposition from the lawyers of the country.

William Howard Taft, former President of the United States, is heading this opposition. Not in a directly open way, but in a manner that is calculated to bring the same results as though he were making a public appeal.

The former President is sending letters to all prominent jurists and to many attorneys throughout the country, calling attention to the threatened encroachments upon the judiciary. He is gently urging the organization of the lawyers and judges in each district to oppose any measures looking to the recall of judges or decisions.

Justice Tully Scott of the Colorado Supreme Court is one of several local judges and lawyers to receive a communication of this kind from Taft. It is in the form of an invitation to become a member of the American Bar Association, of which the former President of the country is at the head.

Call to Republicans.

the thousands of loyal and patriotic Republicans who have now turned their faces against the treacherous machine that they innocently assisted in constructing.

"How alluring was the name of Lincoln on the banner of these political schemers: How holy was their mission! They gained control of all the political machinery of the Republican party. Political time-servers of every complexion crowded under their victorious banner. Places were found for camp followers, and more places were created for the overflow, until as mercenary a political machine of patronage hirelings as America has ever seen since the days of Tweed and Croker was fastened upon the State of California.

"In its ruthless course the Johnson machine stole a United States Senatorship, disfranchised the Republicans of this State in a Presidential election, and finally crowned their perfidious career by disbanding without day the legally-constituted committees of the Republican party in an effort to destroy that magnificent institution in California.

"By gang methods as brazen as ever marked the organization of a political machine, the Governor of the State of California has bound unto himself by ties of personal interests the purchasable political elements in every part of this State. The very men whose activity in district politics caused the disaffection of conscientious citizens six years ago are now found tabulated upon the extravagant political pay rolls of California.

"Hiram Johnson understands only one brand of personal politics, and depends upon the ignorance of the public for the effect of his demagogic utterances. But he has overridden the excuse for his political existance. When a man is entrusted, in the heat, of popular clamor, with the leadership of a cause of the hour, but, in the intoxication of temporary power, diverts the forces entrusted to him, he becomes a menace to the purposes of the cause which he espouses. So the Progressive party candidate for Governor went into office upon the tide of a popular cause, but now has harnessed the active political forces with which his position brought him in contact and made of them a political machine for the advancement of his own ambition.

"Thus did Napoleon carry France beyond the necessities of national defense in mad pursuit of personal ambition—and he achieved disaster. So did Caesar exploit Rome. I offer the examples of Caesar and Napoleon not as parallels or counterparts to this incidental character in California history, but as I would offer a magnifying glass through which to observe the mean proportions of a strange insect.

"The State of California is crying out for the representation of the majority of its citizenship in its government. The restoration of the Republican party to power in California is necessary not only for the honest and orderly government of our State, but also to establish it in its proper position in the nation, so that the glorious promise of its future may not be blighted.

"The present administration is burdening the State with riotous extravagance and distracting its citizens with a swarm of imperfect statutes. And because the itch of national ambition has affected the scalp of Hiram Johnson, our national representatives have been chosen from those pledged to disrupt and oppose the Republican party.

"In Washington a Tory President, supported by Hessians of Democracy, is striking blow after blow at the institutions and progress of California. Our industries suffer under the assault upon the tariff. Our peace is menaced by secret striving to appease the Japanese. Our borders are reddened by the blood of human beings through the ghastly act of raising the embargo upon the exportation of arms and munitions of war to Mexico, in pursuance of a cruel policy of aiding in wholesale murder, while refraining from open interference. And now we find ourselves, on the eve of the development of our magnificent harbors with the alluring prospects of world-wide commence at our doors, sacrificed upon the altar of scholastic cowardice and political incompetence.

"Now is the hour of the youth of California to arise and invite the brunt of a great fight in the cause of patriotism. We honor the stalwart souls who have valiantly carried the banners of Republicanism in the past and on their wisdom we will lean. We do not arrogate to ourselves the glory of their great achievements, but in this time of need, inspired by their devotion, we resolve to take up the burdens and obligations of that heritage with which we have been blessed."

"Our State should be governed by honest, loyal Republicans. We mean to urge men of capacity and fitness of character to offer themselves for nomination to the offices throughout this State. We mean further to actively and patriotically aid in selecting for such offices men who will creditably represent the Republican party in the councils of the nation.

"This organization is not formed to promote the candidacy or personal ambitions of any man or set of men. It has no pre-ordained candidates, or running mates, or slate of names. It is designed to promote under the direct primary law freedom of opportunity to aspirants for office, and an intelligent selection by the Republican voters at the primary election of worthy standard bearers.

"The candidates for State offices should be men representative of the high character of the great body of citizens who are registering in overwhelming numbers under the banner of the Republican party. The possibility of personal attack on candidates upon the score of previous affiliations with sinister, private and corporate interests is practically eliminated from our problem by the assimilation in the Johnson machine of the great hordes of mercenary artisans who have lived by political manipulation in counties, districts and precincts during the past generation.

"On the other hand we should not fly to the extreme of seeking political nonentities whose characters are shrouded in the gloom of respectable mediocrity. It is our mission to vigilantly search out and support against all opposition candidates for office who are able and worthy to exemplify the patriotic principles and honest desires of the men and women who compose the Republican party of California.

"As to national candidates we are met with the cry from Gov. Johnson that this is not a partisan campaign. Strange it is that he and his lieutenants tried at this time, through the machinery of the election of 1914, to establish in California a branch of a new national party. A blind man in San Diego at the time of Johnson's visit here could have seen that he made that statement because of the menace of the overwhelming Republican registration.

"We have only to look at our representation in Congress to realize the necessity of party organization in California. The imperial sweep of our coast, the yearning treasures of our hills and valleys, lie under the curse of misrepresentation at Washington. From San Diego has gone a Congressman whose hands are tied by the fetters of Federal patronage and whose feeble vote against the canal tolls exemption repeal carries no weight of personality or influence. Los Angeles is represented by Congressmen pledged to fratricidal politics, whose voices can neither swell a united minority nor stem the rush of a reckless majority, but make less impression than a single note in a discord of howling winds about the house-tops.

"Farther north we find Church, the Democrat of Fresno, hog-tied by petty patronage, betraying his State and his country. Yet farther north the wealthy Mr. Kent, who indulged his hobby for political office under the Progressive banner, stands solidly with the most objectionable reactionaries of the East in the ranks of the Democratic Hessians.

"What figure does the great State of California make at Washington now? Our chambers of commerce and industrial and patriotic bodies address their petitions to men of strength and principle and influence, elected by constituencies of no greater intelligence or integrity than ours, for protection against the national calamities which are falling so heavily upon our shoulders. We should have champions of our own. This government is a government of men; and the contrivances of men who compose it can be mastered by men of this great State of the West if they but represent the intelligence of our citizenship and go forth to represent us armed with loyalty and patriotism.

"The secession of Hiram Johnson and his dupes and camp followers has cleared the atmosphere of false pretense and treacherous purpose. We are all united now in a desire for clean, honest, intelligent, progressive government. We appeal to all Republicans young of age or young of spirit, to organize with us for the restoration of our party. No higher ideals will be found and no more unselfish purposes can exist than those in the hearts of the young men and women of the community.

"Especially is it important that the women of California should interest themselves in organized progress as opposed to the tricky appeals of political wreckers. Now is the time when the girls in our schools will find the political lessons of history as interesting to them as boys have found them in the past. The women of California, with their hearts devoted to the preservation of our homes, will point out to their sisters and daughters the necessity of joining with the patriotic majority in an organized effort to preserve the integrity of our institutions and safeguard the future of our State and country.

"My friends, the eyes of the nation are on California. The spirit of Washington and Lincoln look to the sons and daughters of the Golden West to forecast in the coming election the fate of our nation. If the heart of every Republican in the State of California will respond to the call of duty we will start in the November election a wave of patriotic devotion that will sweep from the Pacific to the Atlantic and restore the sacred trust of domestic prosperity and national honor to the majority of the people under the administration of the Grand Old—yet young—Republican party."

Applicants for positions in the Ford factory have realized that no "easy money" awaits their nominal attention. Beneficiaries of the new wage scale must be reliable employees, efficient in some department, and if found careless of the additional earnings provided by Ford's donation, find themselves cut off from the revenue.

From a Water User.

OPPOSES PLAN TO BUY SYSTEM.

Imperial Rancher Objects to Bond Issue.

Says Present Arrangement Is Best for Valley.

Receiver Holabird's Work Commended.

Petitions are being circulated in Imperial county calling for an election to authorize the issuance of $3,500,000 in bonds to purchase the irrigation system built by the California Development Company and now being operated by Col. W. H. Holabird, as receiver, for the company and its creditors.

The system was built by the company when reclamation of the rich lands of Imperial Valley first began. In 1905 the Colorado River, from which the water was taken, changed its course, overflowed its banks and menaced the entire valley. The Southern Pacific Company sent its engineers to the valley and by the use of thousands of carloads of material stopped the break and renewed the water supply. The cost of the work is one of the claims against the California Development Company, now, by order of the court, in charge of Receiver Holabird.

The California Development Company, through mutual water companies, supplies all the 400,000 acres of Imperial Valley land under irrigation, with water, the charge to the consumer being 50 cents per acre foot. The proposed bond issue, under the plan of its promoters, includes $3,000,000 for the purchase of the system and $500,000 for an emergency or protective fund.

Concerning the plan the following communication has been sent to The Times by George A. Long, pioneer rancher and cattleman of Imperial:

"IMPERIAL (Cal.) April 17, 1914.

"To the Editor of The Times:

"Beginning with 1911 the entire Imperial Valley began to be prosperous, not because of any miracle, but because our water delivery began to be regular and equal to our constantly-increasing demands. We have cheap water, perhaps the cheapest irrigating water known. The water has always been supplied by the California Development Company, which sells the water to us in communities. These communities are incorporated as mutual companies, that is, the mutual companies buy the water from the California Development Company and distribute it to their stockholders at cost. It is a simple and satisfactory method. I don't believe anyone could take the water out of the Colorado River and distribute it to the farmers cheaper than it is done today.

"Every year the canals are better and the service more certain.

"A lot of schemers, chiefly lawyers, are trying to coerce the farmers into trying the irrigation-district plan, a plan that has proved very costly and often a failure for those who tried it.

"The district is a community corporation with power to assess tax and collect taxes, vote bonds and sell them for the purpose of buying the water system. It sounds good but it isn't good for the farmer.

"The circular to the landholders of Imperial Valley says it is proposed to issue $3,500,000 of bonds (drawing 5 or 6 per cent. interest to run thirty years.) One of the announced purposes of the district is to control the Colorado River in Mexico. I have always supposed that the control of an international stream was the proper work of the governments involved, which are the republics of Mexico and the United States.

"There are eighty miles of river instead of forty that must be controlled. The circular says that there has been a failure of private control. I deny. There was failure under the old California Development Company management, but under Receiver Holabird no irrigation project has ever had such excellent service as we have had since January, 1911. The only exception is on the west side of New River, where the whole control is in a wood flume, which is inadequate to carry water enough for all the Mexican lands and all the American lands. Receiver Holabird, I am informed, is prepared to replace the flume with a dam that will give canal capacity for all.

"The circular says: 'No land owner dares to rent land and guarantee that water will be supplied.' That is not true; only in the district west of New River. Why try to throw a blemish on all the valley when only about one-tenth is affected?

"I regard the whole scheme as political; merely to get fat fees for lawyers and jobs for men who are not farmers. If the bonds carry the farmer will pay just as much as he does now for his water and also pay over $200,000 per year in interest.

"In management, I don't believe five farmers (some of whom will go out of office each year) can possibly manage the business safely and economically.

"GEORGE A. LONG."

TRANSFORMER STARTS FIRE.

Live Wire Ignites Building at Brick Yard, Causing Large Property Loss. Second Alarm Turned In.

A defective transformer started a fire which completely destroyed the roofing tile building of the Simon's Brick Company yards, at Fourth street and the river, last night. Including damage to machinery and raw material, the loss is estimated at $15,000, partially covered by insurance.

The fire first was seen by Morris Watt, an engineer, and T. C. McKinney, another employee of the company, shortly before 10 o'clock. Sparks and a live wire ignited the roof of the building, and before water could be turned on it, the entire structure was a complete loss. The machinery in it, used in the manufacture of roofing tile, was damaged, but not entirely destroyed.

For fear the fire might spread to other buildings in the yards, a second alarm was turned in to double the amount of apparatus on hand. The fire was under control, however, within half an hour.

Joe Simons, an official of the company, said last night work would be started at once to reconstruct the destroyed building.

LANGUAGE OF THE MOUTH.

It Tells the Character and Reveals Some of the Habits of Its Owner as Well as Carelessness.

[Pittsburgh Dispatch.] How many women of middle age do you see with soft lips curved in pleasant lines—a mouth that looks as if it could laugh easily and speak kind words—and keep silent when it's best?

It isn't the eyes or the nose or any other part of the face that mirrors one's character so that it may be read at a glance. It's the mouth and the lines about it.

There's the mouth with the down droop, belonging to the woman who always feels herself injured. Don't you feel as if you wanted to shake her? If she really is injured, half the time it is her own fault.

There is the small thin mouth of the selfish woman, who is always dressed well, and who doesn't care how shabby her husband looks. She probably had a rosebud mouth in her youth, but selfishness has thinned and puckered it.

And the woman who is always scolding—she seems to have formed her mouth just ready to snap. You can't mistake her. Can't you hear her screaming at Johnny and nagging at Beth and curtain-lecturing Dad? She may mean well, and be a good-natured sort otherwise, but she forgets that true good-heartedness considers the happiness of others, as well as their "good," which is the excuse of most scolders.

The woman who thinks she is better than her sisters—there is an ugly look about her mouth. It usually turns down at the corners, and there are lines on each side. She is sure in her heart that she is good to look at; but everybody knows her thoughts, and everybody has a little heart-to-heart snicker with himself when he looks at her. There is always something ridiculous about the person who thinks so much of himself—or herself. Girls who cultivate this haughty droop to the lips would do well to think again before the expression "sets."

There is the firm, tight mouth, which makes a straight line across the lower part of the face. It indicates that the woman hasn't borne her troubles beautifully. She resents everything she doesn't like. She can't see the purpose of life's sorrow. She allows them to harden her until her face is more like a stone image than that of a feeling human being.

And there are women who let their lips grow slack, when a little firmness and self-control would keep them lovely; who permit the mouth to grow crooked because they don't consult a dentist who understands the art of keeping a mouth in trim; who forget that a little cold cream will soften the lips, and that gentleness and generosity and kindliness will make gracious curves.

In all one morning of observation I saw only one middle-aged woman whose mouth curled upward a little at the corners, whose lips showed that she loved her fellowmen and women in spite of the lines that told of suffering and sorrow. And she was the woman who brings our fresh eggs twice a week.

"TIZ" FIXED MY SORE, TIRED FEET

"O, Girls," Don't have puffed-up, burning, sweaty feet or corns.

"'TIZ' makes my feet just dance."

Ah! what relief. No more tired feet; no more burning feet; no more swollen, bad smelling, sweaty feet. No more pain in corns, callouses or bunions. No matter what ails your feet, or what under the sun you've tried without getting relief, just use "TIZ."

"TIZ" is the only remedy that draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up the feet; "TIZ" is magical; "TIZ" is grand; "TIZ" will cure your foot troubles so you'll never limp or draw up your face in pain. Your shoes won't seem tight and your feet will never, never hurt or get sore, swollen or tired. Think of it, no more foot misery; no more burning corns, callouses or bunions.

Get a 25-cent box at any drug store or department store, and get instant relief. Get a whole year's foot relief for only 25 cents. Think of it!

An Accommodating Traveler.

[Baltimore American:] A peasant family at Villefranche, France, is about $300 richer as the result of a visit by a mysterious traveler.

The man, who was well dressed, had leaped from a compartment on the Cette train shortly before its arrival at Villefranche and in a pelting rain started running across the fields with such speed that two railway porters who were dispatched in pursuit of him were unable to overtake him.

Subsequently, the mysterious individual, wet to the skin, knocked at the door of the peasants' home, and, offering a bill, demanded to be supplied with dry clothing. These were given to him, and having donned them, the man took his departure.

In the pockets of his own clothing, which he left behind, were afterward found a gold watch worth $100, a massive gold chain, a banknote to the value of $100 and several gold trinkets, worth in all about $300.

Easter Cheer.

EIGHT THOUSAND EGGS GIVEN FOR CHILDREN.

EIGHT thousand eggs were turned in to Mrs. P. H. Sunde at No. 2209 East Fourth street yesterday for distribution among the poor and sick children of the city, following the appeal made in The Times of Friday morning.

So generous was the response that no children were left disappointed. All of the orphanages and children's homes were reached.

H. V. Morton of No. 625 Spring street sent in $7 he had collected among his friends.

The Los Angeles Million Club, No. 726 Merchants' Trust building, sent to Mrs. Sunde 500 one-half-pound packages of seedless raisins for use among the poor.

Mrs. W. Swartzman, No. 594 Hay avenue, West Hollywood, collected and sent in thirty dozen eggs. These were sent to the Home of the Guardian Angel.

R. Garstang gave $10 in cash and contributed the use of two motor cars for work in the distribution. Two chauffeurs, J. W. Kleinhan and Thomas T. Nicholson, also gave their services and worked all day delivering eggs.

Young's Market gave thirty dozen eggs. An anonymous person, through Young's Market, sent a case of eggs—thirty dozen. Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Stitch gave thirty dozen eggs. Guy Wadsworth gave ten dozen eggs. Charles Stence Beverly Jones gave ten dozen eggs. A Mrs. Weaver, who gave an Easter party, sent in fifteen dozen eggs. Mrs. H. W. Adams contributed $2.50 in cash. Mrs. J. W. Cochran of the Hotel Minnewaska gave $5.

The bulk of the contributions, coming from miscellaneous sources, were of one, two or three dozen eggs each.

"CASCARETS" IF CONSTIPATED, SICK, HEADACHY, BILIOUS—DIME A BOX

Turn the rascals out—the headache, biliousness, constipation, the sick, sour stomach and foul gases—turn them out tonight with Cascarets.

Don't put in another day of distress. Let Cascarets sweeten and regulate your stomach; remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and that misery-making gas; take the excess bile from your liver and carry off the decomposed waste matter and constipation poison from the bowels. Then you feel great.

A Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your head clear, stomach sweet, liver and bowels regular and make you feel bully and cheerful for months. Don't forget the children.—[Advertisement.

I CURE PILES

FISTULA AND ALL RECTAL DISEASES WITHOUT AN OPERATION
BY MY PAINLESS DISSOLVENT METHOD

I TREAT NO DISEASES EXCEPT THOSE OF THE RECTUM AND BOWELS

I cure without surgery. My patients are not confined in bed and they do not lose a moment's time from their business.

My method is not a "home cure" or a "correspondence treatment," but it is an application of skilled treatments administered under the most rigid antiseptic condition in my office.

WELL-KNOWN SANTA MONICA MINISTER CURED.

This is to certify that Dr. C. H. White has cured me of a distressing hemorrhoidal ailment of 25 years' duration. His method of treatment is effective, but not severe. He has the appliances, the knowledge and the skill born of many years of specialization in this fruitful source of physical disease. He accomplishes all he claims in his advertising and at reasonable expense.

I take pleasure in heartily commending the man and his methods.
WESLEY K. BEANS, Pastor First Methodist Episcopal Church, Santa Monica, Cal.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE SUPERINTENDENT CURED.

My Dear Dr. White: I am thankful for the privilege of bearing witness to your ability to treat without pain, and with success, the delicate and disabling diseases which result from sedentary work. To all who need the services of a skillful, sympathetic and experienced specialist in your line, I heartily commend you. Very sincerely yours,
ERVIN S. CHAPMAN, D.D., LL.D., Superintendent State Anti-Saloon League.

President of a Prominent College Cured.

For more than ten years I was a sufferer from a painful affliction, which nearly ruined my usefulness as an organizer and teacher. Dr. C. H. White of Los Angeles has completely cured me by a process that was painless and rapid, and I desire to go on record as recommending the Doctor in diseases in his specialty.

SLEEP DISTURBING BLADDER WEAKNESS BACKACHE-RHEUMATISM, QUICKLY VANISH

Even Most Chronic Sufferers Find Relief After a Few Doses Are Taken.

Backache, urinary disorders, and rheumatism, are caused from weak, inactive kidneys, which fail to filter out the impurities and keep the blood pure, and the only way on earth to permanently and positively cure such troubles is to remove the cause.

The new discovery, Croxone, cures such conditions because it reaches the very roots of the disease. It soaks right into the stopped-up, inactive kidneys, through the walls and linings; cleans out the little filtering cells and glands; neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous uric acid substances that lodge in the joints and muscles to scratch and irritate and cause rheumatism; it neutralizes the urine so it no longer irritates the tender membranes of the bladder, and cleans out and strengthens the stopped-up, lifeless kidneys so they filter and sift all the poisons from the blood, and drive it out of the system.

So sure, so positive, so quick and lasting are the results obtained from the use of Croxone that three doses a day for a few days are often all that is required to cure the worst case of backache, regulate the most annoying bladder disorders, and overcome the numerous other similar conditions.

It is the most wonderful preparation ever made for the purpose. It is entirely different from all other remedies. There is nothing else on earth to compare with it. It is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it into the human system without results.

You can obtain an original package of Croxone at trifling cost from any first-class drug store. All druggists are authorized to personally return the purchase price if Croxone fails to give desired results, regardless of how old you are, how long you have suffered, or what else has failed to cure you.—[Advertisement.

"CHILD-MOTHER IS INNOCENT."

Lillian Palmer's Story True, Says Investigator.

Murder Charge by Kilfoil Disclosed to Her.

"I Never Want to See Him," Accused Girl Cries.

With the statement that beyond the shadow of a doubt little Lillian Palmer, the child-mother, who has become the central figure in the Kilfoil poisoning investigation, is innocent of the charge of murder placed at her door by Phillip Kilfoil, now in jail on a statutory charge, Deputy District-Attorney Ford yesterday concluded his cross-examination of the girl.

Step by step Ford went over the transcript of Phillip Kilfoil's testimony before the grand jury and for the first time Lillian Palmer learned that the man who she says is responsible for her trouble, and who she says promised to see her through, had not only repudiated the parentage of her child, but had accused her of having placed the poison which resulted in the death of Mary Kilfoil, his sister.

Amazement and then horror swept over the girl and after stating bitterly that she never wished to see Phillip Kilfoil again, she freely told Ford the facts that led up to her intimacy with Kilfoil.

According to the child's statement to Ford, Kilfoil warned her against allowing her boy friends any freedom and explained what the penalty might be, but said that because he was an older man and would take care of her, whatever liberties she allowed him would be right. She stated that she had never refused Kilfoil's advances following his declaration of love for her, more than a year ago. She said that it was shortly after the death of Kilfoil's sister, Lucy, in February, 1913, that Kilfoil won her confidence one evening after they had attended the Mission theater, which Kilfoil owned. Phillip, she said, persuaded her to remain after all the others had left, to help him lock up. In the empty, darkened theater, the man, she told Ford, swept aside her last scruple.

Their intimacy continued, she declared throughout the summer and fall, but it was not until Christmas that the child discovered that she was to become a mother.

DENIES CONFESSION.

When Ford read to the child Kilfoil's testimony that she had visited him at his office the Sunday before Christmas, that he had discovered her condition and she had confessed that "the boys" were responsible, Lillian absolutely denied such a confession. She said she had visited Kilfoil's office shortly before Christmas and when he realized that she would soon become a mother, he had told her not to worry because if they could not avoid the outcome, he would take her away somewhere. With this end in view, she says, he furnished her medicine which he had sent for and which under his direction she took for some time.

When Kilfoil learned that Lillian's mother was expected home, she says he told her to tell her mother what was the matter with her but to lay it on the boys.

"Would you lay it on an innocent boy, knowing Kilfoil was guilty?" asked Ford at this point, and the little girl said she did tell her mother at first, but could not keep up the lie, so finally told her the truth.

"If some of the boys were guilty would you shield them and accuse Kilfoil?" was asked, to which the child made a vehement denial.

Over and over Ford questioned her about the poisoning and no matter what form the questioning took, the answer was always the same. The child was not to be tripped up; she is innocent and her statements prove it, Ford says.

When Ford read to her Kilfoil's confession, as published in The Times, in which he said that the night after the death of Mary Kilfoil by poisoning, he had lain down on the bed by Lillian and that she had wept and finally confessed that she was guilty of the poisoning, the little mother laughed heartily and when pressed for a reason said that what Ford had read was funny.

"Why, he has me crying all the time," she said, with the first free laugh of the day. "I must have been a perfect river."

In her childish way, she told Ford all the little intimate things which Kilfoil preached to her daily and how he questioned her every word and act with other children; how he made her tell him what other girls said to her, and what the boys of her class did and said and then after having won her entire confidence, utterly betrayed it.

GIRL TAKES OATH.

When Ford had exhausted every resource at his power and had gently but firmly put the question of guilt to her in every way, he asked her to take an oath that Phillip Kilfoil was the father of her child and that she had no knowledge of how the poison that killed Mary Kilfoil got in the food. With her big blue eyes round with awe, the child took the solemn oath.

Ford stated last night that he is absolutely convinced of the child's innocence.

That Lillian failed to drink a fatal quantity of chocolate on the morning that poisoned chocolate caused the death of Mary Kilfoil, was due to her delicate sense of taste, is the belief of Mrs. Blain, the girl's mother. Lillian drank some of the chocolate and was made ill by it.

Mrs. Blain said yesterday that Lillian had always been very particular about what she ate, and that if an apple or an orange had the slightest woody taste, she could not eat it and that the presence of the arsenic in the chocolate would be certain to prevent the child from drinking very much of her cup.

During the afternoon, two of Lillian's former playmates brought her some Easter roses, which the child received with touching gratitude. She had only just begun to take an interest in children of her own age when she discovered her delicate condition and now her greatest fear is that she will not be allowed to play with the girls and boys when she gets well.

DEAD IN JUAREZ.

Senora C. S. Samaniego, a pioneer resident of Juarez, and the mother of Dr. Jose A. Samaniego, No. 2107 Oak street, this city, died in Juarez Friday. Dr. Samaniego has gone to El Paso, where interment will be made.

ST' BOY, ST' BOY! GO FOR 'EM.

Why have the Goo-Goo directors of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce fixed their eagle eyes on the power companies alone, if they are going in for the Job Harriman policy of condemnation and confiscation of privately-owned properties?

Why not confiscate the oil companies for the use and benefit of the public? There are the Union and Central, for instance—they would furnish rich pickings for a Board of Oil Commissioners.

And then there are the lumber companies. Why should not the people of this city own and operate their own lumber yards? Why not condemn and confiscate the privately-owned yards, without regard to the opinions or rights of the owners?

St' boy, st' boy!

And, by the way, while the directors of the chamber are voting for the condemnation and confiscation of privately-owned and conducted enterprises, industries, like the big power companies, the chamber's new Industrial Bureau should get as busy as a politician in a gale of wind, seeking to induce new industries to locate in Los Angeles in order that they may be condemned and confiscated.

St' boy, st' boy!

Son of the man who failed at the isthmus, is on his way to the zone to see how Col. Goethals has succeeded.

DE LESSEPS ON HIS WAY TO CALL ON GOETHALS

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, April 11.—When the United Fruit liner Calamares sailed for the Panama Canal Zone by way of Kingston at noon today she had on board Count Jacques de Lesseps, son of the man who first seriously undertook to carry out the Panama Canal project, Ferdinand de Lesseps.

It was thirty-five years ago that the elder De Lesseps made his venture; Le Grand Francais he was called when French public opinion demanded that the builder of the Suez Canal should be entrusted with the greater task in the New World.

to matters in most of which he has no power of action, independently."

Commenting on the reference to Cabinet officers as chief clerks, Mr. Johnson remarked:

"This is worse than being knocked into a cocked hat."

Continuing Mr. Johnson said:

"In this article Thomas W. Wilson intimates that no high-spirited man would long remain in the office of the Presidency in which he was not permitted to pursue a policy and if defeated by both houses of Congress he would naturally resign. He says: 'If defeated by both houses he would naturally resign, and in no case would he push for recognition after defeat would be an established precedent and a resignation upon defeat is the essence of responsible government.'

"That is the British Cabinet way and the way of Presidents of some republics other than this," said Mr. Johnson. "It is not the American way as 'some other things' are not American which we have been asked to do. I suggest to you that Thomas W. Wilson was opposed to gag rule in 1879, while acquiescing in it on the Panama tolls repeal bill. I quote from his article:

"'Congress is a deliberative body in which there is little deliberation. A legislature which legislates with no real discussion of its business. Government is practically carried on by irresponsible committees.'

"I find another extract which may be of interest, viz: 'It (Congress) is a despotism which uses all its power with all the caprice, all the scorn for settled policies, all the wild restraint which marks the methods of other tyrannies so hateful to freedom.'

"That," resumed Mr. Johnson in conclusion, "is the view of Thomas W. Wilson, now known as President Wilson, when he was a young man of 23 or 24 years of age."

RICH SUBURBS SEEK TO ENTER.

Commission Gets Petition for Annexation.

Grand Larceny Charged and Threats to Kill.

Outdoor Sunrise Service on Monk's Hill.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PASADENA, April 12.—San Rafael Heights and Linda Vista may soon become a part of Pasadena. At a special session of the City Commission yesterday morning petitions were filed by property owners of these two fashionable residential sections and the west side of the Arroyo Seco asking that Pasadena annex the respective territories.

An ordinance was forthwith prepared whereby May 12, next, will be set as the date for a special election. At this time residents of Linda Vista and San Rafael Heights will cast ballots on the question of whether these districts shall or shall not become a part of Pasadena. This ordinance will be adopted at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The petitions that were presented to the City Commission yesterday were signed by forty-six out of seventy- [illegible] of the qualified electors of the districts, considered jointly.

The question of improvements, should the districts be annexed, was taken up, but no promises have been made by the Commissioners, except that some work would immediately be done on the Linda Vista road.

HAS HIM ARRESTED.

Though the police, as usual, suppressed any mention of the incident until it came up in court yesterday morning, Stanley J. Shafer of No. 63 North Marion avenue was arrested Friday night by Police Detectives [illegible] and McNamar on a complaint charging grand larceny and sworn to by Dr. Ruby A. Lichty of No. 565 [illegible] Fair Oaks avenue who claims that while they were riding in an automobile the man tore a diamond ring from her finger and threatened to kill her if she resisted, which threat, she says, she believes he would have carried out.

The incident occurred, she says, Friday morning on East Villa street. She says that the man was formerly in her employ as a chauffeur, and that the ring is one he had pawned and which she had redeemed.

She says that she was on her way to make a professional call at the home of Shafer, who had been a patient, and that he met her to accompany her to his mother's house. She alleges that he put his foot on the brake of the car, stopped it, took the ring and, when she screamed, declared he would kill her if she did not give him what valuables she possessed. Another automobile, she says, came along at this juncture and he ran away.

Shafer, after spending the night in the City Jail, was arraigned before Justice McDonald yesterday morning and released on $500 bail.

Chief of Police McIntyre said last night he did not know why the news of the arrest had been suppressed as he is not at the police station nights.

CHURCHES ALL DECORATED.

Special Easter services will be held in all parts of the city today. Churches have been decorated with Easter lilies and other flowers and appropriate musical programmes, as well as sermons, were announced by all of them.

Arrangements have been made for the holding of outdoor sunrise services on Monk's Hill in the northern part of the city. They will take place under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association and an attendance of several hundred persons is expected. The services will begin at 5 o'clock in the morning and the march up the hill will be led by

CITY BRIEFS.

Mrs. Walter Raymond gave one of her charming dinner-dances of the season at the Hotel Raymond last night. She had twenty guests. The dinner was served in the main dining-room, the guests being seated at one table, which was decorated with lilies and other spring flowers. Dancing followed in the ballroom.

Just five candidates are out for the office of Justice of the Peace, the present incumbents of which are Robert W. McDonald and Frank C. Dunham. Each of them is a candidate to succeed himself. The other candidates in the field are Leo L. Riccardi, Benjamin [illegible] and Elliot Gibbs.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Franklin D. Roosevelt, will not, after all, be the chief speaker at the annual banquet of the Pasadena Board of Trade to be held at the Hotel Raymond next Tuesday night. The banquet committee of the Board of Trade communicated with him in Los Angeles [illegible] and he stated that though he would be pleased to accept the invitation, were it possible to do so, he must leave Los Angeles tomorrow.

Fred R. Matthews of No. 1673 [illegible] street, for whose arrest a warrant was issued last week, charging him, on the allegation that he had beaten his 14-year-old foster son, [illegible] with a piece of rubber hose, and who has been away from the city for some time, appeared before Justice of the Peace Dunham yesterday. He was not prepared to plead to the charge and was given until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Los Alamitos Plans Development in Surrounding Area in Two Counties.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LOS ALAMITOS, April 11.—The "Commercial Club" of Los Alamitos was organized Thursday evening at headquarters established on Main street with sixty members as a start-off and a number of others in prospect.

The following officers and directors were duly elected: Hugh T. O'Conner, president; J. Herbert Mills, vice-president; Paul S. Elliott, secretary and treasurer; Ernest C. Hamilton, Elmer O. Hooker, Fred K. Edwards, Karl V. Bennis, directors.

While primarily the object of the club will be social and for the promotion of good fellowship, it is anticipated that, as the name chosen indicates, questions vital to the commercial and business welfare of the wide area as represented by the membership of the club in both Orange and Los Angeles counties, will be given consideration.

POLYTECHNIC SCHOOL PLANS DISCUSSED WITH BOARD.

Two Miles of Roadway in Cajon Pass to Be Blasted Out of Solid Rock—W.C.T.U. Scores Styles and Elects Officers—Former Hotel Manager Dies.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN BERNARDINO, April 11.—At a conference of architects Norman F. Marsh of Los Angeles and A. Beimer with the Board of Education it was determined that the plans for the Polytechnic High School, for which bonds in the sum of $250,000 were recently voted, must be drawn up with a view to providing for not less than 1000 students. The enrollment of the school has doubled in six years and with a modern school and a fast-growing population it is expected it will again double in the next five years.

It is probable the structures will be in a classic type and built with sand-lime brick with tile work ornamentation. There will be an auditorium to seat 1600 persons, buildings for each of the departments, a cafeteria, closed and open-air study-rooms, and many other features to be determined at later conferences.

ROADWAY BLASTED OUT.

More than two miles of new roadway is to be blasted out of solid rock in the Cajon Pass just below the Cajon station by the crew of prison labor which is being prepared in that region by the county officials. The new road will not only eliminate creek fords, but also railroad crossings, and provide a splendid link in the highway through the pass, which is fast becoming a much-traveled road.

The line of the new road is alongside of the bluffs and much of it must be cut out of the solid rock. The old Whiteman ranch house will be used as headquarters for the prison labor gang and it is probable several months will be required to complete the work.

This is the route to the National Old Trails highway and the work is in line with the policy of Supervisor Butler in improving the highway all the way across this county to Needles, much of it having been already rebuilt.

SCORED THE STYLES.

The present tendency in styles was scored by the county convention of the W.C.T.U. and the retail and wholesale dealers were urged to exert their influence with the modistes to induce them to put out something less glaring and more sedate. The county organization elected officers as follows: President, Mrs. E. T. Carson of Chino; vice-president, Mrs. Lottie Douthat of Del Rosa; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Eva Dewey of Redlands; recording secretary, Mrs. M. M. Joris of San Bernardino; treasurer, Mrs. Jennie Cromer of Upland.

NEWS BRIEFS.

E. M. Crawford, whose death occurred in Los Angeles yesterday, was for ten years manager of the Stewart Hotel in this city, only resigning the position the first of the present year, since which time he has been in Los Angeles most of the time. He was widely known to the traveling public of Southern California. Before coming here he had been for many years steward of the Pacific-Union Club in San Francisco and with the Glenwood in Riverside a short time.

Thieves looted the hardware store of W. G. Ross of several hundred dollars worth of pocketknives and razors, getting away with the loot without being discovered. Entrance was gained through the rear of the store.

Joe Garcia, who is said to have been carrying on a wholesale business in stealing bicycles in this vicinity, has been sentenced to six months in the County Jail.

DISPUTE BOUNDARY.

Tulare and Fresno Counties to Leave It to State Surveyor-General Where the Line Runs.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VISALIA, April 11.—The Supervisors of Tulare county have issued an order petitioning the State Surveyor-General to make a survey of the disputed boundary line between Tulare and Fresno counties in the vicinity of Kingsburg.

For many years the two counties have been claiming territory near Kingsburg and recently the surveyors of Tulare and Fresno counties, authorized by the Supervisors, ran a line. By this survey Tulare county lost a nine-mile strip a quarter of a mile wide through a rich and highly developed section.

On the chance that the Surveyor-General's survey might prove more satisfactory to Tulare county the local board has decided to put the dispute up to him.

The Supervisors also today took further steps in the suit which it will bring against the Pacific Light and Power Company in which the Supervisors allege that terms of a franchise granted by the county have been ignored. This suit will be State-wide in importance as a question of conflict of authority between Supervisors and the State Railroad Commission in granting franchises to public utility corporations will be the chief issue.

Imperial Valley.

TRACKAGE KEPT OFF THE ROADS.

Private Rights of Way Must Be Used by Line.

Oil Indications Sprouting from the Ground.

Long Lease Across Border Taken by Company.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

EL CENTRO, April 11.—Representatives of the San Diego capitalists, who are exploiting the electric line in the valley, have applied to the county Board of Supervisors for permission to run their lines along the county public roads. The board refused the request and put itself on record in a resolution in which it was stated that in no instance would the street railways be tolerated on the public highways.

The reason given for this resolution is that the peculiar construction of the Imperial public highways would not admit of the encroachments of electric car lines. The peculiarity of the Imperial roads lies in the fact that during practically all of the year they have to be irrigated, in order to do which it is necessary to construct a border in the middle that one side at a time only may be irrigated.

The board is willing to grant the permission provided that the company would agree to macadamize the entire road width over which the tracks ran. This, of course, they could not do, because of the extra cost.

OIL IN VALLEY.

According to J. E. McCall, an oil expert, the Imperial Valley may become in the not distant future, one of the great oil districts of the country. McCall spent ten years examining the oil conditions in the Bakersfield district, and several years in the district of Beaumont, Tex. He was also in the oil fields of Pennsylvania, studying especially in these places the surface indications and formations.

The field he has just been studying lies about eighteen miles due east from Holtville, and he expects to put a drill down there in the near future. He said:

"I have seen enough to know that there is oil there. Every indication that was found in Bakersfield and Beaumont is there. When the geological survey was made fifty-four years ago, this spot was marked by engineers as containing either gypsum or petroleum. For miles around blisters that cannot have been formed by anything but carbolic acid plainly show on the surface. There is also a stretch for a mile and a half of bituminous shale which a sure indication of oil in paying quantities."

LEASE ON LAND.

The Imperial Land Company has taken a long-term lease on a 5400-acre tract of land south of the Mexican line and will at once make extensive permanent improvements on it and plant it to cotton for the coming season. It is estimated now by those who should know that there will be not less than 100,000 acres planted to cotton in that section this year. The same authorities express themselves as not being at all surprised if the valley north and south of the Mexican line produces this season 100,000 bales.

SEX QUESTION IN HEN-COOPS.

SANTA MONICA, April 11.—L. A. Allis, a druggist of this city, is wondering whether the city ordinance that permits a person to keep one cock and twelve hens applies in the case of a neighbor who he says has a lot of young roosters. Allis works late at night and early in the morning the lusty crowing of a dozen young cockerels disturbs his slumbers.

If City Attorney Tanner decides that the sex of a fowl makes no difference so far as disturbing the peace is concerned, then Allis has no case. But otherwise Allis can get redress. All the neighbors near Tenth and Oregon are ready to stand by to prevent foul play.

Aged Man Shoots Himself Because of Ill-Health; Was Noted Knight Templar.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA BARBARA, April 11.—After years of ill-health, J. G. Whitaker, aged 77, well kown here, killed himself with a revolver today shortly after noon. During the last year he often had threatened to commit suicide, but he was never taken seriously. His daughter, Mrs. May Manchester, with whom he lived, heard a shot, and hurrying to her father's room, found him lifeless with a bullet in his brain.

Whitaker was born at Franklin, Mass., in 1837. When a young man he removed to Dayton and from there came to California in 1853 as a delegate from Reed Commandery, Knights Templars, of Dayton, to the first conclave held on the Pacific Coast by the order. This was at San Francisco. From there he came to Santa Barbara, where he has resided continuously. When he left his home lodge the members voted him a life membership.

Monrovia.

PLANNING TO CELEBRATE FOUNDING OF THE CITY.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

MONROVIA, April 11.—The biggest celebration and high-jinx programme ever projected will be given here on May 16, when all Monrovia will celebrate the twenty-seventh anniversary of the founding of the city. The real civic birthday is May 17, but as this date comes on Sunday the celebration has been advanced a day.

The Monrovia Ten Thousand Club has received permission to take charge of the programme and already a long list of committees and subcommittees have been appointed to handle the various activities in connection with the day's events. Rev. Ray D. Welch, pastor of the Congregational Church, and one of the active boosters for Monrovia, has been made permanent secretary and will direct and plan the whole programme.

The first feature of the celebration will be the voting for the May queen, which will commence within a few days. This feature was a big success two years ago, and will be repeated with some variations. The voting will continue until the day before the celebration, when the successful candidate will be chosen, and on the day of the "big show" will be officially and with much pomp and circumstance crowned queen of the city.

This year, instead of making the big parade a competition against the Pasadena Tournament of Roses, by using floral floats as the main features, the committees have determined to make the whole affair a comedy "jinx" parade, with just as much music as can possibly be obtained. The object of the whole affair will be to entertain and amuse.

Redlands.

DOCTOR ALMOST KILLED IN AN AUTO ACCIDENT.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, April 11.—Dr. M. W. Hill of this city got his nose broken, teeth knocked out, face cut and back sprained as a result of a collision with an automobile owned, it is said, by Henry Hotchkiss, a Riverside orange grower, and driven by Robert Holland of Los Angeles.

The accident occurred at the intersection of Clifton and Cajon streets at 2:30 a.m. Holland was badly injured about the head and body and is in the Redlands Hospital.

Dr. Hill was responding to a call from the Redlands Hospital, and as he turned from Clifton street into Cajon street his car was struck by the heavier machine, which was going rapidly south.

The Hill car was practically demolished. The big car driven by Holland turned almost over, but righted itself. The Hotchkiss car contained eight persons beside the driver. The names they gave here are Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hotchkiss, Mr. and Mrs. Ben P. Bond, Miss Marie Copeland, Miss Clare Kreer, Jack Fleish and Lowell Bordwell.

The party was returning to Riverside from an evening ride and was going at a rapid pace. The machines came together without warning, and all attempts to avert an accident were in vain.

Holland did not recover consciousness till nearly twelve hours after the accident. The injuries of the other members of the party were superficial. They were treated by Dr. W. P. Burke.

Holtville.

TREASURY STOCK IS NOT VOTABLE AS COLLATERAL.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

HOLTVILLE, April 11.—Being issued as collateral does not give treasury stock of a corporation voting power. In the case of S. L. Beaty and Peter Vreeland against D. H. Williams, No. 2 Water Company, E. Edwards, Dale Cooper, H. R. Cowan and F. G. Havens of Holtville and W. H. Hamaker of Los Angeles, Judge Wilbur ruled that the plaintiffs had been legally elected directors of No. 2 Water Company.

Treasury stock of the company to the amount of $5500 had been placed with Hamaker of the First National Bank of Los Angeles for additional security on a loan of $25,000 made the water company. In a recent election of directors and officers proxies for this stock showed up in the hands of the defendants and they elected directors over the heads of the plaintiffs and other stockholders.

A ten-days stay of execution has been granted, but it is thought the defendants will drop the matter without an appeal because of the sweeping nature of the decision handed down regarding the status of this stock.

A contrary decision would have placed in jeopardy every corporation in California that still held treasury stock, especially if enough was still in the treasury to constitute a majority over all the stock issued, as was the case here.

HONESTY OF PACK COMPETES WITH CHEAP LABOR.

Citrus Expert Relates What He Learns on European Trip and Tells Californians How to Combat the Inequalities Caused by Tariff Revision—Talk It Over.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ONTARIO, April 11.—"California must meet the competition of these countries," said G. Harold Powell, general manager of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange, in an address before more than 200 citrus ranchers of the Ontario section at the Chaffey Auditorium last night on "The Citrus Industry in Italy and Spain." "If California wins, it will be by quality of fruit, by honesty of pack and by efficiency in every detail of the business from first to last."

Powell's address was illustrated by slides made from photographs taken by himself on his recent European trip. The speaker declared that while Spain is the greatest producer of citrus fruits in the world, the quality of its oranges are inferior to those of California. The Italian lemon, however, Powell characterized as being the finest in the world.

The plan adopted by the Italians of raising their lemons under artificial shade was gone into by the speaker, and he spoke of experiments along this line which are now being tried in Southern California.

Powell dwelt also at some length on the by-product industry, particularly the making of marmalade from the bitter orange of Seville. This industry is founded principally upon cheap labor, women and boys under 18 receiving about 20 cents a day, while men for the same period receive between 40 and 60 cents. On account of the cheap labor, machinery has been developed little or not at all.

The citrus fruit in both Italy and Spain, according to the speaker, is handled in a very crude fashion, and cultivation is done for the most part by hand. Nothing is known of the process of sorting fruit, common in California, and the packing-houses and methods of transportation are said to be very crude.

Following the lecture, many ranchers remained for an informal discussion of the problems connected with the citrus industry.

PIRATE PROMOTER.

"Go as Far as You Like," Says Abbott Kinney, In Discussing Amusement Plans.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VENICE, April 11.—A report was current tonight that Robert Ingersoll, an amusement promoter of Pittsburgh, is negotiating with Abbot Kinney to purchase a block of his amusement enterprises on the pier or else lease land and put up more of the popular-priced entertainment moneymakers. As usual Kinney smiled and said that the reporter "could go as far as he liked." He intimated that similar stories have been current here for many years, but until final papers pass there is no need of becoming unduly excited about the plans.

FINAL BLOW-OUT.

The Good Government League had its final blow-out tonight following a rally of the opposition last night. Mud-slinging has been so copious that one prospective candidate is said to have left town and a small temporary paper was sued or is about to be sued for some immense sum on account of the character of its articles if the reports are to be believed. The election is to be Monday night and it promises to be the most exciting held in several years.

ARMY INQUIRY.

The Federal authorities are investigating the circumstances attending the desertion of Walter Ockert from the Paul Jones near San Diego. It is alleged that some of the signatures to the application papers were forced and that the official inquiry at Fort Rosecrans may develop some scandal. Ockert was arrested here at the bay and is awaiting the disposition of the naval authorities. He says he deserted because his pay of $24 a month would not support his sick wife and child.

COVINA WATER SYSTEM.

Voters to Show Preference Today in Election to Guide City Council in Action to Be Taken.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

COVINA, April 11.—"Are you in favor of the city of Covina establishing a municipal domestic water system?"

This preference ballot will appear at the city election here on Monday and will serve as a straw vote to guide the City Council in the question of whether they shall call a bond election to vote bonds for the taking over for the building of an entirely new system.

The water question is about the only issue confronting the people of the city. Two members of the Council are to be elected. The men whose terms expire are both candidates. They are J. N. Wilson and Louis H. Harris. Two others are aspirants for the positions—William Hoogendyk and S. E. Coons. There are two candidates for Treasurer—Dr. J. D. Reed, the incumbent, and Max Leonhardt. A. M. Pence is candidate for re-election as City Clerk. He has a competitor in Daily S. Stafford, a youth just graduated from law school.

O. S. Thompson, a Covina chiropractor, has been made defendant in a test case, wherein he is charged with violating the State medical laws in practising a mode of "healing the sick and afflicted without being provided with a license." The chiropractors of the State are watching the developments of the case.

RINCON ROAD WORK.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VENTURA, April 11.—Messrs. Elliston and Roberts, representing Carl Leonhardt, the contractor, were here today taking preliminary steps for beginning work on the Rincon road, which is to become a State highway. Leonhardt has the contract for the roadway along the beach. Work will begin on the big job on Monday next and be rushed to completion.

BLAZE CAUSES PANIC.

Lodging and apartment-houses on West Third street last night disgorged hundreds of frightened people only partly clad or shrouded in the friendly folds of blankets, when a defective flue set fire to a rooming-house owned and operated by Mrs. H. RAILROAD SIGNS CONTRACT.

Southern Pacific Agrees to Pay Half for Street Paving Alongside Tracks in Pomona.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, April 11.—Mayor Vandegrift is in receipt of the signed contract by officials of the Southern Pacific Company whereby the railroad company binds itself to pay for one-half of the street paving to be done on West First street from Garey avenue to Park avenue. This proposed improvement has been delayed for months and now work can be begun soon. The street parallels the Southern Pacific and Salt Lake tracks through the city.

The Southern Pacific park on the north side of the street, which was badly washed during the February floods is being improved and in many places reset to plants and shrubbery. The Salt Lake railroad has agreed to curb its tracks and surmount the curbing with an attractive steel fence.

ORANGE GROWER DIES.

J. E. Owen, a prominent orange grower, died at his home here today from Pneumonia following a short illness. The deceased was 74 years old. Funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon from the Congregational Church. Vicksburg Post, G.A.R., of which deceased was a member, will have charge of services at Pomona Cemetery.

PLENTY OF ORANGES.

The San Antonio Fruit Exchange estimates that it still has over 1600 carloads of oranges in the groves in Pomona Valley which it controls, and this fruit is the best of the season and is holding up well. All of the exchange packing-houses with the exception of the Walnut Fruit Exchange are being run to full capacity and an average of thirty-five carloads are being shipped to market daily. The present rush in packing fruit by the exchange will be continued until June, when the navel crop will be practically out of the way.

HEARING CONTINUED.

A fellow about 22 years old, who gave his name as C. E. Clayton, and who was caught after an exciting chase on Sells-Floto circus day after he made an effort to steal a valuable diamond scarf pin from the neckwear of William Stanley in the circus crowds, was before Justice of the Peace Barnes this forenoon for preliminary hearing, but the case was continued until Tuesday. Deputy District-Attorney Joos appeared for the State and Dudley Robinson for the defendant.

INSANE OVER DRESS SUIT.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

FRESNO, April 11.—Frank Hutchins, a pioneer rancher of this county, was adjudged insane today upon complaint filed by his wife, and will be taken to the asylum at Stockton tomorrow. A charge of assault with a deadly weapon also stands against the farmer in the city justice court as the result of a free-for-all fight at Hutchins's home last night. According to reports Hutchins has been supporting his daughter and her husband for some time. The height of endurance was reached by the farmer, it is claimed, last night, when his son-in-law put in a request for a full dress suit.

The Secret of Perpetual Youth

There are people who are keeping their springtime even though their calendar days say autumn. How many we know that are keeping young, or are even growing younger while the years are racing away? There are people who just laugh at the register of their birth. Again and again they make the joyful claim that they are in possession of radiant youth, even when the number of their years would indicate that youth is far behind. What is there about them in their autumn days which has all the freshness and sweetness of spring? Let us look for these tokens of May in their October. Now, as long as we keep our health we keep our youth. A lamp may show the signs of wear, and yet the flame may be as luminous and cheery as ever. Thousands upon thousands of successful men and women in all walks of life have testified that by the use of the gentle tonic stimulant, Duffy's Pure Malt Whisky, they have kept the tissues strong, and the entire system in a normal, healthy condition. Taken in a little water or milk just before meals it stimulates the mucous surfaces and little glands of the stomach to healthy action, thereby improving the digestion and assimilation of the food and giving to the body its full proportion of nourishment. With perfect digestion the fermentation which generates poisons and diseases will be less troublesome. This is the secret of Duffy's Pure Malt Whisky in prolonging Health and activity, and why you, too, should "Get Duffy's and keep well."

THE CITY AND ENVIRONS.

EVENTS BRIEFLY TOLD.

Catholic Foresters' Social.

The degree team of the Catholic Order of Foresters will hold a social and dance in Swedish-American Hall, Pico and Santee streets, on Thursday evening. Good music and entertainment is assured all who attend.

Judge to Speak on Reform in Laws.

Judge Craig will address Los Angeles Lodge, Independent Order B'nai B'rith, on Tuesday night, on the subject of "Realizable Reforms in Criminal Law." Visiting members who may happen to be in the city are invited to attend.

More Conventions Booked.

In addition to the conventions already booked for Los Angeles in 1915, the Chamber of Commerce was advised yesterday that the National Association of the Deaf and the California Association of the Deaf will convene here in August, 1915.

Will Entertain Their Husbands.

The members of the Sioux City (Iowa) Ladies' Club will entertain their husbands and friends at dinner at Federation Hall on next Friday evening. All ladies from that city are invited to join them and bring their friends from the same home city.

Thrift for Young Women.

On Tuesday evening at the Young Women's Christian Association two lectures will be delivered to the association clubs on the subject of "Thrift." W. E. McVay will speak on "How to Invest $100," and Mrs. Seward Simons on "Wasteful Savings of Women."

Sunshine Card Party.

The Westlake branch of the Sunshine Society will give an afternoon and evening card party at the home of Mrs. Alfred Sautter, No. 157 West Thirty-second street, tomorrow. Auction bridge and Five Hundred will be played in the afternoon and whist and Five Hundred in the evening.

To Lecture on Jews.

Rabbi Isidore Myers will preach a Passover sermon in the Olive-street synagogue this morning at 10:30 o'clock. His subject will be "What Is Judaism?" In the evening, Rabbi Louis Gordon of New York, a distinguished Hebrew scholar and author, will lecture in Yiddish on "Ancient and Modern Jews."

Land Office Honors Dead Employee.

In honor of the memory of Harry G. Stephens, over whose remains funeral services were conducted yesterday at the residence, No. 2664 San Marino street, the local Land Office was closed from the noon hour. Stephens for twenty-two years was employed there, and recognized as one of the first authorities in this city on the land laws.

Gems in Packing-Case.

Losing and finding $3000 worth of diamonds were incidents of a week in the residence of Mrs. Elizabeth Terrile, No. 1621 Pepper street. When the gems disappeared several days ago Mrs. Terrile became so excited that she employed a private detective. Mrs. Terrile reported that she had found her gems in a packing-case.

Plan Children's Festival.

Instead of the crack of the bat and the roar of crowds Washington Park will resound with shrieks of childish glee on the morning of May first when a May-pole will be erected there and a children's festival staged for the benefit of the Humane Society for Children. The management of the park have offered the grounds gratis for this purpose.

Excursion to Bakersfield.

The Chamber of Commerce will conduct an excursion to Bakersfield on April 24, in appreciation of the business patronage received in the city from that place. Seventeen firms have already signified their intention to send representatives. The excursion will go by the Santa Fe on the night of the 24th, and return on the night of the 25th by the Southern Pacific.

Everybody Getting Them?

Some person or persons, unknown, are sending out post-card "reminders" promiscuously to the voters of the city, advising them that they are not registered. One result is that persons who are registered are crowding the Registrar's office demanding that they be informed what is wrong with their registration. Registrar McAleer advises all persons to disregard these postals, unless they are unregistered.

Eastern Star Ball.

Sunset Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, will entertain with a cabaret ball on Thursday evening at the Goldberg-Bosely assembly rooms. The grand march will be at 9 o'clock, led by the grand officers followed by the matrons and patrons of the various chapters. More than 1000 invitations have been issued, but all friends of the order are invited. The cabaret feature will be furnished by a glee club of Masonic boys.

City-Planning Talk.

Charles L. Cheney, secretary of the Joint City Planning Commission for the bay cities of California, addressed the City Club yesterday on the subject of "City Planning," using lantern slides to illustrate his points. The speaker urged the necessity for definite work in Los Angeles, because of the constantly increasing cost of such a project. He declared that nowhere in America had he seen such traffic conjestion as he had witnessed on the streets of Los Angeles between 5 and 6 o'clock Friday night.

Sacred Cantata by Festival Chorus.

The Festival Chorus of Southern California, consisting of upward of 200 mixed voices, under the direction of Eduardo Lebegott, will render the oratorio-cantata, "The Last Seven Words of Christ," by Dubois, in the Auditorium on Thursday evening. The chorus will be assisted by Bertha Winslow Vaughn, John A. Stockman and Joseph Porter, with Ray Hastings at the organ. Emelie Rossett, a solo violinist of rare skill, and Lillian Ammalee Smith, a noted pianist, will also appear on the programme.

Wilshire Masonic Lodge Now.

Wilshire Masonic Lodge, with a membership of seventy-seven well-known Masons, was launched Friday evening at a meeting held at the rooms of Arlington Lodge. In May the new lodge will move into quarters being built for it at Third street and Western avenue. The first officers of the lodge are William Howard Fischer, Worshipful Master; Elmer LeRoy Biggs, Senior Warden; Elbert Crandall, Junior Warden; Frederick John Eisensohn, Treasurer; Robert Lee Hazen, Secretary; James Linn Van Norman, Senior Deacon; John Whitney Snowden, Junior Deacon; Erving Palmer Tucker, Marshal; Gilbert Currie Patterson, Chaplain; Stanley Robert Lewis, Senior Steward; Herbert Kemp Gresswell, Junior Steward.

UNDELIVERED TELEGRAMS.

There are telegrams at the Western Union for J. Augustin, M. L. Abbott, Roy Burton, F. P. Birmingham, Mrs. H. A. Bradshaw, John W. Burnham, Joseph Diamond, Tindal Evans, May Franklin, Mrs. Ada Gonzales, J. N. Harrison, J. E. Hagerty, Mrs. Lucinda Hull, Shunichi Hojan, Mrs. J. H. Hill, John W. Leonard, John Little, K. M. "DEAN OF DIRECTORS."

Otis Turner Is Complimented by a Handsome Trophy from Moving-Picture Magnates.

Otis Turner, who is known throughout the moving picture world as "the dean of American directors," was handsomely remembered yesterday by the officials of the Universal Film Company.

The Universal has bought a big ranch in the Cahuenga Hills, where it will install the most remarkable moving-picture plant in the world. In recognition of his services in planning the great film-play stage, a stage 500 acres in extent, the directorate of the corporation yesterday presented Mr. Turner with a fine $500 stop watch.

Mr. Turner has been a producer of plays and films for over thirty years and many of the most notable productions of the picture houses have been put on under his direction.

Praises This Remedy for Lung Trouble

Many people are led to believe that lung trouble is unconquerable. This is not the case, as many have been restored to health by Eckman's Alterative. Investigate this:

Bowling Green, Ky., R. No. 4.

"Gentlemen:—In 1908 I had a severe cough for six months. I tried all the medicines that my doctors recommended, but no results came for the better. I had night sweats, and would cough and spit until I got so weak I could hardly do anything. But, at last, James Deering, of Glasgow Junction, insisted that I try your medicine. In one week there was quite an improvement in my condition, and after I had taken several bottles I felt as well as ever in my life. I firmly believe Eckman's Alterative will relieve any case of lung trouble if taken before the last stage." (Abbreviated.)

(Affidavit) A. C. BETTERSWORTH.

Eckman's Alterative is most efficacious in bronchial catarrh and severe throat and lung affections and upbuilding the system. Contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs. Accept no substitutes. Sold by The Owl Drug Co. and leading druggists. Write Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet of recoveries.

Alveolar Dentistry

Eliminates Plates and Bridgework.
Its Simplicity Suspected.

The simplicity of the Alveolar System, the feature that recommends it to unprejudiced and practical people, has been the principal cause of the skepticism and opposition raised against it. The belief obtains that if anything is not complicated it cannot be entirely satisfactory. To these a certain amount of professional verbiage and phraseology, red tape and circumlocution appear to be necessary in order to insure security against fraud. The Alveolar System has been attacked from apparently every possible angle, but so far it has proved impregnable.

Class "A" Dentistry at Half Price

(Until further notice.)

While our charges for Alveolar work are the same as the standard price of high-class bridgework (and is worth many times its cost), in such cases where it is possible to have bridgework, and the patient desires it for any reason, we will put in for him the very best and classiest bridgework, crowns, plates, etc., possible to be made, at exactly one-half the price charged by dentists whose work will compare favorably with ours. "And there is a reason."

Alveolar Teeth Where Bridgework Is Impossible.

For instance, you may have only two, three or four teeth or good roots left, one or more each side, or you have lost two or more back teeth on one or both sides. We can supply all that are missing with perfect Alveolar Teeth that will be beautiful, serviceable, comfortable and life everlasting. And where bridgework is possible there is no comparison between the two.

Remember, that in addition to our specialty, Alveolar dentistry and treating Pyorrhea (loose teeth) we are experts in every branch of dentistry from the simple filling up. Examination free.

THE WEATHER.
[Official Report.]

LOCAL OFFICE, U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, Los Angeles, April 11.—[Reported by Ford A. Carpenter, Local Forecaster.] At 5 o'clock a.m. the barometer registered 30.02; at 5 p.m., 30.00. Thermometer for the corresponding hours showed 55 deg. and 64 deg. Relative humidity, 5 a.m., 89 per cent.; 5 p.m., 65 per cent. Wind, 5 a.m., northeast, velocity 6 miles; 5 p.m., southwest, velocity 12 miles. Highest temperature, 71 deg.; lowest, 54 deg. Rainfall for season, 22.83 inches. Barometer reduced to sea level.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.—The weather is moderating in the Eastern and Southern States, owing to the decrease in the intensity of the high areas and increase in the number and distribution of low areas. It is cooler in the Northern States. Rain occurred in the central portion of the Mississippi Valley and easterly into New York State, and snow fell in the valley of the Missouri River and westerly into Colorado. The greatest precipitation, .48 of an inch, is reported from Denver. The western trough of low pressure resulted in showers from Washington southerly into California, Nevada and Utah, and the southeastern portion of this trough caused a moderate southwesterly and westerly gale along the coast of Southern California late Friday afternoon. Storm southwest signals were hoisted. San Pedro registered a wind of thirty-six miles per hour from the west shortly after sunset. Aside from short intervals of cloud, the weather in Los Angeles and vicinity will be fair Sunday, becoming warmer.

LOCAL FORECAST.

For Los Angeles and vicinity: Fair Sunday, except for short intervals of cloud; northwesterly winds, backing to westerly.

For California south of the Tehachepi: Fair Sunday.

STATE FORECAST.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 11.—Forecast:

San Francisco and vicinity: Fair, warmer, Sunday; light northwest breezes.

Sacramento Valley: Fair, warmer, Sunday; light north wind.

Santa Clara and San Joaquin valleys: Fair, warmer, Sunday; light northwest wind.

Southern California: Fair Sunday; light west wind.

Arizona: Fair Sunday and Monday.

Gustave Weiniger of Bremen, Germany, is staying at the Hollenbeck. He is in the leather business, devoting his efforts to the manufacture and sale of book-binding leathers principally. Weiniger was formerly a German army officer.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Mitchell of Boston are occupying a suite at the Lankershim. Mitchell is in the bonding business and is looking over a number of municipal bonding propositions in the Southwest.

Miss Jennie Dieffenbach of Cincinnati arrived here yesterday for a stay of several weeks with her sister, Miss Fannie Dieffenbach, No. 720 Beacon street.

Mrs. Percy Church Pryor, who was formerly Florence Oakley, leading woman at the Belasco Theater, sailed Wednesday for Honolulu, where she will fill an engagement at the Bijou Theater. She is accompanied by her husband and will return to her home in this city during July.

ROOSEVELT WILL SPEAK.

Assistant Naval Secretary Goes to Address Gathering of Democrats in San Diego.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt left last night for San Diego, where he will be a speaker tomorrow at the annual banquet of the Democratic Club. From this city he was accompanied by W. Jefferson Davis, president of the club and also representative of the San Diego Chamber of Commerce, and by Charles H. Lowell, acting for Commander Cleland Davis of the naval station in the southern city.

Today, as the guest of Commander Davis, Roosevelt will be taken to see the wireless and coaling stations at Point Loma, and the site of the proposed radio station. He will also be the first man to cross the bridge just completed at the approach to the exposition grounds.

Tomorrow the naval secretary is to be the guest of J. D. Spreckels on board the latter's yacht Benicia.

Tomorrow evening, at the convening of the Democrats, Roosevelt, Collector of Internal Revenue Carter and United States Attorney Schoonover will speak.

HONOR STANFORD PRESIDENT.

Cardinal Men and Women's Graduate Societies Meet at Banquet with Dr. Branner.

The Women's Stanford Alumnae Club and the men's organization of like nature combined for the first time in their history in a social affair, at a banquet given last night at the Hotel Clark in honor of Dr. John Casper Branner, president of Stanford University.

This is Dr. Branner's first visit to this city since he became president of the university. He was formerly vice-president and succeeded Dr. David Starr Jordan when the latter became chancellor.

Covers were laid for 110 persons. The speakers were George W. Dryer, Dr. Lillian Ray, T. J. Perry and Dr. Ralph Arnold. Judge Bledsoe of San Bernardino was toastmaster.

TO TALK ON BEAUTY.

Mrs. Lillian Redstone will give a beauty talk before the Friday Morning Club on Monday at 10:30 a.m. She has made it her life work to study the best ways of keeping at bay that foe of womankind—old age—and will attract many women who care for the better grooming which is so essential.

LOS ANGELES OPENS FREE HARBOR GATES TO THE WORLD.

Triumph.

CROWN OF VICTORY FOR A GREAT PORT.

Dedication of the Newest and the Most Wonderful of Harbors.

Thirty Thousand Participants in the Ceremonies Attending a Living, Throbbing Maritime Achievement Representing to the People a Fifty-Million-Dollar Utility—Tremendous Development of a Few Years.

CULMINATING the maritime map of the world, Los Angeles harbor, free to the traffic of all the seas, was formally dedicated to commerce yesterday.

Nearly 30,000 persons attended the opening of the great port in one of the most elaborate demonstrations the Pacific Coast has even seen.

Rivaling the protectiveness of Gibraltar, excelling the facilities of the [illegible] Colombo, and equalling in utility, convenience and inviting aspects any of the older harbors of the world, Los Angeles harbor was [illegible] projected into the charts and the log-books of maritime craft of all nations, standing out with brilliant distinction as the newest, the most marvelous development of all harbors.

Thirty years of fighting for a free harbor was crowned yesterday in an exultant show of triumph. Step by step as the fight a generation long progressed, thousands who helped dedicate the great utility yesterday looked back over the vista of the years and saw first a mud flat with lighters freighting cargo out across the shallow water to the sailing vessels anchored in deep water; saw the first development of what was destined to become one of the world's great ports; saw the struggle for independence with moneyed power oppressing and menacing; saw the appeal of the people to Congress, the joyous victory for the people.

Then they saw the voting of bonds, the extending of appropriations from the government, and finally out of the past they saw, as a ship looming through the fog as it sirens its way along the breakwater to safety, they saw the living, throbbing realization of a tremendous work accomplished.

TREMENDOUS DEVELOPMENT.

Thousands of persons who went to the harbor to accept the hospitality of Wilmington traversed the channels and the turning basins and the outer and inner harbors, marveling at a development that transformed a mud flat flanked by uninviting hills into a pulsing maritime mart surrounded by imposing, guardian heights.

The free harbor represents to the people a $50,000,000 utility.

It represents to the world's commerce a safe, profitable haven where only a few years ago a muddy stream trickled down across the clay and the sands to a languorous, unpeopled bay where the sails of a ship in the offing became at once a rare sight and a curiosity.

Yesterday the sirens of the dredges, the horns of great ships, the sputter of fleeting motor boats, greeted the thousands who went to look. Flanking the channels, the inlets, the two main harbors and the turning basins, almost from the lighthouse on the wonderful breakwater to the farthest inland bulkhead, there was a proces-

Knowland's Address.

LOS ANGELES FIRST TO SEE OPPORTUNITY.

CONGRESSMAN KNOWLAND of Alameda, paying a tribute to Los Angeles, the harbor and the State at yesterday's dedication, spoke in the main as follows:

"An event such as we witness today more than compensates for a 3000-mile trip across the continent. The formal opening of this magnificent harbor, which will afford more than 100 miles of water front when fully developed, is an occasion of more than ordinary importance. I am glad to note the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors at Washington appreciates the importance of this harbor by approving the plan for a channel 1000 feet in width to meet the increasing needs of commerce. I have no doubt but that Congress will provide the money. The greatest thing in your favor is the fact that your harbor is under municipal control.

"In an address which I delivered before the tenth annual convention of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress, which convened in Washington in December, I said, in referring to Los Angeles Harbor, that if there was an individual in that vast assemblage who hailed from a locality which nature had provided with harbor facilities, but where there was no inclination to develop and improve what nature had placed at its doors, that I would direct that individual's attention to this wonderfully-enterprising community.

"I then cited how the city of Los Angeles, finding itself twenty miles from the ocean and realizing the difficulties to be encountered in bringing the Pacific to its doors, but fully appreciating the importance of a deep-water terminal, did the next best thing, extended its boundaries to the ocean and then bonded itself for harbor improvements.

"But this community has always had the nerve to tackle big things. I remember a few years ago when Senator Flint and your other Southern California representatives came before Congress with a mighty scheme to bring water to this community from the Owens River that many members of Congress fairly gasped at the audacity of the scheme, but as usual we complied with your wishes and that great project, which to some of our eastern friends appeared somewhat visionary, is now an actuality just as Los Angeles Harbor is today. Your enterprise is almost beyond the comprehension of some of our eastern friends.

"Experience has demonstrated the advantages of State or municipal control of harbor facilities as contrasted with that of corporations or individuals. The administration as well as ownership of terminals in every locality should be in the hands of the people so as to accord to the smallest shipper the same advantages and facilities which heretofore, in too many instances, have been enjoyed exclusively by favored corporations and large shippers. In California today there are few harbors which the people do not control, but in many localities there has been a long and hard struggle.

"It should be gratifying to the people of the country to know that the Congress of the United States, in so far as it exercises jurisdiction, has enacted legislation aimed to provide for the fullest utilization of all the people of the vast rivers and harbors of the country for the improvement of

CONTINUOUS PARADE FOUR HOURS LONG.

Unique Procession, Emblematic of the March of Progress at a Coming World Port, Made Up of Organized and Unorganized Divisions, and Representing Essential Elements—Thousands Join.

THE HAPPY celebration at the harbor began with a parade in Wilmington at 10 o'clock in which the police, marines, field artillery, Wilmington Chamber of Commerce, various bands and a mile-long line of motor cars and motor trucks participated. The procession formed at Seventh and Canal streets and marched to Municipal Pier A.

For an hour before the parade started all roads leading to Wilmington were crowded with motorists from everywhere in Los Angeles county. Prominent among the swiftly-moving vehicles were hundreds of sight-seeing cars and motor trucks each carrying from thirty to fifty passengers. It is estimated that 7000 persons went to the celebration in the motor tally-hos.

The impromptu part of the parade was a spectacular feature and a welcome surprise for Henry F. Lembke, grand marshal of the organized procession. When the column started on the march from the assemblying point, the line of motor cars which "fell in" line extended far out into the country.

The pilot car of the parade, driven by Robert Mackleery, a merchant of San Pedro, and carrying Capt. Lehnhausen of the Los Angeles police department, was decorated with two miniature ships in full rigging—emblems of the great new harbor which is attracting commerce from far over seas.

THROUGH THE THRONG.

The cosmopolitan and maritime procession passed under a banner with the flaming words, "Wilmington, Greater Los Angeles Harbor," and then marched to the sound of stirring band music through streets as crowded with men and women and machines as Broadway is at 6 o'clock in the evening.

FORMAL OPENING KNIGHTS' HOME.

BISHOP TO BLESS BUILDING NEXT SUNDAY.

Dedication Committee Completes Arrangements and Proud in the Fact that Building Is a Home Product Have Planned Programme of Literary Merit.

The Dedication Committee in charge of the formal opening and blessing of the new Knights of Columbus clubhouse on South Flower street, between Sixth and Seventh, has completed arrangements.

Next Sunday Bishop Conaty will bless the building in the presence of Mayor Rose, city and county officials and Knights of Columbus and their families. Members of the local council and their families will attend the ceremonies, as well as visiting Knights who will arrive from points all over the State.

The building is modern and includes a large auditorium and stage, library, roof garden, banquet-room, billiard-room, bowling alleys and gymnasium. The investment represents an expenditure of about $200,000, of which nearly $20,000 has been spent in equipment and furnishing.

The structure and furnishings were purchased in Los Angeles. "Our beautiful new building is a 'home product' in every sense of the word," declared Grand Knight Coyne. "It was 'made in Los Angeles' and the elegant furnishings, if not actually manufactured here, were at least purchased through local merchants."

Following the blessing of the building there will be a literary programme. P. P. O'Brien, after a few opening remarks, will introduce the first speaker, D. Joseph Coyne.

Following an address on "Our Debt of Gratitude," he will preside over the ceremonies and introduce Mayor Rose, who will speak on "Los Angeles."

Neil Power, who is leading the delegation of San Francisco visitors, will deliver "A Message from the North." Judge Paul J. McCormick will follow with an address on "Fraternity."

The message of Joseph Scott, who has been not only prominent in local Columbianism but a potent factor in the growth of the order throughout the West in the past decade, is awaited with interest.

ROAD OIL CONTRACT.

ANAHEIM, April 11.—The contract for 10,000 barrels of oil to be used for road purposes was awarded to the Associated Oil Company at the opening of the bids, their estimate of 83 cents per barrel, f.o.b. Anaheim, being the lowest received.

"BRINGING DEAD JEWELRY TO LIFE."

All good jewelry stores show special pride in their repair departments.

The "restoration" of jewelry requires great skill—and a worker in metals prides himself upon his skill, considering himself more as an artist than as an artisan.

You probably own some "dead jewelry." Perhaps a watch that has ceased to "operate" and has been laid aside. Perhaps a worn or injured setting for a diamond or other stone. Perhaps there are sets or pieces of silverware that need replating.

At a very moderate cost these things may be "recalled to life." The repairer makes new things out of the old.

In doing this work for you the jeweler is doing you a valuable service. He helps you to exercise thrift and prudence.

Yet, in encouraging you to have old jewelry restored and repaired, the jeweler is not "standing in his own light" or preventing sales of new things.

For, in arousing your interest in the things you have, he has aroused your interest in the other things which you need.

Many of these other things are advertised in today's Times. These advertisements will suggest to you some of the new things you ought to have. They will give you an idea of prices. They may persuade you to buy now some of the articles you need now. If they do that, as they will, these advertisements will have served you, too.

RIVAL PASTORS CLAIM PULPIT.

COURT IS ASKED TO RESTRAIN COLORED DIVINE.

Announcement He Will Preach at Zion Baptist Today Threatens to Shatter Holy Calm of Easter Morn. Trustees Seek Legal Aid to Forestall Sermon.

Easter Sunday, instead of being a day of holy calm, promises to be stormy at Zion Baptist Church, Third and Stephenson avenue, if Rev. Alfred C. Williams of California carries out his intention to preach, and the secretary of the Western Baptist Association, asked by the trustees to preside, also ascends the pulpit.

To avert this calamity, the trustees engaged the professional services of Attorney Darden yesterday to evoke the aid of the court to have Brother Williams restrained. If the peace and dignity of the church is disturbed today, Darden will file a complaint tomorrow and ask for an order to show cause.

The membership of Zion Baptist Church, a colored organization and among the most prominent in the city, is buzzing with excitement. It began to buzz when it learned that Williams had been elected pastor; it buzzed louder when they learned he had resigned. The buzzing reached the proportions of a tempest when Williams is alleged to have annonced his intention of conducting the Easter services, notwithstanding that the trustees had selected the secretary of the Western Association to occupy the pulpit.

Darden was non-committal yesterday, but it was ascertained, the trustees declare, that Williams elected himself as pastor. They say he went into the pulpit before the congregation assembled last Sunday. He was the storm-center at the trustees' meeting Monday night, when he announced his resignation.

The trouble was precipitated, it is said, by Williams having been sent here by Rev. E. J. Fisher of Chicago. Fisher received a call to preach at Zion.

CROWDS OF VISITORS.

Opening of Fine Store of Lyon-McKinney-Smith Company Attracts Old and New Friends.

The new home of the Lyon-McKinney-Smith Company, Nos. 737-741 South Hill street, was opened to the public yesterday. Hundreds of people accepted the invitation of this firm and inspected the new establishment from first floor to fifth; admired the advantageous arrangement of departments and the fine display of an entirely new stock, enjoyed the musical programme and the refreshments in the Japanese tearoom, which is to be a permanent feature of this store, and extended their congratulations to the enterprising members of the firm.

An interesting feature in this connection was the fact that while there were a large number of beautiful floral designs sent for the opening by friends of the firm, there were several handsome pieces from its competitors, accompanied with congratulations on their opening of the new store.

The building was constructed on land taken by the firm on a lease for ninety-nine years. It was constructed especially to meet the needs of a thoroughly modern furniture establishment, and is well lighted with windows, while the electrical lighting system has been made a special feature.

Each floor has 50x150 feet of display space, so that stock is placed to best advantage. On the first floor a magnificent display of armed chairs and rockers give the room an aspect of a great reception hall. On the balcony is placed the Japanese tea garden, with its quaint latticed nooks and its inviting tables and restful lounging places. Here the Venetian Lady Orchestra gave musical programmes yesterday afternoon and evening. Amid bowers of wistaria blossoms glowed electric lights, and tea was served to every one who cared to linger. Free telephones and a restroom are also attractions for the lady shoppers.

One entire floor is devoted to a display of carpets and rugs, another is given over entirely to dining-room and living-room furniture, library tables and bookcases, while the top floor is devoted exclusively to bedroom furniture.

The firm has arranged to carry in stock lines of furniture so that an entire outfit for the home can be secured in one style, if desired.

One interesting feature is that department where furniture for children's rooms is shown. This was an especially pleasing feature to many visitors yesterday.

During the entire afternoon there was a constant stream of visitors to the new store, and last evening from 7 to 10 o'clock the place was thronged.

The Lyon-McKinney-Smith Company was incorporated in 1902 with a capital stock of $50,000. E. C. Lyon, its head, came from Oakland, where he had been in the furniture business, and S. S. McKinney and J. O. Smith were for several years with the Niles Pease Company before embarking in the new company's venture. Their business increased so steadily that twice they had to seek new quarters before the present move, which gives them a thoroughly modern establishment, erected at a cost of $75,000.

GLAD TO BE BACK.

Former Pastor of Immanuel Presbyterian Church Comes from Atlanta to Stay in California.

Dr. Hugh K. Walker and Mrs. Walker, who arrived from Atlanta on Friday night and are temporarily at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Ford A. Prior, where they will spend a few days before going to their new home in Long Beach, though Dr. Walker will begin his pastorate there today.

Mrs. Walker said yesterday: "I feel so happy to be back. There are plenty of good people everywhere, but there's no air like that of California."

"I have come back to the land I love best of all," said Dr. Walker, "but have left behind some most delightful friends in the other Southland. They did everything possible to keep me until the new church could be completed, but Mrs. Walker's health demanded that we make the change, on account of the long, hot summers.

"It was very delightful to receive a telegram from Dr. Shaw, my successor in Immanuel Church, extending a warm welcome to us and tendering myself and Mrs. Walker a complimentary dinner on the 20th of this month. While we shall now live in Long Beach, I will ever take the warmest interest in Los Angeles and her churches."

Dr. Walker will be warmly welcomed by his thousands of friends in Los Angeles, who regretted to see him depart two years ago. Two daughters remain in Atlanta to complete their terms in school.

CASH AWARDS TO KEEN OBSERVERS.

Count the Total Number of Separate "Liners" Printed in "The Times" for the Seven Days from Monday, April 13, to Sunday, April 19, Inclusive, and Receive Five Dollars in Gold.

On Monday, April 20, and on each Monday thereafter, The Times will award $5 in gold to the person making the nearest correct estimate of the total number of classified, or "liner," advertisements printed in The Times during the preceding seven days.

This contest does not involve luck, chance, guessing or the solving of problems. Accuracy in counting the total number of "liner" advertisements that appear from day to day in The Times, including those printed in the classified Business Directory in the Sunday issue, is all that is necessary to win the award.

Answers should not be submitted until after the publication of The Times for Sunday of the week for which the contest is held, and they must be delivered at The Times office, Broadway at First street, before 10 a.m. the following Tuesday.

Estimates will be numbered in the order of their receipt at The Times office, and the prize will be awarded each week to the person sending in the first correct, or nearest correct, answer.

The name of the prize winner for the preceding week will be published every Wednesday.

This contest is not open to employees of The Times-Mirror Company, and this company's advertisements should not be counted.

Easter Eggs.

"THE TIMES" SCHOOL OF DOMESTIC SCIENCE.

EASTER eggs were the great attraction at the Times School of Domestic Science yesterday. Eggs of all sorts, sizes and colors. One admirer of Mrs. Haffner-Ginger brought her a present of five dozen fine fresh eggs from the Stuart egg ranch.

First, the cook lady concocted a delicious egg salad, using sardines, cheese and paprika minced with the yolks. The whites of the eggs, cut in half the long way, went into the construction of the most artistic little baskets you ever saw. The baskets were then filled with the salad mixture and cunning green handles from the stems of parsley added. Bits of pimento gave a dash of color. These baskets were not to be eaten—they were too pretty—but the cook lady made a huge mound of the same salad on a platter and surrounded it with the chopped whites of the eggs. This was passed about through the audience and everyone had a taste.

EGGS AND SALADS.

The clever cook lady then did all sorts of stunts with whole-boiled eggs. Some she cut to represent apples, painting them with vegetable paste of different colors. The beet paste made red apples and the spinach paste made green ones.

"Hard-boiled eggs," observed the cook lady as she rapidly shelled them, "are more digestible if boiled an hour, but if you want to cut them into shapes for salad or decorating, boil only ten minutes, for if boiled a long time the whites will crumble."

A fruit salad was concocted that looked very tempting. Sliced apples that had been soaked in sugar and sherry for two hours, together with sliced oranges and pineapples went into this. A gelatine fruit salad that had been previously made was taken from the refrigerator and served at the close as the piece de resistance.

The crowd was a good deal augmented yesterday, for salad is a favorite dish and never fails to attract. In fact two women brought their lunch and came early in order to secure points of vantage. The gallery was filled with a gay crowd of young housewives intent on learning salad secrets.

Carnations and roses bloomed on the platform, sent to the cook lady by her admirers.

"Any cook feels better with a flower in her hair," commented Mrs. Haffner-Ginger as she stuck one among her braids, "for one never knows what minute a man may appear on the scene."

OLD CONTROVERSY.

It Is Renewed By Public Works Committee of City Council—Demands Issuance of Franchise.

The old controversy that was precipitated by Haines W. Reed when he was a member of the City Council over the use of the San Gabriel Valley Rapid Transit Railroad route by the Pacific Electric Company for its Covina line is again before the Council.

The Public Works Committee tomorrow will present a report to the Council in which it will declare that the Pacific Electric has no right to cross State, Soto, Tremont and Zonal streets, and the committee will recommend that the company be required to secure a franchise and file an application for same within thirty days.

The electric line is operated mainly over a private right of way. To avoid a sharp curve the tracks at Zonal and Tremont street were thrown to one side of the right of way and lapped over on the stub end of the streets. The company offered to give a permanent right of way across its tracks if the city would vacate these portions of the streets, but Reed made a persistent fight to cause the company to secure a franchise. Reed objected to street vacation and the request was denied. One of the tracks was relaid, so as to get in on the private right of way. It is now discovered that the other track is still in the stub end of the street.

Now the city wants to secure a right of way for a sanitary sewer in this district, using a part of the right of way. The company demands a condemnation of the same. As a retaliation, the Council committee will demand that a franchise be secured for the crossing of the streets mentioned.

ALICE NIELSEN

A Winsome Southern Singer

There is something of the winsome southern belle in the charming personality of Alice Nielsen, born at Nashville, Tenn., who studied music in San Francisco and made her first appearance on the operatic stage as Yum Yum in Gilbert's "Mikado" in 1893. She joined the Bostonians in 1896, singing in many characters, especially that of Annabel in "Robin Hood." Since the days of the Bostonians she has continued to sing in grand opera, and is one of the most accomplished American violinists. There is always a ripple of approval in an audience when Alice Nielsen responds with an encore in singing "Bonny Eloise," one of the ballads that has always been popular in the South.

"Bonny Eloise" with Bonny Alice Nielsen singing it has set many a southern audience on fire. Men have cheered, women have wept, while its hallowed strains brought back war time memories to the sons and daughters of the Lost Cause. This song is to be found in "Heart Songs," now being distributed by The Times to its readers. The coupon today explains the terms on which it may be had.

JOY RIDERS JAILED.

Accused Auto Thieves Brought from North and Machine Found in Bay City.

Floyd McGinnis, No. 1106 [illegible] avenue, and Roy Ferrier were brought from San Francisco and lodged in the County Jail by Constable [illegible]bury yesterday morning, charged with grand larceny. The men are accused of having taken a seven-passenger automobile belonging to Mrs. W. [illegible] Perry, No. 1814 Van Ness avenue, from between Fifth and Sixth on Olive street, on the evening of March 31.

The machine was found in San Francisco April 3. It is being returned to this city.

When seen at the County Jail, McGinnis threatened dire vengeance if anyone informed his mother of his incarceration. She is said to be prostrated because of the affair.

Accused Accountant Is Cleared and Will File Damage Suit Against Accuser.

T. A. Roberts, an accountant, was discharged in Police Court yesterday when the jury returned a verdict of not guilty in the charge made against him by W. C. Mushet, reciting that Roberts had taken valuable papers from the office to his private room.

At the time of the arrest, the case excited unusual comment, as the papers involved were of great importance to competing firms. Roberts was held in jail for two weeks before he could secure sufficient funds for his release.

Through his attorney, [illegible] Schultz, Roberts will file suit against Mushet, asking damages for false imprisonment, he announced [illegible].

TRY A LITTLE SALTS IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER ARE TROUBLING YOU

Salts Flushes Kidneys Without Injury; Also Neutralizes Uric Acid, Ending Bladder Irritation.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in avoiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble. [Advertisement.

WHOLE COUNTY A FLOWER BED.

Supervisors Make Generous Provision of Funds.

Prizes to School Districts for Best Results.

Plan Explained to Teachers and Trustees.

Out of the general appropriation to be made by the Board of Supervisors for the entertainment and edification of visitors to Los Angeles county, during the expositions at San Francisco and San Diego next year, which will amount to over [illegible],000, there will be at least $15,- [illegible] spent in prizes to stimulate the planting of flowers and shrubs on the school grounds in every portion of the county, according to a report made yesterday before a big meeting of school teachers and school trustees, assembled in the auditorium of the State Normal School.

The committee on the beautification of Los Angeles county, outside of Los Angeles city, has this big project in charge. The schools have been divided into classes, based on the school census of last year, as prepared by County Superintendent of Schools Keppel, making ten classes with a total of thirty prizes, amounting to $7000. Besides the prizes offered for the beautification of school grounds, there are additional prizes offered to school districts assisting in beautifying the boulevards and highways within the districts. The school districts containing unincorporated territory within their limits will compete for prizes of $1000, $500 and [illegible]. The same prizes will be offered to school districts which are purely rural.

EXPERTS TO AID.

J. L. Matthews of Covina, chairman of the subcommittee, having the matter in charge, said yesterday to the teachers that the committee would shortly send expert floriculturists to every school to outline plans upon which the children may work. The county will be divided into segments, and men of undoubted ability in landscape gardening will superintend the work, and will continue to visit each school throughout the year. Judges will later be appointed by the committee, who will make three visits to the schools during 1915, and will award the prizes on the following points: Thirty-three and one-third per cent. for permanent improvement, such as planting trees and shrubs that will beautify for an indeterminate number of years, the working out of a permanent floral scheme, which can be renewed by planting each year; 33 1-3 per cent. for improvement of buildings and grounds, irrespective of flower gardens and ornamental trees, such as sidewalks, curbs, fences and repairing and rebuilding, or new construction of buildings; 33 1-3 per cent. for the best artistic floral effect. None of the judges will be allowed to inspect districts in which they live.

Besides the important idea of stimulating the planting of beautifying flowers in order that the county may present a splendid floral exhibit in 1915, it is the desire of the committee to awaken the scholars to the need of better care of school grounds, and also to create a pride in the [illegible], which in some communities seems to be lacking.

There will be 180 school districts competing, these districts comprising approximately 1700 grade and High school teachers. Superintendent Keppel, who presided over the meeting yesterday, said in welcoming the teachers:

"It is constantly a source of surprise to me to see the big attendance at gatherings of teachers from the various portions of our county, for the reason that this county is a principality of a size equal to the State of Connecticut. It argues well for this movement to beautify the school properties, to see the interest being taken by the heads of the departments."

THE CLASSIFICATIONS.

The classifications prepared by Mr. Keppel and adapted by the committee are as follows:

Class one, High School districts with average daily attendance of 200 [illegible]

Class two, High School districts with average daily attendance of less than 200.

Class three, school districts north of Sierra Madre Mountains of 40 or less average daily attendance.

Class four, school districts south of Sierra Madre Mountains of 40 or less average daily attendance.

Class five, school districts with an average daily attendance of 41 [illegible]

Class six, school districts with an average daily attendance of 101 to [illegible]

Class seven, school district with average daily attendance of 251 [illegible]

Class eight, school districts with an average daily attendance of 601 to [illegible]

Class nine, school districts with average daily attendance of 1401 [illegible]

Class ten, the most beautiful homes and grounds without regard to size of grounds and house. Prizes: First, $400; second, $200; third, $100.

Ten classes, thirty prizes, total $7000.

The men who are formulating the big school floral contest, and who were appointed for this purpose by Chairman Mott Flint of the General Committee, are J. L. Matthews, chairman; William F. Knight, [illegible]; H. J. Nichols, Pomona; W. [illegible], Monrovia; T. W. Watson, [illegible]

CONSUL-GENERAL WEDS CHINESE BEAUTY HERE.

A MARRIAGE that will be received with the greatest interest in Chinese diplomatic circles occurred last night in this city when the Consul-General of San Francisco, Kee Owyang, led to the altar Miss Margaret Woo, a native daughter of Los Angeles, and considered a Chinese beauty. The greatest secrecy marked the wedding preparations and although the engagement has existed for three years, none but the most intimate friends knew of it—and those only a few weeks ago.

The groom, accompanied by Miss D. M. Cameron of San Francisco, who has been the guardian of Miss Woo since the death of her parents in her early childhood, arrived in Los Angeles early yesterday morning and went at once to the home of Chan Kiu Sing, court interpreter and acting pastor of the Methodist Chinese Mission, who resides with his family at No. 2309 East Third street, where Miss Woo has been staying for the past few weeks.

The wedding occurred at No. 327 Vendome street, the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Thomas, who are old friends of the bride. The ceremony was performed by Dr. John Balcom Shaw, pastor of Immanuel Presbyterian Church, in the presence of a company of about twenty-five close friends and relatives of the couple. Several American guests were present—teachers in the local missions. The bride, who is a dainty little person, looked charming in her soft, white, silken bridal robes and was given into the care of her distinguished husband by Miss Cameron, her guardian.

Besides being exceptionally attractive, the bride is highly educated, having spent several years at the University of Arizona in Tucson. Last year she was a student at the Conservatory of Music in the College of the Pacific at San Jose. She is a fine singer with a charming personality and is well fitted for the diplomatic station in life which she will assume as the wife of Kee Owyang, who comes from a long line of distinguished ancestors who have played a prominent part in the official life of China. He has been in San Francisco eight years—first as Vice-Consul under the old Chinese regime, and, since the revolution, as Consul-General. He is a graduate of the University of California and of Columbia, and it is altogether likely that, in years to come, he will assume an important place in the official life of the new republic of China. His brother, now in Peking, is under appointment to Java as Consul-General.

Kee Owyang and his bride left at once for the north and will reside in Berkeley.

SUB-TROPICAL FRUITS.

Desirable Varieties Imported and Introduced Lead to Extensive Cultivation in Southern California.

Beautifying Los Angeles and Southern California generally in preparation for exposition year, when hundreds of thousands of visitors will be here, has been given new impetus by the introduction in large quantities of sub-tropical fruit trees and plants. Many of the more desirable varieties are prolific and profitable in this climate and are being planted in considerable numbers.

The desirability of such fruits as the cherimoya, white sapote, psidium guayba, guava, fruiting passion vine, etc., has led to commercial development. The Broadway Department Store announced yesterday that it will begin an important sale of these plants tomorrow.

The Cherimoya has been classed as one of the three finest fruits in the world. The fruit is heart-shaped or oval, green or brown in color and about the size of an orange.

The white sapote is a Mexican fruit introduced to California by the early Mexican settlers. Several old trees in Santa Barbara have been in bearing for years. The fruit is similar in appearance to a quince and of about the same size. The skin is thin and surrounds of quantity of soft pulp, very sweet.

The passiflora edulis or passion vine is extensively grown in Australia, but is very little known in this country. It grows well under California conditions, producing a fruit about the size and shape of an egg. It is eaten by cutting off one end and eating the pulp with a spoon.

TUBERS BREED MUTINY.

Earthy Smell of Farm Truck Impels Jail Trusties to Bolt for Freedom.

When they faced a van loaded with new potatoes that smelled of the earth and the fields, Harry Wilson and W. J. Conley, vags and trusties in the East Side Police Station, bolted for the open places yesterday, winning ten minutes of frightened freedom.

They were caught after a chase by Turnkey Burch and Motorcycle Policeman Kreps.

Both men had been hanging around the bars most of the winter and their surplus of leisure had become so aggravating that the police placed charges of vagrancy against them after having repeatedly warned them. Both men were born on farms and have lived most of their lives there.

For several days they have been in the East Side Police Station, serving their respective sentences of 180 days in jail. They were selected to act as carriers for the potatoes when the van, loaded with tubers, arrived.

Wilson and Conley walked up to the wagon that was drawn outside the jail, took one sniff of the earthy load, and jumped for freedom. Conley bolted for the river, vaulted a concrete well ten feet high and topped with barbed wire, and fled into the hills. He was caught a few minutes later by Turnkey Burch, who was guarding them when they ran.

Wilson raced to North Avenue Twenty, sneaked through a moving freight train on the Salt Lake tracks and dodged into concealments from which he was flushed by Policeman Kreps.

"STRIP POKER" AFTERMATH.

Husband of Participant in Alleged Negligee Carousal Files Suit for Divorce.

Leona Park, one of the principals in the alleged "strip poker" party at No. 1261 West Twenty-third street, is to appear in the divorce courts this week as defendant in proceedings brought by her husband, James Brady, who left her several months ago, after the couple had been publicly married.

Until the estrangement occurred, it appears, there was no secret about her marriage. James Brady, the husband, brought suit in the local courts for a divorce and the final hearing will be the 16th inst. From the time that he separated from her because of her inclinations for a frivolous life, he said yesterday, Brady has never seen Leona Park, and denies the statements of the girl's mother that he had sought to arrange a reconciliation.

Your Week's Washing Will Cost 4c

—if you install a JUDD ELECTRIC WASHER in your home. Simply fill the tub with the clothes and hot soap-suds and turn on the electric motor.

It takes less than two hours for the JUDD to dispose of the average family's washing. The copper-lined tub operates with a back-and-forth motion, different from any other washing machine in the world. The hot soap-suds are forced back and forth THROUGH the clothes.

The copper tub is absolutely devoid of pegs, ribs and obstructions of any kind. This is the reason why anything can be washed in the JUDD without the slightest injury — from heavy blankets to flimsy lingerie.

Notice that the motor is on top of the machine—not underneath, where dripping water could put it out of order. To keep the JUDD clean and sanitary is simplicity itself.

If you are looking for a Washing Machine that is totally out of the class of those exploited at low prices, come to our Display Rooms and see the JUDD.

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

The Council will have its second caucus today on the selection of a man to fill the vacancy caused by the death of McKenzie. Candidates are numerous.

The Council yesterday for the fourth time postponed action on the confirmation of Ernest Pickering as a member of the Public Service Commission.

To work out some minor details the Council yesterday postponed until tomorrow final action on the approval of the assessment district for the First-street and Second-street tunnels.

A petition for a court of arbitration to settle contested cases has been referred by the Board of Supervisors to the presiding judge, who will present it at the Thursday night meeting of the judges of the Superior bench.

At the City Hall.

COUNCILMANIC TIMBER PLENTY.

MANY FEED CALLED, BUT NONE ARE YET CHOSEN.

City Lawmakers Declare They're Hounded by Applicants and Friends — Second Caucus to Be Held Tomorrow and Vacancy Probably Filled This Week.

"I simply cannot stand this constant hounding any longer; let's get busy and settle this matter."

Thus pleaded one of the Councilmen yesterday in regard to filling of the vacancy in the Council caused by the death of Chasles McKenzie. He declared that he was not even allowed to rest at his home, but was called by telephone and had to receive visitors to discuss the subject. Others admitted that they have had similar experiences. A second caucus will be held tomorrow.

Although one caucus has been held, there was nothing definite came of it. Councilman Conwell proposed the name of H. F. Vollmer as the logical man to succeed McKenzie, stating that as Capt. Osborne has announced he is not a candidate, Vollmer stands next in the list of candidates at the last election, his total vote being next to that of Osborne.

Councilman Wheeler proposed the name of Ralph Criswell, Socialist. Wheeler has stated that he will consistently support Criswell in the balloting. This leaves seven other votes which must decide the question, as there is no possibility of Criswell receiving any other than Wheeler's vote. It takes five votes to elect.

Councilmanic timber is plentiful. In the list is included, besides Vollmer and Criswell, Frank Dale Owen, member of the Police Commission; Charles H. Randall, editor of the Highland Park Herald; Benjamin F. Groves, E. Allen Phillips, Samuel Rees, former member of the Council; John Topham, ditto; Haines W. Reed, ditto; R. W. Dromgold, ditto; J. J. Andrews, ditto; W. A. Roberts, John M. Metcalf, T. J. Golding, Ernest Braunton, C. F. Greene, L. J. Rice, H. M. Chapman, John J. Goldsworthy, the candidate of San Pedro, and probably several others, who have been overlooked in the scramble.

With all the complications that have developed, the situation is so mixed that no one can safely predict the results, and it is highly probable that some "dark horse" will be the winner.

POSTPONED AGAIN.
ACTION ON CONFIRMATION.

For the fourth time the Council has postponed action on the subject of confirmation of Ernest Pickering, Mayor Rose's appointee to a position on the Public Service Commission. Yesterday the Council set the subject over until tomorrow.

There is decided opposition to the confirmation and members stated yesterday that they hoped the Mayor would withdraw Pickering's name before tomorrow's session of the Council.

The Mayor's experiences in filling vacancies on the Public Service Commission have been rather discouraging, the Council having rejected appointees. The appointment of Pickering was to fill the place now held by John W. Kemp, his term having expired.

FOR TWO TUNNELS.
ASSESSMENT DISTRICT.

The City Council had before it yesterday the subject of approving the assessment district for the First-street and Second-street tunnels, as modified by the Public Works Committee at its last meeting, but decided to carry it over until tomorrow, in order that minor details may be further discussed.

The various members of the Council took occasion to state that they have no wish to delay proceedings, and that they are in favor of taking each step as speedily as is consistent with sound judgment.

A point not yet disposed of is that as to what disposition shall be made of the street railway franchise on Second street, from Broadway to Olive street, on Olive street to First street and extending west on First street. A new franchise will have to be provided. Councilman Bryant has stated that he believes a plan can be worked out whereby the West First-street line may be maintained over the hills.

City Hall Brevities.

The Council has set next Wednesday as the date for another effort to settle the gas rate controversy. In the recent caucus there was a difference, two members voting for a rate of 45 cents per 1000 cubic feet for natural gas, two for 30 cents, one for 40, one for 50 and one for 52 cents.

The fire chief yesterday recommended legislation providing for the use of counterbalanced stairway fire escapes of sufficient length to reach from the second story to the ground on all buildings on which fire escapes are required. The commission gave the plan its approval and will send it to the Council.

Residents of Rose Hill have filed a protest with the Board of Public Works against the maintenance of an enormous billboard, twenty feet high, near Huntington drive and the Pacific Electric tracks. It is objected that the billboard will obstruct the view and add to the hazard at this crossing.

The City Council has given authority to the Board of Public Works to award to the Santa Fe Railroad Company the contract for constructing the tunnel under its tracks to connect Leonard street with the site of the proposed garbage reduction plant. The Santa Fe bears half of the expense of this subway construction, the total cost of which is $15,000.

At the Courthouse.

PROPOSE COURT OF ARBITRATION.

ROOM FOR HEARING CONTESTED CASES IS ASKED.

Petition Declares Judges Believe Many Actions May Be Settled Out of Court and Thus Relieve Congested Condition of Calendars—Referred to Judge McCormick.

A petition asking the Board of Supervisors to provide a room at the Courthouse for the hearing and settlement of contested cases that it is believed can be arbitrated was referred to Presiding Judge McCormick for action by the judges at their monthly meeting Thursday night.

The petitioners, J. M. Elliott, O. J. Wigdal, William H. Allen, Jr., W. F. Callender, W. R. Hervey, Rev. Charles Edward Locke, E. W. Sargent, Dr. Curtis M. Beede and Louis Luckel, state that Attorney W. Burt Clark has agreed to act as arbitrator without cost to the county. They point to the fact that the nations have provided an international court of arbitration and that corporations are allowing differences to be settled by this means.

The judges of the Superior Court, the petition declares, are of the opinion that many contested cases should be settled out of court. During the trial of cases the practice now is among the judges to get a settlement of contested cases, if possible. If the court of arbitration is established, many cases can be sent to it, thus relieving the congested court calendars.

The petition suggests that quarters be provided for one hour a day, more or less, as may be necessary. The divorce evil offers a field for arbitration; actions involving bookkeeping is another and still another are suits covering commissions and real estate transactions.

INCOME A FABLE.
WIFE ASKS ANNULMENT.

The happiness which Miss Lillian Humbrecht expected from her marriage with Herman C. Silber dissipated two months after the ceremony, when as she alleged in an annulment suit filed yesterday, Silber deceived her.

The complaint told the story of a trusting girl and man's plausibility. It relates that after the marriage ceremony performed at Santa Ana last February, Mrs. Silber discovered that she had indeed been told a fairy tale. Instead of living in comfort, Silber provided her with nothing except $25.50 for the rent and $2.35 for miscellaneous articles.

She alleges he told her he had an income of about $300 a month; an uncle paid him liberally and his father was wealthy. He also dazzled her with a promise of a $250 diamond engagement ring. April 9 last Mrs. Silber completely lost faith in her husband. It was the end of the dream. She was obliged to resume her profession as a hair dresser to support herself.

THREW DOGS AT HER.
WIFE IS GRANTED DIVORCE.

Judge Shenk yesterday granted Mrs. Theresa Kelly Lawler a decree of divorce from William Eugene Lawler. In her complaint she alleged desertion, cruelty, non-support and intemperance, Lawler denying all of the charges. It was shown by Mrs. Lawler's testimony that when angry, Lawler threw the pet dog and the bulldog at her, the former being killed by missing Mrs. Lawler and striking the bath tub.

Mrs. Lawler is the daughter of the late Michael Kelly, coal baron of Illinois. At his death, his fortune of several million dollars was distributed among his four children. Lawler is a relative of a member of the stockyards firm of Van Norman & Lawler, Chicago.

COURT PARAGRAPHS.
PROCEEDINGS IN BRIEF.

BREACH OF PROMISE. Elizabeth Levinson asks $50,000 heart balm for the alleged refusal of Harry G. Kingsbaker, a wholesale cigar dealer, to marry her. She asserts the promise was made in September, and happy in the thought she announced the news to her friends. This, she declares, was at his request. Subsequently he declined to carry out the promise, she says, much to her anguish and humiliation.

JUDGE AT HOSPITAL. Judge Morrison, who has had more or less trouble with wisdom teeth, will be a patient of the Good Samaritan Hospital this week, undergoing an operation on his throat. His bench will be occupied by Judge Robert Clark of Ventura. Judge Nichol of Tuolumne county will preside in extra sessions One, which has been fitted up for him on the eighth floor of the Hall of Records.

INJUNCTION SUIT. Ellen Thompson and forty-nine other plaintiffs filed suit yesterday against City Treasurer Hance, N. W. Stowell and J. H. Bullard, declaring that the bonds issued for the construction of the Hill-street tunnel from First to Temple streets are invalid, asking that Bullard and Stowell be enjoined from collecting on the bonds, and that Hance be enjoined from selling the property of the plaintiffs.

HE MUST PAY. Mrs. George H. Kane takes exception to the statement that her husband was placed on probation by Judge Monroe on Thursday, without requiring him to pay anything for her support. She asserts that he was released on probation for one year and ordered to pay her $25 per month.

WINS JUDGMENT. Mrs. Richard Laux, whose wedding presents and gown were burned up in the fire which destroyed the Bekins Van and Storage Company, where she had them stored, obtained judgment for $1000 in Judge Smith's court yesterday, which was about half she asked. The case was fought on the question whether or not there was a contract to store the goods in a fireproof warehouse, the court finding there was.

THIRTY THOUSAND GO TO THE CELEBRATION.

BY TENS of thousands, in automobiles, electric cars and on foot, eager men, women and children poured into Wilmington yesterday for the all-day celebration of the completion of municipal pier A and the official dedication of the inner harbor to the usages of commerce.

Capt. Lehnhausen, commanding the police company, estimated the crowd at 30,000, but it was spread over such a large area and subject to so many fluctuating interests that it appeared much smaller.

A gala occasion, with the dedicatory programme nearly forgotten, best describes it. With Glenn Martin circling aloft, the freighter Isthmian and four torpedo-boat destroyers open for inspection, those persons whose attention was not engrossed by the aquatic sports found so many entrancing things to see that a bare 1000 persons heard the dedicatory speeches in the big transit shed.

With dawn almost, the invasion of Wilmington began. Thereafter the whirr of automobile engines and the purr of power boats mingled into one diapason until nearly dark. The Pacific Electric also carried thousands into the harbor city.

Though the larger percentage of those present were from Los Angeles, practically every Southland city was represented. Long Beach sent its municipal band and an automobile delegation headed by Secretary Bisby of the Chamber of Commerce; San Pedro and Whittier both sent bands and delegations, as did many other cities.

During the night "hot dog" and pop stands had sprung up along the road leading from the business center to the big pier. The vender of pennants was also abroad early. gether they lent an acceptable val touch to the occasion, which heightened by the decorations bunting and interlaced flags and nants along the business streets.

No crowd was ever more handled. During a portion of the day automobiles were barred from the road leading to the pier, shortly after noon the embargo raised. The reason was that crowd was a leisurely-moving everyone was out for a holiday, the waits between the different of the programme were so timed there was no occasion to hurry.

Not an accident marred the Once a shout went up that a had fallen into the harbor, but a liceman dived to the rescue from pier, and it then proved that whole scene had been staged hand as a little thriller to show the waterfront was adequately liced.

How many saw the Hawaiian freighter Isthmian engine-room to pilot-house known, but it is a safe guess practically every one did. The amount of footspace on the boat destroyers kept many specting them.

Gangplanks for ascending scending visitors were from the Isthmian early in and they were always crowded ing high above the water, mian furnished the grand the aquatic programme. decks the best views were obtained of the Glenn Martin as it swept in circles above ton channel, now sweeping the water, again mounting the air.

One hundred policemen hand to look after the wants people. An emergency also provided, in charge of A. Weldon and W. H. Slabaugh.

CALIFORNIA FORGING AHEAD.

BY WALTER J. BALLARD.

With products of the value of $1,110,900,252 in 1913, the largest yearly total yet, California is certainly forging ahead. The soil products alone were worth $554,651,202. Petroleum gained $5,000,000 over 1912 and mineral products increased $8,000,000. It looks as if 1914 will be a still better year. Large crops of all kinds are indicated. Reports from all parts of the State are more encouraging than they have been for years.

In the eight months ended February last the State's exports of domestic products were:

The Southern Pacific, Western Pacific and other railroads are spending large amounts in improvement of their mileage over the Sierras. The lumber company operating the plant at Westwood, Lassen county, expects soon to employ 5000 men.

Three Willows men have incorporated a company for the establishment of an excelsior mill at Butte City, Glenn county.

A new $50,000 dredger of the newest type is being completed at Pittsburgh for use near Knights Landing.

A late dispatch to the California Development Board says that a recent inspection of the sugar-beet acreage being grown for the local plant of the San Joaquin Valley Sugar Company is more encouraging than ever before in the history of the industry in that section. The factory will begin operation in June and has enough beets in sight for a continuous day and night run for four months.

Seven beet-sugar factories in Southern California will run to capacity this year. It is reported that the Spreckels factory will also run to capacity. Reports from all these growing districts indicate that the crops will be 15 per cent. larger than last year.

Three hundred acres have been planted with rice near Princeton and 2000 acres on the Moulton ranch near Colusa. Also 100 acres southwest of Colusa. It is reported from Oroville that the land devoted to rice in Butte county, between 6000 and 7000 acres, will be increased to nearly three times that amount if the ground can be got ready.

Imperial county reports fine crops and a large influx of population. The new town, Niland (Imperial Junction) is filling up rapidly. Much land is being taken in tracts of ten to forty acres.

Two thousand acres are being planted to early orchards in Nevada county and a cannery will be operated at Grass Valley. There will also be a new cannery at Armona, Kings county. Fear that the unseasonable hot weather would mature the fruit blooms so rapidly as to harm them seems to have been dissipated, and not only from the Santa Clara Valley, but the Pajaro, the upper San Joaquin, the Sacramento Valley, as well as Sonoma Valley and Southern California, reports come of a promising outlook for all kinds of crops. A San Francisco firm states that its prospects are good for a record peach crop in the upper Sacramento Valley. Thinning will probably have to be done by hand later on.

nants was also abroad early. Together they lent an acceptable festival touch to the occasion, which was heightened by the decorations of bunting and interlaced flags and pennants along the business streets.

No crowd was ever more easily handled. During a portion of the day automobiles were barred from the road leading to the pier, but shortly after noon the embargo was raised. The reason was that the crowd was a leisurely-moving one, everyone was out for a holiday, and the waits between the different parts of the programme were so timed that there was no occasion to hurry.

Not an accident marred the day. Once a shout went up that a man had fallen into the harbor, but a policeman dived to the rescue from the pier, and it then proved that the whole scene had been staged beforehand as a little thriller to show that the waterfront was adequately policed.

How many saw the American-Hawaiian freighter Isthmian from engine-room to pilot-house is not known, but it is a safe guess that practically every one did. The small amount of footspace on the torpedo-boat destroyers kept many from inspecting them.

Gangplanks for ascending and descending visitors were thrown out from the Isthmian early in the day and they were always crowded. Standing high above the water, the Isthmian furnished the grand stand for the aquatic programme. From its decks the best views were also to be obtained of the Glenn Martin craft as it swept in circles above Wilmington channel, now sweeping close to the water, again mounting high in the air.

One hundred policemen were on hand to look after the wants of the people. An emergency hospital was also provided, in charge of Drs. W. A. Weldon and W. H. Slabaugh.

Articles of incorporation have been filed for a new tuna canning company at San Pedro, with a capital stock of $50,000.

San Francisco issued $3,197,44 worth of building permits in March and Los Angeles $2,179,756 worth. Oakland came next with $625,997.

Other instances, many of them of progress in the State, might be given but the foregoing amply proves that California is forging ahead.

ENTERTAIN VISITORS.

Government Officials and Party See City and Pasadena as Chamber of Commerce Guests.

The Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce yesterday entertained Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt and Congressman Knowland and their wives from the time they arrived in the morning until the guests appeared at the harbor celebration. With Vice-President John S. Mitchell as chairman, a committee met the guests at the Alexandria early in the morning and escorted them about the city and through Pasadena by auto.

Returning to the city at noon, a luncheon was given by the Chamber of Commerce at the Alexandria, where there were about fifty guests. Brief speeches were made by Congressman Knowland and Secretary Roosevelt and by Treasurer R. W. Burnham. Following the luncheon the party sped to the harbor.

KANSAS PICNIC HERE.

Former Residents of Sunflower State Meet in Sycamore Grove and Talk Over Old Times.

The Kansas State Society held its annual picnic in Sycamore Grove yesterday, and a large crowd enjoyed the festivities of the day. A platform meeting was held at 2 o'clock, when Judge Monroe and C. E. Benton, both former Kansas men, delivered addresses. Mrs. Matthews of Hollywood gave some humorous readings. Candy booths were situated in all parts of the park and at these the folks of the Sunflower State gathered and spent the larger part of the day in visiting with each other. Many of the participants in the picnic came from outside towns.

MAY COST HIS LIFE.

Delivery Boy Meets with Accident While Carrying Vessel of Benzine and Is Terribly Burned.

While carrying a gallon of benzine on his motorcycle yesterday, Mark Swain, a delivery boy for a drug store on West Washington street, met with an accident and broke the container of the liquid. The fluid caught fire from the engine of the motorcycle and burned him so badly that it is thought he may die. The accident occurred at No. 1818 Roosevelt avenue by the breaking down of his machine the flames wrapping his face and body and burning him to the bone in several places.

BOY SOLDIERS RETURN.

High School Cadets Back in Fine Feather From Week's Outing in the Mountains.

The 150 members of the Los Angeles High School branch of the Cadets of California, arrived at the Santa Fe Station yesterday, after a week spent in the hills near Claremont. The camp, which is an annual event with the High School battalion, was named in honor of E. W. Oliver, vice-principal of the school.

Under the direction of Maj. A. Carpenter and Capt. Fred S. Fisk the tactics of real warfare were indulged in and several interesting battles fought, each of the contending parties still declaring that they were the victors. A special feature was visitor's day, last Wednesday, when the parents and friends of the young troopers called to visit camp.

The Military Band, consisting of seventeen pieces under the leadership of Rufus Brent, was one of the decided hits of the week and, in its new uniforms, received many plaudits from the visitors. The six days' outing was furnished at a cost of $2.50 to each "soldier," owing to the financial aid received from the

"S. & H." Stamp Jubilee

An Important Event to All Shoppers

MONDAY morning when the doors of the 5th St. Store open at 8:30 there will begin our 4th Annual "S. & H." Green Stamp Jubilee. This is an event of such far-reaching importance to economical shoppers and of such remarkable interest to stamp savers that it is with reluctance that we refrain from going more into details on this page. But the most important feature of the big Jubilee is the hundreds of unparalleled values that will prevail over this entire establishment. The prices set forth in this ad. are only a prelude to others to follow. Every day of the whole two weeks will be brim full of good values. However, first choice is always best as sizes and patterns in all lines are necessarily impaired as a big sale progresses. Be here when the doors open the first day.

FLAUNTING FATE.

The Democratic party seems to sidestep the question of woman suffrage quite successfully. We warn them that the success is only temporary. No man can permanently evade woman.

THE LONE STAR.

People used to say they would do so and so when Texas went Republican. Well, a good many of these threats have been taken in vain, but it would not be surprising if Texas went Republican in the next national election, as the people down there are not much in sympathy with Wilson and his attitude toward Mexico. The Kansas City Star aptly remarks: "Texas acts sometimes as if it regretted annexation."

BASEBALL PRICES.

The Boston Transcript remarks that there is a growing suspicion that Andrew Carnegie, in a last desperate effort to die poor, is financing the Federal League. It seems to be the truth that the country is having a touch of frenzied finance in baseball. You hear it rumored that Walter Johnson is to receive $25,000 next year if he will switch leagues. Prices are now up to a point where the management, in spite of wonderful patronage, is likely to lose. The reaction which is certain to follow this sort of business will not be good for the individual players nor for the game.

SPOIL FOR THE SUFFRAGETTES.

The King and Queen of England have just opened a new museum in the heart of London, crammed full of unique and valuable works of art and historic treasures.

And immediately after His Majesty had turned down the suffragette deputation to the throne! Considering that half the public treasure-houses in the kingdom are closed owing to the depredations of suffragettes, this looks like inviting trouble.

But, as the Bystander caustically remarks, England is already vastly over-museumed, so probably the infallible law of gravity is at work.

FACE THE MUSIC.

A man puts all his earnings into a speculation against which he has been warned, loses, and rails against frenzied finance. A woman plays bridge for stakes she knows she cannot afford, loses, and protests indignantly against the gods of chance. Many others when they have been indiscreet or foolish and in consequence troubles come upon them are apt to complain, "Somebody has wronged us." At times we are all liable to make mistakes, to do the things we ought not, to leave undone the things we ought; the only salvation in such a case is to swallow hard and face the music.

AIRY EPISTLES.

These terrible Turks are living up to their Society of Union and Progress ideals. They have taken aircraft straight to their hearts and have just instituted a government aerial service for mail carrying.

That ancient province of Mesopotamia, which we are apt to associate with a biblical past, is the first to enjoy the distinction of the most modern postal service and the route between Aleppo and Bagdad is already in active commission. Passenger travel is still by caravan.

What with motor-boats on the Dead Sea and wireless telegraphy in Jerusalem, one's sense of ancient sanctity is apt to be a bit disturbed.

DISGUISE DEMODE.

President Wilson, in his heart-to-heart talk with the journalists, reminded us that it was against the law to disguise ourselves. All the same, it is a law that should never be drastically enforced. It would be rather terrifying if some of us threw off all disguise and exhibited ourselves as we really are.

In which connection we observe that Paris has decreed that paint and powder are to become hopelessly demode. The fashionable mondaine must henceforth present her own unalloyed complexion to the world and obvious powder on the tip of a ravishing retrousse nose will be relegated to the merely vulgar. Of course we ought to be glad. But shall we be able to bear it?

FREE TRADE.

Under a protective tariff, before the days of Bright and Cobden, England used to be the workshop of the world. She is so no longer. Protected Germany and protected America have outstripped her in the industrial procession. A writer in the Contemporary Review has pointed out that only one male in three in the British Isles is now employed directly in producing industrial wealth. Is not this a strong enough argument for any nation?

When we import goods from abroad, instead of manufacturing them at home, it is evident we are diminishing employment for our own people. Half a dozen laborers at the wharf can handle imported goods which in the making have given occupation to hundreds of skilled workmen. And the consumer pays the bill in the long run—is bound to do so. The money that used to go into the many pockets of our working people now goes into the few pockets of commission merchants. That is the one big difference. That is where the Free Trade shoe pinches the poor. A country is more prosperous as the workshop than as the warehouse of the world.

THE WAR ON BUSINESS; HAVE THE PROMISED BENEFITS ACCRUED?

When Mr. Bryan began his denunciation of the business men of the nation, many people suspected that he was trying to whitewash his defeats in the campaigns for the Presidency by placing the blame on "Big Business," which, since it opposed him, could not be otherwise than corrupt. He made large promises to the effect that if business were suppressed, controlled by the government, whipped into timidity so that it would be afraid to make money, "the people" would get the revenue that was taken from the corporations and would grow fat.

Then uprose T. Roosevelt, in belated but berserker rage, stealing the Bryan plan for hammering the profits out of "Big Business" that these profits might be picked up by the proletariat in much the same manner as children pick up pennies dropped in the street. It was all so simple, so easy to be put into effect that Roosevelt developed a characteristic case of emotional frenzy toward all who failed to agree with him.

It was noticeable that both Mr. Bryan and Mr. Roosevelt were seeking profitable political favors from the people in advance of the great benefits that were to result from their war on business. The same analogy may be found between all politicians who have attacked business men: promises of large gains to the working classes have been offered in exchange for votes.

The Times then ventured to say that if war was declared on business there would be no benefits to anyone, excepting the politicians, commissioners and office holders, and that the entire country would suffer, but most of all the working people and those dependent on their prosperity. The Times also ventured to point out that an agitator whose knowledge of finance was so meager and so unstable as to have called forth a violent advocacy of "free silver," was hardly a fit person to give advice on the manner of regulating the industries of the nation—especially, when it was obvious that he was trying to gain revenge on the men who refused to adopt his cracked theories, and also to win the support of short-sighted voters who thought that dollars could be shaken out of corporations for their benefit as peanuts might be shaken out of a bag. As for Roosevelt—since he had been on every side of every question that seemed popular, or that would be popular, he could not be considered other than as a demagogic menace.

The Times was at once branded as pariah by all who hungered for the benefits promised by the politicians. The Times was called the "hireling of the corporations," "the tool of the Southern Pacific" (Gov. Johnson's principal campaign phrase!) as well as "the instrument of predatory plutocracy" with variations.

The war on business was declared, and the results are before the nation. Where are the benefits that these politicians promised? The corporations, the railroads, the financiers, the various forms of industry have been shaken and distressed and politician commissions have diverted and pocketed the revenues; but money is not being picked up off the streets.

The railroads have been practically ruined by the government—the men who own them must operate them, but the government dictates fares and wages. The express companies are being driven out of business; power companies are being confiscated; the banks are being confiscated and the logical result will be ultimately to take the newspapers and the ice-cream parlors under government control. Where are the benefits? The politicians say: "Wait—everything will be fine after awhile."

But in the meantime thousands of working people, who looked forward expectantly to the "easy money," are losing their jobs. "Big business" has been whipped into subjection, as the politicians said it should be, but the benefits are limited to a few office holders like Hiram Johnson, Mr. Bryan, and the Democratic regime. The people of the nation are surprised to find a financial depression settled upon them. The unprecedented prosperity of the past decade has been turned into a commercial slump that augurs impending disaster.

One express company has been forced out of business and 15,000 employees lost their jobs. One railroad laid off 15,000 men recently, and another railroad laid off 10,000. Factories are closing down. Manufacturers are failing; established and sound businesses are losing money. Big business has been deprived of its revenues—where are the benefits to the "dear peeple" who voted per instructions of the demagogues?

Even so fanatical an antagonist of "big business" as Frank A. Munsey—the calliope of Progressivism he has been—is even now denouncing government interference with business with more energy than those erstwhile known in Progressive quarters as "tools of the Southern Pacific." Mr. Munsey declares the nation is starving itself by choking the railroads. Though it was a part of his political religion to deprive the big industries of their revenue, Mr. Munsey has awakened to the fact that business concerns must first make money before they can spend it, and that the working people, the merchants, the magazine editors and bankers do not get money unless it is spent. And even President Wilson is showing concern over the situation, and we hear nothing more of his threat to "hang higher than Haman" the capitalists of this country if prosperity failed to continue under his administration. It was no more silly for King Canute to order back the tide than for Wilson to order prosperity to continue in the face of bungling, short-sighted control of business by political commissions.

There are no benefits resultant from the war on business. All forms of industry have checked their expansion; curtailments and retrenchments are being made on every hand. Instead of benefit to the working classes there has come a scarcity of work. The government has clogged the channels of finance and money cannot circulate. Financiers are receiving no revenue to reinvest from their stocks in railroads and other businesses, or they dare not invest their capital while the government refuses to permit investments to be profitable. Money, unlike other commodities, does not disappear when used. It disappears when it cannot be used. This nation was prosperous when the industries were pouring out products, collecting large revenues, spending those revenues for material to make more products and selling those again. The government has cut down the revenues and it has thereby incapacitated the industries for spending—and the people who depended on the industries to buy raw materials and to pay salaries have in turn had their incomes diminished.

The demagogues, the professional politicians, the narrow theorists, the Bryans, the Roosevelts, the "Doc" Hayneses, the Earls, the Johnsons, are directly responsible. They aroused class hatred to further their personal ends, by telling the people that business men were making too much money, and that if the business men's revenue was cut off the people would get the "mon." If it is beneficial to have the commerce of the country stagnant, to have thousands of people thrown out of work, to have money scarce and men with capital justified in their fear to invest it, then the "Progressive" politicians have prophesied in truth—for such is the condition that has come upon this nation.

MOVE OVER CLOSER TOGETHER THERE AND GET IN THE PICTURE!!
"THE MOVIES"

A REAL UNION.

A real labor union must be founded on good will and include both employer and employees. It must be a union of capital and labor, not of labor against capital or of capital against labor. It must be represented by the handclasp, not the closed fist. Some day such a union will prevail throughout the United States. And when that happy time arrives, the workingmen of America will bless the names of the close thinkers and prophetic reasoners for fighting the tyranny from which the whole industrial world is at present suffering.

One instance alone will prove the benefit to all concerned from such a real union, worked out in an open shop, free from the meddling interference of outside agitators.

In the recent number of a magazine has appeared an article describing the results accomplished in the great automobile factory of Henry Ford. He employs at his plant in Detroit about 15,000 hands, entirely free from the dictation of any organized coterie of outside labor bosses.

Here Mr. Ford has introduced a profit-sharing plan to include every loyal worker in the factory. As a result, the lowest wage paid to any laborer is $5 a day, not fixed by any arbitrary minimum wage law, but by the natural law of trade expansion. The success of the undertaking is almost without parallel. Because it is a voluntary and not a forced arrangement.

But there is no "unionizing" allowed in the Ford workshops. When Mr. Ford discovered that some of his toolmakers were distributing union literature among the men, he promptly discharged them. It is true that he reinstated them later, but no man after that was willing to jeopardize good wages in a good concern to play into the hands of any walking delegate.

The Ford men—and later on all wage earners—will see the benefit of working with the office instead of against it. And the office will find out the advantage of working with the men instead of succumbing to outside labor bosses.

For whereas the aim of these outside labor-union dictators is to decrease output, to cripple industry, to encourage incompetence and to take away initiative, the effect of the Ford co-operation plan is to increase the output, hearten the employees, encourage ambition and reward loyalty. And it has done so. The immediate result of the profit-sharing plan was to increase the output from ninety cars an hour to 105. Better wages naturally followed for all employed in procuring this increased efficiency.

But the best part of all is the solid friendship thus created between the heads and the lowliest laborers in every department. A union founded on hands and hearts is bound to triumph over a union based on threats and violence. The walking delegate will avoid the Ford factory in future as a weary I.W.W. flees from the job to come.

During the last few years a great change has been taking place in public sentiment. The muck-rake has gone out of fashion. All classes are discovering that sympathy is a better weapon than antagonism, and inside control than outside interference. All except the self-appointed Gomperses and Tveitmoes and lesser agitators for value received. Trembling for the loss of their soft jobs, these are making a last desperate effort to stir up industrial strife. They are reaching the end of the rope.

A few more Henry Fords among the big employers of labor will for good and all put the irresponsible labor leader out of business. So the workers will be enriched at both ends of the pay roll. At one end by receiving increased wages and at the other by saving the forced dues paid to outside "bosses." So will the greatest curse of this century, the manufactured hostility between capital and labor, be finally removed, a true inside union take the place of a false outside federation, and the shackles of the closed shop be cast off forever.

It remains for the best men in the ranks of both capital and labor to combine for this blessed end, and the end is sure.

WHAT IS THE MONROE DOCTRINE?

A meeting was held last week in Philadelphia of the American Academy of Political Science to discuss the topic of "Present International Relations and Obligations of the United States." The Monroe doctrine and the conditions in Mexico were considered.

Among the speakers was Maurice Low, who represented a London newspaper. He was introduced as a speaker who would give to the audience the European attitude toward the Monroe doctrine. The brevity and wit of his speech was as remarkable as was the modesty of it. He said it would be easier to explain the attitude of Europe toward the Monroe doctrine if Europe only knew what the Monroe doctrine really is.

The other speakers failed to enlighten Mr. Low. Gov. McCorkle of West Virginia stoutly asseverated that the Monroe doctrine is necessary to the peace and safety of the United States, but he failed to show how our peace was secured and our safety guarded by it, or what it consists of.

Charles M. Pepper of Washington, D. C., was a pungent speaker. He said that the Monroe doctrine is not "an obsolete shibboleth," and with vigor of verb clothed with grace of adjective he asserted that any movement to abolish the Monroe doctrine would be unwise. Still he did not enlighten the gathering with a statement of what the Monroe doctrine is.

Philip M. Brown, assistant professor of international law at Woodrow Wilson's Princeton University, and at one time in the diplomatic service, wanted the principles of the Monroe doctrine embodied in international law, but he did not tell what those principles are.

John Barrett, director of the Pan-American Union, did not state what the Monroe doctrine is, but he went further than the previous speakers, for he declared what it is not. It was not an effort on the part of the United States to dictate to a group of nations to the south.

Henry Lane Wilson, who was retired by his Presidential namesake from the Mexican embassy, offered some sharp criticisms on the immense amount of information that he alleges Woodrow does not possess, but the speaker never mentioned the Monroe doctrine.

Rear-Admiral Chester enlightened the audience by explaining what the "balance of power" in Europe is, and what the "entente cordiale is," but while he dilated on these topics he said nothing whatever about the Monroe doctrine.

Leopold Graham of New York spoke of "the Latin view of the Monroe doctrine," but what the point of view is, or what the Latins viewed, he carefully omitted to mention.

And the representative of the London newspaper omitted himself from further attendance at the meeting of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, unenlightened with respect to the Monroe doctrine. He was in the same condition of mind as was the juror who said: "I have listened carefully to the arguments of counsel and I understand the case perfectly with one exception: What is meant by the terms 'plaintiff' and 'defendant?'"

THE RECONSTRUCTION OF AMERICAN PORTS.

Writing for the American Review of Reviews, B. J. Ramage discusses "The Reconstruction of American Ports," showing that great enterprise is being manifested in the development and expansion of practically all of the great harbors of this country. "Of the influences that have helped to bring about the reconstruction of American ports," he says, "unquestionably the most direct is the approaching completion of the Panama Canal. Another factor is the growing size of ships."

All of the works of deepening, straightening or widening the channels and building breakwaters, "as well as the establishment of harbor and pier-head lines, fixing the length of wharves, are carried on by the Corps of Engineers, United States Army—the nearest approach to a national Department of Public Works. . . . The government leaves to port and private enterprise the construction of terminal facilities, such as wharves or piers of docks for the water adjacent to or between them."

Of the work being done at Los Angeles it is said in the Review's article: "Los Angeles is about twenty-one miles from the seacoast, and with it is connected by rail and trolley lines. Several years ago the ports of San Pedro and Wilmington consolidated with Los Angeles in order to secure central administration for harbor affairs. San Pedro is known as the outer and Wilmington as the inner harbor. The government is constructing a breakwater.

"The total waterfront of the consolidated municipalities is about 20.75 miles. Of this approximately 30,000 feet, including wharves under construction, are employed by shipping. The unused portion aggregates fifteen miles. As regards ownership, 23,400 feet of waterfront belongs to the public, 42,800 are in litigation between the public and private parties. Out of seventeen wharves four are owned by the city and thirteen by private parties. Three municipal wharves, aggregating 4795 feet, are building.

"Los Angeles has a comprehensive plan of harbor improvements, and during the past two years the city has issued bonds aggregating $5,500,000 for carrying them out. Port affairs are administered by a Board of Harbor Commissioners appointed by the Mayor for a term of four years.

"Our largest and most opulent port," says Mr. Ramage, "lies partly in New York and partly in New Jersey. The total waterfront of this port is 770 miles, of which 577 miles are in New York City.

"At Philadelphia there are 35.59 miles of waterfront on the Delaware and Schuylkill rivers. . . . The harbor is thirty feet deep, but a thirty-five floor project is under way. So far about $27,000,000 has been spent on the Delaware River and Bay. Of this amount about $18,000,000 was appropriated by the government and $9,000,000 by the State.

"Boston Harbor is closer to the sea than any other Atlantic portal, but the adjacent islands serve as natural breakwaters. The main channel inwards from President Roads is nearly completed, with a depth of thirty-five feet at low water and a width of 1200 feet.

"Keen interest in port development prevails from Norfolk to Galveston, including Wilmington, Charleston, Savannah, Jacksonville, Pensacola, Mobile and New Orleans, all important in the cotton, lumber or naval-stores trade.

"The recent growth of these famous ports is largely the story of that extraordinary railroad and industrial expansion which is yet to be fully told," if the government control of railroads does not strangle them to death, as is the indication at present.

"It will thus be seen that the same influences which are transforming the seaports of this country are also reshaping the harbors of the Great Lakes, whose shipping forms so large a proportion of American tonnage. Not only Duluth, Superior, Milwaukee, Chicago, Buffalo and Cleveland, but a score of other busy ports, under the guidance of alert and foresighted commissions and trades of commerce, are making plans for future as well as present demands. They are going about the work, moreover, in that practical manner so characteristic of the Middle West. . . . Those who are earnestly striving to revive our inland waterways realize that the port and terminal problem is every whit as important as the question of channel depths, and there is every indication that the attention now devoted to this phase of the subject will have a far-reaching effect."

Office boys with rapidly-dying grandmothers will be in evidence tomorrow. The sudden and unexpected demise of so many grandmothers will be mourned by the requiem of the calliope, the prancing, pirouetting horses, the roar of the tamed, unfanged lions, the peregrination of the clumsy elephant in search of the elusive peanut, the painted face of the clown, the spangles of the acrobats, the flowing robes of the Roman charioteers and the plateau-like backs of rocking-horse steeds that lope in lazy, languorous stride about the three rings under the big canvas.

Really, the newest and best thing about the circus is the addition of Buffalo Bill, although in the circus itself there are enough of the latest thrills and unique features to make it more attractive than it was a year ago and to give answer to the old question about how long the time-honored institution will continue to attract.

MORBID CROWD BORTUARY.)

Mother of Slain Girl Coming Far to See Victim of Mathewson's Jealousy.

Several hundred persons called at the Peck & Chase mortuary yesterday to view the bodies of Claude Mathewson and Nellie Bucke, alias Murdock, the victims of the murder and suicide in the Hotel Lorraine, No. 310 Clay street, of which they were proprietors.

Services over the remains of Mathewson will be held in the chapel of the undertaking establishment Monday afternoon. Horace G. Mathewson, stepfather of the dead man, identified the body at the morgue yesterday and made arrangements for the disposition of the body.

The Coroner yesterday formally disposed of the tragedy by signing death certificates, nominating the death of the woman by murder and the man by suicide.

Definite arrangements have not been made regarding the burial of the woman. L. F. Bucke, her brother, telegraphed from Madera, Cal., to bury the body without ceremony and obtain the money from C. F. McCormick, a brother-in-law. A second telegram was received from the girl's mother, asking the authorities to hold the remains until she could come from her little farm near Raymond, Wash., to see her daughter once more.

The news of the tragedy reached the mother after it had been carried many miles by stage, as the family reside on a ranch about sixteen miles from the nearest village.

No further details of the tragedy were revealed yesterday. William Wallace, the Boston millionaire, who had become identified with the woman, because of his presence in the hotel and his liberality in cafes, where his tips to entertainers alone ofter amounted to $400 in a night, it is alleged, was exonerated of all connection with the tragedy.

TRY THIS IF YOU HAVE DANDRUFF

Or Are Bothered With Falling Hair or Itching Scalp.

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

If you want to keep your hair looking rich, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for nothing destroys the hair so quickly. It not only starves the hair and makes it fall out, but it makes it stringy, straggly, dull, dry, brittle and lifeless, and everybody notices it. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.—[Advertisement.

TRY IT! SAYS SAGE TEA DARKENS AND BEAUTIFIES FADED, GRAY HAIR

Mixed With Sulphur Makes Hair Soft and Luxuriant and Removes Dandruff.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is coming in vogue again, says a well-known downtown druggist. It was our grandmother's treatment and hundreds of women and men, too, are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is the most popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply dampen a soft brush or sponge with "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. Do this tonight, and by morning the gray hair disappears and after another application it is restored to its natural color.

What delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that besides beautifully darkening the hair they say it produces that soft luster and appearance of abundance which is so attractive; besides prevents dandruff; itching scalp and falling hair. Here, you gray-haired folks, get busy; look years younger.—[Advertisement.

He Likes Old England Best. Well!

LOS ANGELES, April 10.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Allow me to back up the fine letter of C. C. Pierce on "The Speed Microbe" in this morning's Times.

As a Johnny Bull I often pat myself on the back, as some beastly bounder shaves past my wheel at forty per, with, perhaps, one inch between me and, well say three months in the hospital, for I know that in any city in old England, the chances are ten to one that just as he passes me at that terrific speed the shrill whistle of a cop will be heard, not stopping him (the cop can see his number,) but stopping me, and getting my name to appear against the mad motorist, when a fine that will stagger him, along with the indorsement of his driving license (a most serious matter) will be given him in the police court.

Yes, sir, the Johnny Bulls are away ahead in this matter. And another thing, after about a dozen people or so have been killed, or chawed up by motorists, some old alderman will get up in the City Council and move the reduction of the chief police officer's pay, and if it appears that very few convictions have been proved against the offenders, down comes his salary, and then things happen.

Let any man go and ride a wheel through your ill-lighted, slippery, greasy Third-street tunnel, and if he comes out alive (I've done it) let him look at the sign at either end "Motoring at a speed exceeding ten miles an hour forbidden" and if he is anything of a humorist, he is bound to laugh. Why the thing is a joke.

So are your police regulations, because they are not enforced. There has been, I am glad to say, a distinct improvement, however, of late, especially this new by-law compelling motors to stop behind street cars which are taking up or setting down passengers, and it behooves every man who can use any influence, by note or otherwise, to back up the efforts put forth to abate the nuisance, for it is a nuisance, or worse, for it is a great blot on American civilization that the people will stand for such savagery.

Let the heavy hand of the law be felt in this matter (it will cost nothing for the fines will more than repay the cost) and the mad motorists taught their much-needed lesson.

"Caparisons is odorous," but to revert to England again, it is a matter of common knowledge over there that a lone road, over a moor or heath, with hardly a house in sight, is dangerous to the speed maniac, not to the public, for at any moment he is liable to arrest for speeding, and if England can guard her lonely country roads like this, surely Los Angeles can regulate her great city at least as well.

I may mention in proof of what I state that so great a nuisance did the speeder become in England a few years ago, that the police became correspondingly vigilant, to such an extent that the A.A. (Automobile Association) took the extreme step of sending out a corps of A.A. scouts whose duty it was to find out the police "traps" as they are called, and to warn the motorist of the traps as they drove along the lonely country roads.

It will be a fine day for Los Angeles, when because of the "persecution" of the police, the auto boys have to pay detectives to find out the "traps" and warn them against speeding when in the danger "zone." But it can't come too soon.

CHINESE FRAME PROTEST.

White Attorneys and Few Orientals in Meeting Here Allege Abuses by Inspectors.

A Chinese-uprising-and-declaration-of-rights meeting was staged in Los Angeles yesterday by a group of Caucasian attorneys and a few Chinamen. It was an entirely bloodless affair though it is said the outcome may mean the lifting of some scalps in Southern California before the curtain is rung down on this oriental drama.

John McNab, attorney for the allied Chinese interests, and M. Q. Fong, secretary of the Chinese Six Companies, San Francisco, registered at the Westminster yesterday morning and were joined by attorneys and a number of Chinese from Bakersfield, Fresno, Mojave and other interior cities, for a conference on best methods to use in stopping alleged unwarranted arrests and general persecution of Chinese by some of the immigration and customs inspectors.

The Chinese allege that officers have been guilty of gross mistreatment, robbing them of their citizens' papers, putting them in jail without cause of any sort and otherwise making life miserable.

"We have ten specific instances of this character," said McNab.

"There has been no trouble of this character in the Coast cities, where the Chinese are well represented by attorneys and their own men who are acquainted with civil and criminal procedure."

He said the alleged abuses exist in some interior points, however.

"We are taking up the matter with the Federal authorities in Southern California," he added, "and will proceed to Washington immediately after Minister Hsia receives his final confirmation papers from the Chinese government, which has been without representation at our capital since the overthrow of the Empire."

Fong, speaking of his countrymen, stated that they realize the value of their citizenship and are doing everything in their power to continue in the good graces of the government. He himself is a university graduate.

Warning.

LOVING TYPIST BAD BUSINESS.

Beware Stenographers, Says Upland Merchant.

Beware of Employers, Assert the Typewriters.

All Agree that Married Men Are the Worst.

If words were actually as pointed as they sometimes seem, Alfred K. Ware, an Upland merchant who recently issued a warning to other business men to beware of their stenographers, would today be suffering more than the stings of conscience.

Ware's wife recently obtained a divorce on the grounds of cruelty. Mrs. Ware, twenty-five years younger than he, had been his stenographer prior to becoming head of the household, and Ware's warning hurled at all stenographers was directed especially at his erstwhile stenographer-wife.

Ware asserted that Mrs. Ware had married him to escape pounding the typewriter and not because she was moved by any softer motive. He declared she merely wedded in order to have a change of position. He also suggests that very pointed questions be asked prospective brides regarding their domestic experience before a license is granted, and sweepingly warns all business men to beware of their stenographers, who, he insinuates, will ensnare the unsuspecting employer whenever she is tired of office work.

THE OTHER SIDE.

That there is quite a different side to the question is shown by the many protests that have been filed against the Upland merchant's warning.

From all sides have come protests from scores of pretty typists, who not only hurl the Upland merchant's words back in his teeth, but fling an answering warning.

"The very idea," said Miss Nellie M. Harris, a young business woman who is as clever a stenographer as she is quick at answering such a challenge. "Instead of warning business men against their stenographers, I believe every girl who expects to enter an office should be warned against the insidious advances of many of the employers. In nine cases out of ten it is the man who starts the trifling. The girls I know keep their social life outside of the office, and I know scores of girls who have resigned their positions because their employers wanted to become sociable."

Miss Harris says the business man who has reached a mature age and who gets taken in on a leap-year proposition has only himself to thank for the trouble, and that any employer who overworks his stenographer to such an extent that she rushes into matrimony to avoid overwork would surely not be the man she would choose for a husband.

NEEDS NO WARNING.

Miss Hazel Marie Hopp, whose laughing brown eyes and fluffy golden-brown hair seem to contradict her two years of stenographic work, stated positively yesterday that if the business man is the right sort of a person he doesn't need to be warned. She says that if by associating with his stenographer day after day he comes to know her good qualities and appreciate them, she doesn't see any reason why the stenographer would not make a far better wife for the business man than a girl who did not know what strenuous office life meant.

"The hard-headed business man usually gets peeved when Cupid gets him," laughed Miss Hopp, "and so I haven't any sympathy with the Upland merchant. He probably got what he deserved. For my part, I don't think a man that age would make a very attractive husband for the average stenographer, anyway."

MARRIED MEN WORST.

"If people only knew what the average attractive young stenographer runs up against," said another business woman, "they would take no stock in Mr. Ware's warning. It is the married men who cause the stenographers the most trouble. In many cases the girls are sooner or later forced to resign or submit to their employer's advances. Keeping the girl after business hours, locking doors and a lot of such things are not uncommon reasons for a pretty stenographer losing her position."

To prove that Ware is absolutely wrong, Miss Philetta M. Radcliffe, who for seven years has been registrar and assistant to the president of the Isaacs-Woodbury Business College, stated yesterday that Ware's warning was absurd. Miss Radcliffe has placed thousands of capable stenographers in business offices in Southern California, and is warm in advocating their cause. To her the girls come when in trouble or when out of employment and she is in a position to sound the depths of the warning.

Miss Nellie M. Harris.
Miss Philetta M. Radcliffe.
Miss Hazel Hopp.
Mrs. Georgia P. Bullock.

They resent "warning" against stenographers.

These young Los Angeles business women have something to say in a divorced Upland man's queer statement.

"The percentage of stenographers who marry their employers is so small, judging from the extensive experience I have had in placing stenographers," said Miss Radcliffe, "that such a warning seems ridiculous as well as humorous, and there is not much danger of its being taken seriously.

"The mere fact that the man is her employer and the woman is the man's stenographer should have nothing to do with happiness or unhappiness in the marriage state," she says. "If unhappiness and divorce result it is because the man and woman are temperamentally or otherwise unsuited to each other and not because the woman was his stenographer."

FOOLISH AGE.

Miss Radcliffe says that there may be some young women stenographers who are foolish enough to marry an equally foolish aged employer for the sake of a home, money and ease, but if trouble ensues it is not because she was his stenographer, but because of the disparity in age and other conditions.

Another fair typist states positively that there is no line of work where girls encounter so much trouble in side-tracking too amorous attentions as stenography. "It is the married man who gives the stenographer the most cause to worry," she says. "She cannot accept his attentions seriously and yet, unless she is very careful, she will have them thrust upon her."

Mrs. Georgia P. Bullock, who by her business ability has won a high place among the criminal attorneys of the State, is openly on the side of the stenographer.

"The average stenographer takes more than her share of the burdens of an office on her shoulders," said Mrs. Bullock yesterday, "and I believe more employees than employers strive to keep the office relations on a business footing."

Mrs. Bullock acknowledges that propinquity has a lot to do with keeping "Sparks" busy issuing licenses, but denies the statement issued by Ware that stenographers do not make good wives. "The more highly educated a man or woman is the better partner he or she makes," says the fair Portia.

Most girls state that the average employer wants to keep his business entirely separate from his social life, but that if men only knew how their business rating with the girl dropped when they made the first advance to their stenographer, they would all certainly toe the straight and narrow path.

The Guinea Pig Proved It

That dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair are mostly due to a contagious disease is now recognized by dermatologists everywhere.

A notable demonstration was by Drs. Lassar and Bishop, who took dandruff scales from the head of a student who was losing his hair and having made a pomade of them with vaseline, rubbed the same upon a guinea-pig, and the pig became bald. (See Geo. Thomas Jackson, M.D., on diseases of the skin, 4th edition.)

The success of Newbro's Herpicide in the eradication of this contagion is quite extraordinary. Neglect and delay only add to the trouble. Begin today with Herpicide and watch the improvement.

Stops itching of the scalp almost instantly. Try it.

PETALUMA DEAD MAY SCRA THE CONTRACTOR.

San Francisco Packer Aims to Sustain His Corner by Storing Eggs in Los Angeles, but It Looks Rather Blue at This Stage of the Game.

Not scrambled eggs, but scram egg-prices may be the result of present endeavor of a big San Fran cisco packer, Fred L. Hilmer, to tain the market at a figure he arbitrarily fixed by contract eggs continue to pour in from Orient and shipments from the are increased to any great extent bottom is expected to fall out of basket in which Hilmer is his immense storage stock.

Early this season he signed with the association of Petaluma producers to take all the eggs could furnish at 21 cents a dozen matter how much lower the might go. This price did not the cost of crates and packing figures the quotation on the basis at 23 cents. Ever since the ginning of this month, and even to that time, Petaluma eggs been arriving in Los Angeles have been diverted to the local storage plants.

One of the reasons for the ing firmness in eggs has been the tablishment of a fixed price the year. There is a serious in the minds of local dealers whether it will be possible to anything on eggs which at this cost practically 24 cents a dozen ticularly with the increase production and still more so with heavy importation of hen fruit China. The past week has this innovation.

Chinese eggs can be purchased that country for about 4 dozen. The cost of sorting and shipping runs their cost than 8 cents laid down in San cisco, according to reports United States Consuls in China would mean storage eggs through winter at less than the cost eggs in the spring months ultimately prove a staggering American storage stock on the Pa cific Coast.

PENNANT RACER OFF THE WAYS.

Sloop Vite Launched After Pretty Ceremonial.

Harbor Craft With Sirens Greet Trim Yacht.

Society Miss Dashes Wine on Coppered Prow.

About the time the crowd was trekking in from the four points of the compass and Wilmington was fast assuming the appearance of a cosmopolitan city, one of the prettiest ceremonies of the day was enacted.

Directly in front of the Fellows [illegible] was a beautiful, shapely [illegible] that seemed strangely out of place.

It sat high in the air on a sort of [illegible] that resembled nothing in the world so much as the breastbone of a chicken. Above it spread in beautiful [illegible] spars and white sails and gleaming brass work. Along its deck, [illegible] ten feet from the wharf, [illegible] a number of dainty young ladies, [illegible] in middy blouses, wide blue skirts and rakish sailor hats.

Suddenly, a black-eyed young lady all in white, with a brilliant splash of red around her girdle and flowers of the same hue nestled in her hair, ascended to a wide plank against which stood the razor-like prow. She [illegible] in her right hand a bottle of real California champagne, from the neck of which was draped a green [illegible].

The bands began to play. A score of [illegible] vessels, laden to the guard [illegible] with dainty young ladies and [illegible] seamen-for-the-day gentlemen, [illegible] in the sunlit waters of the harbor. Then they turned loose their sirens and whistles. Even the motor boats began to honk with their [illegible].

A powerful man from the Fellows [illegible] approached the side of the shapely object and with a maul pounded away at a wedge.

As the first movement was apparent the young lady in white and red struck the bottle of champagne sturdily against the razorlike prow and said these words:

"I christen thee Vite."

The beautiful sloop slid slowly down the ways and nestled confidently on the waters of Los Angeles harbor.

It was the new sloop-rigged Vite, which has been built by the Fellows Boat Company for Ben P. Weston of No. 2219 Seventh avenue, Los Angeles, and which is expected to bring to Rear-Commodore Weston of the South Coast Yacht Club the much-coveted blue pennant for the speediest sailing sloop in these waters.

Miss Velma Davisson of Los Angeles christened the craft. On deck with Rear-Commodore Weston at the time of the launching were the Misses Helen and Katherine Stafford.

Rear-Commodore Weston immediately spread sail and slowly the graceful sloop heeled over and gained headway as it started down the long channel through the city of San Pedro to the outer harbor, where the owner longed to test the speed of his boat.

The sloop was completed for Weston at a cost of $3000 and has been building since January 1. He confidently expects to take the speed championship of the club before the spring regattas are over.

SUPREME COURT COMING.

April Term to Open Tomorrow. Full Calendar, Including Three Murderers' Appeals.

The April term of the California Supreme Court will convene at its chambers in the Bullard block tomorrow and remain in session until Monday, April 20, with the exception of Saturday, with Chief Justice Beatty and Justices Henshaw, Angelotti, Shaw, Lorigan, Sloss and Melvin.

Monday will be devoted to various motions affecting pending cases, and on Tuesday and Wednesday the court will sit in bank, during the balance of the semi-annual session, dividing into two departments. Department No. 1 will be presided over by Justice Angelotti, and consist of the presiding justice and Justices Shaw and Sloss; department No. 2 will be presided over by Justice Henshaw, and consist of the presiding justice and Justices Lorigan and Melvin.

There are fifty-seven cases on the calendar to be disposed of in addition to the motions that are not on the printed calendar.

The appeals of three convicted Los Angeles murderers, Lewis Andrew Larson, Burr L. Harris and John Bostick, will be before the court Tuesday.

Another phase of the litigation involving the affairs of the California Development Company, continued from the last Los Angeles bank calendar, with the Title Insurance and Trust Company against the California Development Company, the Southern Pacific Company and Compania de Terrenos y Agua de la Baja California, defendants, and Boaz Duncan, intervenor, will come before the court in bank Tuesday.

The celebrated tide-lands suit will again appear in the Supreme Court Tuesday in three cases, involving title to harbor land at San Pedro, upon which rehearings have been ordered by the court. They are the people against the Southern Pacific Railway Company and San Pedro Lumber Company; the same against the Banning Company and Kerckhoff-Cuzner M. & L. Company; and the third case with the same title as the second, but covering different property. The City of Los Angeles is interested in but a small piece of land covered by these cases.

On Wednesday the divorce case of Hazel M. Keating against Edward Keating, on appeal from the judgment of Superior Court Judge Church, will be up for argument. In the Superior Court a judgment gave Mrs. Keating a divorce and liberal alimony. Mrs. Vinette Lohman appears as co-respondent in the case.

DELAY MOVE FOR STATE BUILDING.

City and County Money Not Behind the Project.

Civic Bodies' Committee to Make Final Appeal.

Ask Funds for Expense of Initiative Petition.

Members of the joint committee appointed by practically all the civic organizations of Los Angeles, including the Chamber of Commerce, Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, Los Angeles Realty Board, City Club, N.E.W. Commercial and Development Association, Los Angeles Bar Association, Federated Improvement Association, Associated Banks of Los Angeles and others, are greatly worried because the City Council and the Board of Supervisors have so far failed to provide funds for the circulation of an initiative petition for a State building for this city, to cost $1,250,000.

A subcommittee of the joint committee will appear before the finance committees of the Council and the Supervisors this morning, in a final appeal for $5000 needed. This subcommittee, composed of Sidney L. Briggs, chairman; Joseph Mesmer, A. P. Will, W. E. Bush, Phillip D. Wilson and B. F. Groves, has been a number of times before the finance committees in the past few weeks.

One result of the hearings has been that the Finance Committee of the Council, composed of F. J. Whiffen, chairman; J. S. Conwell, and George Williams, and a committee representing the Board of Supervisors, composed of Supervisors Norton, Woodley and Manning, have held up the entire proposition on account of the proposed city and county consolidation measure and have made the State building project a secondary consideration so that, as has been stated, "it probably will be allowed to float along in the consolidation campaign as a joint issue."

FEAR CONTROVERSY.

Members of the joint committee feel that a long controversy over the city and county consolidation, involving the old fight between San Francisco and Oakland, will result, that the State building project, which is an entirely separate and distinct proposition, will suffer tremendously by reason of being coupled with the consolidation measure and that the time will elapse before the initiative measure for the State building can be circulated.

San Francisco already has a site for a State building, and will ask for $1,000,000 for a building alone. Sacramento has asked for $3,000,000 for State buildings. These two cities already have their propositions on the ballot and will not be compelled to circulate initiative petitions as will Los Angeles.

It has been pointed out to the members of the Board of Supervisors and the City Council that unless an initiative petition is invoked at this time and the State building proposition placed on the ballot, the city of Los Angeles will probably never have another opportunity to secure such a building, because the voters of the north, if they are able to carry the measures favoring San Francisco and Sacramento, may become apathetic at any future election.

Again, it has been pointed out by the joint committee that a State building is necessary for this city in order to house the Supreme Courts and various State offices, now scattered throughout the city, in many cases paying high rentals. Also, it is held that the money for the initiative petition should come from the taxpayers, as a whole, and not from a few individuals, who are continually called upon to subscribe to other funds.

QUESTION OF LEGALITY.

Members of the City Council and Board of Supervisors have unofficially stated that they "might" provide a fund for the circulation of the city and county consolidation initiative measure, but they doubted the legality of being able to provide the money for the State building initiative measure. Members of the joint committee state that this is a matter of splitting hairs and point to the fact that in the past the Ciy Council provided all of the funds necessary for the entire campaign for the consolidation of San Pedro, Los Angeles and Wilmington; also that the City Council gave $5000 several years ago for the purpose of bringing the Municipal League convention to this city and that the Council provides funds for Fourth of July celebrations.

The joint committee has asked $3000 from the Board of Supervisors and $2000 from the City Council, and that some city or county official shall handle the money. If the work can be done for less than $5000, the remainder of the fund will be turned back to the city and county.

CREDITORS FORCE ACTION.

Two Involuntary Bankruptcy Petitions Filed in U. S. Court Involve Small Sums.

Involuntary petitions in bankruptcy against F. G. Kahn and the American Auto Supply Company were filed in the United States District Court yesterday.

In the first case the petitioning creditors are A. Shirek & Sons, Louis Strauss and C. H. Smith Company, and it is alleged that Kahn committed an act of bankruptcy in making an assignment to F. C. Delano, March 9.

The claims against the American Auto Supply Company are held by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company and the New York Lubricating Oil Company, the total being $2508.16.

Frank L. Johnson and E. G. Hitchcock of Bakersfield filed petitions in bankruptcy. Johnson owes $330.52, and his assets are $197; Hitchcock has liabilities amounting to $1150 and assets of $5050, of which $1500 is claimed as exempt.

SIMPLE WAY TO END DANDRUFF
Stop Falling Hair and Itching Scalp.
There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need,) apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips. By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.
You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.
If you value your hair, you should get rid of dandruff at once, for nothing destroys the hair so quickly. It not only starves the hair and makes it fall out, but it makes it stringy, straggly, dull, dry, brittle and lifeless, and everybody notices it.

How to Tell if You Need Fruitola
Read These Symptoms and Have No Hesitation in Trying a Bottle.
It is an old proverb that trouble follows when doctors disagree. And yet they often disagree. In such circumstances, where one cannot decide which doctor is right, or if any of them are, it is best to take the situation in your own hands and do what seems best to you. In this connection, a very perplexing form of ailment is that which often afflicts the liver. The bile hardens into stones and forms in the gall bladder. The result is excruciating pain on the margin of the ribs on the right side, and frequently over the shoulders and abdomen. There may be vomiting and chills and fever. If not promptly corrected jaundice may follow in two or three days.
That was the situation with Mrs. J. D. Fuller of No. 104 West Ninetieth street, New York City, but some doctors told her she was suffering from "nerves" and others from gall stones. Not knowing which was correct she took the advice of a friend who recommended Fruitola, the reliable California remedy recommended for just such symptoms. She procured a bottle from her druggist and took the contents at one dose, which is the way to take Fruitola. She writes a detailed letter describing what she passed and how well she feels now after her thorough cleaning out. The main point is that Mrs. Fuller is entirely well today and she is positive in her assertion that she owes it to Fruitola. Many others who have taken it will say the same.
This unusual remedy is prepared only by the Pinus Medicine Company, Monticello, Ill., for whom this is published, and can be obtained at any drug store; but, as with all good things, there are imitations, and it is important that you ask for Fruitola and see that you get it. It is the original and time-tried remedy for these purposes.

SCROFULA ALL OVER BOY'S BODY

Around Mouth, Ears, Eyes, Arms and Legs. Big, Dry, Leathery Blotches. Always Angry Red. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

Plummer, Idaho.—"My boy broke out with sores all over his body. It was called scrofula. It seemed to be mostly around his mouth, ears and just above his eyes, then on his little arms and legs. As it went along it got to be dry mattery sores and they left big dry leathery blotches just such as a big burn would make, always angry red. He would try and scratch himself and then it would leave big dry scabs and be burning and red. We had to keep him wrapped up in soft linen on account of the irritation. He was very fretful, more so at night.

"I tried all kinds of powders and washes, also did all I was told and it would only relieve him a short while and come right back again. He was about eleven months old when I first got the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I bathed him twice a day, used the Cuticura Soap freely, patted him dry, then used the Cuticura Ointment. After the second day I noticed he was not so fretful so I began to hope. We began to sleep at night. By the time he was eighteen months old all blemishes had disappeared and he was cured." (Signed) Mrs. C. M. Davis, Aug. 19, 1913.

To allay itching and irritation of the scalp, prevent dry, thin and falling hair and remove crusts, scales and dandruff, Cuticura Soap and Ointment are most effective, agreeable and economical. Sold throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

☞Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

JUST A BIT OF FUN WITH LOS ANGELES.

American Humorist Going Around the World for "Leslie's Weekly" Finds Us So Big on the Map He Shows Us Happy Attention—Cafeterias, Wall Beds and Handy Apartments Impress Him.

BY HOMER CROY.

ALL my life I had heard of Los Angeles and had wanted to go there, so I was tickled recently when things fell out so that I could live for a while in the city whose name no two residents pronounce alike.

The city had struggled along for years, the citizens calling it whatever they liked, when all of a sudden a few weeks ago a great pronouncing wave swept over the city, completely inundating communities and separating families that differed on one of the syllables. Members of families that had stood as one on every question for years, suddenly found themselves using separate reading lamps and going to meals at different hours.

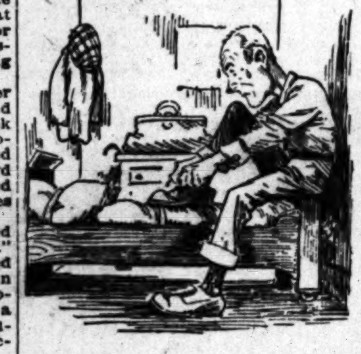
The controversy became so bitter that the public school board employed one of the teachers of Spanish to look up the way the old Spaniards pronounced it and report. They liked her version of it so well that the board has ordered 100 photographs installed in the public schools of Los Angeles pronouncing it: "Loce Ahn-hel-ess."

The "Los" is not pronounced "Loss;" there is a "c" in it—"Loce." In Spanish, when the "g" is followed by a vowel, it is pronounced like an "h," so the middle syllable is pronounced as though it might be a place with two l's, while the last syllable is given a double s sound—according to the school board.

But The Times has an entirely different way of twisting the tongue. Every morning on the editorial page it has a key for pronouncing it: "Loce Ahng-hayl-ais."

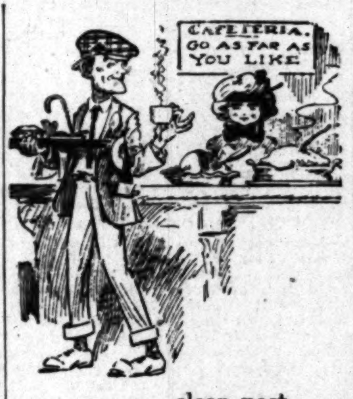
The Times has another technique for the last syllable. So it goes—no two people in the city agreeing as to how the name should be handled. But the people in Los Angeles don't care—so long as you are talking about Los Angeles and not about San Francisco.

If you want to get in strong with the Los Angeles people all you have to do is to tell them what a disappointment San Francisco was to you.



Los Angeles apartment,

As Homer Croy sees them. He says each consists of a room and a telephone number.



CAFETERIA. GO AS FAR AS YOU LIKE

Always clear past

All the dishes before he noticed what was on the counter.

They don't have any use for San Francisco; they are sorry that they have to use the same ocean. Los Angeles people don't knock the city that is to have the exposition, but if a traveler says that he likes San Francisco best, a hush falls and slowly they pick up the papers they have thrown aside and become absorbed in the foreign news.

San Francisco is proud of its climate, while Los Angeles won't even admit that San Francisco has any climate. To hear a Los Angeles native talk you would think that San Francisco had to go for months at a time without any climate and that Los Angeles just gave them the use of it on Thursday afternoons.

IN THE CAFETERIAS.

The principal diversion of Los Angeles people is eating in cafeterias. I didn't know anything about cafeterias until I got to Los Angeles and acted as my own waiter and messenger boy. You walk down the aisle to where there is a stack of trays, take one and then pick up a napkin. In this are rolled a knife, a fork and a couple of spoons. You fall into line, sliding your tray along the railing and picking out the things that you yearn for most.

They have the prettiest girls behind the dishes! The managers seem to have searched everywhere to get the prettiest they could find, but I don't see where they come out ahead on it. I was always clear past the dishes, away down at the end of the line, before I would notice what was on the counter. But that is my favorite way of going hungry.

Even when they have boys and you look along the dishes carefully, you always discover when you get down at the end of the line that there is something that you want back at the beginning and that there are a dozen people between you and the dish.

You get a plate of soup here, run over to Hollywood for asparagus, then trot back to town for a plate of prunes. By the time your tray is filled you are weary and travel-stained. You try to hurry on, but there is always a thick, heavy-set man in front of you who is trying to buy them out. After the thick, heavy-set man has laid in his summer stock, you slide your tray along till you come to a girl sitting behind a pile of chips. She keeps staring at your tray till you begin to wonder where she was raised, when she hands you a slip of what you owe. This is to be paid as you go out. It always ends in odd cents—never in 5 or 10. A person always thinks that he is geting off more cheaply when it ends in 9.

Placing the tray on your fifth rib, you stagger down the aisle hunting a table. But the tables are always full. You keep on walking and walking, passing table after table until at last you spy a vacant place.. You make for it, but just as you get there a school-teacher sits down in it and heaves a profound sigh. You feel like heaving something, too, but your good breeding makes you keep it on your fifth rib.

FIFTH RIB.

You can tell a native of Los Angeles by his prominent fifth rib, either on the left or right side, depending on whether he's right or left-handed. It has the prominent lines of a pantry shelf, and the third button of a person's coat who has lived for more than three weeks the first station this side of San Pedro hangs on limply with a worried expression around its eyes, as if it could not much longer stand the strain.

You pay at the door coming out and on every pay counter is a bowl of chewing gum—1 cent each—each package with the darlingest frizzled ends. If you go by without taking one, it shows that you have not been there long, that's all. When you meet a person on the street in Los Angeles you don't have to ask him if he has been to lunch; all you have to do is to watch if he is using a soluble toothpick. When you are around Los Angeles you begin to understand why so many people in the chewing gum business own country homes; when California cafeterias go out of fashion, the chewing gum makers will have to do without water on their top floors and go to mowing their own yards.

The cafeteria followers all belong to the same lodge! you can see their pin on their lapels—a spot of soup and a bean joint. The cafeteria hailing sign consists of putting the elbows against the hips and holding out the hands, palms up, as if just relieved of a tray. The capital of California is Cafeteria, and the coat of arms is a string bean rampant and a cake of chewing gum couchant, having for a background the silhouette of a tray, lightly worked into a napkin flowered with prunes.

METERLESS TAXI.

It delights a New Yorker's heart when he gets into a Los Angeles taxicab, for he quickly notes that there isn't any meter on the cab. He thinks: "Now is the time I'll have some money left when I get there," and nestles back against the cushions, happy and content. It's such a pleasure to ride in a machine that hasn't a worrying finger that jumps higher and higher every time the wheels go around.

Just as you are wishing that she lived a couple of miles farther out, the driver brings up before her number and helps you out. In a light, care-free way you ask him how much it is, plainly showing by your jovial manner that you're going to remember him.

The chauffeur pulls out his watch and points his finger around the face several times, all the time moving his lips in the intricacies of a calculation. Then the driver counts off on his thumb with his fingers and says, "Seven dollars, sir"—a third more than the New York rate would be. The smile slides off your face and you wish that your girl wasn't along so that you could say what is stirring in your heart for utterance about the low order of intellect that is driving the taxi. A fellow can't help wishing that he was back in New York where they have a machine to watch the chauffeur, and where the driver is a kind, considerate gentleman forced by circumstances to get out and earn a living by driving a vehicle that is for public hire.

When a fellow gets upstairs, he isn't in a very good mood for his folding bed—for that is the kind they have out there. The city is overrun with them. A person isn't received in good society unless he can refer in an off-hand manner to his folding bed. New York apartments are much smaller, but in the East the disappearing bed craze hasn't yet fastened its talons on the old four-poster and dropped it into the ash barrel of oblivion. In New York the bed has an Indian rug thrown over it during the day, so that it looks like a lounge, but at night the ornamental blanket is peeled back—and there is the bed beckoning with outstretched arms!

But in Los Angeles the bed is secreted in the wall during the daytime and at night a knob on the wall is pulled and lo! there is the bed in the room.

In Los Angeles they have two kinds of beds that spend their day in the wall, coming out only at night when the blinds are drawn. During the day all that you can see of one kind is a glass knob, but when bed-time comes, if you will give the glass knob a pull the whole wall, mirror and all, will turn around, and there is a fully developed bed at your service.

For the other kind of bed there isn't any glass knob and mirror; the other kind looks as though it was a drawer in the wall, but if you will take hold of the two handles and give it a pull, a bundle will come rolling out. Let this down and you have a place to spend the night.

OUR APARTMENTS.

A Los Angeles apartment consists of a room and a telephone number. You wonder how a person can carry on all the duties of housekeeping in one room; but when you give one of the glass knobs a pull, a folding bathtub comes out of the wall, and when you take hold of another knob there is a gas stove all tucked away in the plastering. A few tugs at glass knobs and the table is set; another tug and the dishes are out of sight; another tug and a Japanese boy comes and washes them.

The Los Angeles apartments are so small that when the bed is let down it's hard to keep from brushing the pictures off the wall; and when a relative from the country comes with a telescope, one of the children has to spend the evening with a friend.

But Los Angeles people don't mind it; they'd rather have an apartment where the bed scratched two walls and have their climate than a ranch in Texas, where after opening the gate you have to lay in a fresh supply of gasoline to get to the front porch, and where climate is a subject to be shunned. To hear Los Angeles citizens talking, you get the idea that climate is an exclusive product with them. Before you get through shaking hands with them and talking about the road you came in over, they will explain that their city has the most carefully assorted climate in the world, and that the kind used by San Francisco is only a base imitation with no chances whatever to pass the Pure Food and Drug Act. In a few minutes a stranger begins to feel like apologizing for the kind of climate that he has been using and asks how much the first payment is and if orange trees really bear the third year.

ORANGE DREAMS.

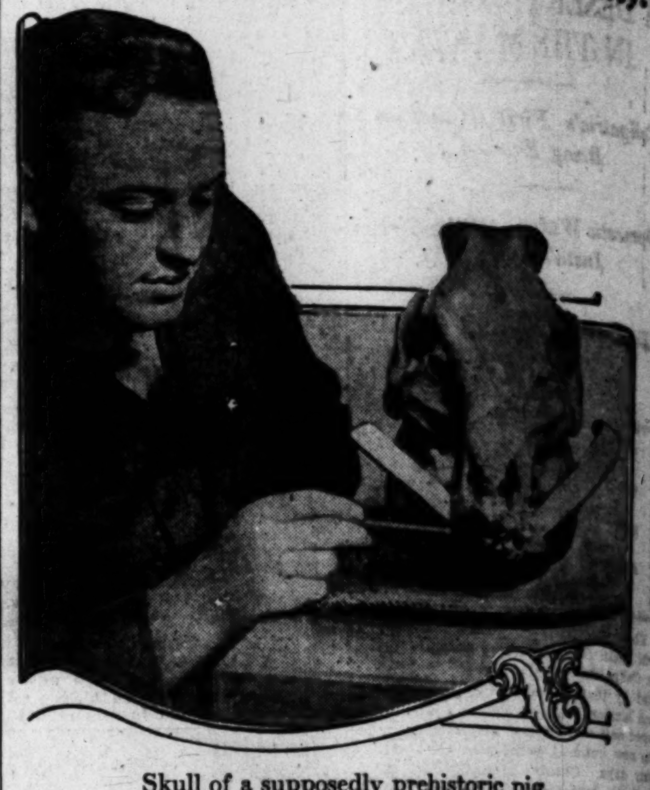
Before going to Los Angeles I had always dreamed about sitting on the front porch, helping myself to the oranges in the yard and throwing the peels into the hollyhocks, but when I got there I found that they keep all the orange trees outside the city limits. I had dreamed that I would slip out to one of the groves and pick up a few bushels, which the kind-hearted owner would give to me with a merry wave of the hand, but this dream was blighted when I found that after oranges fall on the ground they aren't any good. After they have lain for a while they become bitter and poisonous. In fact, the blight seemed to have got about all that orange dreams.

Another dream of mine about oranges was that I would go out into the country to an orange grove and sit around among the leafy trees, eating and eating until I would shudder at sight of an orange, but this dream had fungus on it, too. One day I did go out into the country and found the orange orchard just as I had planned, but things did not come out the way I had dreamed. There were oranges everywhere and I began putting them all in one place. I began to make up for all the years I had lost in eating oranges. I was trying to crowd several years into a few minutes and one stomach. Pretty soon I began to feel just a bit queer, but I kept on making up for lost years.

I started to lean back in contentment, just as I had dreamed, but a vague uneasiness stole over me down where I was keeping time. It began to clamor for more and more attention. I took it into my arms and tried to soothe it, but I could not bring it a crumb of comfort. It did not care for crumbs. It seemed more anxious for water, but even this did not bring it happiness. All afternoon I stayed with it in its misery, thinking how many good times I had had when I was a boy and had only a nickel to spend on fruit.

At last peace and quiet stole over where I had put the oranges, and I went back to town, telling myself that there are some drawbacks in California that the natives don't tell about.

When Wild Boars Lived in the Valley.



Skull of a supposedly prehistoric pig,

Dug up by a tractor plow on the C. & M. Ranch in Imperial Valley. Indicating one of the ten-inch tusks is H. L. Loud of the Imperial Valley Information Bureau, in the Central building.

An Old 'Un.

HE ROOTED AND GRUNTED WHEN EARTH WAS YOUNG.

THAT California was at one time the home of almost every known kind of animal has received further proof by the discovery of the skull and other portions of the skeleton of an immense wild boar in Imperial Valley. The skull with its ten-inch tusks arrived in Los Angeles yesterday and was placed in the windows of the Imperial Valley Information Bureau in the Central building, where it has attracted much attention.

The find was made on the California-Mexico Land and Cattle Company's ranch, one of the great tractor plows having brought the skull to the surface, while preparing the ground for a cotton field. Walter K. Bowker, manager of the ranch, shipped it immediately to Harry G. Holabird, encased in cotton right off the [illegible] One tusk of the great pig lacks just a fraction of ten inches in length, while the other is broken off at the tip.

Much interest has been aroused as to the age of the beast, for the reason that at the present time, or for many years past, there is no hunter who has knowledge of the existence of wild boars in this section of the world. Their usual habitat is Continental Europe, Asia Minor and some parts of Africa. Archaelogists will be invited to make an inspection and a report. It is possible that the trove belongs to the Pleistocene period and is in a class with the animals found in the oil pits at La Brea.

Two Men Arrested, Suspected of Burglary, Have Pictures in Rogues' Gallery—Election Candidates.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SIERRA MADRE, April 11.—Word has been received by the authorities here that the two men picked up by Deputy Marshal George Cox on suspicion are old offenders. Their pictures appear in the rogues' gallery of some of the northern cities. It is alleged that John Conley, the younger man, was arrested and served a term at Harvre, Mont., for the theft of a suit case. His partner, Steve [illegible]ansky, served a term for robbery at Fargo, N. D.

Officer Cox, who arrested the men during the flower-festival week, could not connect them with the [illegible] that had been entered, but they were held on a vagrancy charge by Recorder Perry and are now serving a short sentence in the County Jail.

For the election on Monday for City Trustees another candidate has appeared in the person of Louis Dietz. Owing to a misinterpretation of the recent law governing elections in municipalities Dietz failed to get his name on the ballot. His friends have rallied to his support and it is believed he will poll a large vote in spite of the fact his name will have to be written in.

Dietz has been a resident of the community for more than seven years and is a large property owner. The other candidates for this office are J. M. Beard, [illegible] W. Tarr and L. F. Steinberger. Three Trustees are to be elected.

And so on for any intermediate or greater amount.

No sum will be refunded in any case in excess of the buyer's ACTUAL OUTLAY FOR TRANSPORTATION to Los Angeles and return, and entries on transportation checks will be limited to the amount of cash paid at time transaction is made.

Important to Visiting Buyers

When you have purchased your goods from the first merchant, ask him to enter the sale on a transportation check. He will do so and give you the check, on which you will have recorded any subsequent purchases you may make in other FREE FARE STORES.

When your shopping is finished, present this check at the refunding office, The Los Angeles Times (First and Broadway) and they will cash it without red tape, delay, or formalities. They will refund the full amount of your round trip fare if your purchases are sufficient; and if not, the percentage to which you are entitled.

The Los Angeles market offers an assortment of merchandise at all times equal in extent and variety to all possible demands of all classes of buyers. Los Angeles merchandise is suited to the special requirements of the people living in Southern California, Arizona and New Mexico. It is sold at prices, quality for quality, at least as low, and in many cases lower, than the same class of goods can be obtained from any other available source of supply. The visiting buyer in Los Angeles will be treated in such a way that he will come again. He will see and examine the merchandise before parting with his money, and a responsible local dealer will be answerable for its quality. The visitor will be considered as under the protection of the merchants whose names appear in this advertisement, and each one of them will see that his visit is made both pleasant and profitable. Moreover, each merchant will be as much interested in protecting the interests of the visiting buyer while he or she is in Los Angeles as the visitor himself could possibly be.

How to Darken Gray Hair

By a Specialist.

A very satisfactory preparation which darkens gray hair and acts as a corrective agent for danruff and other diseases of the scalp can be made at small expense and in your own home by dissolving a small box of Barbo Compound in 7 ounces of water and then adding an ounce of bay rum and a quarter ounce of glycerine. Any drug store can furnish these ingredients. This is to be applied once a week until the hair is sufficiently darkened, then every two weeks to keep the hair soft and glossy and the scalp in a healthy condition. It may be used with equal success in darkening the beard. This is a preparation that gives splendid results, both as a hair darkener and a remedy for all scalp disorders, and is well worthy of a trial. You will find it far superior to the ordinary store preparations and much less expensive.—[Advertisement.

FRECKLE-FACE

Sun and Wind Bring Out Ugly Spots. How to Remove Easily.

Here's a chance, Miss Freckle-face, to try a remedy for freckles with the guarantee of a reliable dealer that it will not cost you a penny unless it removes the freckles; while if it does give you a clear complexion the expense is trifling.

Simply get an ounce of othine—double strength from any druggist and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of the homely freckles and get a beautiful complexion. Rarely is more than one ounce needed for the worst case.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine as this is the prescription sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.—[Advertisement.

eating and eating until I would shudder at sight of an orange, but this dream had fungus on it, too. One day I did go out into the country and found the orange orchard just as I had planned, but things did not come out the way I had dreamed. There were oranges everywhere and I began putting them all in one place. I began to make up for all the years I had lost in eating oranges. I was trying to crowd several years into a few minutes and one stomach. Pretty soon I began to feel just a bit queer, but I kept on making up for lost years.

I started to lean back in contentment, just as I had dreamed, but a vague uneasiness stole over me down where I was keeping time. It began to clamor for more and more attention. I took it into my arms and tried to soothe it, but I could not bring it a crumb of comfort. It did not care for crumbs. It seemed more anxious for water, but even this did not bring it happiness. All afternoon I stayed with it in its misery, thinking how many good times I had had when I was a boy and had only a nickel to spend on fruit.

At last peace and quiet stole over where I had put the oranges, and I went back to town, telling myself that there are some drawbacks to California that the natives don't talk about.

A DESERT CITY IN THE MAKING.

Calipatria's First Buildings Being Erected.

Domestic Water System to Be Installed Soon.

Likened to El Centro by Valley Residents.

> "I am the Desert, bare since Time began,
> Yet do I dream of motherhood when Man
> Some day at last shall look upon my charms
> And give me towns like children to my arms."

The Kerckhoff-Cuzner Company will begin the erection of a building in Calipatria tomorrow, to be occupied by themselves in the hardware and lumber business. They have secured half a block and expect to have the new building completed in about [illegible] days. Charles Douglas, Jr., of El Centro will begin the construction this week of a brick store and office building on four lots at Central avenue and Main streets. Part of the building will be occupied by Carl F. [illegible], owner of the townsite, and [illegible] & Dool, general sales agents for the 47,000 acres of land purchased from the Southern Pacific Company by the Imperial Valley Farmlands Association.

The Calipatria Hardware and Lumber Company has leased a site for a lumber yard from the Southern Pacific and has applied for four lots [illegible] upon which they will construct an office building. The Southern Pacific Company has an agent at Calipatria and the Western Union Telegraph Company has an operator there.

[illegible] Hazard, president of the [illegible]-Gould Company of San Diego, has closed a deal whereby he will operate the domestic water service for Calipatria and will begin at once to install a system. The water will be taken from the main canal [illegible] above the town and as the fall is [illegible] feet, there will be good gravity pressure.

Imperial Valley people are likening Calipatria to El Centro for it is beginning in almost the same way. [illegible] years ago visitors to El Centro were amazed to observe long rows of substantial brick buildings, a [illegible] two-story brick hotel, a fine [illegible] and other substantial buildings in process of construction before the town had begun to acquire population.

There were no houses, except a few [illegible] and tents, yet an army of workers was building a solid, permanent city. Although there were no people, the rich land was there. W. F. Holt, who believed in Imperial Valley and its future then and saw ahead so well that he, perhaps alone of all the pioneer residents, has been not at all surprised at the wonderful growth and development of the valley and of its [illegible]

[illegible] was unmoved by the many discouraging remarks of men, who saw only the barren stretches of land and the fewness of the people. The land was there, richer and better than any other land anywhere. People would come, he said, and they will need a city and places to live and in which to do business. So he went ahead on the basis that El Centro would inevitably become an important city and erected his buildings. He built twenty-four brick business buildings in addition to the operahouse and other buildings before there were people enough to occupy a third of them.

Before the finishing touches had been put on these buildings, the people began to come and all the storerooms were filled. Other buildings were erected, and these, too, were filled. Now El Centro is a substantial little city of about 6000 inhabitants with an appearance of prosperity that impresses every visitor.

[illegible], like Holt, is confident that Imperial Valley will grow and expand until its products are many times as much as they are now. "Calipatria is immediately surrounded by a tract of land seventeen miles long by nine miles wide that is as good or better than any in the whole valley," he said last night. "It is going to be thickly settled very soon. People are going where they can make money and no land anywhere on earth can make a fortune for a man as quickly as that in Imperial Valley.

"Where the people are, there will be business. The men who are preparing to build expensive brick buildings know this and that is why Calipatria is starting out so substantially."

Calipatria is the newest of the Imperial Valley towns and is located on the Imperial Valley branch of the Southern Pacific Railroad midway between Niland and Brawley, being ten miles from either. As a postoffice, it was known as Bernice, but this has been changed to Calipatria.

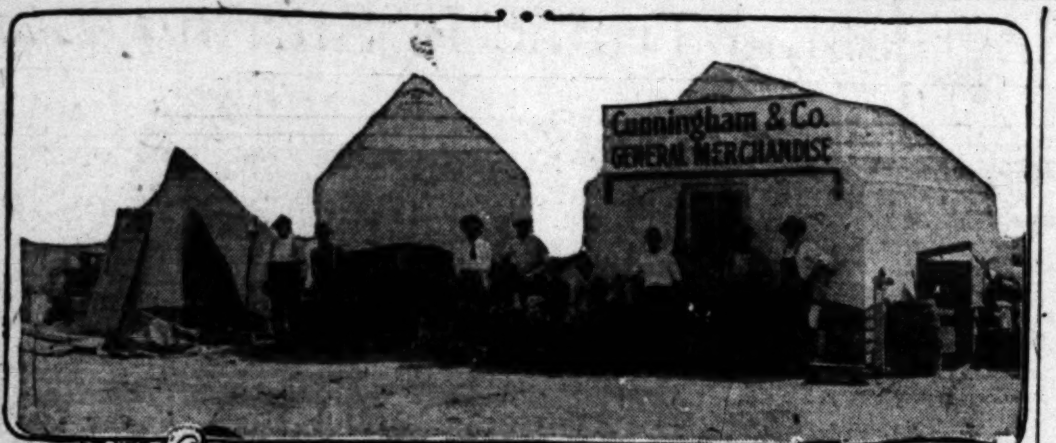
LIBRARY PLANS.

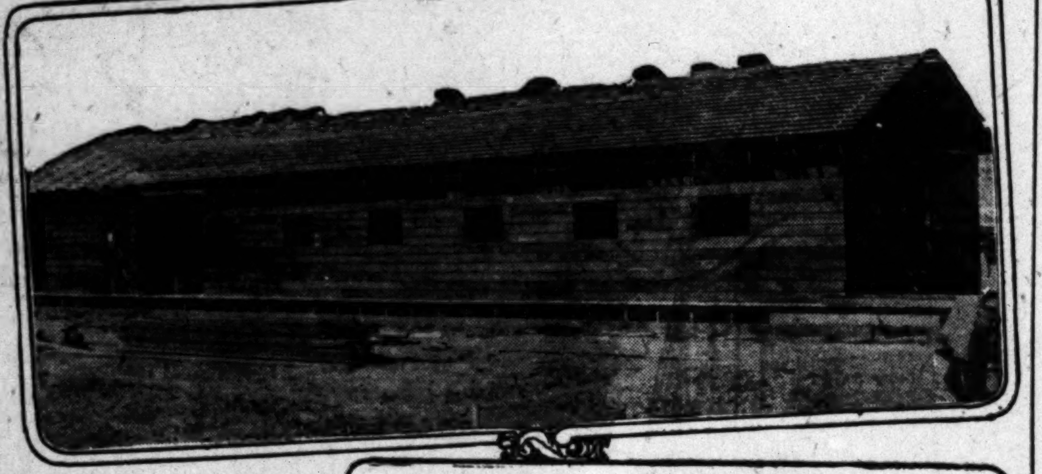
[illegible] Ready for Contracts on Two [illegible] Buildings When City Gives [illegible]

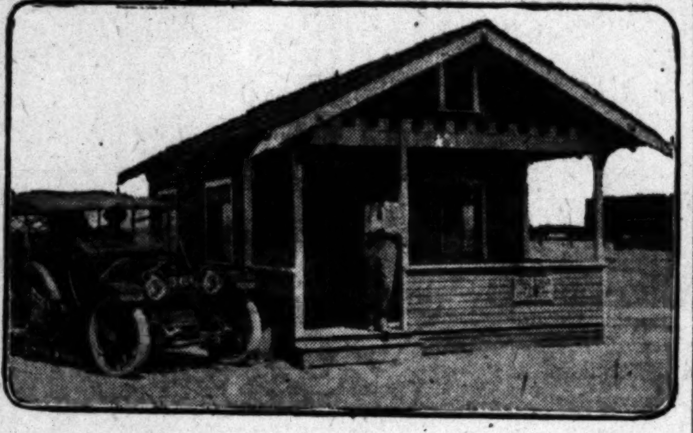
[illegible] for two of the Carnegie [illegible] buildings of the Los Angeles [illegible] Library are to be pushed to completion, according to a statement made yesterday by the library authorities.

The red tape of legally securing the sites for the Boyle Heights and Central branch libraries has not been fully unwound at the City Hall, although it is nearly two years since the first steps were taken. The Library Board has decided to get the plans ready, so that contracts may be let as soon as the City Hall gives the word that the lots have been turned over to the Library Board.

At the last meeting of the Library Board, Miss Jasmine Britton of the Los Angeles Public Library was appointed head of the juvenile department of the library. The position has been vacant since January 1, when Miss Stella [illegible] resigned to take up work in the high school libraries. Miss Britton was chosen by unanimous vote. She is a graduate of the "Training School for Children's Librarians at [illegible] and has made an exceptional record in building up the work with children in Spokane. She was also a member of the Seattle Public







Here's the beginning of Calipatria.

First buildings put up in the new Imperial Valley town which is located in the heart of a rich agricultural district. The upper picture is the first department store in temporary quarters. The tents will soon be replaced by a substantial brick building. In the middle is Calipatria's first hotel, and below is Schader's temporary office.

POLITICAL TIPS.

Mr. Bryan, the Commoner, the friend of the people, who cannot live on his official salary, is now asking Congress to furnish him a footman. Other Secretaries of State have been able to do without this additional salaried appendage of the Secretary's establishmets. He explains that they used employees of the State Department, but if they did there was no increased salary, while Mr. Bryan, the Commoner, wants to add the salary of a footman to the other salaries of his department. Another instance of how Democratic simplicity and economy have been lost sight of by the present administration.

The comparative dignity of the members of the Senate and of the House appears in the appropriation bill providing for baths and bathing attendants for the members of both branches of Congress. The 433 members of the House have to get along with only $2200 worth of baths for the year as compared with $4000 worth for the 96 Senators. When during the debate on the appropriation bill Representative Bryan of Washington asked if it was more expensive to wash a Senator than a Representative, he got merely a laugh.

Kansas City, Mo., is evidently tired of electing politicians to the city government and is determined to have a business administration. Of the thirty names on the Republican ticket, nineteen are business men and six are lawyers. Nearly all of them are making their first run for office.

The selection of the several cities for the regional banks has resulted in the expected amount of dissatisfaction and intimations of political influence. The choice of Richmond is credited to John Skelton Williams. New Orleans was left out because both Louisiana Senators voted against the tariff bill. Dallas, Tex., was saved by Postmaster-General Burleson. Atlanta had the support of both Georgia Senators. St. Louis and Kansas City, both in Missouri, got banks, so it is claimed, because Senator Reed (Dem.) resides in Kansas City and Senator Stone (Dem.,) senior United States Senator from Missouri, comes up for re-election this year. Also the Secretary of Agriculture resides in St. Louis. Other locations are still to be heard from.

When Mr. Bryan secured the appointment of Richard L. Metcalf, former editor of The Commoner, as a member of the Panama Canal Commission, he undoubtedly hoped that the President's choice for the governor of the Canal Zone would keep Mr. Metcalf as a permanent fixture. Instead of that, Mr. Metcalf has gone out of office with the assumption of the governorship by Col. Goethals and is reported on his way to Washington to see Mr. Bryan.

Representative Hobson was aided in his campaign for the United States Senate by a contribution of $1100 from the W.C.T.U. and $100 from Rev. "Billy" Sunday. Contributions of similar amounts were received by Representative Underwood from his father-in-law and his campaign manager. Mr. Underwood was elected, though his total expenditures were $1890 less than Mr. Hobson's.

The Pennsylvania Legislature, which has just adjourned, favorably passed three constitutional amendments—woman suffrage, changes in Assembly districts and easier methods of attiring the fundamental law of the State. They will have to be adopted by the next Legislature before the people can approve or reject them at the polls. A new Legislature will be elected next November.

In Utah the Democrats and Progressives are arranging a coalition, the matter to be settled at a State convention to be held next June.

Charles W. Bryan of Omaha, brother of William J. Bryan, the Commoner, is something of a boss himself. He has been demanding that the Democrats nominate a Progressive candidate for Governor, and has recently announced that his anxiety is so great that, in order to insure a Democrat of that class, he himself will accept the nomination. It is also said he has discouraged every other Progressive candidate who has offered himself. This certainly sounds Bryanish.

Washington shopkeepers are well convinced that President Wilson and his family have small interest in the promition of home industry. When the President's family have any shopping to do, they ride over to Baltimore, in the White House automobile, and make their purchases there. Miss Jessie Wilson's wedding trousseau was purchased in Baltimore and New York, and materials being wrought into wedding finery for Miss Eleanor Wilson have been purchased outside of Washington. The only Washington person, who profits by the White House weddings is the dressmaker who made many of Mrs. Sayre's gowns and is now busy with Miss Eleanor's.

OFFICERS FIGHT WOMAN GANGSTER

EXCITING FLIGHT LAST EVENT IN CHECKERED LIFE.

Gray-Haired Wife of Notorious Bank Robber Runs from Cottage When Police Approach and in Gun-Play Aids Escape of Her Man Companion.

Two policemen fighting with a gray-haired, benevolent-looking middle-aged woman at Vernon and Central avenues yesterday is the last dramatic incident in the life of Helen Nellie Wilson, notorious gangster, wife of half a dozen bank robbers, it is alleged, and most widely known as the wife of Jack Prince, the king of bank burglars, whose knowledge of locks was uncanny.

She was arrested by Policeman James Bean and Detective Armstrong yesterday, after a long chase, in which her work was typical of her life for twenty years, it is alleged.

Her aliases are legion. At least fifty of them are known to the police. The Nick Harris detectives, who accomplished the arrest, have a ream of papers containing incidents in her life. She was a comrade of Sophie Lyons, the most notorious of woman thieves and robbers.

She has been conducting a system of thefts from the local department stores, according to the Harris detectives, which involved a loss to local merchants of more than $1500 a month. These goods, it is charged, she shipped away to accomplices.

In a rose-wreathed bungalow at No. 638 West Thirty-ninth place, she was found yesterday by Police Detective James Bean of the University division and Detective Armstrong of the Harris agency. They approached the bungalow from the street and the woman, who was on a constant watch, saw the men coming and fled with a male companion.

As she fled, she left the house in charge of two women who were later arrested and released, as they proved that they had nothing in common with the woman.

With her escort, the woman withdrew from the house by a secret passage and escaped through the rear yard.

When they found that the woman has fled, Detectives Bean and Armstrong made a tour of the neighborhood and found her as she was securing a hat from an accomplice, who had met her at Vernon and Central avenues.

The police at once tried to arrest both Nellie Wilson and the man. One seized the woman. The man broke and ran and Detective Bean was about to draw his revolver and shoot when the woman seized his arm and interrupted the aim so that the other escaped.

At the Central Police Station Nellie Wilson refused to permit the identification bureau force to take her finger prints and was put in seclusion until more tractable.

She has been arrested previously on a charge of having stolen articles in a downtown store and secured her release on payment of $100, secured through her attorney, William Durham, from the notorious Jack Prince's mother, living at No. 638 West Thirty-ninth place.

WILL EXTOL JEFFERSON.

Collector of Internal Revenue Carter, having concluded lectures on the beauty of the income-tax law, will now sing the glories of Thomas Jefferson, the patron saint of Democracy, in a panegyric before the Jefferson Club of San Diego Monday night. Carter has little use for some of the politically eugenic fads of his party and will excite no surprise by airing his views on departures from the faith of the fathers. He left for San Diego yesterday.

Quick, Easy and Positive Cure for All Foot Torture

The following is absolutely the surest and quickest cure known to science for all foot ailments: "Dissolve two tablespoonfuls of Calocide compound in a basin of warm water. Soak the feet in this for fully fifteen minutes, gently rubbing the sore parts." The effect is really wonderful. All soreness goes instantly, and the feet feel delightful. Corns and callouses can be peeled right off. It gives immediate relief for sore bunions, sweaty, smelly and aching feet. A twenty-five cent box of Calocide is said to be sufficient to cure the worst feet. It works through the pores and removes the cause of the trouble. Don't waste time on uncertain remedies. Any druggist has Calocide compound in stock or he can get it in a few hours from his wholesale house. Prepared only by Medical Formula Co., of Chicago, Ill., and Dayton, Ohio.

The Magnetic Girl

HOW SHE COMPELS OTHERS TO OBEY HER WILL.

100,000 Copies of Remarkable Book Describing Peculiar Psychic Powers to Be Distributed Post Free to Readers of The Times.

"The wonderful power of Personal Influence, Magnetism, Fascination, Mind Control, call it what you will, can surely be acquired by everyone no matter how unattractive or unsuccessful," says Mr. Elmer Ellsworth Knowles, author of the new book entitled: "The Key to the Development of the Inner Forces." The book lays bare many astounding facts concerning the practices of the Eastern Yogis, and describes a simple, though effective system of controlling the thoughts and acts of others; how one may gain the love and friendship of those who might otherwise remain indifferent; how to quickly and accurately judge the character and disposition of an individual; how to cure the most obstinate diseases and habits without drugs or medicines; even the complex subject of projecting thoughts (telepathy) is explained. Miss Josephine Davis, the popular stage favorite, whose portrait appears above, declares that Prof. Knowles's book opens the door to success, health and happiness to every mortal, no matter what his or her position in life. She believes that Prof. Knowles has discovered principles, which, if universally adopted, will revolutionize the mental status of the human race.

The book, which is being distributed broadcast free of charge, is full of photographic reproductions showing how these unseen forces are being used all over the world, and how thousands upon thousands have developed powers which they little dreamed they possessed. The free distribution of the 100,000 copies is being conducted by a large London institution, and a copy will be sent post free to anyone interested. No money need be sent, but those who wish to do so may enclose 5 cents (stamps of your own country,) to cover postage, etc. All requests for the free book should be addressed to: National Institute of Sciences, Free Distribution Dept. 867-F, No. 258, Westminster Bridge Road, London, S.E., England. Simply say you would like a copy of "The Key to the Development of the Inner Forces," and mention The Times. Do not enclose coins in your letter. Postage to England two cents.

FAT PEOPLE

Are especially subject to sudden death from apoplexy or heart disease. They suffer premature weakness of all vital organs and become old in body while still young in years; they are always full of bile and poisonous waste matter, and seldom rest well in sleep.

NO FAT PERSON IS EVER HEALTHY. THE ENTIRE MUSCULAR SYSTEM, ESPECIALLY THE HEART, BECOMES SOAKED AND SODDEN IN FAT.

When the body is cleansed of fat, bile and toxic accumulations, men regain the vigor, strength and activity of youth, and women become graceful and beautiful with delicate, rose tinted complexions.

Reduction of superfluous fat means from 10 to 20 additional years of active, youthful, healthful life. All nervous disorders and physical ailments disappear.

Coughs, colds, aches, pains, stiff joints, sore muscles, constipation, foul breath, headaches, rheumatism, neuralgia, weakness and exhaustion melt away like frost before bright sunshine.

A RESURRECTION.

In dedicating to the commerce of the world the harbor, Wilmington was resurrected to life. Years ago it was the most important, the most industrious city in all Southern California. Then Wilmington went to sleep, and slumbered long. Then all exports from this region passed through that port that was as inconspicuous as a fishing village on the Scandinavian coast. Even this slight, unattractive, unambitious, unpromising child of commerce deserted Wilmington.

Yesterday the prodigal returned and in place of the husks that had been his lot during his extinguishment from the commerce of the Coast, he found open arms, the fatted calves, and the regal reception that springs in awe and admiration from the wholehearted and the thankful.

The Wilmington Chamber of Commerce and the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce combined to make of the return of this prodigal commerce an event that will live long in memory.

MUNICIPAL ENTERPRISE.

Woven into the industrial fabric of the development of the harbor is the story of municipal enterprise which found its recognition yesterday in a tremendous mass meeting. Thousands packed the great Municipal Pier A, one immense portion of which had been cleared for the dedicatory exercises. Speakers for the government, the city and the civic bodies unwound the lesson of the titanic work that found its embodiment in the busy harbor as it stands today.

The busy day at the harbor began early with a parade that traversed the length of Canal street and ended at the Municipal Wharf, which commands an advantageous point in the inner harbor. Thousands had arrived by auto, by trolley and by train, not to mention by boat from many nearby points, and the parade, always an indispensable feature of a great civic celebration, initiated a day of activity.

That things are never done in Los Angeles on a small scale was evidenced by the fact that 10,000 persons partook of a fish dinner in the great pierhouse.

The engines of the deep moored alongside the pier found their rivaled response in the engines of the air when Glenn Martin thrilled the thousands with flights in his air-car and then dumped from it a human being that landed lightly and safely in the waters of the inner harbor.

The official indorsement of the harbor came shortly after noon when Mayor Rose, leading a party of Councilmen and other city officials, took an excursion about the harbor, viewing all the newest improvements that have been started on a heavy appropriation.

The immense crowd was splendidly handled and plentifully entertained by the combined efforts of the committees from the two civic bodies.

Promising:

GREATER HARBOR AS NAVAL BASE.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF NAVY ADDRESSES THRONG.

Predicts Great Future for New Utility and Hits Upon Importance at Opening of Canal—Mass Meeting in Pier Shed Feature of Festivities of Dedication Day.

Hinting that Los Angeles Harbor may some day be chosen as an important naval base, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt made the most important speech at the public dedication of the harbor yesterday. With other speakers he addressed an immense crowd that had gathered in the big shed on Pier A.

"I am on a trip of inspection," said the Assistant Secretary. "I am here to inspect Los Angeles Harbor and I shall also inspect the harbors at San Diego, San Francisco and Puget Sound, and from among these places may be selected a rendezvous for the great American battle fleet when it is in the Pacific.

"I can assure you, citizens of Los Angeles, that the great battle fleet will always be maintained as a unit, that it will serve equally in the Atlantic and in the Pacific, and that in at least a year's time, this fleet will anchor in Los Angeles Harbor.

"This is my first visit to Los Angeles, but I most sincerely hope that it will not be my last. I am glad that events so transpired that my first visit to this great city has fallen upon a day when the new port of Los Angeles is established upon every maritime map in the world. Every maritime map in the world is revised today and one great port is added. It is a triumph, not only for the people of Los Angeles, but for the nation at large, and especially for the great shipping interests for which new ports and new makets are always in demand. It is especially a benefit and source of satisfaction to the navy which will soon, for the first time, be able to give its great battle fleet a base upon the Pacific side of the continent.

"I feel more at home today than I have felt in many days. I feel more at home, not in the crowded streets of the city, but here on the new dock at Wilmington. The committee which has so royally entertained me since my arrival in Los Angeles has done all that was within its power to make me comfortable, but the real spirit of home came to me only when I walked upon this dock and saw peering at me around the corner the long, gray nose of a destroyer.

"I promise you that the great battle fleet will enter the harbor of Los Angeles in February or March of next year. It will pass through the Panama Canal and, proceeding northward, will visit every coast city in California. I know that this is not necessary to secure the support of the great State of California to the navy, but we want to show the people the great difference between the present battle fleet and that which visited here on the world tour several years ago.

"While both the men and the officers of the navy are unanimously in favor of peace, nevertheless these men realize that in the event of war, it is the battle fleet which must bear the brunt of the enemy's attack or must make the initial assault upon the foreign defense. It is the purpose of the battle fleet to be always ready—and it is. We may build first and equip harbors with any number of submarines, but the eventual outcome of any conflict depends upon the battle fleet.

"It is the ambition of the Navy Department to make the navy a great national institution, a great school for boys, for the young men of the nation, who, while securing a splendid education for themselves, are at the same time serving as efficient defenders of their flag.

"It will be a great privilege for the battle fleet next year to visit this wonderful coast country, and it will also be a privilege for the people of the coast to see the fleet and to become acquainted with the 12,000 or 16,000 young men from every State in the nation, from every county of every State, from every city and village, who man the fleet.

"One boast of Californians at the Navy Department has been a standing joke among us. Most of the young men of the navy have never seen this country. And the Californians have told us that if we send the fleet here, we will have a hard time getting men enough to take it back to the east coast.

"When the big fleet comes to Los Angeles, I hope that all the citizens of this great city will remember that all of these mighty ships have been built at home, and that they were designed at home and are manned exclusively by men from home. It is an added cause for pride in the great squadron.

"Today is a greater day than most of the people of Los Angeles realize. Sometimes the long distance view reveals an object in a light of greater importance than it appears at short range. Such is the case here. The opening of this harbor means more than many of the people here imagine. It not only means closer relations between Los Angeles and the other ports of the United States, and between Los Angeles and the ports of the world, but it means closer and better relations between the whole United States and the whole commercial and naval world. It means a greater American merchant marine, that we may more effectively send the great merchant fleets to all the corners of the globe with the stars and stripes at their mastheads.

"Next year will be a great year, not only for Los Angeles and the Pacific Coast, but for the entire nation. The fairs to be held on the Coast will bring hundreds of thousands of people, who have never been to the Coast before. It will teach the people of all the nation that this is a unified, a coherent nation and it will obliterate any lingering sectional feeling.

"The bringing of many people to this Coast, and the development of the Coast as typified by the opening of the new harbor of Los Angeles, will mean growth—not only the growth of Los Angeles, but the growth of the whole nation and the whole world, not only in wealth, but also in ideals."

THE MAYOR.

Mayor Rose addressed the crowd, following the speech of Roosevelt. He congratulated the people of Los Angeles upon the magnitude of the task, which has been accomplished and showed tangible figures indicative of a prosperous future.

"It is a source of pride to all the citizens of Los Angeles," said Mayor Rose, "to know that this great work has been done, and it is a joy to the hearts of all of us to know that our work has been appreciated. The appreciation of the nation has been proven by the action of Congress in granting us an appropriation sufficient for the widening of the inner channel.

"This action proves to us that we have not overestimated our project, that we have calculated accurately upon the value of our results. It shows that the nation realizes that we have made a tangible contribution to the commerce of the world, as Navel Orange Crop to Be Shipped Out Quickly if Conditions Are Favorable.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, April 11.—The Redlands navel orange crop will all be about shipped within the next three weeks if conditions are favorable. It is estimated that at least 80 per cent. of the crop has already been shipped, and that only in cases where the fruit is keeping exceptionally will any attempt be made to hold back until after May 1. The total shipments of navel oranges from Crafton, Mentone, Redlands Junction, Drew and Redlands, all included in the Redlands district, will approximate 3500 cars. Other varieties will, it is estimated, bring the total shipments from the district to 4000 cars or over. This is considered as a remarkable showing, taking into consideration the apparently hopeless conditions following the freeze. All fruit now leaving the city is iced for transportation.

CHURCH ELECTION.

The annual meeting of the First Presbyterian Church, held last evening, resulted in the re-election of F. C. Jackson as deacon and in the choice of these trustees: Mrs. Jennie W. Davis, Mrs. M. P. Wall, E. E. Dow, F. A. Leonard and Harmon Weaver. C. R. Paine, W. I. Wells and J. Adams were elected elders. Rev. W. A. Galt, who has been superintendent of the Sunday-school, offered his resignation. He will again take up ministerial work. The following church officers were elected: Edgar Williams, president; L. R. Patty, pice-president; W. W. West, secretary.

Harry Risser Patty, who has been choir director for three years and who will leave this spring to go abroad to study, was given a hearty vote of thanks for his valued services.

The Chamber of Commerce will be represented at the National Irrigation Congress which will be held in Denver this summer by Mrs. G. D. Carpenter. Mrs. Carpenter will be in Denver at the time of the congress and she will take with her proper credentials to permit her to vote and enjoy other privileges accorded to accredited delegates.

FILLMORE, April 11.—Ernest W. Chase of Los Angeles has paid a fine of $25 in the local court for eaving a fine burning in the forest reserve. The fire was discovered by Deputy Game Warden R. G. Fields as it was about to ignite Chase's machine, which was standing with several other cars. Chase pleaded guilty, saying he thought he had extinguished the fire.

which the government has expended over $700,000,000, exacting no toll, but attempting to encourage commerce between the States. Congress has endeavored to prevent the throttling of these water courses, the great highways of the people over which exclusive franchises and rights of way cannot be granted.

"Let us briefly review some of the national legislation of such tremendous importance to this harbor and to every waterway in the country. Prior to 1910 there were many instances where railroads would temporarily lower rates, where water competition was encountered, and when the water carrier, in many instances working with limited capital, was driven to the wall, then the railroads would raise the rail rates. It was my privilege to offer an amendment upon the floor of the House providing that when a railroad in competition with a water route reduced its rates for the purpose of driving out the water competition it could not again raise the rate unless it could show to the Interstate Commerce Commission some cause other than the elimination of the water competition. This amendment was adopted and is now a part of the Interstate Commerce Act.

"This amendment was important, but it was not believed that it was far-reaching enough to meet conditions which it was feared would exist with the opening of the Panama Canal. For this reason there was written into the canal act a provision prohibiting railroads from operating ships through the canal in competition with their rail lines. This inhibition was believed to be in line with sound public policy, preventing railroads from practically paralleling their rail lines. The provision does not prevent railroads from operating steamships through the canal when engaged in foreign trade, but only when they compete with their rail lines for transcontinental traffic, which should not be permitted if the canal is to prove of real value as a regulator of freight rates.

"Ships engaged in the coastwise or foreign trade are prohibited, under the canal act, from operating through the canal if such ships are owned or controlled by persons or companies violating the Sherman anti-trust law. Powers were also conferred upon the Interstate Commerce Commission enabling that body to establish physical connections between railroads and the docks of water carriers. The commission was also empowered to establish through routes and maximum joint rates between rail and water lines; to establish maximum proportional rates by rail to and from the ports to which traffic is brought or from which it is taken by the water carrier. If interstate railroads enter into arrangements with water carriers operating from a port in the United States to a foreign country, through the Panama Canal or otherwise, for the handling of through business between interior points of the United States and such foreign country, the Interstate Commerce Commission may require such railroad to enter into similar arrangements with any other steamship line.

"The people of California are fully alive to the impetus which will be given water transportation with the opening of the Panama Canal. The improvement of our waterways means much in the development of this State. The Federal government has been generous with California in the way of appropriations. We have a coast line 1555 miles in length. In order to impress upon Congress the vast extent of our coast line, I exhibited upon the floor of the House last month, when the river and harbor bill was being considered, a large map of the United States, and on the Atlantic side I had marked a coast line corresponding in length and degrees of latitude with that of California. This line extended from Beverly, Mass., to Charleston, S. C. Within this area were ten States or parts of States. I think I proved that California was asking for no more than she was entitled to receive.

"Our State has a wonderful future. Her resources are as yet undeveloped. The mighty Pacific, which washes our shores, offers possibilities almost beyond our comprehension. To the west are Hawaii, the Philippines and the Orient. To the north that great storehouse of treasure, Alaska, which Congress has recently decreed shall be opened up by the construction of railroads and the vast resources of that territory made availab people. To the south that artificial waterway, the dream turies, made a reality by pluck and genius, and which cost, must remain forever American control. Californ is indeed the land of opportun when opportunity knocks, Los geles is always the first to op doors."

THOUSANDS GET AWAY WITH A FISH DINNER.

RIGHT in the middle of the sight-seeing, harbor-inspecting, parading and general "poking" about came the most joyous hiatus of the day.

It was nothing more or less than the bugle call to the biggest fish dinner ever served on the Pacific Coast—and there have been many big dinners served in this region.

Out in the vast building known as Pier No. 1 of the Municipal Wharf of Los Angeles, the fish were served. No sooner had the word gone out that the fish dinner long anticipated was about to become a reality than a general movement of the throng was evident in the direction of the big structure.

At the doorways on the end toward Wilmington were stationed policemen under Capt. Lehnhausen, head of the harbor force. They were well trained and had been cautioned as to the eagerness of the crowd when the odor of the delicious fish became evident.

The big doorway was divided into three entrances somewhat like the turnstiles at a circus. At each opening the crowd was politely but firmly told to get into single file and that they would get all of the fish and trimmings that they could comfortably manage.

As the hungry ones entered they were handed wooden platters, tin cups and paper napkins. As they moved along a few feet their tin cups were swiftly filled with steaming coffee with the aroma of Arabia fresh in it. A few more steps and their platters were inundated with a helping of kippered tuna. Then came a dozen of delicious dill pickles, a big portion of Boston chip potatoes, and a generous supply of halibut.

An attendant at the end of the cafeteria-like counters dropped a half-dozen slices of bread on each platter and the bewildered guest found himself or herself standing in the center of the cathedral-like building, which smelled strongly of tar and oakum.

In three steady streams they came. At last they seemed bewildered and wandered helplessly about carrying their heaped-up platters of savory fish and tin cups of hot coffee. Then a few hardy souls saw a pile of lumber lined on the vantage points. Soon the sides of the big building were filled four and five rows deep with laughing, chattering folk, all busily eating fish et al.

Still the crowd poured in through the entrances. At the lower end of the shed was a platform about four feet high upon which the addresses were to be made, and upon which the committee in charge of the big affair were to stand or sit as best they could.

Toward this the three streams of fish-laden folk started. In a trice it was black with men and women seated on the edge, with their feet hanging over.

As the firstcomers finished their food they showed a tendency to struggle back toward those enticing counters where the good things were still doled out. A line of policemen suddenly appeared and two doors toward the rear, one on either side of the pier building, were pointed out as the exits and were immediately put in use. Many of the younger folk, with deeper-seated appetites than the older, cannily went out these exits, circled the building and appeared again with modest mien beore the counters, and they were served a second time.

There were city officials from Los Angeles proper, Wilmington officials, harbor officials, bluejackets from the torpedo boats, officers from the giant Hawaiian-American steamer Isthmian, soldiers and that vast horde of motor-owning and driving folk that always attend every function whereby they have an opportunity to use their cars.

The crowd filled the shed and poured over the sides onto the tracks outside, where long lines of individuals enjoying perpendicular refreshments were stationed.

The cooking of the fish and the serving of the food was in charge of G. C. Barlow, who with a corps of 100 assistants, handled the crowd admirably. About 10,000 were fed.

Greater Harbor.

having provided ourself with a means of receiving that commerce.

"There is no further possibility of the isolation of Los Angeles from the great water routes of the world. The way is open. We are accessible to every sea port in the world and the fleets of all the nations can find safe anchorage with us and can go forth from this port to any other port on earth.

"But the work which we have done is only beginning. We must continue. We have more docks to build, more channels to dig, more freight-sheds to construct, more railroads to bring in. We must not let our present success dazzle us and cause us to forget the work that is yet to be done."

Seth A. Handley, president of the Board of Public Works, was the last speaker at the celebration. He was to have been preceded by President J. T. Woodman of the Harbor Commission, but illness prevented Woodman's appearance.

HANDLEY'S ADDRESS.

"Today we dedicate Los Angeles Harbor to the commerce of the world," said Handley. "The Board of Public Works is glad that the time has come when the people of this city have visible evidence of the work which the energy, liberality and public spirit, together with the generous assistance of the Federal government, have made possible. The work of this Board in connection with harbor construction will soon end and we turn over the result of our efforts to the custody of the Harbor Commission and congratulate them upon the great task that challenges them to the further development of this harbor.

"We are glad that we are making a harbor that is unique in its character. That is, it belongs to the people, not the work of mere private interests, though some of these have made valuable improvements yet this is a city's and a people's harbor. It must not be forgotten either that it is a municipal enterprise only after long years of contest in which right and the people won.

"We are grateful, too, for the splendid aid that has come to us from the Federal government. For many purposes financial assistance has been given and our blood will run red and our hearts beat faster with that affection for our country whose liberty and whose flag we have learned to love.

"The most significant fact before us is that this harbor puts Los Angeles in touch with the world. The Panama Canal has shortened the time and distance for ocean shipping and travel and we share richly in these benefits. The great events of the coming generation will be international and we shall be brought closer to the history yet to be made. Through this harbor will come to us the thousands of immigrants from the nations of the world. In fact, this harbor makes us one of the arms of the nation reaching out to the uttermost parts of the earth, and let us hope that our every relation with these peoples, especially those with whom we come into contact more directly, shall be high and honorable; such, indeed, that it will bring added renown to our country and our country's flag.

"Let me say in conclusion, in praise of the people of our city: that their glory is not in the fact that here lies one of the greatest natural harbors of the world, but in the fact that, given the possibilities, they have improved their opportunities and have begun the development of one of the most valuable harbors on any coast. To the genius of our engineers and the public spirit of our citizens, Los Angeles Harbor will be an increasing and perpetual monument."

PYTHIAN HOME PLANS.

Anaheim Site to be Provided for Widows and Orphans of Silver Star Policemen.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ANAHEIM, April 11.—The proposed establishment of the $150,000 Pythian home by the Silver Star Lodge No. 312 at the beautiful Pythian Park, owned by Brig.-Gen. Royer in this city, has become a certainty. Several months ago a committee comprising Chief Sebastian, W. E. Wood, L. L. McClary, G. T. Williamson, W. W. Lowry and C. C. Mungen visited Anaheim with a view of locating the home on the site offered by Royer.

Silver Star Lodge, the members of which are police officers without exception, is one of the wealthiest orders on the Coast, and owing to the precarious work in which they are engaged, it is almost imperative that they have a home provided for the widows and orphans.

It is probable that the local order of Pythians will build a home adjoining at the park and the dream of Royer, who has been unceasing in his efforts to build up the better interest of the order, will be realized.

His large tract is one of the showplaces of the county and at the time it was subdivided, Royer wished only Pythians to reside there and donated Many fine sites that splendid homes mibht be built thereon.

Receiving Hospital.

WHERE A GREAT CITY'S INJURED ARE TREATED.

LIGHTS are glowing—just a bit less fervently than the hearts of those who sit about in the warm brilliance of living-room comforts. Great family clocks slowly, methodically tick off the minutes of calm, evening quietude.

Fathers, mothers, sons and daughters of Los Angeles homes are sitting about in the easy, lounging attitudes of evening relaxation. The peace of quiet, conventional domesticity prevails.

Far downtown, where streets are brilliant with many lamps, where also are the darksome purlieus of the poor, the haunts of the non-Conformists, a clanging bell announces the swift oncoming of an ambulance. Street cars and motors stop to make easy the way of those who race in the cause of human life.

A crowd, curious and agape, stands about a dark doorway. An officer from the beat tells the interne, who leaps lightly from the machine, of "another suicide attempt."

A single sight the crowd gets of the limp form upon a stretcher. The bells clang angrily and away goes the chariot of mercy. In a quiet avenue, just off First street, where the gradual slope of the hill starts, the ambulance backs against a small door, once again the limp form is carried upon the stretcher, this time in instead of out.

On the little black couch it is set. The priests and acolytes in the city's Temple of Life start but another of their services, whose end is the preservation of life.

This is the Los Angeles City Receiving Hospital. The haven of those who encounter the violence of the unruly, the lawless. The refuge of the poor in cases of stress, when life depends upon prompt and expert attention.

Rich and poor alike have entered its portals—on stretchers—weak and languid, hungry only for life. Rich and poor have tasted its kindnesses, administered by soft-footed, quiet-voiced surgeons and nurses. It is the common sanctuary in cases of distress, when the man-made distinctions of life give way, and Life is stripped to its fundamentals.

What tales that little black couch in the Receiving Hospital could tell were it but given tongues, as Caesar's wounds were by Antony! What visions have floated before the eyes of men lain low upon it!

Pictures of calm, gray lives shattered by the sudden hand of red passion. Pictures of desolate days whose only surcease seemed the rash attempts at self-destruction which brought the visionaire to the brink of death, whose imminence invoked the picture.

Perhaps the would-be self-slayer has made but a bungling attempt; the auto wreck victim is but badly bruised or has but a few easily-mended bones broken; the would-be assassin made a mis-stroke, or the hand of Providence has intervened to make miraculous the escape from death of some other accident victim.

The patient, once again set straight on the road of Life, is put to bed or sent to a hospital for permanent care during convalescence. Instruments are asepticized, wreckage cleaned up, and the hospital and its corps are ready for their next patient.

For the City Receiving Hospital is the scene, always, of the unexpected. Its corps is a corps of "pinch-hitters." Theirs is the quick emergency effort that must do, and do promptly. The elaborate preparations that attend the surgical work for disease and cumulative ailments find no place there.

Night and day, every single hour, there are surgeons and nurses at hand, ready for any sort of case. It is an eerie, relentless, determined vigil against Death.

When all Los Angeles was horrified and anxious over the news of the frightful Vineyard wreck on the night of July 13, last year, surgeons and nurses at the City Receiving Hospital were laboring to keep down the size of death's harvest. The entire staff of the hospital was there. Twenty-five cases were handled and one major operation performed during that dread night.

Every bed in the three wards of the hospital that night had its tired and injured occupant. As the injured were brought in, all three operating-rooms were put into use simultaneously. And so they labored for hours during the night, a skirmish against death.

There are three tables for patients at the hospital. One is the little, black couch, high as an operating table, and in the main room, where the minor male cases come, and there are dozens of these every day. Another is a separate room for women patients. Another is the main operating-room, spotlessly white and aseptically clean, where the big operations, the pitched battles against the grim reaper take place.

The equipment of the institution is absolutely up to date in practically every particular.

The affected horror some persons have of having to go to the "Receiving Hospital," a "public" and "free" institution—the idea!—is a phantom, bred of ignorance. The treatment and skill administered there is on par, probably, with that given at any hospital in the city. The fact that it is the hospital always prepared for any sort of case makes it the reception place of those whose need is dire and insistent.

Visitors from other cities throughout the United States have said of the Los Angeles City Receiving Hospital that it is the best equipped in the country. These visitors are police chiefs, emergency hospital surgeons from cities in the East and Middle West, nurses, and others who have seen similar institutions in other parts of the country. That it is the best in California is unquestioned.

During a recent month there were 760 cases handled in the hospital, or more than one for each hour of the day and night. This was the record in the institution's history. The closest competing period for the number of accidents, self-destruction, attempted murder and other victims, was August, also last year, when 740 cases were handled.

The increase in the number of patients during the past five years has been about 100 per month, each year.

There are thirteen beds in the wards. Many have been the occasions when each one has had its occupant and each one a different kind of victim. A would-be defier of fate, one who would have died by his own hand, lies next the victim of another's murderous wrath; next him lies an epileptic who has been taken from a street corner, where he was found in convulsions. In another corner lies a man who participated in a drunken brawl. It is a democracy of ills.

The women's ward, much less frequently filled to capacity, may contain street car accident victims or would be suicides. White-garbed women nurses attend them.

The demented persons found on the streets—and there are many more than the average citizen knows of—also are taken to this hospital. There they remain until they can be committed to the county institution. In order to facilitate the moving of such patients, so that they shall not take up beds, which must be had for the use of real emergency patients, the surgeons of the Receiving Hospital are sworn as deputy county clerks so that the commitment may be hurried.

Beside the tremendous number of accident and violence victims taken in daily from every part of the city, all the prisoners in the City Jail, all the police and firemen are given treatment for minor ills. This end of the work alone totals a large number of patients annually.

The staff of the hospital is composed of Dr. E. H. Wiley, surgeon; Drs. A. E. Roome, A. W. Hiller and Roy H. Johnson, assistant surgeons; Drs. C. J. Elmer and C. Dederer, substitute surgeons; John M. Morgan, chief nurse; Charles H. Whitehead, George F. Neuminger, Miss Eflin Boettcher, Miss Helen D. Jackson and Miss Anna K. Stoop, nurses.

HARBOR POLICEMAN FINNEGAN LISTENS TO A TALE OF WOE.

"THERE was a melancholy writin' man talkin' to a sympathizin' group over by the sody fountain a little while ago," said Harbor Policeman Finnegan to the water front reporter.

"'The ingratitude of the fickle public is somethin' incredible,' he says. 'It seems to me but yesterday when the whole nation was sittin' on the front doorstep before sun-up waitin' in anxiety,' he says, 'an' pajamas,' says he, 'for the carrier to throw the mornin' paper into the rose bushes, or some other equally accessible spot, in order to learn whether me painfully reticent friend, Col. Rio Teodora Roosevelt, had forgot to wind the clock an' put out the cat before singin' his teeth to sleep,' he says.

"'Anxious millions,' he says, 'set up all night to discuss the amazin' recovery of the Ten Commandments, in the original edition purloined from the author durin' his unavoidable absence in pursuit of a hippopotamus,' he says, 'whose face was highly offensive to a sensitive, though never irritable disposition,' he says.

"'Billions of sympathetic citizens,' he says, 'thronged the bulletin boards to read the absorbin' hourly reports from the attendin' Major-General who was watchin' the insidious progress of pips among the female poultry at Oyster Bay,' he says.

"'Trillions of excited men an' women were cheerin' the announcement that the Roosevelt family cat had been officially pronounced convalescent after a prolonged an' desperate,' he says, 'but numerously successful struggle against race suicide,' he says.

"'Contemporaneous with this most remarkable display of public interest,' he says, 'in the important an' stirrin' events of national history,' he says, 'there was a gratifyin' attention paid to the patriots an' statesmen,' he says, 'who was earnestly engaged in the elevatin' an' highly perfumed toil,' he says, 'of shovelin' compost into the pages of our leadin' magazines,' he says, 'an' newspapers,' he says, 'devoted to the upliftin' task,' he says, 'of proclaimin' that everybody else was a horse thief,' he says, 'when not engaged in porch climbin', says he, 'or grave-robbin.'

"'In them glorious an,' I might say, odoriferous times,' he says, 'true patriotism was rewarded with a place in any refined an' educatin' journal,' says he, 'delicately,' he says, 'or violently,' says he, 'tinted with orange,' he says, 'out of compliment to the prevailin' yellow tone of the foremost contributors to the great cause of political purity, social reform an' change in the personnel,' he says, 'of office-holders,' he says.

"'When me sprightly an' inoffensively non-partisan friend, Mr. Louis Glavis, emerged from an important conference with a few timber companies, anxious to do the right thing regardless of cost,' says he, 'long enough to call the odious usurper Taft a conspirin' coal thief, his delightful contribution to current literature was run left-hand top first page, double column, twelve-point blackface leaded,' he says.

"'When me shy an' notoriety-avoidin' friend, Mr. Gifford Pinchot, wired the startlin' information that the Secretary of the Interior had stolen an' concealed on his person six tamarack logs cut on a government reserve,' he says, 'nothin' less than six-inch type across two pages could express the emotions of the news editors,' he says.

"'When me dignified an' always composed oratorical friend, Mr. Francis J. Heney, sometimes,' he says, 'referred to by the proud,' says he, 'an' well-earned,' he says, 'title of the 'Wild Ass of the Painted Desert,' says he, 'quietly, composedly an' in his invariably courteous manner, loudly shrieked that the President an' both houses of Congress an' the Supreme Court was corrupt an' blackmailin' scoundrels, porch-climbers, burglars, horse thieves an' conspirators to steal the public lands,' he says, 'his convincin' an' unanswerable argument was liable to cause heartburnin' in a thousand magazine editors, who failed to get it exclusively,' he says.

"'Any disinterested patriot, then,' he says, 'could earn a hundred merely by inventin' a new scandal or findin' a worse-smellin' name in the muck heap to apply to the humiliatin' spectacle provided by an American President who refused, in spite of the most tearful entreaties of the most obtrusive reformers, to mind anything but his own selfish,' he says, 'an' official,' says he, 'business,' he says.

"'A painstakin' an' industrious uplifter,' he says, 'who could patriotically an' earnestly an' inspirin'ly prove his unfalterin' loyalty to his country an' its dignity abroad an' at home,' he says, 'by conclusively statin' that its Chief Magistrate was the corrupt tool of thievin' corporations, an' that the Supreme judges robbed hen roosts when they wasn't too drunk to find their way about in the dark, an' that the Senate of the United States was composed of pickpockets who only lacked the courage to be safe-blowers,' he says, 'could be sure of tumultuous applause,' says he, 'as well as a deserved reputation,' he says, 'for bein' a sprightly an' entertainin' writer,' he says, 'on public topics,' he says, 'not to speak of the gratifyin'ly mean an' enjoyably dirty an' contemptible money he could make,' says he.

"'When I think of them glorious days,' he says, 'an' look about upon the gloomy conditions of the present, me heart is bowed down with grief. Upliftin' is rapidly ceasin' to be a profitable profession. The revenues of reformers,' he says, 'is becomin' pitiably small.

"'Blackguardin' has ceased to be payin' an' threatens to quit bein' respectable. Magazines an' papers that once eagerly printed the fervent eloquence of me illustrious friends now gives place to articles written by the odious Taft. Muckrakin' is fast becomin' a lost science. There ain't no money in what was once the most lucrative employment. The whole nation is degeneratin' into a deplorably apathetic,' he says, 'an' idly unresponsive state of decency,' he says. 'An ungrateful people has become tired of the purest buncombe ever manufactured for the American market.

"'A horrid suspicion of the worst at times creeps over me shudderin' soul,' he says. 'I begin to suspicion,' he says, 'that our glorious party,' says he, 'includin' our even more glorious Governor,' he says, 'will expire,' says he, 'politically,' he says, 'an' officially, says he, 'as well as simultaneously,' he says, 'on or slightly after the hour in next November,' he says, 'when the degraded an' reactionary remnants of the Republican party,' he says, 'decides that it is time to stop votin',' he says.

"Me heart bled for him," added Policeman Finnegan, looking guilelessly in the eye of the Water-Front Reporter. "It's terrible to think of an uplifter facin' the cruel prospect of havin' to go to work for a livin', no longer off than next spring, mebbe."

CORNERSTONE TO BE LAID.

Santa Paula High School to Celebrate on May Day—Blind-piggers Caught.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA PAULA, April 11.—The cornerstone of the new Union High School will be laid on May Day. Work on the building is progressing rapidly, all brick work for the basement being in. The May Day festival will be the most elaborate ever held here, and will include, beside the cornerstone laying, exhibitions, dances and games at the grammar school, a panoramic show given by the merchants, "first aid" demonstrations by boy scouts, and other features.

Four blind-piggers have been caught in the past two weeks and a determined effort is being made by Marshal Bush and new Nightwatchman Harvey to clean up the town. Fines amounting to $300 have been collected in the past month and more to come.

Candidates for city officers at the election Monday next are: William Naugle and Otis Smith for two vacancies on the City Board; Clarence Beckley for City Clerk, and A. L. Shively for City Treasurer. There are no opposition candidates for any of the offices.

Settings of young walnuts indicate that damage to trees is less than feared from last summer's severe heat. The trees are leafing out rapidly, but no accurate estimate of the crop can be made yet.

Lemon planting is active in this vicinity this spring. Among the new orchards being set out or old ones added to are those of the S. P. Lemon Company, Shipley and Davis, and H. O'Hara. Nathan Blanchard is setting the hillside north of the High School to lemons, the Saticoy Citrus Company is laying 2000 feet of cement pipe on their property. Hurbert Edwards has set out Valencia orange trees.

Suspected of designs on a coop of fine chickens, City Marshal Bush and Nightwatchman Harvey were marched down the street, hands up, at the point of a shotgun by the irate owners of the fowls. The two officers, in order to watch a suspected blind-pig, hid behind a neighboring chicken coop. It was late at night, and the owner had lost some of his chickens. He did not propose to lose any more. Two sons of the family covered the prowlers with shotguns, nor were the officers of the law released until, under a street lamp, they proved their identity.

The Death Watch's Habits.

[Family Doctor:] The death watch is always destructive; in its earlier stages of life it eats up books, furniture, etc., and when it reaches maturity the damage it does is greater still, though certainly not so costly. In length about a quarter of an inch, and of a gray color, it does not seem to be a very terrifying creature; but it has a facetious little habit of butting its armor plated head against anything hard it may meet with, such as wood or plaster, thus giving the rise to a ticking sound which might by a good stretch of the imagination be thought to sound like the ticking of a watch. The poor little beetle when he causes the ticking is only serenading his sweetheart; he can play no musical instrument to please her, and so to prove his devotion, he butts his head against the wall.

Continuous Parade.

of different tongues, the noise and excitement, the ships and the great throng transformed Wilmington into a brilliant world port. The marchers saw the enterprising town in a costly and vari-colored dress. Every street along the line of march was decorated with thousands of flags, banners and emblems of commerce.

By the time the head of the triumphal procession had reached the harbor front thousands on the sidewalks had joined in, making a serpentine pageant that extended the full length of the town. Wilmington and her thousands of visitors spontaneously got into the spectacle.

Parades are not new, but this procession was different. The participants seemed to realize that the pageant was emblematic of the march of progress at the port, which in the memory of man was a silent place, the haven of straggling ships come for hides and tallow.

OF A MODERN PORT.

The organized part of the parade represented the different elements that make up the modern port. The police, city officials and civic bodies spoke for municipal government which will preserve law and order. The marines were a part of the navy which will protect the port from the seaward side. A battery of field artillery, a company of infantry and a mounted machine gun company would have been a hint to an enemy that the government is prepared to defend the harbor from the land side.

The military division of the parade included Battery A, Field Artillery, Capt. Ford commanding; Seventh California Infantry, Col. Schreiber commanding, and a machine-gun company commanded by Capt. Gollum.

Some of the commercial houses which help fill the ships which come to the port were represented in the parade with floats and decorated auto trucks. The hundreds of motorists in the procession radiated the good will and enthusiasm back of the movement for a greater harbor.

Beginning in the suburbs of Wilmington, close to the cultivated fields, the parade ended at the water front, in view of the harbor, sheltering craft of many kinds, including the latest passenger steamers, big freighters, sailing vessels, a Chinese junk, gasoline launches, torpedo boat destroyers and four submarines. And also at the end of the march was the fish dinner.

The official parade ended at noon, but the impromptu procession of motorists continued two hours longer. In fact, the parade, beginning at 10 o'clock, was a continuous performance for four hours.

Lesson in Economics.

[Minneapolis Journal:] Picking her way daintily among the grime of the locomotive works, the young woman visitor viewed the huge operations with visible awe. Finally she turned to a young man from the office who was "showing her through," and, pointing, asked:

"What is that big thing over there?"

"That's a locomotive boiler," the young man replied.

She puckered her brows.

"And what do they boil locomotives for?" she asked.

"To make the locomotive tender."

And the young man from the office never batted an eyelash, either.

NEW GIRL SHOW MAKES BIG HIT.

"Girl Behind the Counter" at the Morosco.

Fritzi Scheff Headliner of Orpheum Bill.

Current Attractions at the Other Houses.

The Morosco's new Eastertide offering, opening last night, is "The Girl Behind the Counter," the latest musical comedy creation from the Gaiety workshop, the same that was responsible for the enjoyable "Candy Shop." Al Shean comes at the head of the cast of about sixty, and many of his associates are well known and well liked here.

Included in the cast of principals is dainty little Daphne Pollard, who ever since she was little more than a baby—ten or twelve years ago—has been an American favorite. In "The Girl Behind the Counter" she makes her first return to California since her recent triumphs in the East, and in the role of Susie Scraggs exhibits all the charm of manner and delightful qualities that have established her in the front ranks of this country's fine entertainers.

Shean, the great German comedian, will be seen in the role originally performed by Lew Fields. Shean has his own manner of presentation, which is full of unction, humor and hilarity. In the part of the head of the family suddenly become wealthy, Shean and Maude Beatty, who plays the role of the newly wealthy wife, are a [illegible].

Ann Tasker is another notable number of a notable cast. She has recently finished a successful tour through the East in "Dr. de Luxe," and will be recalled as the hit in "Madame Sherry." Her beautiful voice is backed by charming personality and beauty of person. Myrtle Dingwall is well known in California since her success in San Francisco, and is possessed of a beautiful voice. [illegible] Savoy, Marion Rochester, [illegible] Pollard and Orral Humphries are some of the others of the company, who, with the beauty chorus, the pretty "ponies" and the gay show girls, it is promised, will offer an evening of excellent entertainment and unalloyed joy.

The music for the book was written by J. A. Raynes, who wrote most of the Kolb & Dill successes. The composer will conduct in person.

Burbank.

"Auction Pinochle," which won the instant attention of the theatrical public of Los Angeles with its first appearance at the Burbank Theater last Sunday, and which has been playing to crowded houses at every performance of the week, will begin the second week of its run at this afternoon's matinee.

During the week "Auction Pinochle" has had the closest scrutiny of its author, Adolf Philipp, and it has now reached that point of perfection which makes the perfect play. Along with the funniest kind of situations and with the most admirable and enjoyable lyrics, Los Angeles has had the pleasure of hearing in many a day, "Auction Pinochle" promises to enjoy a long stay at the Burbank Theater.

In this production some of the leading stars of the musical comedy world have been gathered by Producer Oliver Morosco. Jess Dandy, who for many years was the particular star of the "Prince of Pilsen," is scoring heavily in the funmaking of this new play.

Frances Cameron, who was the first Merry Widow to visit the West and whose fine voice, divine dancing and charming personality have placed her among the leading light opera and musical comedy stars of this country, is adding to her laurels with one of the best roles she has ever had.

Walter Lawrence of musical comedy fame, who was leading man of "The Spring Maid" and other well-known plays of the light opera type, is also appearing in just the kind of role that suits him, in "Auction Pinochle."

Orpheum.

When the Orpheum announced Bernhardt as its world star last season the amusement-loving public applauded, but asked: "What next?" The answer comes to the Orpheum beginning Easter Monday matinee in the person of Fritzi Scheff—an engagement as notable in its way as anything ever offered by this world-conquering amusement aggregation. For who would ever have supposed that the "little devil of grand opera," the inimitable Viennese, the idol, Fritzi, could be lured from the regular stage into the twice-a-day? But here she is, and it only shows again that nothing is too good for Orpheum vaudeville.

Fritzi Scheff has conquered the musical world in two fields—those of grand and of light opera. She has won plaudits in both lines on two continents, and is perhaps the most popular of all musical stars, as she appeals to a greater variety of tastes than does any other. She has been at the head of her own companies in each field; she has created roles that have become classic, and she is still the superbly beautiful and fascinating woman, with all the dash, verve and fire that won her that famed sobriquet.

To ask her to abandon her already conquered peoples and to set forth to win a new audience in the hardest division of all amusements was a task few men would have undertaken. However, nothing daunts Orpheum managers, and the lively and lovely Fritzi is to be heard at the Orpheum here beginning Monday.

She will sing many of her best liked song numbers, will wear her usual array of stunning gowns, and will, of course, be the same fascinatingly bewitching "little devil" that all know and love.

The bill surrounding her will be one of unusually varied character, each act being especially selected. The Kaufman brothers are the topmost exponents of musical clownishness in blackface; they come on with a bang and leave with a boom, and every minute is a busily happy one.

Shirli Rives, known here as the prima donna in "The Eternal Waltz," the Orpheum's big musical sensation of the last season, reappears with her own company in a new musical act, "The Song of the Heart," wherein she impersonates a prima donna, and adds much to stage knowledge by her interpretation, the while giving a delightful entertainment, in a beautiful setting. Edward Gillette brings his expertly trained monkeys, especially Adam and Eve, showing them in "Fun in a Bowling Alley," and the Blessings, Elsie and Willie, will do some gymnastic work, especially showing the prowess of the woman. Henry Woodruff and his company in "A Regular Business Man," Ray Samuels, the blue streak of ragtime, and Mindel Kingston and George Ebner will remain.

Empress.

Beginning tomorrow Manager Dean Worley of the Empress Theater will inaugurate a summer plan for the theater.

Through the summer months the performance at the Empress will start at 11 o'clock in the morning, with five reels of first-run motion pictures. The regular vaudeville performance will start at 2:30 and continue through the afternoon. One price, 10 cents, will entitle the patrons of the Empress to watch the performance from 11 in the morning until the afternoon vaudeville performance closes.

The pictures will be changed every Monday and Thursday.

Beginning tomorrow the Empress vaudeville will offer as a Sullivan & Considine headliner, Kara, the premier juggler, whose work is of that amazing type that constantly startles. Kara has been here before and is immensely popular with Los Angeles audiences. A second headliner will be Edith Clifford, with a repertoire of catchy songs.

Other attractive numbers on the new bill will be Joe Fanton's athletes, the acme of acrobatic agility; Staine's Circus, a riot of comedy and rare animal intelligence; Jack Mack and Juliette Atkinson in the latest songs of Broadway; Thomas Kiernan, Victoria Walters and James Kiernan, in a travesty called "Mac-Beth," and Keystone comedies.

Pantages.

"Hanged—Was It Murder?" Is it impossible to mistake the intent of this sensational question which has been staring Los Angeles in the face for the past week from every billboard. John D. Barry of San Francisco propounds the question through the medium of a propagandist playlet which will be staged this week at Pantages. "Hanged" is the title of the act and the subtitle, "Was It Murder?" is the last line spoken from the stage, just after the thud of descending weight tells the audience that a soul has been lurched into eternity by the hangman's rope.

The Riding Duttons, society equestrians, are an added attraction. Comedy of the hilarious type is supplied by Patsy Doyle, "the big sad man." Duncan and Holt, and Rhoda and Crampton are also making the world a merrier, happier place by chasing the glooms from vaudeville. Clara Stevens and company offer characteristic dances. The Pantagescope comedies continue to make everybody laugh.

Hippodrome.

For the first time, beginning Monday afternoon, the mammoth tank at the Hippodrome will be used to its full dimensions, and will play an important part in another epoch-making departure at Los Angeles' biggest playhouse.

For, headlining the new bill will be "The Venetian Opera Company," without doubt the greatest singing organization that ever played a vaudeville engagement.

Not only will it introduce to Los Angeles a wonderful coterie of singers, but they will present a splendid repertoire, enhanced by scenic effects such as are possible nowhere else in the country.

With a veritable lake at hand, real gondolas will be used together with surpassing moonlight and sunlight effects. Nothing is more charming than

Fritzi Scheff, "Queen of the 'Big Time,'"

The sprightly prima donna of most of the Victor Herbert successes, and for years knows as "the little devil of the grand opera," will be the headliner at the Orpheum for the next two weeks, presenting a repertoire of her greatest song successes.

The Prima Donna.

JUST A CHAT WITH FRITZI.

"The Little Devil" Really Is Not at All Satanic.

Has Positive Ideas on Way Women Should Dress.

Why She Left Grand Opera for Vaudeville.

BY GARDNER BRADFORD.

It is the unexpected which always comes as the greatest shock.

And that was why, when, after purposely being fifteen minutes late in keeping my appointment with Fritzi Scheff, I nearly had heart-failure when "the little devil of the Grand Opera," didn't enact a 1914 version of Hades.

I sat limply on one of her very best embroidered cushions while she accepted the apology I was too dumbfounded to utter, and before we settled down for the interview, we had discussed the race question, and the servant problem, and decided that it was quite the proper thing to use the darkest room in her suite at the Alex for the parlor "because one is so seldom in the parlor, you know."

In fact, I really had a nice ingenuous interview all packed away on ice when the petite prima donna squared herself for the ordeal and indicated that she was ready to be interviewed.

"Really," I explained, "I don't care much about an interview, they are generally stupid, and besides, I could write a great deal better one without talking to you at all. What I wanted most to find out was what you are going to sing next week."

Fritzi fairly beamed. "Yes, you newspaper men are wonderful liars. I am sure you could have written a dandy interview." Then we bowed mutual acknowledgment. The first fire had been exchanged, with even honors.

RARE OPPORTUNITY.

Now ordinarily, the vaudeville star doesn't get in till Monday morning—too late for a Sunday story, but Fritzi believes in conservation of voice, and lays off a week in every three or four, which explains how she happened to arrive in Los Angeles a week ahead of time, with her hubby and a motor car.

"I just sing," she replied in answer to my question. "I thought Martin Beck was crazy when he signed me, but do you know, I have succeeded splendidly," in proof of which she produced a critical article in "The Theater Magazine" in which she and Olga Nethersole are accorded first place among the vaudeville stars of the season.

"Out of a thousand songs," she added, "I have selected Arditi's 'Parlar Waltz,' 'Just a Little Love,' by Fischer, 'Kiss Me' from 'Mlle. Modiste' by Herbert, and then some light pieces for encores.

"And do you know I have to pay $27.50 every week I sing that Herbert song."

WE TALK FASHIONS.

Her mention of finances led me to touch on the class of her pictures. "I am glad you didn't get a lot of cheap ones," I remarked "most of the vaudeville people do, and they lose a lot of boosting in consequence."

She nodded. "And do you know, they must be good, for I find people always know me on the street. Maybe," she added as an afterthought, "it is because I never change the style of my hair."

What she said was true, though I had never thought of it before. While fashions have changed from year to year, puffs have come in and gone out, pompadours have given place to bangs, and bangs to parts, and parts to spit curls, Fritzi Scheff has never changed.

It opened up a new line.

"Then you do not believe in being a slave to fashion," I ventured.

"Not the way some women are," was the quick reply. "I believe in looking one's best. Every woman should study herself critically and decide what is most becoming. Then stick to it. Fashions may change, but she doesn't.

"Of course, I don't mean that she has to wear clothes that are glaringly out of style, but she can modify the lines of prevailing fashions to suit. But her hair looks best in one way and when she has found that one way, why change just because someone else does?"

"A woman is essentially an individual, and in preserving individuality she will find her greatest charm."

WRITING A BOOK.

Fritzi then confided in me that she is writing a book on woman and her styles, which she declares will be as valuable as it is unique, and will give her sex a new insight into the best methods of dressing.

"But I am not yet going to print it," she hastened to add, "for I will save it till I can sing no more. Then the money may come in handy."

All of which goes to show that the twelve years the dainty Austrian has been in this country have made a good deal of a Yankee out of her.

By this time everything was going so smoothly that I mentioned my trepidation in calling, on account of her reputation for having the cutest little temperament of all singers.

She laughed. "Let me tell you the real truth of how I came to be called 'the little devil of the grand opera.' It wasn't temperament, for I was always liked. But we were having a rehearsal one day and things were getting tiresome.

"Besides, we were all hungry. All of a sudden I could stand it no longer and cried out, 'Oh, let's cut this old rehearsal and go get something to eat. Then we can come back and everything will be lovely.'

"I waved my arms as I spoke, and lo, the tambourine I was holding slipped from my hand, and flew out into the middle of the theater. Paderewski, passing, said, 'Oh, you little devil,' and a newspaper man heard him and put it in the paper. That's how I got the name."

"I had always thought it was because you were so lively," I explained. "You see, mos. of the grand opera

MUSICAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

GREAT ACTIVITY IN CHORAL CLUBS AND SOCIETIES.

New Invention to Revolutionize Brass and Wood Instruments' Playing—National Opera Company's Entertainment to Celebrate Its Establishment Here.

BY HECTOR ALLIOT.

Mischa Elman, who will appear in recital Tuesday, April 28, here, on his way to the Far East, believes that much of his success is due to his unusual physical and mental endurance.

Although he practices religiously for hours every day, he seldom feels any ftaigue. To stand for one hour with one arm sustaining the neck of a violin and the other being drawn back and forth is very trying. Few people ever become distinguished because they have not the stamina essential for the long and arduous practicing necessary. Elman has often said that he values his ability to play for extended stretches almost as highly as his natural musical gifts.

"At least," said the young Russian a few days ago, "without the qualities of physical and mental endurance I fear I should have had a hard time rising to the top of my profession. Genius is all right, but genius does not have its full play unless some time may be set aside for work. To do wonderful things in the executive branch of music demands practice. And I never forget that."

New York Symphony's Good Fortune.

Twenty-eight patrons of the New York Symphony Orchestra have heretofore met the annual deficit of that organization.

During the season one hundred concerts were given, incidentally an increase of thirty-nine over last year. Sixty-two were played in New York and Brooklyn, and thirty-eight were out-of-town engagements.

The season's financial budget showed that $56,000 was the net loss to May 1st, when the books are closed.

A great surprise was caused a the last yearly meeting of the directors this week by the simple, but tremendously inspiring speech of Harry Harkness Flagler, in which, after paying tribute to Walter Damrosch he said, "I take pleasure in offering personally to defray the deficit of the Symphony Society for the future, beginning with May 1, 1914, for which purpose I am prepared to set aside yearly an amount which will ensure the continuance of its work on the highest artistic lines, and allow for future expansion, should that seem desirable.

Diocesan Choir.

The Choir Guild of Episcopal Churches in Southern California has been established with Rt. Rev. Johnson as president, Very Rev. McCormack, Rev. Davidson and Dr. Learned as vice-presidents.

The credit for the initiative in establishing this great musical movement is due to the enthusiastic efforts of P. Shaul-Hallett, who has long realized that such a guild would elevate the character of choral church work, afford closer intercourse between choirs of Episcapal churches throughout Southern California, aiding also in the spiritual and atistic uplift of the communities.

Canon Ernest Douglas, organist of the pro-Cathedral, who is deeply interested in this work, expects to give the first festival service on the evening of Ascension Day at St. Paul's with compositions of sacred music by Gounod and Beethoven.

College of Music U.S.C. Recital.

Advance pupils of the College of Music, U.S.C., will give a public recital at Blanchard Hall Friday evening, April 17.

Novel Orchestral Device.

At next season's concerts audiences may note with some surprise that English horns, clarinets and other wood-wind instruments are played in a manner entirely unknown before.

Several musicians in that section of the orchestra will be seen pressing their right foot on a diminutive pair of bellows, to which is attached a rubber tube. This odd piece of machinery is nothing less than the new "aerophor," Bernard Samuels's latest musical invention.

By the use of this device, approved by the best conductors and composers, Bernard Samuels has just revolutionized the scoring of wood instruments.

The composers of the near future will be able to obtain by the use of the aerophor effects absolutely undreamed of till now. The device will also save much physical effort from the player and thus conserve his health.

Dr. Muck and Strauss have both given their official approval and indorsement to the aerophor.

Mr. Samuels is chamber musician to the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, and a well-known flutist.

His invention consists, briefly, of furnishing through the use of the bellows a continuous supply of air into the mouth of the player, which permits him of sustaining an unlimited number of passages without fatigue.

A little electrical device warms the air to the temperature of the mouth, which is supplied without effort for any desired period of time, the player breathing through his nose, naturally, without interference, while the air from the aerophor furnishes the desired power for production of musical sounds of great length and volume, far in excess of anything possible without it.

Besides the musical result obtained, the frequent dizziness and fluttering of the heart, frequent among tuba, trombone and horn players, will be eliminated by the new invention.

It will be very odd to see an entire orchestra, in its brass and wood-wind instruments divisions, pumping energetically and irregularly, according to the score; until its utilitarian progress adds often a note of temporary ridicule on its forward march.

Record of English Grand Opera.

In twenty-nine weeks the Century Operahouse in New York City presented twenty-five operas to the remarkable number of 400,000 auditors during that period.

The theater, which closed its doors a few days ago, until September, next, will be entirely renovated, and its seating capacity will be doubled, 42 per cent. of increase being given to balcony accommodations.

Choral Festival.

Thomas Taylor Drill and his famous choir of 250 voices, accompanied by Schoneman-Blanchard band, will give an elaborate choral concert at Redondo on Easter Sunday, presenting selections from the works of Offenbach, Handel, Rossini, Gounod, assisted by Miss Myrtle Stedman, Gertrude McIntyre, Ostis G. Mercer, E. C. Rivinius, Mrs. Wolfe and Anne M. Otto.

Mischa Elman,
Russian virtuoso in violin recital at Auditorium.

Three Great Piano Concertos.

Miss Olga Steeb, who made her orchestral debut, as piano soloist, so sensationally at the Majestic Theater last February, scored a decided hit with the San Diego Popular Symphony Orchestra last week.

She will appear as soloist at the woman's orchestra concert on Friday evening, April 24.

Ever since her remarkable orchestral debut in Berlin, when with the assistance of the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra Miss Steeb played nine concertos in two weeks, she has shown contindal development in her ensemble playing until today her work leaves nothing to be desired.

Los Angeles is going to be the first American city to hear three great piano concertos on one programme when Olga Steeb and the Woman's Orchestra will present the Grieg A Minor, Mozart Coronation, and the Saint Saens G Minor concertos. With the intention of making this one of the finest concerts ever presented in the city, Miss Steeb and the women of the orchestra have been holding weekly rehearsals for the past two months. Some wonderful performances have been given at these rehearsals, especially the last two, the soloist and orchestra having become so intimately acquainted with each other.

National Opera Entertainment.

The Los Angeles National Grand Opera Company will give an entertainment, under the auspices of its 500 honorary patrons to inaugurate the establishing in Los Angeles of a permanent home of grand opera for the Pacific Coast. The entertainment will be held in the Auditorium Theater Beautiful on Friday, April 17, at 8:15 p.m. All guests will be invited by the management or by the honorary patrons.

The following is the programme:

Organ recital, overture, Ray Hastings; opening address, Mayor H. H. Rose; Prologue, "Pagliacci" (Leoncavallo,) Ettore Compana, baritone; "Che gelida manina," from "La Boheme" (Puccini,) Archie Chamlee, tenor; "Esser Mesto il mio cor," from "Martha" (Tlotow,) Norma Rockhold Robbins, mezzo soprano; "Eri tu," from "Un Ballo" in "Maschera" (Verdi,) Achille Alberti, baritone; address, Rev. J. Whitcomb Brougher; address, Carl Bronson; address, Charles F. Lummis; "Don Fatale" (Verdi,) Mrs. Charles Bradley, contralto; "Hallelujah Chorus," from "The Messiah" (Handel,) the Los Angeles Vocal Study Club, consisting of members of the entire First M. E. choir, under the direction of Carl Bronson, organist, John Clyde Collison; Quartette from "Rigoletto" (Verdi,) Miss Wanda Robertson, soprano; Norma Rockhold Robbins, mezzo soprano; Archie Chamlee, tenor; Achille Alberti, baritone; accompanist, Mrs. May Orcutt Brooke.

Madrigal Club.

The Madrigal Club's annual musicale will be held at the Gamut Club on Friday, April 17, and not on the 24th. The change of date was decided at the last regular monthly meeting of the club, at which selections from American composers' works were given.

The musical programme consisted of selections from several American composers. The following numbers were contributed: "Grande Polka de Concert" (Bartlett,) Mrs. C. Van Dingstee; "For This" (De Koven,) and "The Merry, Merry Lark" (Nevin,) Mrs. G. F. McKinnie; "Allah" (Chadwick,) Mrs. J. M. Woodruff; "Lilies" (Ida M. Smith,) and "In a Garden" (Hawley,) Mrs. W. J. Haylett. Ida M. Smith accompanied her own composition.

Frieda Peycke.

Miss Frieda Peycke will leave for the East next week, where she will be heard in a number of her unique programmes. The regular evening at the Huntley will be Tuesday, April 14. Miss Peycke will then give several of her newest compositions, and Nanno Woods, the dainty Irish colleen, will assist.

Cornet Recital.

Ed M. Hiner, cornetist and bandmaster, will present his advanced pupils in the Egan School of Music and Drama, in the new Egan Music Hall, No. 1324 South Figueroa street, on Thursday evening, next. Cornet solos and duets, clarinet, French-horn solos, and muted cornet quartette will compose the programme.

Festival Chorus.

Theodore Dubois's celebrated sacred cantata will be given by the Festival Chorus, on Thursday evening at the Auditorium by 150 selected voices. The chorus will be assisted by Mme. Bertha Winslow Vaughn, soprano; John A. Stockman, and Joseph Porter.

Emile Rossett, concert master of the Century Opera Orchestra, an eminent violinist, will be heard for the first time here, and Miss Lillian Ammalee Smith, pianist, will interpret several selections.

The chorus will be under the directions of Maestro Eduardo Lebegott. Ray Hastings, at the organ, will assist the chorus.

Lillian A. Smith.

Besides appearing with the Festival Chorus, Miss Lillian Ammalee Smith, who gave a successful concert in Pasadena last week, and who will appear at Manual Arts High School in recital, April 29, has been invited to play as piano soloist with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, in the early autumn.

Symphony's Next Season.

Season seat reservations for the Symphony season of 1914-1915 have been arriving at the executive offices of the Symphony Association at the rate of about twenty-five a day ever since the close of the past season.

Many names which are coming in are new, which augurs well for the success of the orchestra under Adolf Tandler's baton, next season.

Under the Management Committee, of which J. T. Fitzgerald, G. Allan Hancock and John G. Mott are members, many plans for the development and extension of symphony work and influence are contemplated.

During the coming month the location of the new home of the Symphony Orchestra for the next season will be decided by the directors.

The activities of the orchestra will probably be much enlarged this autumn by out-of-town concerts, Redlands and San Diego having already expressed the desire that the organization may give a series of concerts during the season, in both cities.

Alma Gluck, Soprano.

Alma Gluck, the soprano, was "guest" for the second time this season at the Metropolitan, appearing at the Sunday evening concert. Miss Gluck has by this time thoroughly established herself by her pure, bell-like quality of voice. She will make her first transcontinental tour next winter, starting in the East in November and singing westward, appearing in Los Angeles during January.

John McCormack Departs for London.

Before his departure for Europe, or London to be definite, John McCormack seemed to occupy nearly all the space in the various weekly musical papers. We find him singing in Washington, where the President and his family attended in a special box party; in Detroit, Springfield, Mass., and finally in the greatest concert of them all at the Hippodrome, New York. As a youth he climbed into the organ loft of the cathedral in Dublin, requesting Vincent O'Brien, the organist, to hear him sing. He was a tenor, he stated, realizing at that age that these are rare voices indeed. This was O'Brien's original discovery, as he practically made him as far as bringing the attention of various managers to him is conceived. McCormack in turn claims the credit of having discovered Donald MacLean, the violinist, whom we heard with him here. McCormack himself will return to the Coast in January of next year, but if it had not been for the fact that Manager Behymer closed the deal before they left here, it would not be possible to have him again, so great has the demand been for time in the East.

Olive Fremstad Delayed.

Mme. Olive Fremstad, the distinguished dramatic soprano of the Metropolitan, will scarcely recognize the Coast cities when she visits them next October. It has been twelve years since she was first heard here as Kundry in "Parsifal," in what was probably the greatest aggregation of stars ever brought to the Coast. She has in the meantime created roles in Europe and New York, singing at Covent Garden, the Metropolitan, and on the continent. Her recitals also have become popular throughout the East, thanks to her fine voice, dignity of manner and excellent arrangement of programme.

THE HELPING HAND.

"How far that little candle throws his beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

Another million dollars of Mr. Rockefeller's wealth is to be donated to the public good. He has recently established such a fund for research in subjects that government bureaus have been supposed to cover properly, namely, the prevention of disease among live stock. It has been stated the annual money losses traceable to disease in stock amount to $100,000,000 for cattle, $75,000,000 for hogs, and almost as much for sheep. Mr. Rockefeller's research fund is therefore intended to promote the same kind of research as is conducted in the New York stock institution devoted to medical research, which has announced many important discoveries for the preservation of the health of the human family.

Princeton University is to receive the income on a fund of $3,000,000 under the will of the late F. S. Thompson of New York. The institution will also receive $700,000 worth of the stock of the Chase National Bank of New York. Other bequests by Mr. Thompson were St. Paul's school, Concord, N. H., $140,000; Mercy Hospital and Orphan Asylum, Chicago, $163,186; Salvation Army, San Francisco, $50,000; Seaman's Church Institute, $152,000, and New York Skin and Cancer Hospital, $101,759.

Mrs. Joel Hillman of Washington, D. C., has announced a gift of $14,000 to the Atlanta Hebrew Orphans' Home as a basis for the silver jubilee endowment fund planned for the institution. Announcement of the gift was made in connection with the annual convention of the southern district No. 5 of the Order of B'Nai B'Rith.

Conductor William Schwab of the Southern Pacific Company has recently received the Harriman memorial medal as the premier railroad man of the United States for efficiency. During the year he made many suggestions for greater safety and efficiency in railroading.

It is said that twenty-eight persons last year gave $1,000,000 or more for "benevolent purposes." Andrew Carnegie gave $10,000,000 for a charitable foundation in his native town, Dunfermline, Scotland. But the most unique and the most really human gift was that of Reed B. Freeman of Binghamton, N. Y., who gave his whole fortune of $3,000,000 to the families of the thirty girls who perished in the burning of his factory, and then, at the age of 65, began business again as a clerk in New York City, a poor man.

While 3000 persons watched him fight for life above a sheer drop of 300 feet on the Mt. Washington hillside at Pittsburgh, David Zoupcoff, a Western Union messenger boy, was rescued by Policeman W. J. Burns. The lad collapsed when lowered to the foot of the cliff by means of a rope after he had clung to a perilous perch nearly an hour.

While near the Mt. Washington incline on the top of the hill the boy dropped his last nickel, which rolled over the edge of the bluff. Not knowing of the sheer decline he dashed after his money.

Losing his foothold the boy rolled and plunged to a point about 200 feet down the bluff, where a sapling served to break his fall. He landed on a small shelf of soft shale. Then he grasped a jutting rock and managed to retain his precarious foothold.

Learning of the boy's plight Policeman Burns got a long rope and after tying one end to a tree worked his way down to the imperiled lad, who was then almost exhausted and ready to fall. With another rope placed around Zoupcoff's body the policeman lowered him to the ground below, where a crowd waited to receive him. The boy's fingers were torn as a result of clinging to the rock. His condition is serious.

When Robert Louis Stevenson visited Monterey many years ago he was hard up and his shoes were mended and remended by George Berthold, the village cobbler. The two became chums.

As Stevenson became famous Berthold prospered somewhat financially, blossoming into a shoe store proprietor. He left in his will a provision for a monument to the man who was his friend. The remainder of his estate was left to his two clerks.

The court somehow expunged from the will the provision for the monument, but the clerks who received the entire estate have announced that they would contribute at least as much as Berthold set aside and the monument will be built in a little park.

Selectman E. D. Brigham, having been chosen chairman of the board in West Boylston, has been wearing since a silk hat throughout the day. When asked the reason for such hilarity he replied that his father wore the same hat forty years before when elected chairman of the Board of Selectmen, and that he was perpetuating the custom.

THE UNCHLOROFORMED.

One of the remarkable old men of West Chester, Pa., is Col. Henry E. Gray, who is over ninety years of age, and until a few months since was in active business life. He served in the Civil and Indian wars and saw many hardships. His has been a variegated life of hard work, danger and exposure, but he is still active for one of his years.

Dr. Alfred Bowlby of Waterford, Norfolk county, Ontario, who has just passed his ninety-fourth anniversary, is one of the oldest living graduates of Columbia University, having graduated in 1845.

Baron Fernard de Turckheim of Alsace, celebrated his one hundred and third birthday at Montreaux by playing to his relatives and friends two unpublished nocturnes of Chopin on the piano.

Miss Anna Eliza Reasoner of Battle Creek, Mich., celebrated her eighty-seventh birthday anniversary with a bicycle ride of twenty-five miles over rough and snow-covered roads. Miss Reasoner, a dressmaker, took up bicycling twenty years ago as a means of reaching customers.

Hugh Burns, 78, has asked to be retired from the New York fire department, after forty-five years of active service.

Mrs. Frances Alexander, formerly of Boston, mother of Francesca Alexander, the artist and author, has celebrated her one hundredth birthday at Florence, Italy. Ruskin was their lifelong friend, and one of Francesca Alexander's works was edited by him. Recently Mrs. Alexander, through an unfortunate mistake, destroyed fifty of Ruskin's letters. Notwithstanding her great age, she not long ago translated "The Golden Book," containing the lives of the less-known saints.

English Pronunciation of Latin.

[London Chronicle:] One of the finest linguists the world has ever known makes some strong remarks on our modern pronunciation of Latin. "The history of the English pronunciation of Latin," writes Sir Richard Burton, "is curious. In Chaucer it was after Roman fashion; in Spencer the English appears, and the change begins to make itself felt under the succession of Queen Elizabeth. It is most probable that this was encouraged by the leaders of education, in order more thoroughly to break with Rome. . . . The English pronunciation of Latin vowels happens to be the worst in the world, because we have an o and an a which belong peculiarly to English, and which destroy all the charm of these grand sounding vowels.

THERE is a restful charm and dignity surrounding our porches and gardens which attract us intensely, and the impression made on our friends and visitors is usually the impression which stamps our home in general.

¶ In this land of California, gifted with so transcendent a share of natural beauty, the combination of Art and Nature is perhaps the most fascinating of all its aspects, and it is not only our privilege, but our duty, to carry out our part of its bounty honestly and faithfully.

¶ Art and natural beauty was thoroughly understood and studied by the ancient Greeks, and it is to the Old World that we go for inspirations, our illustration being particularly suggestive.

¶ In the Art Galleries on their Fourth Floor, Barker Bros. have acquired some beautiful examples of Old World designs, incorporating nearly every conceivable requirement for the beautification of the hall, porch, sun parlor, pergola and garden.

¶ At this season of the year everyone is alive to the Home Responsibility. A visit to Barker Bros.' Art Galleries will be found an almost necessary duty, and a cordial reception, without obligation, is extended to all. Such a visit will often add some particularly interesting specimen to the largest mansion—a long-sought piece to the modest home. These Art Galleries have been recently rearranged and many new pieces of interest added, while special attention is called to the Italian and English halls, the Chinese Chippendale living-room, the Adam dining-room and the Normandie enameled bedroom.

Dramatic Reviews.

on the water, and with the whole Hippodrome stage turned into a lake, as it will be for the first week's offering, "Lucia," one can easily conceive of the possibilities.

It is the Hippodrome's big bid for the patronage of society, for lovers of real music and real scenic beauty, when they realize that the Hippodrome is offering something which cannot be seen anywhere else in the country, cannot help but take an interest in the venture.

And the rest of the bill will be well up to Hippodrome standards. Saville Bros. are comedy musicians and acrobats of unusual excellence, while Peggy McClellan is a songbird who scorns the aid of scenery. Gilson and Tolman have won the sobriquet of "the versatile vaudevillians."

Other acts will be the Stevens-Cooper company, presenting "Satan's Sister," Electra and Biele and Girard.

Republic.

"A Romance of the Barbary Coast," a dramatic sketch of San Francisco night life, with a theme resembling the old-fashioned Denman Thompson dramas, will be the headline attraction at the Republic next week. With four great scenes and thirty people in the cast it played to capacity business when shown here several weeks ago, and a persistent demand for a return engagement by Republic patrons has caused Resident Manager Al Watson to bring it back as a headliner.

The two big scenes are in a Chinese opium joint, and in the Thalia, one of the most notorious of the Barbary Coast dance-halls before that historic portion of San Francisco was legislated out of existence. The reproductions of setting and types are remarkable. The story concerns an aged father who has lost his son only to find him, first in a Chinese opium joint and later in the Coast dance hall.

Other good acts on the bill include Fred La Plama, necromantique entertainer; Howatson and Swaybelle, billed as "The English Johnnie and the California Girl;" Upton and Ingham in an entertaining sketch, "Sauce for the Goose;" the Windy City Trio, singing, dancing and talking act; Umholz brothers with a novelty musical act, and comedy first run motion pictures.

Alphin.

The second week of the new Alphin Theater will start with the first performance Monday evening, when Charles Alphin will present another of his breezy summer-girl shows entitled "The Winking Girl."

The book and lyrics are from the pen of Mr. Alphin and are full of many songs of the whistling kind, while a number of comedy situations are plentiful throughout the performance.

Frank Mack and "Billy" Morton, the two comedians, have become great favorites with the first week's audience and their popularity seems to increase with each performance. The other members of the company, which includes Reece Gardner, Charles Parnell, Al Franks, Alice Lewis, Maxine Wilford, Barbara Lynette and Sadie Stanfield, have also made individual hits with the new patrons of the Alphin. The sixteen tango girls and the quartette of male voices will also be seen to great advantage in next week's bill.

The show presented the past week by Mr. Alphin lived up to the advance billing as a real live, down to the minute, tabloid musical comedy, and Mr. Alphin will continue to present musical comedies of a high order, omitting all suggestive comedy and other situations.

Two shows are given each evening with matinees on Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday.

Woodley Theater.

This week at the Woodley Theater "The Mutual Girl," who has done so many wonderful things, meets a real hero. No less a personage, in fact, than Col. Evans, the intrepid explorer, who headed the South Pole rescue expedition.

It is one of the most interesting pictures in which "The Mutual Girl" has yet made her appearance, and will be one of more than ordinary interest to Woodley patrons, who will be able to see their favorite picture girl and some really wonderful people at the same time.

Of course, there will be the other favorites of the Mutual programme, including the Keystone comedy and some thrill features, and then, too, there will be a unique music programme, which C. Percival Garratt will render on the mammoth Woodley pipe organ.

The music and the Mutual girl, with their surrounding adjuncts, will make a capital Easter week bill, and there is an Easter feature, too, the nature of which Manager Woodley will not divulge, but which promises to be as big a scream as some of the new Easter bonnets.

Clune's Broadway.

Resplendent with beautiful southern scenery, realistic setting and thrilling situations, a five-act motion-picture version of Augustus Thomas's powerful drama of rural life comes to Clune's Broadway for six days, beginning tomorrow.

This picture will mark the first appearance of the eminent actor, Burr McIntosh, in the silent drama; in it he portrays the character made famous by him on the speaking stage, that of Jo Vernon, the big-hearted village blacksmith. As a play and theatrical attraction, "In Mizzoura" enjoyed several seasons of gratifying success and satisfied millions of theatergoers the country over.

[illegible]

"The Memories That Haunt," the big feature picture of the sea, with its dramatic shipwreck scene, will be shown for the last time at Clune's Broadway Theater today and tonight, and tomorrow a brand-new bill, headlined by the second installment of "The Perils of Pauline," the new serial picture, will commence a three-days' run.

The first installment of Pauline's adventures, which was shown at Clune's a fortnight ago, caused a veritable sensation among the motion-picture fans of the city and there are many who have been eagerly awaiting the announcement of when the second film was to be shown. In this installment Pauline will be taken through any number of perils, and thrills and throbs galore are promised the spectators.

A number of splendid single reels will be shown along with the feature picture, while news events of recent date will be chronicled on the screen by Los Angeles by the Pathe, and the Selig News Weeklies.

Miller's.

The two programmes that Miller's, Spring and Main-streets Theaters, present this week are undoubtedly the best. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday's show consists of six first-run pictures of the highest possible class, including the first showing of that fascinating serial story, "The Perils of Pauline." This absorbing story of thrills and adventure gets more exciting each time and is eagerly awaited by the thousands who are following the course.

The mystery connected with this story is a deep one and those who are working for the big prizes should be sure to see the picture and be helped toward the solution. The settings of the picture grow more beautiful, as do the beautiful costumes of the heroine, and these details are brought out to an amazing degree at Miller's from the fact that they are shown on that wonderful plate-glass mirror-screen.

The Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday show will be headed by the photoplay masterpiece adaptation of Charles Klein's most representative American stage success, "Daughters of Men." This wonderful drama has been made into an absorbing motion picture by the same all-star cast of Lubin players that made those other two great Miller successes, "The Third Degree" and "The Lion and the Mouse." Shows begin at 12, 1:30, 3, 4:30, 6, 7:30 and 9 p.m.

Majestic.

"Native Life in the Philippines," a film that has caused more comment in the official life of the country than any other moving picture ever taken, because of its relation to the natives of our island possessions and their future needs, will come to the Majestic Theater on April 16—next Thursday—for a run of ten days.

The pictures are being shown under the direction of the Pacific Feature Film Exchange. They are in two parts and aggregate 12,000 feet of film.

They were taken by Charles Martin, the government photographer, while on a leave of absence, under the direction of Dean C. Worcester, who for fifteen years was the Secretary of the Interior of the Philippines.

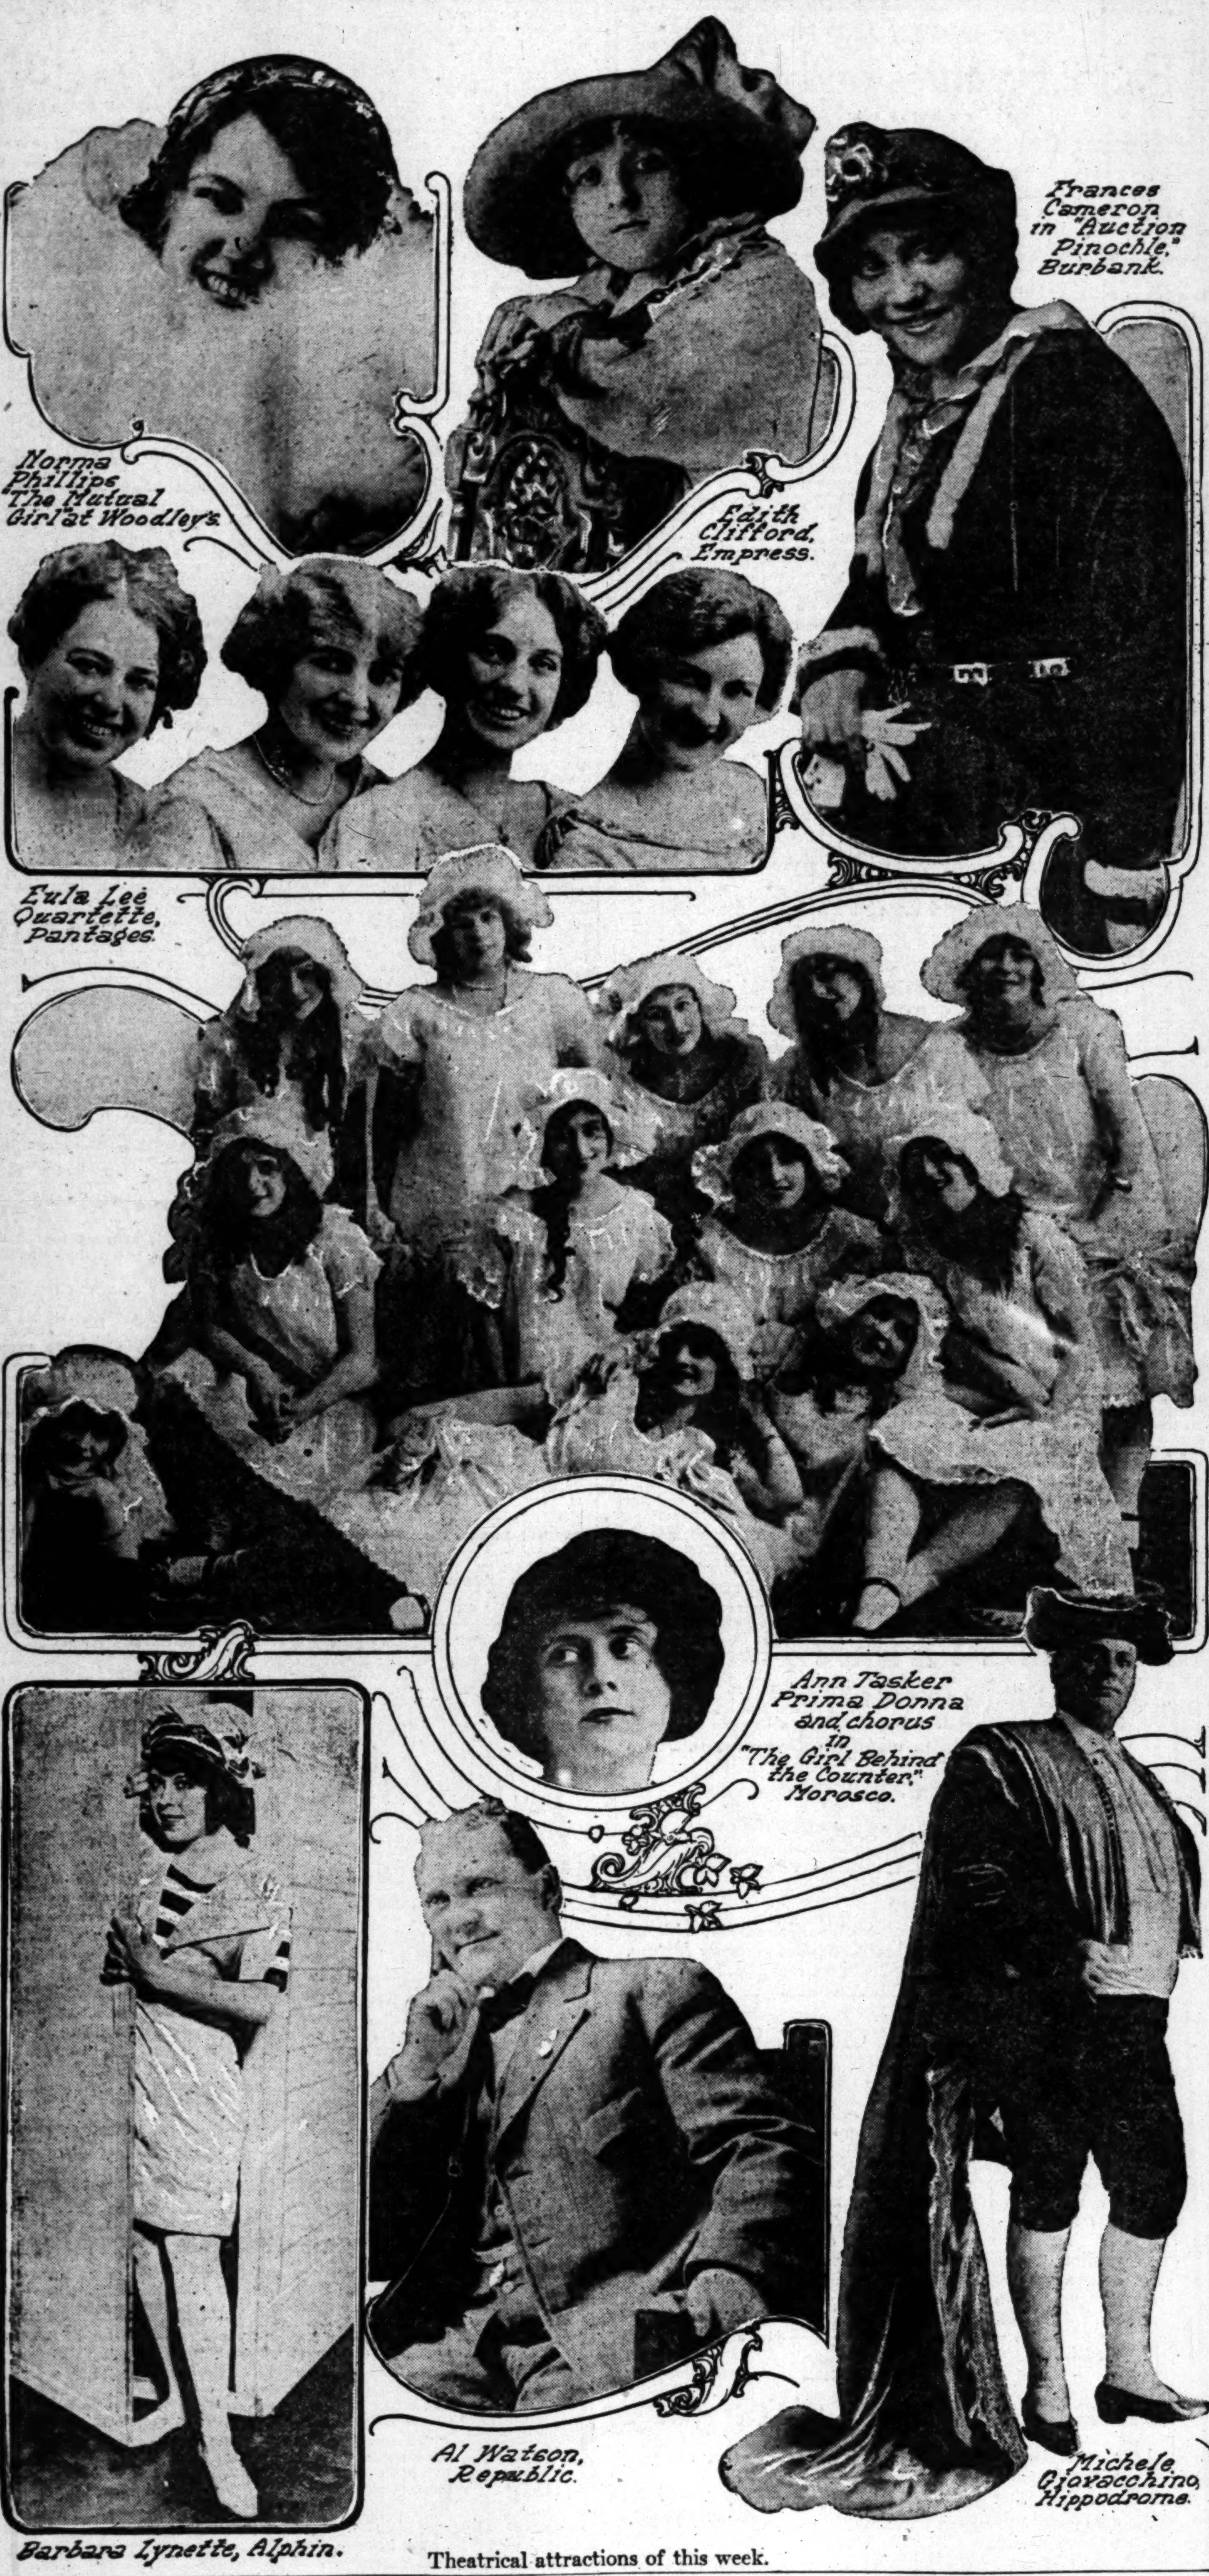
For the first five days of the engagement, "The Head Hunters" will be shown, with the romances, sports and festivities of the wild tribes, in a thrilling way never before pictured. The second part will be shown during the last five days, "From Savages to Civilization," showing the government's uplift movement.

Egan School.

What in all probability will be the most extensive juvenile dramatic celebration ever attempted in Los Angeles will be given at the Little Theater soon. It is the production of the locally well-known musical fantasy of fairyland, "Wan o' the Wood," Florence Willard's charming play.

Frank Egan has the production in charge and has gone to considerable expense in preparing the production. New scenery of an elaborate nature has been secured, rehearsals are practically completed and the juvenile performers are anxious for the opening performance.

The cast numbers more than sixty children. Three complete sets of principals will appear on alternate nights in the play.



Norma Phillips, "The Mutual Girl" at Woodley's.
Edith Clifford, Empress.
Frances Cameron in "Auction Pinochle," Burbank.
Eula Lee Quartette, Pantages.
Ann Tasker Prima Donna and chorus in "The Girl Behind the Counter," Morosco.
Barbara Lynette, Alphin.
Al Watson, Republic.
Michele Giovacchino, Hippodrome.

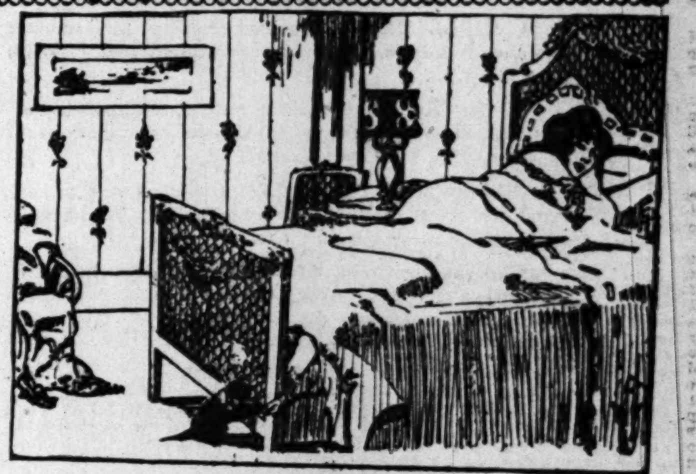
THE MOODS OF GENEVIEVE.

BY GWEN SEARS.

Illustrated by Katherine Fogg.



NO. 2—THE SENSITIVE MOOD.

Only my Sensitive Mood knows what a dainty, fastidious, exciting piece of humanity it can be. There are days when every nerve and fiber of me cries out for the smooth, delicate, comfortable things of life. My whole soul shouts in protest and suffers over crude, inharmonious surroundings.

Oh, it's a mood of nerve straining almost to the breaking point. I could scream aloud at the jangle of my typewriter; I could wish to die when the woman across the court pretends to sing as she washes her dishes. I want quiet, peace, smoothness, rest.

In my boarding-house room I feel like a caged bird, suffering every annoyance that torture can invent. I become appalled when I realize what it really means to live in a single room, just one room and no more. I rub my eyes in groping unbelief.

I reach for the window shade and send it clattering to the top. All outdoors! The grim humor of it smites me. On every side are bleak, gray walls and myriad windows, tier upon tier, where human beings dwell as cramped and as imprisoned as I.

These are the days when I rebel at the hideous wall paper, scratched woodwork, and stained, worn carpet. This is the mood that calls out to my artistic girl self, and together they point out the cheap oak dresser in derision, and the topsy-turvy, bumpy-looking couch that is supposed to make the room like a sitting-room in the day and a bedroom at night.

The rocker that sags when you sit in it, and the floors that creak when you walk; all are enemies to my Sensitive Mood; and the mirror which makes your face look like a large, blotty smear, with two noses and four eyes, are all enemies to my Sensitive Mood.

At night I can forget the wall paper in the darkness, I can turn a deaf ear to the noises across the way, I can refuse to be crippled for life by the bumpy bed couch. But in the morning, if my Sensitive Mood is still with me, the boarding-house breakfast confronts me with terror.

An orange with all the hope dried out of it, coffee that has meditated two hours on the range, disheartened oatmeal with a dressing of Alice blue milk, and the eggs—Oh, my Sensitive Mood will not allow me to proceed.

But some day all this shall be over forever. The Ambitious Mood shall conquer all, and I shall pack all the other moods in a great bundle and we shall fly away to a house of dreams at the foot of a green hill, and there we shall delight in quaint wall papers, chintz, delft pottery, and Chicken Salad.

Now I can laugh again since the Sensitive Mood has taken leave. I can shout with glee when the handles of the dresser come off; I can sing with the jangle of the typewriter for an accompaniment, I can laugh aloud at screeching wall paper and make faces in the crazy mirror. All this may I do, for I know it will not be forever.

Chat With Fritzi.

singers are built like truck horses, and I can just imagine the little lump of quicksilver you must have been in that sedate circle."

Once again, the silvery, tinkling laugh. "There was something in that. Do you know that when I sang in 'The Valkyrie' they had to make a special spear for me, and armour? Everything in the company storeroom had been made for people like Gaddski and Schumann-Heink.

GRAND OPERA TOO MUCH.

"Grand opera was too much for me," she explained when I asked her why she went into musical comedy, and then into vaudeville. "You have to be tremendously strong to sing grand opera. I used to be compelled to stay in bed two days after singing an important role. The money is about the same in both cases.

"Besides, your operahouses here are so huge. We have nothing like them in Europe, and that is the reason why some of the most beautiful voices in the world are not heard on this side of the water. They would be lost in your vast auditoriums."

This change that Fritzi Scheff made, when she found that she was too young and too weak to continue the work, brought to mind the case of our own Selma Paley, and I have partly arranged to have her meet Miss Scheff during her stay here. It ought to be an interesting meeting.

Fritzi tells me she is having the time of her life. "They bring flowers and Kewpies to my dressing-room all along the route," she remarked. And when I inquired further, I learned that collecting the cute little dolls is a hobby with her, and she has a wonderfully grotesque collection of them.

IN THE LIMELIGHT.

Barratt O'Hara, Lieutenant-Governor of Illinois, has been seeking a job in a New England mill, that he may learn, as a fellow-worker, whether low wages is the underlying cause of the downfall of girlhood in a commercial way.

At 35 years of age James D. Mortimer of Milwaukee has been elected president of the North American Corporation, the $60,000,000 holding company for some of the greatest electric power and traction corporations of the nation. Mr. Mortimer has had one of the most remarkable careers in American engineering history.

William L. Day, United States judge for the Northern District of Ohio, has decided to leave the bench on May 1 that he may resume the practice of law, which is more remunerative than a judgeship.

John Bassett Moore, who recently resigned his position as counselor of the State Department at Washington, is mentioned as a possible candidate on the Republican ticket to succeed Elihu Root in the United States Senate from New York.

J. B. Hutchinson, assistant to the vice-president of the Pennsylvania Railroad and in charge of the real estate, purchases and insurance of the road, has retired after service of more than half a century with the company. This is in accordance with the road's pension plan. Mr. Hutchinson is 70 years old.

Col. Arthur Yager, who has just been installed as Governor of Porto Rico, has declared himself in favor of granting American citizenship to all residents of the island who desire it. Gov. Yager is a native of Kentucky.

William C. Brown, who retired recently from the presidency of the New York Central Railroad, was recently asked why he did not continue in the railroad field. "What is there to compare with the responsibilities," he said. "When I see that a railroad president can be indicted and tried for manslaughter upon the mistake of a switchman, or an engineer, or for an error in judgment on the part of his yardmaster, why should I wish to continue in the business? I have enough for myself and my children. Why should I set myself up as a mark to be shot at by indictments and criminal trials, to say nothing of what we are getting from Washington."

Cultivating the Speaking Voice.

[Springfield Republican:] A woman contributor to Zion's Herald thinks that it would be more sensible for the schools to cultivate a pleasant speaking voice than to teach singing. She says truly: "A very ordinary or even a naturally unpleasant voice can be so modulated and cultivated that it will not grate upon the ear." The New Bedford Standard agrees with the writer as to the need of cultivating the speaking voice, but thinks that the mental and moral nature will still have much to do with the tone used at any particular moment. This, too, is true. But it is no reason why the schools should not do their best, and the schools can insist on voice culture no less than on correct grammar. But it is more a matter of deportment than of "lessons," and one would hate to see it included in the curriculum.

Pure silk with lisle tops and soles; black with white clocks and white with black, or either self-clocked. Regardless of the clocking, it's an unusually handsome silk hose at $1.50 a pair.

FOR WOMEN AND MEN.

Facts, Features and Fancies.

BY OLIVE GRAY.

GOOD HOUSEKEEPER'S HINT: Get a tin spoon, turn over the handle and always keep it in your baking-powder can. You will find this very handy.

I believe the tango was invented as a test of common sense.

It has been said that all people harbor somewhere in their make-up a streak of lunacy, and this tango craze seems to bring it out as sulphur and molasses taken in the spring brings out the impurities of the system.

People who have carried themselves sedately ever since emerging from their teens, will upon pretext of this modern dance begin to act as thought they hadn't a grain of common sense.

As a matter of fact the tango is but the culmination—the translation into acts—of the contamination which has long been creeping insidiously into dress. Instead of certain articles of clothing and ornament being named after this silly and in some instances corrupt dance, the dance itself is the epitome of the garments, or the lack of them. Nudity, per se, may be the personification of modesty like that of the Greek slave, but it is the concealment which studiedly reveals that is immoral and removed from decency. Much of the dress of the past few years has been of this character. The reason for this is, I think, not so much in fashion itself, but in the vulgar interpretation of it. A mode intended for use upon the stage or in the privacy of milady's boudoir, is adopted by every woman everywhere, without regard to fitness.

The same is true in regard to the tango. The young are expected to work off their exuberance in violent physical exercise of some sort, and it is perhaps pardonable if they do this tango-wise, but for middle-aged men and women and many who are far beyond middle age to cavort in this contorting manner, is not only undignified but ridiculous. And this, too, is but a logical result of a characteristic which has long been growing upon us. The "Oh-so-youthful" craze has taken such full poossession of both men and women that they were ready to yield without a struggle to the final demonstration of this trend which is the tango.

No one believes more ardently than I in the preservation of youth; but there is a way in which to do this preserving and a way which proclaims but the travesty of youth, and to see a man or a woman decked out in attire fit for babies with goo-goo eyes, or to see them tearing around as though they were wound up with springs which might at any moment break or run down, is far from beautiful or elevating.

Slaves of Fashion.

And now it is predicted that the female form divine is about to undergo a radical change at the hands of her dictator, Madame La Mode.

Just as we were beginning to hope that at least a degree of comfort might be maintained, without being wholly out of fashion, comes the edict that a certain style and size of form is to be devised by some architectural commission of the human feminine form, and according to the ideals developed by this set of men (of course, it will be men) are the fashionable forms of women to be molded.

Of course we shall submit. Have we not always submitted to the edicts of fashion? To fail to do so now—or ever—would be to revolutionize the laws of society more radically than to abolish the home, the church or the rules of common business honor. For—let us not forget—fashion holds a firm hand over all of these, as well as over the affairs of dress.

A Revolution Fashionable.

The only way in which women will even attain to real freedom in dress is for fashion to make freedom the vogue.

There is a new trouser costume for women which is the embodiment of comfort. The trousers are roomy, but not cumbersome. The coat is trim and rather masculine, but not too much so and with it may be worn a jaunty blouse and a hat not over severe and shoes not too mannish. In short the suit is one which all sensible women of business or affairs would naturally covet; but do you suppose it will be adopted with avidity? By no manner of means. I have asked several most sensible women if they would be willing to wear this suit and the reply has invariably been: "If all other women wore it." Now how can it be possible for dress reform to make very rapid progress when women feel like this? And yet can they be blamed since the woman who is highly unusual in any regard is pecked at my men and women alike as chickens peck to death one not belonging to their flock? Even Poiret himself, the inventor of the new trouser suit, has not ventured to predict its adoption before the year 1924. In this prediction he is safe, since no one will remember it so far into the future. He may be right or wrong. By 1924 we may have returned to the fashion of our great-grandmothers, or we may have gone so far beyond the new Poiret suit that it will seem but an incident in woman's emancipation of as slight concern to our evolution as was the high-wheeled bicycle to the progress of locomotion. Who is wise enough to say?

If Bound to Tango.

But if you are bound to tango—and if you are youthful I do not care how much you tango, provided you do so decently—you should have garments fitted for the exercise.

I saw a new tango petticoat which was so "cut and strung" that it gave freedom of movement and at the same time—protection. It was, of course, of silk—Italian silk in this instance—and it had elastic around the lower edge above a frilly fall of lace. It was pretty and would, I judge, well fulfill its purpose.

Practical Lacery.

With the vogue for lace hats and hats with lacy brims, comes the new lace straw which is both beautiful and practical.

In white nothing could be more dainty, while in black the fine open work of the woven braid is charming. These new lace hats need but little trimming and that of a simple kind. The white ones form a lovely background for the masses of flowers and foliage which are this season so natural as to seem but lately plucked from garden or field. Those of black are handsome when trimmed with a single ostrich fancy, or paradise distributed in some unique manner, as a flare around the brim, or in some newly devised lattice for crown or facing. The fact that these lace straws are much more durable than lace, maline or chiffon also adds to their welcome with the woman who considers matters practical.

Fashion's Latest Word.

For evening toilettes fashion is putting the hair high on top of the head and adorning it with pins and combs.

The use of plaid and Roman-striped ribbon for girdles is more and more pronounced as the season advances.

The small turban is the proper thing, but it has a rival in the mandarin with a bandeau and ties of ribbon velvet.

It is modish to wear a bracelet with the evening frock. It should fit the wrist closely and be put on just above the hand.

The chin strap of pearls, fastened on the top of the head with a bunch of straight ostrich plumes, is one of the new ideas in evening coiffure.

The latest boots for street wear are laced at the top, and the low ones for evening wear are strapped across the ankle or laced with cothurnes of velvet or ribbon.

The smart combination of checked and plain materials has crept into children's fashions in the form of the smock-like bodice and the litt of plain material.

Street shoes, pumps and shoes are made of dark-red edged with black and mounted jet buckles. Also there are green leather slippers.

The new colors that win favor are the sweet-pea of red, pink, violet and purple darin yellow, Sevres blue, red, cypress green, putty almond.

Style Innovations 1914

So much that is sparkling with the gloss of novelty is here for this week's shoppers that it is hard to know where to begin and where to end with their mention.

Magnificent Silk Suits

$35.00, $37.50, $42.50

Not merely copies, absolute duplicates of late French models reproduced in imported taffetas, silk bengalines, silk moires and poplins. In these suits every style feature worthy the name is pictured and the prices are but a fraction of the prices asked for the originals. Black and nearly every favored color.

Dainty Silk Dresses

$19.50, $25.00, $29.50, $35.00

Particular attention is directed to a new collection of taffeta and crepe de chine dresses we present this week. All the style there is, all the beauty and harmony of color, all the grace, refinement and simplicity that Fashion can bestow on popular-priced silk gowns have been given these new creations. Black and all the newer street shades. Prices at every step up from $19.50.

Coats for All Occasions

Cloth Coats, Moire Silk Coats, Black Taffeta Coatees

A style for each occasion, a color and price to satisfy any need or fancy.

The Danger of the "Washwoman Coiffure."

DO YOU know what dastardly plan is now on foot to destroy our crowning glory?

Simply this: Someone, (someone with no hair at all, probably) has invented the "Washwoman Coiffure," and is trying to wish it on us.

I talked to a scalp expert about it and she insists that it is ruinous to the hair and if women adopt it, they will eventually become as bald as the probable inventor. (I wager that the inventor is a bald-headed male, over 60, which is a catty thing to say.)

This is the way it is done:

The hair is first combed and brushed until every particle of curl, or wave or softness has vanished, then it is screwed on the head in as tight a knot as can be made.

For evening this knot is worn high on the head and for afternoon and informal occasions it is worn on the neck.

In either way the whole effect is like that of a washerwoman at her work.

The straining back and tight pinning breaks the hair off short and straightens it hopelessly. Then too, the constant pulling is painful and the woman who wears it wrinkles up her forehead, squints and frowns all sorts of tiny and big lines in her face.

I tried to get a photograph of this coiffure, but not a model or friend would pose for me. One friend, who is an extreme dresser and occasionally dresses her hair in this way, says she "refuses to be perpetuated in this ungodly style." She did, however, give me her photograph with her usual coiffure, and I am using it today. Can you imagine her beautiful, luxuriant hair screwed into a hard knot of unbecomingness? Beautiful hair is such a wonderful think to have. It should be worn as loosely and becomingly as possible.

Do not follow the bell sheep of fashion when your good looks are in jeopardy. And more important still, when affecting a style means your hair out by its roots and numberless wrinkles to find a nent lodging place around and temples, avoid it as you the cholera.

Art Club's Exhibition.

An artistic atmosphere that is genuinely cosmopolitan hovers over the auditorium of the Friday Morning Club, where the spring exhibition of the California Art Club is in full swing. At last we really have arrived! At last our artists are kicking and objecting, scrapping and protesting, exactly as artists always have done, from time immemorial, in Munich and Paris, in Chicago and New York and Philadelphia.

The cause of the tea-pot tempest? The prizes, of course. Did you ever know of a prize that was satisfactory to anybody but its recipient? And often he thinks he should have gotten the first instead of the second or third. 'Twas ever thus, for 'tis human nature, and I, for one, am glad that we are waking up enough to become agitated, for it is a proof that we are actually alive.

To be alive is to be, more often than not, very foolish. Artists are children, deeply immersed in the making of mud pies, and when their elbows are goggled, or when their mud pies are not appreciated and praised, they become exceedingly peevish. Then they get mad and loudly declare they won't play any more in our yard. This is what has happened in the California Art Club, from which several members have sulkily withdrawn, refusing to exhibit.

Delightful! Absurd, if you like—but remarkably human, pleasingly in accord with what we know of the vagaries and tantrums of the genus irritabile, absolutely truthful to type. It's only the dead artist that never "flies off the handle." The live one is apt to skate off on more unexpected tangents than a flying machine. And paint all the better for these debouches.

Therefore, let us not be dismayed or unduly disturbed because the prizes were considered misfits by many, and because a few disgruntled painters refused to show their wares with the other members of the California Art Club. These agitations are electrical and vital, healthful to the growth of the body artistic in Los Angeles.

Artists (I ought to know) are uncertain, coy and hard to please. Let me illustrate my point with truthful happenings in the career of an art reviewer. This reviewer started out in life with the noble idea of being very, very kind to the artists, of drawing the public's attention to the good qualities in their work, of ignoring, as much as might be, the bad ones. Then the artists sneered and said he didn't know anything about art. They implored him to jump on them—said there was nothing in the world they liked so well as being sat on good and hard.

The reviewer took them at their word—or pretended to. He began to point out the errors in A's construction of the figure, the lack of aerial perspective in B's landscapes, the false values in C's still-life studies. Immediately there came a hue and cry of pained protest and righteous wrath from A and B and C. They even cut the reviewer dead when they met him on the streets or in the galleries.

So there you are! If he praises or blames, if he discreetly mixes blame with praise, the art reviewer will find himself all wrong from the artist's standpoint. I leave it to you—is not the well-intentioned reviewer's position a hard one? Was ever a job more thankless? But whatever his method of procedure, the conscientious critic rejoices when he sees that he has stirred up the artists to life.

Speaking for myself, I consider the painting of an even passably good picture such a tremendously difficult feat that I feel strongly reluctant to say a single word in derogation. Art is long and hard—therefore art reviewers should not be short and hard. A word may hurt a soaring spirit, crush an ambition, wreck a career. Artists, you may say, should not be over-sensitive—but if they were not, how could they be artists?

After this "heart to heart" talk, let us take a brief survey of our muttons. The $100 prize went to Detlef Sammann, and nobody has raised a single objection to this award, for his landscape, "The Survival of the Fittest," is probably the strongest painting this strong painter has so far done—admirably big and free in technique, big and free in feeling, big in every way. Sammann, I am glad to say, is getting away from the technique he employed a year or two ago, that of little spots of pure color, which he borrowed in Munich, but which does not suit his temperament. He is evolving a perfectly good one of his own, as "The Survival of the Fittest" proves. (The title of the picture suggests the artist's own emancipation!)

Helena Dunlap won the second prize for her winter landscape, recently painted in Northern California, "A Mountain Stream." She, too, is at her very best in this canvas—a wide field of snow reflecting the blue of the sky, in the foreground a sluggish winter stream. A notable bit of impressionism in which we feel the invigorating chill of the atmosphere. Miss Dunlap's "Mountain Cottages," another snow scene, is also attractive.

The two honorable mentions, each with a cash prize, went to Hanson Puthuff and Warren E. Rollins. The jury were a little undecided as to whether Rollins should have it for his picture, "Evening on the Mesa," or for "The Land of Little Rain," but finally settled on the former, because of its technical beauty, its color, and its poetic feeling. In "The Land of Little Rain" the painting of immense clouds is notably successful. Puthuff's landscape "Wonderglow," is one of his fine studies of Southern California hills, rich and warm in color, the scheme "holding together" much more firmly and harmoniously than sometimes happens in this artist's interesting landscapes.

A special prize in modeling was awarded to Julia Bracken Wendt, who showed a portrait in the round, and one in relief, both delightful. The bust, a portrait of Mrs. Washburn of San Francisco, is the prize winner. It has much of the elusive charm of "La Femme Inconnue" of the Louvre—an analogy carried out by the pose of the head as well as by the modeling of the pedestal. Mrs. Wendt's lady, too, might have "lived in Florence, centuries ago." Marco Zin shows a strongly modeled portrait head of a man; May Mott-Smith two medallion heads in copper, small, but exquisite, being hardly larger than a coin.

Jean Mannheim's picture, "Among the Flowers," shows two little girls who are much more fascinating than the flowers. The flowers, indeed, are rather negligible, as Mannheim's posies often are—mere masses and spots of color, on which sunlight is supposed to play, but doesn't. The children, one sitting and one standing, are the artist's own sweet little daughters, his constant patient models. Mannheim has painted their faces in shadow, one of the most difficult things for a figure painter to attempt, and has done it triumphantly, with a fine play of color and an absolutely sure touch. This artist has a rare feeling for the charm of childhood.

Of like success is Esther Hunt's portrait, that of Mrs. Barta Hilliard. The pose is quiet, the flesh is admirably done, the textures of tawny hair and black gown are rendered with truth and skill. You feel, too, that the character of the sitter is there—sweet, dignified, gentle and strong. The background, however, presumably a Japanese screen, with decorations of sprawling tree limbs, does not quite take its place—you are not convinced of the flat surface of the screen.

Jack smith shows a beautiful moonlight study of the ruined arches of San Juan Capistrano, which he calls "The Final Requiem," a title which strikes me as being even worse than Sammann's "The Survival of the Fittest" for his picture of old cypresses at Monterey. Two wolves are howling the "requiem"—possibly after the bones of the dead padres have been thoroughly picked, hence "final requiem." Name aside, however, the picture is poetic in sentiment and expression, tender in its tonality, probably the best canvas that has yet come from this talented painter's brush.

One of the most interesting and original canvases in the exhibition is Charles Percy Austin's "Fantasy," a group of strange figures doing strange dances in a circle of amber light. The figures, men and women, are grotesque and beautiful, garbed in motley, as though the characters of "I' Pagliacci" were amusing themselves before the real business of the day began. Two of the dancing figures are swinging hoops of roses, while the others seem to be keeping time and applauding. A strikingly effective composition, with an unusual scheme of color and very well painted.

Another strange picture, though in quite a different way, is Hamilton Achille Wolf's symbolical composition, which bears the long title of "The Three Gates of Time: The Past, the Present and the Future." Wolfe has tried to say a great deal in this picture—more, it seems to me, than a canvas will hold. The theme belongs to literature rather than painting. A weltering mass of humanity is struggling toward and away from the three gates, which are drawn in a curiously interesting geometrical way, huge segments and triangles and curves, much as a modern cubist might have conceived them. The canvas is well painted throughout, harmonious in color, and there is a feeling of vivid light in the direction of the gate which opens into the future.

In J. H. Sharp's "The Bride's Gift," the three Indian maidens are posed with the lovely simplicity and effectiveness of girls on a Greek vase, and even their clothes in color and cut suggest flowing Attic draperies. It is all very beautifully painted, the maids are lithe and straight, and as sweet as our own "girl graduates."

Real air and real sunlight are found in "My Sunshine" and "Arcadien," by Karl Yens, the first canvas being like a gloriously colored illustration for a fairy story—say, "The Fair One With the Golden Locks"—while the second is breezily out of doors till you get to the sky and distant mountains, the sky being too much like the "color scheme" for an interior decoration, the mountain range too heavy and unatmospheric. Nell Brooker Mayhew, too, leans to decorative design rather than nature's truth. "The Tale of Time" is a fine study of an old house, but the artist has taken unwarranted liberties with both sky and foreground, smudging in spots of color till all quality is gone, and only thin stains of paint remain. There are parallel bars of dark green across the foreground which are inexplicable. Are they a green fence, or the shadow of an elevated railway—or what?

Benjamin Chambers Brown shows a "Sunlit Coast, Monterey," vigorously handled, in which the sea is all tossing turquoise and lapis lazuli, the rocks along the shores all dark amber shot with rose. In Fannie E. Duvall's "Salve," a study of her own front porch, are found sunlight and pleasant color, a genuine outdoor feeling. Maurice Braun gives us floating mists of late afternoon in his "Hillside," William Silva a noble expanse of marsh and sky in "The Winding Creek," Aaron E. Kilpatrick a true bit of Southern California in "Evening Shadows."

Carl Oscar Borg contributes three of his crisp little Italian water colors; Susie M. B. Dando, a technical tour-de-force in the water-color medium, a study of crimson dahlias, while "Scene in Tyrol," from the brush of the late Eugene C. Frank, is a fine rendering of twilight in a valley among the Alps.

All in all, this is the strongest exhibition ever held by the California Art Club, and its high quality augurs well for the future of art in Southern California. The fifty-six pictures and sculptures will remain in the Woman's Club House to the end of April.

Ernest Browning Smith.

An exhibition of thirty-one landscapes and shore marines by Ernest Browning Smith opened in the Blanchard gallery on April 6, to close on April 18. The pictures are from Southern California, the Lake Tahoe region and Yosemite Valley.

To Ernest Browning Smith—as to any artist of convictions—art means self-expression, and nothing else whatsoever. And self-expression means expression in a man's own way, not in the way of Whistler or Monet or Cezanne. Smith has consistently followed this line of reasoning, with the result that we have sometimes been at a loss as to what he was driving at. We are beginning to find out in the present exhibition, which is by far the best he has given us—and he has handed them out, year after year, with unswerving regularity.

I must admit that I for my part, have hitherto considered his color often harsh and forbidding, his technique sometimes weak and uncertain. He has not quite found himself yet, of course, but his growth during the past year has been marvelously rapid, and some day, I think, we shall come to regard him as one of our strongest and most original painters. Nor, I opine, is that day far distant.

His technique has become more facile, more sure. He is dropping—unconsciously, no doubt, as Sammann is doing it with spots—the parallel strokes and woolly blots of the past, which he assumed, no doubt, for the carrying out of an idea, but which he is discarding for a better idea. He is, in fact, finding his own technique, a procedure that is in line with his reiterated convictions concerning self-expression.

I had intended to give a rapid survey of Smith's pictures in this week's Art and Artists, but I like them so well that I mean to give them further study before I do so. Therefore my running commentary will be postponed to next Sunday. Meanwhile, go and look at the canvases for yourselves. They will richly repay you.

ART NOTES.

At the last meeting of the Palette Club, Tuesday, April 7, the work of Corot was discussed, and Hamilton Achille Wolf gave a general talk on French painting from David to the moderns.

Fannie E. Duvall will leave Los Angeles April 24, to sail for Europe on April 30. She will probably be gone for several years, spending one year in Venice, and then going to Florence and Rome.

Roland W. Reed, who has studied the North American Indian for a dozen years, will soon hold an exhibition of artistic photographs in Los Angeles.

Owing to illness in her family, Kathryn Herndon McManaman has just closed her studio in the Bradbury building, several months ahead of her usual time.

An exhibition of etchings, dry-points and mezzotints by Seymour Haden opened in Hill Tolerton's gallery, San Francisco, April 9, to continue for three weeks. The gallery is at No. 107 Grant avenue.

It Will Startle You How "GETS-IT" Gets Corns Every Time.

"One, two, three!" That's about as long as it takes you to apply "GETS-IT," the new-plan, simplest, surest corn cure the world has ever seen. Corn fussing is all over. Corns, corn pains and callouses are absolutely done for, from the minute you apply "GETS-IT." Forget the bother of useless plasters, greasy salves that spread and make the toes sore and raw, little doughnut cotton rings that press on corns, forget knives, razors, scissors and the dangers of blood poison from drawing blood, and the contraptions and harnesses that simply make corns worse. "GETS-IT" never hurts the flesh, never fails.

LAURA JEAN LIBBEY TALKS HEART TOPICS.

Had Fate Been Kind—[illegible] that Parted Them.

"Forever, Fortune, wilt thou prove
An unrelenting foe to love,
And when we meet a mutual heart
Come in between and bid us part."

It's an old, trite, but true saying that there are few women in the world who have not indulged in needless grieving over some ne'er-do-well, fickle man. In their lonely moments, they worry over what might have been.

They wonder if he ever gives a thought to the sweetheart of other days, and would live over the [illegible] beautiful past again, if it were possible. She remembers every [illegible] word of love, all the sentiment that was in his letters and her happiness in his presence in those other days.

She ponders over the trifle which parted them. The thought flashes across her mind: Is it too late for fate to be kind to her? Is there a way of bridging over the past and becoming reconciled with each other? She has never been able to become interested in any other man. Each and every one has suffered in comparison with him. The man whose memory is still in her heart had a nature which attuned itself to hers. He was sympathetic, generous, courteous as a carpet knight of old. He studied her every wish, and was never wanting in his efforts to add to her comfort. Jealousy, which has parted so many lovers, caused their estrangement. Both of them were proud and neither would make the first advance toward reconciliation. She who flirts desperately to forget finds that she has pursued the wrong course to win.

A BETTER LOVER.

The right kind of a marriageable man does not want the girl for a sweetheart who has no difficulty in being "on with a new love before she is off with the old." Thus she is left mateless at last, alone and heart-hungry. What a pity it is that women will waste their lives in grieving over that which was really a blessing in disguise to them.

If women could look in upon the homes of the men whom they couldn't get, they would rejoice exceedingly that they missed the object upon whom they once set their heart. The woman whom the ne'er-do-well does marry no doubt wishes from the depths of her heart that her first sweetheart had married him instead of it being her unhappy fate. She often wonders, as she sits waiting for him to come home in the wee sma' hours, what the other woman would have done were she in her place, under just such disheartening circumstances; what she would have said to him had he come home to her at any old time expecting his dinner to be hot and the table to be laden with food, though he contributed little or nothing to its purchase. Would the first sweetheart, after she had wedded him, have taken in sewing to make both ends meet, that the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker might be paid—aye, and the landlord, too—that they would not have to move every month? Would she have stood for his mean abuses if she refused him money for cigars when she could scarcely eke out sufficient money to buy the needed flannels? She thinks how kind fate was to the other girl when she missed him. Everyone should consider that whatever happens must be for the best.

WISE GIRLS TOSS SORROW [illegible] THEM.

When a girl loses a beau she should endeavor not to take it to heart, remembering that with the maiden who determines to look on the bright side the loss of one undesirable lover generally results in the gaining of better ones and the choice of half a dozen, without an effort on her part to bring the beaux to her feet.

Lovers who are satisfied [illegible] time being to part were evidently not intended in marriage for each other. Fate is often kind in denying us our hearts' desire. The mill will never revolve again with the water that has passed. The same [illegible] cannot come to us twice.

Only aged people should look backward. Young hearts should be imbued with hope; even those [illegible] upon the meridian of life should look forward to see what joy the future holds for them. Our lives are [illegible] by circumstances which are for the best if we but realized it.

MISS LIBBEY'S ANSWERS TO YOUR LETTERS.

Won't Let Her Tango.

Dear Miss Libbey: Will you write something that will hit straight from the shoulder an old crank of a father who forbids me to go to dances because he has read so much about the tango? All the girls and fellows in this town have learned it, and I'd be just crazy if I couldn't go to the affairs we're to have and tango.

"WILL O' TH' WISP."

Personally I don't think there is any harm in the dance if it is modestly conducted. The presence of older people supervising those affairs is suggested. Dancing is the ideal sport of the young and care free.

The Sister-in-Law.

Dear Miss Libbey: I'm in for it pretty bad. I recently married a man who never talked of his family to me, and now quite as soon as we are back from our wedding trip he tells me I must get the best room in our home for his sister, who is many years older than he, whom he feels it his duty to have live with us. I objected strenuously and we had a dreadful quarrel and have not spoken much since. [illegible] shall go back to my folks if you advise me to. I cannot be bossed by a sister-in-law. Please answer as soon as you can. MRS. HARRY

Don't you think you are stirring up a tempest in a teapot? The sister may prove to be a dear old soul who will prove to be an angel in the household. It is unkind to not judge her unseen. [illegible] your husband to shelter a helpless one who has a right to his love and devotion. Do not begrudge her a corner in his heart and at his fireside.

The [illegible] made up to a simple Highland sailor who had come off ship, and induced him first of all to part with £1. They then went to a public house to await the result of the horse race, and while there the sailor took out his pocketbook to get some money for drinks. Accused snatched the pocketbook and attempted to get [illegible] the Highlander seized him.

Widow Got a Pension.

It was a lucky chance which led Mrs. Adam Melville, Leslie, who just passed away at the age of [illegible], being pensioned by the late [illegible] Anderson, paper-maker, Fettykil. When refusing to subscribe to a birthday presentation to a wealthy person, Mr. Anderson said he would rather help a poor person. Mrs. Melville was mentioned as being a deserving widow whose husband had been a workman at the Fettykil Mill, and Mr. Anderson at once said he would give her a pension of three crowns a week.

Rescue of a Young Woman.

A young woman, Lucy Mackay, a [illegible] worker, had a narrow escape from drowning at Stornoway, and was saved only by the plucky action of John M. Maclean, son of Baillie [illegible]. It was a dark and stormy night and the young woman, while waving hands from the pier with friends on board the mail steamer, overbalanced and fell between the steamer and the pier, fracturing one of her legs. Mr. Maclean, who was on board the steamer, hurriedly divested himself of a heavy overcoat, jumped in, and with great difficulty brought her ashore.

Farm Wages.

At the annual Farm Servants' Hiring at Kelso both men and women received a rise in wages of 1s per week. In a few cases a nine-hour day was granted, but there was practically no demand for a weekly half-holiday.

Baillie.

At Maryhill Police Court, Glasgow, Baillie Guest, after putting a 17-year-old youth on probation for begging, said he had difficulty in getting boys work, but if the probation officer brought the lad down to him he would give him work, and do all he could for him.

Strikers Punished.

The Buckie school strike by the pupils in the supplementary class of the Buckie Higher Grade School came to an abrupt termination. The strikers on returning to school received corporal punishment which, in all probability, will prevent a recurrence of the truancy.

Father Killed.

John McClymont, a farm steward, of [illegible], Castle Kennedy, Wigtownshire, was killed while engaged in preparations for his daughter's wedding. He was carting seats from a [illegible] to his home when the horse bolted. He was crushed between the cart and a gatepost, and killed instantaneously.

Nine Lives.

While a little boy named John [illegible], son of a fisherman, was playing at the Old Harbor, Dunbar, he fell into the water. Hearing cries a [illegible] pilot named Robert Dryburgh plunged in with all his clothes on and succeeded in rescuing the boy, who was in an exhausted state. Cruelty to Cat.

[illegible] Troy was sentenced to thirty days' imprisonment at Govan Police Court for having ill-treated a cat. He threw the cat, which belonged to a neighbor, out of a two-story window. The animal was so severely cut by the broken glass that it had to be destroyed immediately. He pleaded guilty, and stated that he had a little drink at the time.

Strange Death at Asylum.

John Black, 64, an inmate of Kingseat Asylum, Aberdeenshire, has died as the result of scalding injuries. Creates New Microbes.

Mme. Victor Henri, a bacteriologist, has succeeded in creating a new species of microbes. It was announced, the action of which has developed a new form of disease. She subjected the bacilli of anthrax to ultra-violet rays, which changed them from rod-shape to spherical. The transformed bacilli were injected into guinea pigs, the result being a slowly developing disease of a totally different character from that of anthrax.

Mme. Henri deduces from her discovery the possibility of evolution in the bacterial world, as in the animal world, and expresses the opinion that the multitudes of existing species sprang from a few primitive forms which have undergone transformation under the action of light and [illegible] considered the varieties of microbes responsible for the diseases known to science. The discovery is regarded as of importance from a scientific standpoint not only in paving the way for efficacious treatment, but in opening a new field for investigation of the evolution of many species of bacteria and resulting diseases.

President Poincare's deposition is being widely discussed. While some hold that it proves beyond doubt the great provocation to which Mme. Caillaux was subjected, and thus diminished the gravity of her act, others contend that it establishes premeditation and that it further adds to the responsibility of M. Caillaux.

President Poincare personally guaranteed the loyalty and straightforwardness of M. Calmette, it is pointed out, yet M. Caillaux broke off the conversation with the President by the threat, "If he does that, I will kill him."

Deserter's Light Punishment.

"The only punishment I should like to see imposed is that he serve France as he served Greece," was the announcement of Government Commissary Alix at the court-martial of John Corinthious, a Greek, who deserted from the Foreign Legion to fight for the land of his birth in the Balkan war. At the conclusion of the war he returned to the Foreign Legion, having served heroically. The court agreed with the prosecutor and immediately acquitted him.

The Cabinet has asked Parliament to vote the equivalent of $84,000 to entertain the Kings of England and Denmark when they visit Paris for a couple of days this month. Three-quarters of this sum is to be spent by the Foreign Office in decorations, illuminations, presents to the sovereigns, receptions, official dinners and special trains. The performance at the opera will take $5000, the carriage hire $2500, the tips to servants $450, the military review $11,000, and the extra expenses of the police and secret service $2500. The royalties will be lodged at the Foreign Office and their apartments will be furnished with pieces from the museums and hung with antique Goblein tapestries and old masters.

The French army has admitted to its ranks a youth named Defrance, who although of the military age, 20, weighs only forty-two pounds and is only three feet, three and one-quarter inches tall. The medical board found him physically fit in every way. It is understood he will be assigned to duties which will not oblige him to carry the marching outfit of the French soldier. The outfit is one and one-half times the midget's weight.

IN ITALY.

Dogs Were Ever Loyal.

The only complete skeleton in Italy of a dog of the Stone Age is now on view in the Ancona Museum. The animal, following its master, is believed to have roamed the valley of the Po several thousand years ago. Dog and man were buried together, and their bones are today displayed in the ancient tomb from which they were unearthed.

This "canis palustris Rutimeyer"—to give this ancient dog its official name—evidently is a cross between the dog of today and the jackal.

The skeleton of the man also is highly interesting because of the peculiar manner in which it is hunched together. The thigh bones are bent over the abdomen and the arms raised, with the hands over the face. It thus shows a striking re-

COLOMBIAN TREATY SIGNED ENDING PANAMA DISPUTE.

[BY PACIFIC CABLE.]

BOGOTA (Colombia) April 11.—The treaty between the United States and Colombia settling the Panama controversy was signed Monday at the State Department of Colombia by the American Minister, Thaddeus A. Thompson, and representatives of the Colombia government.

The ceremony of signing the treaty was impressive. The American Minister was accompanied by the secretary of the legation, Leland Harrison. The Colombian signatories were the Colombian Minister of Foreign Affairs, Francisco Jose Urrutia, and the members of the advisory committee, who had been given full powers, Marco Fidel Suares, first vice-president of the Republic, Nicolas Esguerra, former Minister of State; Senator Jose Maria Valencia, Senator Rafael Uribe and Antonio Jose Uribe, president of the House of Representatives.

The conferring of full powers on this committee to sign the treaty bound together the representative heads of all the political parties, insuring the ratification of the treaty by Congress, which will meet in special session for that purpose on May 1. It is also a guarantee of the future stability of the government.

The negotiations with the Colombian government have been carried on by the legation at Bogota and since the return of the American Minister on March 31 frequent conferences have been held. It is said they have been most difficult to bring to a successful conclusion, owing to misleading advices on the situation from places outside of Colombia and a certain semi-American sentiment which has been kept to the front by various interests.

The signing of this treaty is looked upon here as a most momentous event in the history of the foreign relations of Colombia and marks a new era for her future. It is pointed out by those who have been strongly supporting the treaty that the friendship of the government and the people of the United States is of incalculable value.

The settlement of this vexed question indicates a marked change in the sentiment of Colombians for the United States, in which they frankly acknowledge where their best interests and future development lie. The feeling of satisfaction and relief from the situation which has existed during the past eleven years was apparent in the capital tonight.

It is expected that the text of the treaty will be published at an early date.

ROCHETTE'S ADVENTURES.

French Promoter's Wanderings in Mexico and South America Full of Thrilling Escapes.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, April 11.—The Journal prints a long account of the adventures of Henri Rochette in Mexico, which it obtained from an intimate friend of the promoter.

The scandal occasioned by the postponment of the trial of Rochette on the charge of swindling, has been one of the features of the dramatic situation brought about by the killing of Gaston Calmette by Mme. Caillaux.

Rochette went to Mexico, after obtaining a delay in his case. He had rendered important services to Francisco Madero. The Mexican president received him openly and officially. Madero, however, who was in need of money, arranged a loan with a Paris bank and one of the conditions imposed by the French government was the extradition of Rochette. To this Mexico agreed.

The French financier received a warning from a friend that he was to be arrested the next day. Even then his house was surrounded by police, but Rochette after a lively chase over the roofs of houses escaped and made his way out of the city concealed in a donkey cart.

For a time he wandered in northern Mexico and organized convoys of arms and provisions between the coast and the interior, from which he made considerable money. He attempted to arrange with one of the insurgant leaders, to have his papers found on the body of a dead soldier and this alleged fact published. to the world, intending to reappear in 1917 when his offense would have been purged by prescription. One of the insurgents decided to betray him, and again Rochette learned of this in time. He escaped in female attire and went to Peru and Bolivia.

He resided for a time at Antwerp and London and was living at Enghien-les-Bains, near Paris, when the investigation into the postponement of his trial was begun by the committee of the Chamber of Deputies. He was induced to write a letter to M. Jaures, president of the committee, at the urgent request of powerful persons. Later Rochette left for the Orient, where he is said to have important mining interests.

CURE FOR ANTHRAX?

French Professor Declares Iodine Should Be Applied to Cattle With Signs of Eruptions.

[BY CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, April 3.—The Academy of Sciences came out today in advocacy of the use of iodine on cattle afflicted with certain diseases. The academy asserts that iodine is a radical cure for anthrax and other ailments. Prof. Porrier said that all cattle which showed signs of eruption on the hide in the shape of boils or other sores should be lanced in the sore places and a cubic centimeter of iodine applied.

ITALIAN WOMEN START CAMPAIGN

Hope to Have Burdensome Laws Repealed.

Spanish Painter to Exhibit in Special Room.

Rome Over Twenty-six Centuries Old Next Birthday.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

ROME, March 28.—With the passing of the Giolitti Cabinet the leaders of the feminist movement in Italy have taken up a new campaign, in the hope that the new ministers of the government will deal more favorably with their cause.

There is no militant element in the feminist movement in Italy, and no sex antagonism, but women are anxious to free themselves from certain restrictions which the laws of the land and the customs of society have imposed. Originally designed for the protection of women, it is declared these laws are now a burden. The vote is the women's ultimate goal, but at present they are hoping particularly for the opening of the professions to them and the repeal of such laws as those prohibiting married women from opening bank accounts without the consent of their husbands.

ANGLADA EXHIBIT.

The theory that feminine beauty cannot be divided into types according to nationality, but that it is absolutely international in character, will be demonstrated by a special exhibit of paintings by Anglada, the Spanish master, at the coming exhibition of fine arts at Venice.

He has been honored with an invitation to show his pictures in a separate room, and the exhibit will be composed entirely of feminine portraits.

Within two years it is expected that the pavilions of the different countries around the Central Palace of the Venice group of art buildings will be completed by the addition of those of Germany, Austria and the United States on the island of Sant Elena, which will be connected with the gardens of the exhibition by three beautiful bridges.

ROME'S BIRTHDAY.

Rome will celebrate her twenty-six hundred and sixty-seventh birthday on April 21 with a general hoisting of flags and illumination, but there will be no revival this year of the celebrated Feast of the Century, the ancient ceremony, which was last attempted in 1900, when the Forum and

Taxicabs in Rome.

Taxicabs have made their appearance in Rome, with a scale of prices remarkable for their reasonableness. In the day time the tariff is 14 cents for the first half mile, and then 2 cents for each additional 800 feet. At night these rates are increased to 16 and 3 cents, respectively. Three persons may ride at these prices. Extra persons above three pay 3 cents a trip. Two hundred of these vehicles already are in operation, and it is probably only a question of time when the well-known Roman one-horse cab will be a thing of the past.

The Pellagra Issue.

Dr. Luigi Lambon of London is again in Italy to prove his theory that pellagra, a disease akin to elephantiasis and sometimes called Italian leprosy, is due to a parasite in potable water.

Dr. Lambon is widely known for his studies of malaria. He has devoted five years to the study of pellagra and he has in his employe a manservant suffering with pellagra on whom he is experimenting to prove his theory that the disease is neither contagious nor incurable. He will devote his time here this spring almost entirely to the study of infected water in the effort to discover the supposed parasite and find a means of exterminating it.

It has been asserted for years that pellagra comes from excessive consumption of Indian corn.

IN IRELAND.

Centenarian's Health Record.

Simon McEntyre, farmer, Kilcrossduff, Shercock, Ulster, passed away in his 105th year. His faculties were clear to the last, and he is stated to never have had "an hour's illness."

Gunner Shot Dead on Range.

Bombardier Ashby of the Royal Garrison Artillery ,was killed on the ranges at Spike Island, Cork Harbor. He was moving up to the butts after firing to whitewash the target when, for some reason or other, further firing took place with a seven-pounder gun. Ashby was shot through the right lung and fell dead. Ashby had only recently returned from South Africa.

Hawkers at the Curragh.

The Newbridge Town Commissioners have sent a petition to the commanding officer of the Curragh against the turning away of hawkers and dealers from the camp, and only allowing shopkeepers to do business. A letter, however, has been received from the garrison adjutant saying that it is not intended to establish any form of protection for shopkeepers or traders at the Curragh, and competition is invited as hitherto.

A Theatrical Case.

Daisy Graham, stated to be a London actress, was at Dundalk returned for trial to the Quarter Sessions, charged with obtaining money and lodging by false pretenses from Mrs. Boyd, St. Mary's road, Dundalk. Samuel Stonehouse of the Theater of Varieties, Belfast, stated that the accused had not been employed, as she stated, at that theater during the past three years, nor did they owe her any money.

IN ENGLAND.

Cartridges in House Refuse.

Live cartridges collected with house refuse passed unnoticed into the dust destructer at Guildford, with the result that there was a series of explosions, and flying shot narrowly missed a stoker.

Fox Hunt in Churchyard.

A fox which was found by the East Essex hounds at Blackmore was followed to the Congregational Church yard at Castle Hedingham. After a struggle among the tombstones the animal was killed in trying to seek refuge in the stackhole of the heating apparatus of the church.

Superstitious Thirteen.

Houses at Hythe have recently been renumbered, and several objections have been raised against "No. 13" on the ground that it is unlucky. At a meeting of the Town Council several letters of protest were read, one writer complaining that he could not get any visitors at his house if he used that particular number.

Grief at Employer's Death.

Stated by a fellow-servant to have been depressed since the death some days ago of her employer, Dr. Mutch of Nottingham, Ethel Thomas, aged 30, went out to see his grave and did not return. She was found drowned in the canal, and at the inquest a verdict of "Suicide while of unsound mind" was returned.

IN WALES.

School on Fire.

A disastrous fire occurred at the Llandilo county school, the main building being totally destroyed. So furious was the blaze that the roof collapsed about an hour after the outbreak was observed. Two hundred pupils attend the school.

Spent on a Funeral.

At Blaenavon County Court an application was made by William Edwards, a platelayer, for the payment of a sum out of the compensation awarded in respect of the death of Harry Edwards, a son, who was killed while a laborer for the Blaenavon Company. Applicant said the reason for putting forward his present claim was that his wages of 30s. per week were insufficient to maintain him, his wife and five children. He said he spent £20 upon a funeral, and His Honor remarked: "No wonder you cannot manage when you spend money like that." His Honor awarded applicant 5s. per week for two years.

Mining Better Than Teaching.

At a conference of the Breconshire Education Authority and representatives of the Brecon teachers in the county to consider the admitted dearth of teachers, P. Morton, head master of the Brecon Boys' County School, said that he knew of a clever boy in the county who had commenced training for the teaching profession, but had thrown it up and taken to hewing coal because he got more pay.

IN GERMANY.

New Canal Authorized.

The Schlewig-Holstein government has ordered that steps be taken preliminary to the construction of a canal between Eckernforde and the Kaiser Wilhelm canal, of a canal between the broad part of the Schlei and Eckernforde and of a harbor at Eckernforde.

This indicates the probable consummation of long-considered plans for a second outlet from the Kaiser Wilhelm canal to the Baltic, which would be chiefly of military value

Palantine rang, as it did twenty centuries before, with the invocation by Horace to the "Alma Sol," in which he asserted that the sun in its passage around the world would see no such sight as Rome. Although the year of Rome's birthday is officially recognized as 750 B.C., recent archeological discoveries indicate that it should be moved back many centuries.

Bramante's work is scattered all over Italy and Rome, but his most celebrated edifices here are the Palace of the Cancelleria and the Courts of San Damaso and the Belvedere at the Vatican. His was the original design for the present St. Peters, but both he and his patron, Pope Julius II, died soon after the building was begun. Had he lived, Michael Angelo's cupola, considered a marvel of architecture, would not have been realized.

OWNERLESS IKON.

Through a Strange Combination of Circumstances King George Is Unable to Accept the Gift.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, March 28.—A mother-of-pearl ikon of the "Lord's Last Supper," almost identical to that presented to the Emperor of Russia by the Sultan of Turkey as a peace offering on the outbreak of the late war with Italy, is in London awaiting a claimant. It was destined for King George, but because it is not an official gift it cannot be presented to him, and, since no one else has a right to accept it, the ikon remains without a master.

The history of the ikon began when Italy cast covetous eyes on Turkey's Tripolian possessions. The Sultan, in need of friends, determined to turn to his powerful neighbor on the north, and, in true oriental fashion, decided to accompany his overtures with a gift. He ordered the Kobi, an Arabian tribe celebrated for its mother-of-pearl work, to make an ikon of the "Lord's Last Supper" for presentation to the Russian Emperor. It was no small order, for the mother of pearl had to be carried a twelve-day camel journey into the interior from the seashore.

While the tribe was at work on the ikon, one of its members, who had served in the British army, paid a visit to his old home, and when he saw what was being done he insisted that it would be the grossest discourtesy to his royal master if a similar gift was not made for King George. The only difference between the two is that the Russian gift is surmounted by the imperial arms of Russia, while the English image bears the royal arms of Great Britain.

When the Russian gift was finished the agents of the Sultan paid for it and carried it away, but the Kobi tribesmen did not know how to send the replica to King George. It was finally taken to Sir John Gray Hill of Liverpool, who maintains a winter home on the Mount of Olives in Jerusalem. Lady Hill paid the tribesmen for their work, and brought the ikon to London.

The ikon is made in the form of a half-room with the front elevation surmounted by the royal arms. The figure of the Savior and his disciples about the table are done in full relief in solid mother of pearl. The work is very complete, even the smallest table utensils in mother of pearl occupying their ordinary place on the table. The workmanship is exquisite and the design excellently done. It is probable that if no means can be found for delivering the ikon to the King, it will find a resting place in some London museum.

PANAMA FARM SCHOOLS.

Henry Pettier of the Agricultural Department at Washington Will Undertake Their Organization.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

PANAMA, April 7.—It is understood that Henry Pettier of the Department of Agriculture at Washington, who has arrived on the Isthmus to classify the native woods of Panama, will soon undertake the organization of two agricultural schools in the Republic. The Panama authorities requested Mr. Pettier's services for the collection of native woods. They will be a part of the Panama National Exhibition, which will be opened next year.

The Third Battalion of the Tenth Infantry, stationed at Camp Otis, has just completed a forced march through the jungle from Chorrera in the province of Cocle. The distance covered, twenty-seven miles, was made in one day. It was found that the main trail has been well cleared by the Panama government. About 75 per cent. of the battalion is composed of recruits who thus made their first practice march.

Pedro Miguel, where the canal locks of that name are located, is to be one of the model permanent towns of the Isthmus. The canal government has been busy there for several months in the hope of having the place completed in time for the opening of the canal next year. Macadam streets and concrete sidewalks are being laid and many new houses are being built for the operating force of the locks. A large playground for children and tennis and baseball grounds also are well under way. In front of the Young Men's Christian Association building is to be the plaza, which will be one of the beauty spots of the town.

The dredge Gamboa, the largest dipper dredge ever built, has arrived on the Isthmus and is being assembled for work. It is the intention of the canal authorities to have the dredge begin the widening of the channel in Culebra Cut in front of the Cucaracha and Culebra slides at an early date. The dipper of this new dredge has a capacity of fifteen cubic yards. Another dredge of the same type and capacity, the Paraiso, is expected to arrive soon.

The dredge Corozal, which was to have been at work before this in deepening the channel through Culebra Cut, has been drydocked in the east upper chamber of Gatun Locks, just above the five submarines in the same chamber. An explosion in an oil tank did considerable damage to several bulkheads and hull of the big dredge. In order to drydock her in the same lock chamber the submarines were lashed fast to the bottom of the lock, which was then filled.

PATRIOT ON BICYCLE.

Young Japanese on World Tour Will Sprinkle Sand from Emperor's Palace Wherever Countrymen Live.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

TOKIO, March 10.—Youthful chauvinistic sportsmen are eagerly following the movements of a young Japanese named Okubo, who has just started on a bicycle trip around the world. Strapped to his wheel, Okubo carries a precious bag of sand, which he shoveled from the grounds of the palace of his Emperor. His intention is to sprinkle a little sand whenever he reaches a Japanese colony or comes to a place where a number of Japanese live. "My idea," he explained before starting, "is to remind Japanese abroad of their native country—of the glorious Mikado Empire."

GIVE UP FIGHT ON BETTING.

German Council Decides to License Bookmaking.

Expect Yearly Returns of Six Million Dollars.

Measure Puts Gambling Upon a Legal Basis.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

BERLIN, March 28.—The German authorities have again capitulated to what they term "the ieradicable gaming instinct of the average person." After continued and vain attempts to put an end to promiscuous betting on horse races, which involves a sum yearly estimated at between $150,000,000 and $200,000,000, they have decided to license bookmaking in an effort to secure for the state a percentage of this sum. A measure to this end, already reported briefly by cable, has been adopted by the federal council, and is now awaiting the action of the Reichstag. It is hoped to have it become effective in time for the Baden-Baden races next August.

Heretofore the only form of betting sanctioned by law has been by means of the pari-mutuel machine. This, however, was available only to persons able to visit the race tracks. The result is that a vast army of bookmakers, estimated at 6000, ply their business in defiance of the law. In addition every barber shop and thousands of cafes and similar resorts harbor their handbook men.

Competent authorities estimate the number of business places where wagers can be laid on horse races at over 200,000. Prosecutions for bookmaking increased from 1600 in 1906 to 8000 in 1912. For the most part they resulted in trivial fines or short jail sentences, and the business went ahead just the same. The bettor, too, is outside the law, and has no remedy against dishonest handbook men or bookmakers who refuse to settle winning wagers.

The number of licensed bookmakers is not fixed in the new measure, but it is understood that the government contemplates licenses for about fifty, scattered throughout the empire, each of which will be entitled to establish branch offices to meet the demand. Notwithstanding rigorous provisions against illicit betting, punishing both bookmaker and bettor (the latter with fines up to $250,) experts believe that illicit books will continue to flourish, not only because the wage-earners, clerks and small-salaried men who today furnish the bulk of the handbook custom cannot afford the minimum stake of $12, but because the heavy taxation of the licensed bookmakers will enable the handbook men to offer far better odds.

Since 6 per cent. of every bet entered will go to the government as an initial tax, and winning bets will be mulcted with an additional tax of from 6 per cent. on bets at odds of two to one or less up to 20 per cent. on the long shot of twenty to one or better, the man who plays a heavily-backed, odds-on favorite, say at seven to five, may risk a possible fine rather than the certain loss of nearly half of his scanty winnings. To backers of hundred to one outsiders the prospective surrender of some $25 of a $100 will be equally deterrent.

Limiting authorized gambling under this law to horse racing, the government in its introduction to the bill, pronounced against betting on football and other sports popular with the "middle and lower classes," to save them from the gambling contagion. Officers and soldiers are also classed in the undesirable category, bookmakers being forbidden to accept bets from members of the military forces, and betting on races with gentlemen jockeys is also prohibited

An important provision of the proposed law makes winning wagers collectable at law, provided they are each cash wagers. This, it is believed, will greatly reduce the number of dishonest bookmakers. The maximum penalty for unlicensed bookmaking is to be two years' imprisonment and $1500 fine, as against six months and $125 at present. Bettors dealing with unlicensed bookmakers also make themselves liable to imprisonment and fine, and to the loss of all sums wagered, which will be confiscated by the state. The police may forbid the publishing of tips and form sheets.

The government estimates that the new law will produce at least $6,000,000 yearly, of which $2,000,000 will go to the states where the races in question are held, to be devoted to the encouragement of horse breeding, and $4,000,000 to the federal treasury. Despite the reduction of the tax on pari-mutuel takings, it is not believed that returns will be below the present figures, which are approximately $3,000,000 yearly, since betting through the machines is to be permitted, with restrictions, on races outside Germany. Under the existing law, the machines may be employed only for domestic races.

ROMAN CATHOLIC CONGRESSES.

The Most Important This Year Is the International Eucharistic Gathering at Lourdes, France.

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

DUBLIN, March 21.—Irish Catholics are much interested in three important Roman Catholic congresses that are announced to be held during the coming summer.

The twenty-fifth International Eucharistic Congress will be held at Lourdes from July 22 to July 26. So important have these international gatherings become that the Pope now regularly appoints a cardinal legate to preside over their deliberations. It has been considered fitting that the silver jubilee of the congress should be celebrated in the country in which the congress had its origin.

The annual National Catholic Congress, which will be held this year in Cardiff, beginning July 10, will be given a definitely eucharistic character. The sermons and the chief papers will relate almost exclusively to the Blessed Sacrament, and for the first time at this national congress there will be a procession of the Blessed Sacrament. This procession will be held on Sunday, July 12, in the grounds of Cardiff Castle.

In July also an international liturgical congress will be held in the Cathedral Hall at Westminster, at which matters relating to the liturgy, such as ceremonies, chants and rites, will be discussed.

CANADA RATES LOWERED.

Dominion Railway Commission Also Provides for New Freight and Standardization of Traffic.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

OTTAWA (Ont.) April 11.—Substantial reductions in freight rates are made in the decision handed handed down by the Railway Commission, which at the same time provides for new rate zones and standardization of tariffs.

All Canada west of the Great Lakes is divided into three zones. The first of them extends from the lakes to the mountains and is to be known as the Prairie section. The Pacific section includes British Columbia, while the zones to be known as British Columbia Lakes sections, applies to the navigable waters in that province.

For each of these sections a standard maximum freight rate has been set. What is at present known as the Manitoba standard has been extended to fix all rates in the prairie and British Columbia lake sections, abolishing the higher rates now charged in Saskatchewan and Alberta.

While the Pacific section rates will be somewhat higher than those of the prairie and British Columbia lakes sections, they will, nevertheless, be lower than the maximums now in force in Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, the provinces included in this section.

Sanction is given to special distributing freight tariff and of these Canada's largest commercial and industrial centers would be the beneficiaries. Under them a reduction of 15 per cent. of the prairie standard tariff may be made. Through rates from the eastern to western Canada will be based on the tariff applied to shipments west from Port Arthur or Ft. Williams.

JAP STEAMERS VIA PANAMA.

The Government Is Expected to Give the Nippon Yusen Kaisha a Subsidy of One Million Dollars.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

TOKIO, March 10.—A lively competition has been going on between Japanese steamship companies, which hope to get a government subsidy for a steamship line through the Panama Canal to the eastern coast of the United States, with terminus at Boston. At the present it looks as if the Nippon Yusen Kaisha would be elected, and that the company will be accorded a subsidy of $1,000,000. The other competitors were the Toyo Kisen Kaisha and the Osaka Shosen Kaisha. The Toyo Kisen will continue its service to San Francisco, but it is probable that the Nippon Yusen will discontinue its service to Seattle and turn it over to the Osaka company, which is building extra steamers to be used on the northern route, which it will henceforth monopolize.

NEW YORK IN LONDON.

Anglo-American Exhibition to Be Staged in Metropolis Will Show Gotham After Nightfall.

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, March 21.—The greatest Anglo-American Exposition, which is to be held at the White City in London from May to October, will be in no sense of the word an ordinary exhibition. In the first place it is not to be a commercial undertaking with a view to seeking profits for the promoters, for the proceeds are to be devoted to Earl Grey's Peace Committee Fund.

The aim of the exhibition will be to demonstrate the progress which has been made in art, science, and industry in Great Britain and the United States during the past 100 years, and to foster the spirit of friendship between the two nations.

Already many hundreds of workmen are busy in the grounds. The great mountain railroad, the largest in the world, is rapidly nearing completion, and will probably be the most popular attraction at the exhibition. The cars are to be electrically driven, and automatic block signaling will be employed, insuring absolute safety.

On the site of another old mountain railroad, which has been entirely pulled down, will be erecte da colossal reproduction of New York City, showing its skyscrapers and overhead railroad. By an ingenious scheme of lighting, the whole is to be illuminated at night, so that the wonderful aspect of America's greatest city after nightfall may be seen.

Among the exhibits, it is safe to say, no section will create more interest than that devoted to engineering. One of the most striking exhibits in this section will be that of a gigantic die press, which is being sent over by the Ferracute Machine Company, of Bridgeton, N. J. This enormous piece of machinery, which stands some thirty feet high, will cost thousands of dollars to bring over and to erect, and will be shown in actual operation.

Large flat sheets of the metal will be placed in the machine, and with two movements it will stamp out a full-sized automobile body. Some idea of its hugeness may be gathered from the fact that there is standing-room for fifty men in and about the framework and mechanism.

RIVER SHANNON FLOODS.

Much Havoc Is Caused Nearly Every Year, Which Could Be Prevented by Proper Drainage.

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

DUBLIN, March 21.—The River Shannon floods in Ireland this year have wrought widespread havoc. The water has covered many square miles of land so deeply that it has been possible to get about in boats. The farmers are thus prevented, in the important season of early spring, from touching their lands, and the prospect of a good harvest is consequently marred.

But this is only the beginning of the evil. The houses themselves, where the people must live, are flooded out At present three villages are under water. The inhabitants were first compelled to light fires in pots and bowls, to prevent them from being extinguished. Now they are being driven to live in lofts and the scanty spaces between ceilings and roofs. Here they must remain until the floods go down.

The stacks of turf on which they depend for fuel are, in many cases, saturated and ruined—and this is the state of affairs which has occurred over and over again. It is the inevitable result of abnormal, or even serious, rains, especially when they are accompanied by storms which force the waters on the land.

The pity of it is that the floods are preventable. If a proper scheme of drainage were devised and carried out, the water could all be carried off. Last year the Irish Secretary promised that he would introduce in the British Parliament a bill for the drainage of the area liable to floods. A few days ago he announced that he could not do so, because he could not find time.

Arctic.

TO STUDY HABITS OF THE WHALE.

New Polar Expedition May Light Up the Subject.

Militants Are Getting Tired of Hunger Striking.

King George Greatly Bored by Court Functions.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, March 2[illegible].—It has been learned here that the well-known polar explorers, Dr. Nordenskjold, Admiral Polander and Gunar Anderson are planning an expedition to the Antarctic which will cover about the same ground as the British Stackhouse party of 1914. Definite plans have not yet been made, but it is probable that the expedition will land an observation party on the east coast of Graham's Land. This party will be composed of six men and will [illegible] there for five years.

J. Foster Stackhouse, leader of the British 1914 party, states that one of the objects of the Swedish expedition will be the study of whales, whose habits are still unknown [illegible] standing that these have been [illegible] for years. Whatever friction [illegible] may be between the Shackleton and Austrian expeditions there will be nothing but amity between the [illegible] house and Swedish parties. [illegible] house has already been in communication with Dr. Nordenskjold, giving [illegible] particulars of the British expedition as far as they concern Graham's Land, and the Swedish leader has [illegible] to reciprocate as soon as his plans [illegible] complete.

Dr. Nordenskjold's last expedition to the polar regions, in 1903, [illegible] grief when his ship, the Antarctic, [illegible] crushed in the ice off Graham's Land and the crew had to make its [illegible] north, being ultimately picked up [illegible] an Argentine vessel.

LESSON TO MILITANTS.

Notwithstanding that militant [illegible] fragettes seldom serve more than [illegible] few days of their sentences before [illegible] ing released as a result of hunger [illegible] thirst strikes, the officials of the [illegible] Office are thoroughly satisfied with the working of the "Cat and Mouse" act. This was designed to deal with these hunger strikers and under [illegible] prisoners can be released [illegible] but in the end must serve the [illegible] term of imprisonment.

Almost every suffragette who [illegible] to prison goes on hunger strike and [illegible] speedily released, for the government is determined that the women [illegible] not win sympathy through one of their number dying in jail. As soon there fore as the prison doctor notices [illegible] a woman is weakening under [illegible] tion from food and drink he [illegible] her release and she remains out [illegible] she again shows signs of resuming [illegible] agitation. According to the official [illegible] turns most of the women do not [illegible] sume their activity. They either [illegible] the country or settle down [illegible] which case they are not molested.

KING GEORGE BORED.

The King and Queen dislike [illegible] courts so intensely, says Truth, [illegible] they may revert to the old-time [illegible] ing-rooms with tea served [illegible] the present rather elaborate [illegible] It is known that the occupants of [illegible] throne regard the procession and [illegible] ing of hundreds of gorgeously [illegible] women as distinctly trying to [illegible] nerves. King Edward detested [illegible] ceremonials and on many occasions found it difficult to sit through [illegible] court without a collapse. Queen Victoria presided at much smaller [illegible] tions than the present courts, [illegible] even she suffered severely from [illegible] strain and more than once left [illegible] throne-room after the reception of [illegible] Entree company leaving the [illegible] presentations to the Princess of [illegible]

Should the afternoon drawing-rooms be revived the number of presentations will be cut down materially and [illegible] of the socially ambitious will [illegible] gain the hall mark conferred on [illegible] fortunate enough to be summoned [illegible] make their bow before royalty.

CHILD LABOR STRIKE.

London is experiencing the [illegible] of a strike against child labor. TO STUDY HABITS OF THE WHALE.

New Polar Expedition May Light Up the Subject.

Militants Are Getting Tired of Hunger Striking.

King George Greatly Bored by Court Functions.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, March 25.—It has been learned here that the well-known polar explorers, Dr. Nordenskjold, Admiral Polander and Gunar Andersson are planning an expedition to the Antarctic which will cover about the same ground as the British Stackhouse party of 1914. Definite plans have not yet been made, but it is probable that the expedition will land an observation party on the east coast of Graham's Land. This party will be composed of six men and will remain there for five years.

J. Foster Stackhouse, leader of the British 1914 party, states that one of the objects of the Swedish expedition will be the study of whales, whose habits are still unknown notwithstanding that these have been hunted for years. Whatever friction there may be between the Shackleton and Austrian expeditions there will be nothing but amity between the Stackhouse and Swedish parties. Stackhouse has already been in communication with Dr. Nordenskjold, giving him particulars of the British expedition as far as they concern Graham's Land and the Swedish leader has promised to reciprocate as soon as his plans are complete.

Dr. Nordenskjold's last expedition to the polar regions, in 1902, came to grief when his ship, the Antartic, was crushed in the ice off Graham's Land and the crew had to make its way north, being ultimately picked up by an Argentine vessel.

LESSON TO MILITANTS.

Notwithstanding that militant suffragettes seldom serve more than a few days of their sentences before being released as a result of hunger and thirst strikes, the officials of the Home Office are thoroughly satisfied with the working of the "Cat and Mouse" act. This was designed to deal with these hunger strikers and under it prisoners can be released temporarily but in the end must serve their full term of imprisonment.

Almost every suffragette who goes to prison goes on hunger strike and is speedily released, for the government is determined that the women shall not win sympathy through one of their number dying in jail. As soon therefore as the prison doctor notices that a woman is weakening under abstention from food and drink he orders her release and she remains out until she again shows signs of resuming her agitation. According to the official returns most of the women do not resume their activity. They either leave the country or settle down quietly, in which case they are not molested.

KING GEORGE BORED.

The King and Queen dislike formal courts so intensely, says Truth, that they may revert to the old-time drawing-rooms with tea served instead of the present rather elaborate supper. It is known that the occupants of the throne regard the procession and bowing of hundreds of gorgeously-attired women as distinctly trying to the nerves. King Edward detested these ceremonials and on many occasions he found it difficult to sit through the court without a collapse. Queen Victoria presided at much smaller functions than the present courts, but even she suffered severely from the strain and more than once left the throne-room after the reception of the general Entree company leaving the general presentations to the Princess of Wales.

Should the afternoon drawing-room be revived the number of presentations will be cut down materially and many of the socially ambitious will fail to gain the hall mark conferred on those fortunate enough to be summoned to make their bow before royalty.

CHILD LABOR STRIKE.

London is experiencing the novelty of a strike against child labor. One thousand five hundred girls working for a big provision firm have gone on strike because the firm advertised for girls under the age of 13 years. For years it has been the boast of this firm that, in spite of the practices of its rivals, it had never employed a girl under 13 years of age. Last week girls of 14 and 16 years were advertised for, and placed at work in the tin box making room on machines which have never been considered suitable for inexpert operatives. The older girls protested against the child labor and when no attention was paid to their protests went out on strike. The 500 men employed by the firm joined the girls because last year when the men protested against girls being given men's work the girls loyally joined them in a strike.

CONGRESS ON THE BLIND.

An international congress on the blind is planned for London this summer on a date not yet fixed.

Miss Winifred Holt of New York has been invited to describe the work being done for the blind in America, M. Kolonbovsky of St. Petersburg will perform the same service for Russia, Herr A. F. Wiberg of Copenhagen will describe the work in Denmark. A number of English delegates will discuss the social and legislative work done on behalf of the blind in this country.

Every effort will be made by the conference to throw further light on the problem of enabling the blind to become commercially and professionally employable to a far greater degree than at present, and thus enable an afflicted but sensitive portion of the community to become self-supporting.

LARKIN'S LABOR COLONY.

A $500,000 Co-operative Commonwealth in Croydon Park, Near Dublin, Is Planned by Larkin.

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

DUBLIN, March 21.—Plans for the early establishment in Ireland of a co-operative commonwealth as proposed by Capt. White and James Larkin will take definite shape in the course of a few weeks.

In regard to the question of capital needed for this ambitious scheme the remarkable announcement has been made that Larkin has $100,000 behind him, either in hard cash or represented by guarantees. Croydon Park, near Dublin, the property of the Transport Union, it is said, will be transformed into a huge labor colony.

WOMEN'S WORK, WOMEN'S CLUBS

BY SYDNEY FORD.

"COL." PEARLE MITCHELL, "Pork Queen of Missouri"—that's her official title in her home State of Missouri—finest woman farmer in that great Middle West commonwealth where all the inhabitants thereof "have to be shown"—they take nothing on faith; it's only good works that count— and "Col." Mitchell has made good. She didn't start out in life to be a farmer—the honor was thrust upon her when she inherited her ancestral domain which consists of several hundred acres of the finest land in Missouri. She soon found that the only way to make money from those acres was to give them her personal attention, so she turned farmer. Her specialty is pork—and her super-specialty is ham—the good, old-fashioned sugar cured, smokehouse hams, and she ships 'em to Kansas City millionaires who use them as the piece de resistance on banquet tables where the rich and mighty do assemble.

Just now the colonel is paying a visit to Southern California in general and Los Angeles in particular. The other day at the Friday Morning Club she told us about her experiences in Egypt—for she's a globe-trotter too—that is, when the pork market is good and she clears up a nice little sum in four figures from her hogs and hams. Then she starts off and goes and goes until her funds run out, and then—back to her Missouri farm.

Last year pork was high—but so was corn—so the colonel's cash profits did not warrant a foreign tour and she compromised on California—and now she's glad she did, for she's charmed with our climate, soil and sunshine. They tried to sell her an orange grove out at Pomona the other day and she inspected a lemon grove down at Escondido last week that is owned and run—even to pruning and picking—by a woman who is a former Missourian too. In fact, the colonel candidly admits that she has fallen in love with California and now she has an eye on Imperial Valley as a fine place to invest.

She told the Y.W.C.A. girls the other night how to farm it profitably and related her experience in plowing with a mule and she told us how she markets her hogs and keeps her books—for the colonel believes in knowing to the exact cent just how much she puts into her farm and livestock and just how much she takes out. She is president of the Missouri Women Farmers' Club, the only organization of its kind in the world, a requirement of which is that every member shall be a regular bona fide farmer. She says the finest compliment she ever had was from one of her home papers in which the editor said: "Colonel Mitchell does not farm from the city but from the soil."

You wouldn't dream she was a farmer to look at her. You'd think she was a college professor, or a lawyer, or a high-brow of some sort. She's nearly six feet tall and of splendid physique—an unusually handsome and distinguished looking woman. And her clothes—well, to see her stand before an audience in a trailing silken gown, her long white gloves, laces and jewels and nodding plumes, you'd imagine she was a leader of fashion fresh from Paris. And yet—she can discourse so learnedly of crops, soil, hogs, ham and pork that she'd easily outdistance the Secretary of Agriculture in debate, I'll wager.

"I always market my corn through my hogs," she remarks. That is, she feeds the corn to the hogs and then sells the hogs, and she explains that in this way she gets double the price for corn when it is thus converted into pork. "When you people pay a stiff price for bacon then is when I take long, long trips abroad" she explains. Her principle of profitable farming is that everything a family consumes, except staple groceries, should be raised on the farm and all the garden truck and by-products should be so much clear gain and ought to keep up the running expenses. There's thrift for you.

Hollywood a Beauty Spot.

The civic section of the Hollywood Woman's Club, as a sub-committee of the 1915 general committee for the celebration of Los Angeles, plans to make Hollywood the beauty spot of the Southland. Next Wednesday Mrs. [illegible] M. Bowen, chairman of the civic committee, will address the club outlining the plans.

Thursday evening Mrs. R. B. Lane will give a lecture on the Passion Play, illustrated with stereopticon views, for the benefit of the clubhouse fund. The lecture will be followed by a reception and an exhibit of the model of the new clubhouse.

College Women's Creative Evening.

Members of the College Women's Club will give us a treat next Saturday evening at their annual "creative evening" at Cumnock Hall when they will present a programme of plays and music written and composed by the members of the club. What these clever college women can't think of might as well be left unsaid, and we are looking forward to something out of the ordinary. The programme will consume only about an hour and a half and an informal reception and dance will follow. No expense is being spared in the performance, which is under the management of the Drama and Creative Section, of which Miss [illegible] Jones is chairman and Mmes. [illegible] J. Sterrett, Samuel E. Epler, [illegible] Morton, Frank A. Ferguson, [illegible] Hall and Miss Margaret Phillips are members. Miss Willamne [illegible] is the dramatic director, which insures a finished performance. "The Pragmatists," the first play to be given, is written by Miss Nina Upson and presents the problem of the woman trying to decide how much of her life should be devoted to her home and how much to humanity. "The Flax," which is the second dramatic offering, is by Miss [illegible] Driscoll, who recently graduated from Stanford. It is an Irish play based on an old legend concerning the power of flax to protect mortals against the wiles of the "little people," as they call the fairies.

Miss Harriet Kemp will present a group of songs—some negro melodies written by Miss Sybil Jones and set to music by her sister, Miss Alberta Jones. These young women come of a long line of Kentucky ancestors and in these songs they depict the faithful love of the old mammy for her Missus's baby. Miss Kemp is a graduate of Baker University and had two years of postgraduate work in Berlin. She has a clear, well-trained mezzo soprano voice which she uses in artistic fashion. She will sing besides the negro melodies, two other songs written by Mrs. John [illegible] and Miss Marjorie Driscoll, graduates of the University of California and of Stanford, respectively.

Mme. [illegible], who recently gave a programme at Ebell, will sing a group of songs—the words written by Mrs. Edna Weh Sterrett and music by Sybil Jones, and the words by Fannie C. Dillon and Alberta Jones. She will also give "Mother's [illegible]," both words and music written by Isabella McReynolds Gray of the University of California.

Ebell Drama Department.

The Ebell Drama Department has a particularly rich programme for next Wednesday, when two plays will be read and discussed. Miss Laura Paxton will give us extracts from Sudermann's great play, "John the Baptist," and Mrs. Julia E. Marquam, who has seen European presentations of Oscar Wilde's interpretation of the same story, "Salome," in various forms, will open the discussion with a comparison of the two dramas.

The other play of the day is "Phipps," by Stephen Houghton, who sprang into fame by his brilliant "Hindl Wakes," and whose recent death robs the drama of one of its most promising young playwrights. The reader, Mrs. C. H. Higbee, is new to the programmes of the department, but her appearance is anticipated with interest as her professional experience will make her interpretation altogether worth while.

Clubwoman Welcomed.

Mrs. Frances Williston Burks, wife of our new director of the Efficiency Bureau, who comes with him from Philadelphia to reside here, is a literary woman of exceptional ability and is greatly interested in club affairs, in which she has been most active in Philadelphia. She will return there in the fall to deliver a series of lectures on the modern drama before the New Century Club. The Friday Morning and City clubs have extended to Mrs. Burks the courtesies of those organizations and she will undoubtedly be a great acquisition to the club life of Los Angeles.

Complimentary to Mrs. Burks, Mrs. D. C. McCann will give a luncheon on Wednesday at the California Club to which she has invited the women commissioners of Los Angeles, who number no less than nineteen and include Mmes. Sumner P. Hunt, E. K. Foster, P. G. Hubert, O. P. Clark, S. H. Tolhurst, H. R. Boynton, M. A. Veeder, Willoughby Rodman, H. L. Macneil, Charles Whipple, W. J. Hole, Cora Lewis, F. Weldon, A. N. Davidson, R. L. Craig, Misses Florence Moore, Josephine Doherty and Bessie Stoddart.

Delegates to State Convention.

The following delegates from the Friday Morning Club have been named for the State Convention of Women's Clubs at Riverside, which opens April 28: Mmes. R. J. Waters, O. P. Clark, D. C. McCann, A. W. Francisco, Frank Garrett, E. R. Brainerd, D. W. Skeel, E. S. Hodgin, G. H. Wadleigh, William Baurhyte, Frank Gibson, Margaret Frick, Fred W. Wood and Miss Helen Louise Kimball.

The alternates are: Mmes. Seward Simons, Luther Brown, W. H. C. Noble, Dana Weller, Frank Caldwell, F. Winstanley, W. D. Spalding, Richard Gird, Everett Perry, Leonora Schutze, T. W. Okey, G. W. Herron, M. E. Jenkins, F. E. Rising, Clarence Hough and W. A. Paxton.

City-Planning Commission.

During the coming ten days we shall all be intensely interested in the city planning exhibit, which opens tomorrow. Reception committees for each of the ten days have been appointed. Mrs. J. E. Cowles is chairman of the Programme Committee for next Wednesday, and Mrs. Fred W. Wood is chairman of the Reception Committee, which will be composed of five delegates from each of the following clubs: Friday Morning, Ebell, Wednesday Morning, Million, Highland Park Ebell, and Outlook.

Forecast of Elections.

As the season of elections draws near the air is thick with rumors as to the probable personnel of officials and directors of the numerous clubs. It seems a foregone conclusion that Mrs. Seward Simons and Mrs. E. R. Brainerd will be named as first and second vice-presidents, respectively, of the Friday Morning Club. Mrs. Thomas Allan Box, the present first vice-president, has announced her intention of withdrawing and Mrs. Simons is her legitimate successor.

It has been officially announced also, I understand, that Mrs. J. F. Sartori and Mrs. Charles Monroe will be added to the board of directors. Mrs. Sartori's splendid work when the present clubhouse was building, makes it extremely desirable to place her on the board now that the club is facing another building proposition.

Audubon Society.

The regular indoor meeting of the Los Angeles Audubon Society will be held next Thursday in the parlors of Hotel Clark at 2:30 o'clock. The subject will be "Warblers and Vireos." Dr. Dyal of Hollywood will tell about their habits, etc.

Ruskin Art Club.

Owing to the ten days' exhibit of arts and crafts given under the auspices of the Ruskin Art Club, the regular programme for April 1 was set forward a week, and therefore came off last Wednesday morning. Mrs. W. E. Keepers and Mrs. J. B. Owens had arranged an interesting programme on the noted French writers of the early eighteenth century, which was presented in a most entertaining manner by Mmes. J. W. Hendricks, Samuel Storrow, H. T. Fennell, W. J. Saunders and Miss Lucy E. Marks.

Next Wednesday morning the club will take up the history of the early eighteenth century. Mmes. A. J. Schloesser and Robert Young will have charge of the programme and Miss Belle Smith, Mrs. J. B. Owens, Miss Lulu Ruble and Mrs. W. J. Saunders will present the topics.

Juvenile Protective Association.

The Juvenile Protective Association will meet tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in Symphony Hall, Blanchard building, when Mrs. Frank A. Gibson of the State Immigration Commission will speak on immigration problems relative to the juvenile protective work; Mrs. George Rice will discuss the extension work, and Mrs. John J. Abramson will review the work done in Chicago during the year.

Talks on Thrift.

"If I'd heard this talk four months ago it would have saved me $200," remarked a young woman at the Y.W.C.A. the other night, commenting on one of the practical lectures given in the series of talks on "Thrift." The addresses are drawing large crowds of girls and women who are deeply interested in the subjects presented.

Advice to the Undergraduate.

At the April meeting of the women's missionary societies of the First Congregational Church last Thursday an interesting article by Mrs. William Horace Day published in the March issue of the North American Student, was read by Mrs. George H. Clark. This magazine is published in the interests of colleges and Mrs. Day's contribution, "If I Were an Undergraduate Again," was full of splendid hints to the college girl. Mrs. Day is a graduate of Wellesley and her suggestions were well taken and to the point. She advises the college girl to cultivate wholesome enthusiasms, individual initiative and personalities—especially the world's greatest personality—Jesus Christ. Last of all she advises the undergraduate not to take herself too seriously, but rather to see herself as humorous and reminds her that, whereas college is a great responsibility and a privilege, nevertheless it should be played as a game with zest, enthusiasm and joy.

Eschscholtzia Chapter D.A.R.

It was announced at the meeting of Eschscholtzia Chapter D.A.R. on Tuesday that the Santa Fe Railroad has agreed to provide and furnish a reception-room in the Grand Canyon exhibit at the Panama Exposition for the accommodation of Daughters of the American Revolution. A request has come to Eschscholtzia chapter from the State organization for a contribution amounting to $3 per capita toward the maintaining of rest rooms at the exposition. Since the railroad has thus generously come forward with this offer the regent, Mrs. H. C. Dillon, observed that perhaps now it would not be necessary to contribute more than $2 per capita. An invitation was read from the Hollywood chapter to the Eschscholtzias to attend the birthday reception of the former, which will take place tomorrow at Wilcox Hall. Mrs. Morgan, vice-regent of the Hollywood chapter, spoke of the efforts of her organization to establish milk stations for the babies and asked the co-operation of the Eschscholtzias in petitioning the City Council to provide for the same, which was unanimously accorded. Miss Helen Werner sang very delightfully some German songs preliminary to the programme, and the feature of the afternoon was the entertainment given by the superintendent and cabinet officers of the George Junior Republic, an account of which was published in Thursday's Times.

Tropico Woman's Club.

Mrs. Charles A. Barker, president of the Tropico Thursday Afternoon Club, deems it advisable to hold closed meetings of the club occasionally, at which questions of vital importance to the organization are discussed. Such a meeting of the club was held Thursday afternoon at Knights of Pythias Hall and was largely attended, Mrs. Barker presiding.

The topic under discussion was relative to the purchasing of a club lot and the location of same. The club at present owns a valuable lot at the corner of Blanche avenue and Cypress street, which has been deemed advisable to sell. Mrs. O. M. Carpenter, as delegate to the Sierra Madre Club Reciprocity Day, and Mrs. Wesley H. Bullis, delegate to the reciprocity day of the Cosmos Club of Los Angeles, each gave interesting reports of the clubs visited.

Mrs. E. V. Lawton and Dr. Jessie Russell, who represented the Tropico Club at the recent convention of woman's clubs, held in Santa Barbara, gave most interesting accounts of the splendid convention.

Mrs. Edward M. Lynch with Mrs. Barker will represent the club at the Riverside convention the latter part of this month, while Mrs. O. A. Conrad and Mrs. Dwight Griswold will attend as alternates.

Mrs. John A. Logan, Mrs. Wayland Brown, Mrs. J. Herbert Smith, Mrs. Joseph H. Webster and Mrs James L. Fishback have been appointed as Nominating Committee to select officers for the ensuing year.

In South Pasadena.

Dr. Charles G. Neilly, professor of history, sociology and law at Pomona College, and former judge in Chicago, was one of the speakers before the South Pasadena Women's Improvement Association Wednesday afternoon. "Berlin" was the topic, and he spoke particularly on the relief of the poor, telling of the movement to help poor people, from the thirteenth century up to the present time, and the deduction was that the way to deal with deficiencies was to train the child right, rather than to deal with the man. Commissions have been formed in Berlin to take care of the poor, especially the children, to keep them from becoming dependents. He stated that more than 4000 persons in Berlin alone are taking care of the children of poor parents.

Nemo KOPSERVICE
THE CORSET MARVEL OF THE CENTURY

IT is not by chance or luck that the word "Nemo" has come to mean all that is good in corsets. Years of hard work, constant study and successful experimenting have given the Nemo its rightful place as the standard corset of the world.

Nothing but sheer superior merit could have induced the loyal and fastidious Parisienne to adopt our corsets as her very own, while steadfastly refusing all others made outside of her beloved France.

Mlle. la Parisienne gladly accepts the Nemo because it gives her something different and better; but she rejects every other American-made corset, even when enveloped in a maze of French names and a somewhat doubtful atmosphere of "Paris" fashion notes.

NEARLY every woman knows the Nemo as a corset of health, comfort and durability. Some have yet to recognize it as the foremost STYLE corset.

The Nemo, being a positive corset, must be correctly selected, accurately adjusted, and intelligently worn; then it will give greater satisfaction than any other corset at any price.

For the modish "natural" or so-called "corsetless" figure, the new Nemo Kopservice Corsets are par excellence—nothing in the market to compare with them.

This is a hint worthy the attention of Mrs. and Miss la Mode—and all their sisters, cousins and aunts—when preparing their summer outfittings.

Be a wise woman! Act upon this really valuable suggestion.

Most progressive dealers will be glad to help you.

A DEBUTANTE'S LETTER.

LOS ANGELES, April 10.

Imogen dearest: We are all on the tip-toe of expectation for the announcement of the date of your wedding. Recalling what a delightful affair Margaret's marriage was three years ago and what a picturesque setting Casa del Palmas makes for such affairs, we naturally expect Margaret's sister to achieve the zenith of perfection in such things. You will make an adorable bride, cherie, with that queenly little poise of yours—and the present fashions fit so gracefully into the graceful requirements of the case.

There will be quite a deluge of weddings directly after Easter, pre-June brides being quite the thing. Georgie Off, for instance, and Sally Polk. That charming little Mrs. Cadwalader entertained for Sally with a theater party on Thursday, with an Alexandria finale.

But most of the entertaining of the complimentary genre is for the Von Schmidts just now. Have you heard that they are going back to Austria? Of course they'll come back some day. We all do. But in the meantime they conscientiously believe they mean to live permanently in Austria.

We shall miss them, for they are dear people. And besides even a title incog. has its glamour. Personally I adore titles, frankly and unashamed. I have always felt it must be quite easy to imagine oneself in love with the owner of one. It must be so very much easier to forgive a titled husband—and since we have to forgive them all at some time or another, why not choose the easiest? At all events, the Von Schmidts are going to be quite embarrassed with banquets and farewell speeches, sentimental adieux and keepsakes. The Monroes, Bishops, Holterhoffs and the rest of that set are already to blossom into complimentary parties directly the Lenten embargo is raised.

Talking of Austria reminds me of Olivia. You remember the Fitzpatrick girl who married the Austrian count two years ago. She has just had another baby—these American girls do do their duty by the title and the country when they leave the United States, dont they? Ventura, where the Fitzpatricks live, is in a high state of excitement about it—they are, of course, the social pivot about which things revolve up there. Mary, the younger sister, has gone over to stay with her illustrious aunt, the Duchess of Westminster, too—so we may safely await events.

That George Cornwallis West, who was recently divorced by Lady Randolph Churchill, is the duchess's brother. We knew him quite well at one time—rather a nice sort of a boy. He married Mrs. Patrick Campbell, who, as you remember, is a close friend of ours, only last week, directly the decree was made absolute. Both Mrs Pat and Lady Churchill are many years his senior—he is exactly the same age as Winston Churchill, First Lord of the British Admiralty, Lady Randolph's son. All the same, he has pretty good taste—both those women are utterly charming. The last play we saw Mrs. Pat in in England last fall was Barrie's "The Adored One." She was a widow with seven children in the play and Barrie married her off to a handsome young lieutenant in the last act, but managed to make it seem perfectly natural and logical. So you can guess she is rather irresistible.

We are all looking forward to the resumption of social activities and those jolly dance affairs on April 17 and 18. The first is at the Bannings—the Children's Hospital affair which we all mean to support energetically, I can tell you. The second at the Ebell Club for the Neighborhood Settlement. I am a little hazy as to the exact functions of a neighborhood settlement, but am prepared to dance for it. Besides, Mrs. Sumner P. Hunt is the presiding genius, which always means perfection.

Considering that it is Holy Week we have really managed to have rather a gay time. The men's golf championship has been held at the San Gabriel Country Club all the week, so we spent several afternoons out there. Men do look fascinating in their golf clothes, don't they? Quite an illusion, though. It's awful to own a really ardent golfer, it obsesses their lives and is an oppressive specter at every feast. Listen and talk golf and you are endurable, otherwise they have no use for you. The tournament concludes with a dinner dance tomorrow night, near enough to Easter for most of us to participate with a clear conscience. All the same that dance is going to cause mixed emotions. It is being given for the golfers and scarcely a golfer dances! So the beggars are going to sit long over their dinners, make speeches on the presentation of the prizes and then retire to the men's locker room and leave all the sweet femininity to languish or dance with itself. I know 'em.

The woman's championship comes off at the Midwick Country Club on April 20 and everyone is responding in the most encouraging manner. Golf for women is enjoying quite a rennaisance this year. The San Gabriel Country Club will hold an invitation tournament for women the following week, first Tuesday in May, as well—so we really ought to regain our complexions and keep our figures.

The Los Angeles Country Club will blossom with another cabaret dinner dance on April 25, and of course the Midwick will arrange something frivolous to augment the golf during the women's tournament, besides which our amiable society leaders are in the throes of excogitating several forms of decorous hilarity for our entertainment during the next few weeks.

You knew Mrs. Longstreet and Daphne were off for Europe next week, didn't you? Daphne is tremendously excited, of course. Wonder if she will be as petted over there as she has been here. Pretty girl, she is sure to make a hit.

Well, cherie, let us hear from you soon—hope your mater is better.

Love from

THE WEEK.

RECEPTIONS, DINNERS, WEDDINGS AND THE LIKE.

LITTLE children of the Neighborhood Settlement Association and ate at the Children's Hospital inted the good work done last week by society matrons and their young dants, who completed plans for two large benefits.

The first will be the costume dance to be given by the members of the Amateur Players' Club the evening of Friday, April 17. A cot at the hospital will be maintained with the proceeds. The early hours of the evening will be devoted to exhibition dancing, while later a ball will be the pleasure. The dances of 1776, to the steps which will probably be in vogue in the year 2000, will be done by young people in costume. The minuet will be interpreted by Miss Katherine Barbour, Miss Mary Burnham, Miss Juliet Boileau, Miss Louise Reed, W. S. Witmer, Horace Boynton, Carrol Stilson and L. B. Jones, while the gavotte will be danced by Miss Virginia Walsh and Robert Craig. There will also be some clever dancing in the old-fashioned hop waltz and this will be in charge of Miss Ellen Newlin and Jack McFarland. Other numbers will include the polka by Miss Mildred Burnett and Frank son; lancers, Mr. and Mrs. Rob Sweeny, Miss Gertrude King, Miss rin Winston, Miss Kate Van Nuys, ines Page, Roy Nastager and Gonle Munoz; gallop, Miss Lucy Lantz and Mr. Merrick; schottische, Miss Daniels and George Reed; glyde waltz, Dr. Archibald Macleish and Miss Frances Edwards; two-step, Miss Lillian Van Dyke and John Ran; Boston, Mrs. Walter Brunswig and Frederick Day; one-step, Miss len McCarthy and Morgan Adams; hesitation waltz, Mrs. Roy Pierce and Frank Gilchrist; tango, Miss Elizabeth Reed and Erick Kobbe; Maxixe, Miss rtha Woolwine and Paul Herron, and the cubist or futurist dance, Mrs. y Cochran and Robert Farquhar.

The Settlement benefit will take place the following afternoon at the Clubhouse on South Figueroa street, and many pleasing features have been arranged by the Board of Managers, including Mrs. Sumner Hunt, Mrs. Henry T. Lee, Mrs. Spencer E. Smith, Mrs. Arthur C. Stilson, Miss Esther Nelson, Mrs. Isaac Blank, Mrs. Walter Jarvis Barlow, Mrs. Mark B. Rice, Mrs. Albert Crutcher, Mrs. John T. The pictures show 8 of the 94 sample gowns & wraps which came to us 'way under half---which we're to sell at $33

—In many cases this sale price is less than a third of what these garments were to have sold at wholesale!—

—In only two or three cases were the wholesale prices as low as this Monday price!

—That gives you some idea of the extraordinariness of the values.

—Now to the garments themselves!—They are the samples of one of the foremost manufacturers of this country—among them are some of the original Parisian creations which he imported as models!

—The materials are for the most part so daringly different from those one meets from day to day—that a mere story of words fails to carry an idea of their beauty! Let us add only that there are gorgeously embroidered chiffons—rich heavy satins—soft chiffons—moires—taffetas—and others galore—some made up with exquisite real laces—all of them brilliantly different.

—Evening gowns and wraps—most of them—though there are a good number of smart afternoon models among them—some stunning three-piece affairs included!—

—Note the pictures again—these were all drawn directly from the garments in this event.

—See the great showing of them in the windows today—plan to be on the 3rd floor Monday at 9 o'clock—

Mid-season clearance garments and millinery

—Every piece of merchandise that comes into our stocks is marked with a "week limit"—or in other words, there is time set when it must be sold. On garments and millinery this time limit is about 4—

—Naturally in stocks as large as ours—some merchandise is bound to overstay its time—not necessarily because it's unworthy, but mostly because it has not had a chance to be seen!

—Right now we have coats, suits, dresses and hats in stock that should have been sold Easter week—and so Monday we inaugurate this "Mid-season clearance"—and we've named prices so low that stocks should be in shipshape in almost no time at all—

—Below, we have merely listed some of the garments and hats that go into this event—

Clearance of suits at $21.00

—Our policy won't permit the quoting of comparative prices, but you'll find the suits quite as unusual values at $21.00 as though we gave you their worth prices in this advertisement.

—There are included—suits of wool crepe, poplins, granite cloths — Estrella fabrics — Gabardines—English and French serges—worsted checks—taffetas—failles—silk poplins—moires and brocaded poplins in many pastel as well as street shades.

—All sizes from misses' 14 to women's 46—

Mid-season clearance of coats at $21.00

—Street and afternoon coats of taffeta—of faille—of poplin—of moire—of bengaline—of wool poplins—of eponges—of wool crepes—of worsteds and heather weaves.

—All sizes will be included when the sale opens!

Mid-season clearance of coats suits and dresses Monday $14.95

—The suits are of gabardines—of English serges—wool crepes—novelty mixtures and black and white checks—All sizes, 14 to 44—

—The coats are of silk moire—poplin—eponge—diagonals—golfeen cloth—crepes—serges and chinchillas in all popular colors—sizes 14 to 44.

—The dresses are of crepe de chine—taffeta—"Cascade Deux"—charmeuse—flowered crepes and poplins in all wanted shades—All sizes!

—Every garment included in this $14.95 group is enough underworth to make it well worth your while to come a long way to see—

—Early choosing will, of course, be most satisfactory!—

Over a hundred hats in this mid-season clearance at $5

—Some few were reduced a third—many were reduced nearly a half and others were reduced even more than a half—

—You can understand by these reductions we've made how eager we are to put our stocks in perfect order!—

—Understand, please—these are not old hats—they have simply been in stock longer than their allotted time (about four weeks,) and they must go now—and go they will at this new price we've attached!—

—Practically every wanted style—straw and color is included—remember, over a hundred in all!

Mid-season clearance of hats at $14.75

—56 hats that were marked from one-third more to nearly double this sale price!—And you know the lowness of Jacoby's regular prices!—

Mid-season clearance of hats at $18.75

—Just eleven hats in this group — but these eleven are so much under their real worth that this should prove to be a powerful trade-pulling magnet.

Mid-season clearance of hats at $24.75

—Nine hats—six of them more than a third under their original prices—three of them very close to half price. Imagine how long they'll last!

Mid-season clearance of hats at $34.75

—Sixteen hats are to go at this new price—eleven of them are a third under regular—two of them are about half price—three are way less than half!

Second Floor—Jacoby's.

Handkerchiefs underpriced!

—At 10c are all linen, hemstitched handkerchiefs with embroidered corners. Some, too, with scalloped edges—

—At 15c and 25c are sample handkerchiefs, some with embroidered corners—some with scalloped edges—some lace edges and some with colored borders—

—The savings are such that it will pay you to buy them by the dozen—many will buy them for next Christmas giving!

It's Easy to Peel Off All Your Freckles

The contrast between the freckles and the clear skin usually is so great that no bleach can be more than partially successful in obliterating the disfigurements. Ordinary Mercolized wax is far better; it literally peels off the freckles. Get an ounce of it at the nearest drug store and tonight spread on enough to completely cover your face; remove in the morning with warm water. Repeat daily until every freckle has disappeared.

Rough, blotchy, pimpled skin, also common at this season, may be entirely gotten rid of by this same method, without discomfort or inconvenience. The effort is decidedly worth while, the new complexion obtained being so clear, smooth and youthful.

If bothered with wrinkles, bathe the face in a lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel. This is the most effective and quickest-acting wrinkle treatment known.

OUT-OF-TOWN-SOCIETY.

Pasadena.

THE closing week of Lent was phenomenally dull socially, there being a notable lack of entertaining and very few functions of importance. Chief among those of elegant appointment was the bridge luncheon given by Mrs. W. B. Meikle of Oak Knoll, who entertained forty-four of her women friends at Hotel Maryland. At an elaborately decorated center table placed in the music room, covers were laid for twenty and four smaller tables had covers for eight each. Cecile Bruner roses filled white and gold baskets caught with pink tulle butterfly bows and these were placed in the center of each table where all the accessories carried out a pink color scheme. Auction bridge followed the luncheon.

One of the larger affairs of last week was the musicale given Friday afternoon by Mrs. A. F. Gartz of Altadena in the music room of her home. The programme was furnished by Miss Bessie Chapin, violinist, Miss Millette, vocal soloist, and Mrs. William Keepers gave readings. There were seventy present.

Mrs. Charles Henry Hill and Mrs. Warner Josiah Barton, who have been guests so many winters at Hotel Green as to seem residents of Pasadena, entertained Monday with a charmingly appointed bridge luncheon at Hotel Green when covers were laid for eight. Notable Purchase of Dress Goods at 95c Yard

1000 Sub-tropical Fruit Trees and Plants in 4-inch Pots—Six Varieties, Five Pictured 25c Catalogued at 50c Each, to Go at 25c

Feijoa Sellowiana (Pineapple Guava)
Passiflora Edulis Fruiting Passion Vine
Psidium Araca (Guava)
Psidium Guayaba (Guava)
Casimiroa Edulis white Sapote

—By special arrangement with the West India Gardens, importers and growers of sub-tropical plants and trees, we have secured a thousand rare fruit trees, strong and healthy and well started in 4-inch pots—1000 of them that we can offer in an after-Easter sale at 25c each.
—Owing to the low price and the difficulties of handling it will be impossible for us to make deliveries.
—This is a wonderful opportunity to secure fruit trees of the rarer varieties that have thrived in this California climate.
—Fruits that are delicious and not commonly obtained in open market. You can grow these in your back yard and have rare fruit for your table.
—We advise early selection.
—See the window with photos of the fruit, and the six varieties of trees and plants that are obtainable at 25c each.

PASSIFLORA EDULIS Fruiting Passion Vine

—The Passion Vine thrives in California, is a vigorous grower and well suited to use on trellis or screen frames. It is quite hardy.
—The fruit is the size and shape of an egg, and contains a pulp of exceedingly good flavor. It is consumed much in the same manner as an egg—that is, by cutting off one end and removing the contents with a spoon. The pulp is also used as a flavoring for cakes, ice creams, drinks and sweet meats, and is a much appreciated addition to fruit salads. It packs and ships well.

PSIDIUM GUAYABA Guava

—This highly esteemed tropical fruit is well adapted to our climate—this is the common guava of the tropics. Only those who have eaten the guava jelly of the tropics know how vastly superior it is to that made from the Strawberry Guava.

FEIJOA SELLOWIANA The Pineapple Guava

—It much resembles the common guava. The plant grows to an ultimate height of eight or ten feet, has brilliant and attractive flowers.
—The fruits are about the size and shape of a hen's egg, green in color and is one of the most delicious imaginable, combining the flavors of pineapple, raspberry and banana. The seeds are from 30 to 50 in number, and so small that they cannot be felt in the mouth, being, in fact, no larger than strawberry or fig seeds.
—The season of ripening is from November to January. The fruits keep for a remarkable length of time and may be shipped to any part of the country in perfect condition.
—It has proven hardy wherever tried in California, standing without harm, a temperature as low as 12 degrees above zero.

THE CHERIMOYA

—Classed as one of the three finest fruits in the world. Eminently adapted to this climate, or wherever the orange thrives. Best suited to a light sandy soil, but it can also be grown successfully on adobe, if it has good drainage.
—Fruit is heart shaped or oval, green or brown in color, about the size of a navel orange. The skin is usually covered with small conical protuberances and enclose a mass of white, melting, custard-like pulp. The flavor is similar to the pineapple and is liked by everyone.
—It ripens during the spring months.

CASIMIROA EDULIS The White Sapote

—It has been shown to withstand quite low temperatures. The tree is spindling when young, but in time forms a beautiful umbrageous head and is very ornamental. Extremely drought-resistant, and will stand more neglect than almost any other tree.
—The fruit is very similar in appearance to a quince and about the same size. The skin is thin, surrounds a soft, melting pulp, very sweet and of a flavor almost impossible of description.
—The seeds vary from 2 to 5 and are quite large in size.
—Will grow in almost any soil.

PSIDIUM ARACA Guava

—A recently introduced species, is somewhat similar in growth and fruit to the popular Strawberry Guava, but superior to it.
—The leaves are broad and very glossy, the fruit is spherical, an inch to an inch and a half in diameter, with few seeds, and of good flavor—the plant does not grow to a large size, but is a very prolific bearer.

The Usher of Spring

Suggests the Renewing of Home Furnishings

With the dulcet carol of silver-throated songsters, the enlivening of rich foliage, the sweet fragrance of blooming roses—and the springtime awakening of all Nature—comes a natural desire to harmonize the home with the new order of things.

For many months the "California" has been anticipating your spring and summer needs. We are now prepared as never before to assist you in imparting to your home the fresh and dainty touch of spring.

Here you will find distinctive and worthy furniture from the leading cabinet-makers of America as well as a most varied assortment of graceful reed and "Crex" summer furniture. Rugs in almost every conceivable pattern, from the most modest Colonials—serviceable Body Brussels and elegant Wiltons up to the finest Orientals. New and attractive wall coverings and draperies, whose motifs and color schemes suggest summer life and verdure.

The "California" marks every article at the very lowest price for which it can possibly be sold. So-called "Bargain Sales" which are invariably employed to decoy the unthinking are not only unnecessary but absolutely impossible here. Your own unbiased comparisons will convince you that our values are unsurpassed in the entire city.

We cordially invite you to come to us for suggestions and help in the economical beautifying of your home.

will this week be replete with the newest ideas in spring and summer furnishings. You will find the display well worth a special visit to see.

MISS GWENDOLYN M. BOWLUS, daughter of John L. Bowlus, No. 1511 Hope street, became the bride of C. Fred Brombacher of Los Angeles Thursday morning, the ceremony being performed at the home of the officiating clergyman, Rev. Shultz, of Los Angeles, before a few intimate friends and relatives only. Immediately following the ceremony they went to San Pedro, where they took the Yale for San Francisco and other northern points. After May 1 they will be at home to their friends in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gortner of La France avenue will have as their house guest this week their nephew, Adolph Bade of Goshen, Ind., who is coming to Los Angeles with the Ann Arbor Glee Club.

Honoring the birthday anniversary of their son, Frank, Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo B. Cass entertained the Dinner Bridge Club at their home, Fair Oaks avenue and Oak street, Thursday evening. The guests were all seated at one table laid in the form of a Maltese cross, centered by eight large baskets filled with tulips, narcissus, renunculas and forget-me-nots. Following dinner, tables were arranged in the large living-room for games of auction, prizes falling to Mrs. Hobert, Miss Ellen Butterfield and Messrs. Butterfield and Clarence Council. Included were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fisher Hobert, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sanson, Mr. and Mrs. William Council, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Sutton, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sebree, Col. Frederick Butterfield, Miss Ellen Butterfield, Miss Lucille Council, Miss Irene Salisbury, Miss Geraldine Frick and Clarence Council.

Mrs. David A. Vail of Spruce street entertained with the third of the series of afternoon teas given this season. Purple and white iris and the climbing Cherokee rose formed an effective decoration throughout the home, and cards, dainty fancy work and pleasant conversation employed the afternoon. Among those included were Mrs. Charles Bennett, Mrs. Alonzo B. Cass, Mrs. John W. Shenk, Jr., Mrs. Charles Hudson, Mrs. Walter Sebree, Mrs. George Stainbach, Mrs. Seymour, Mrs. J. P. Whitemore, Mrs. Albert Doerr, Mrs. Frank Stokes, Mrs. Fannie Ewing, Mrs. A. Crebbs and Mrs. Charles Lewis Allen of Los Angeles.

One of the charming affairs of the week was the bridge luncheon presided over by Miss Laura Hoffman Thursday afternoon at her home, No. 1129 Fair Oaks avenue. The table was a glowing mass of Cecile Bruner roses, set in maidenhair and softly-shaded lights. Hand-lined cards adorned with spring blossoms marked covers for the hostess, Mrs. Alexander Kisselburg, Miss Kathryn Weiss, Miss Elizabeth Weiss, Miss Margrita Vincent and Miss Hazel Listerburger, all of Los Angeles, Miss Dolphine Fort and Miss Eola Crippen.

Mrs. P. B. Spears, No. 1966 Milan avenue, has gone North to visit her children. She is now the guest of her daughter, Mrs. J. B. Woodson, of Fresno, and before her return will visit another daughter, Mrs. L. R. Robertson, of Oakland, and her son, Charles Spears, of San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. John V. Sweetser entertained the members of the Monday Eevening Musical Club at their home, No. 1960 Primrose avenue, which was embellished with the pink Cherokee roses. The programme presented was by American composers under 40 years of age, and consisted of a piano and organ duet by Miss Mabel Bishop and George Bishop; a quartet by Mr. and Mrs. Sweetser, Mrs. Vail and Ernest Hesser; piano number, Miss Louise Scott; baritone solos by Messrs. Hesser and Babcock, and a paper on the psychology of music from John Bettin. A social hour with dainty refreshments followed the programme. The hostess was assisted by her sister, Mrs. L. C. EVERY SHOE GOES NOW!

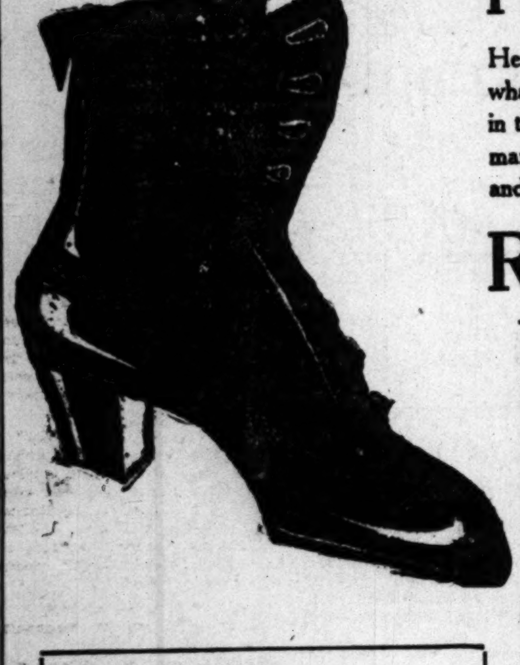
Practically No Time at All Left Us in Which to Clear Out!

Here's the last stand of the big store. We've been at this sale for two or three months, and now we're forced to close out absolutely with no loss of time whatsoever. There isn't a pair of shoes in the store (and, mind you, there are thousands and thousands of pairs here) that doesn't suffer with the rest in this tremendous sacrifice for quick clearance. The store is going to be sold. Until such time as it is sold we are going to put shoes into the Los Angeles market at prices that will make it almost impossible for other dealers to sell shoes. Wise buyers are already planning their Easter shoe purchases here, and not only their Easter purchases, but they are planning to stock up on shoes for the rest of the year.

Read These Absolute Clearance Prices. Act Now



Every Pair Men's Shoes $2.95

Values to $6

Absolute clearance of every pair of men's shoes in the store. High or low. It makes no difference whether you want a smart summer tan calf shoe, English in style, the newest last, or whether you wish a more conservative last. You can have black calf skin, tan Russia calf, patent colt, gunmetal or vici. And the whole lot is to be cleared out at this one price tomorrow. Note that the values are as high as $6.00.

Every Pair Colored Satin Slippers

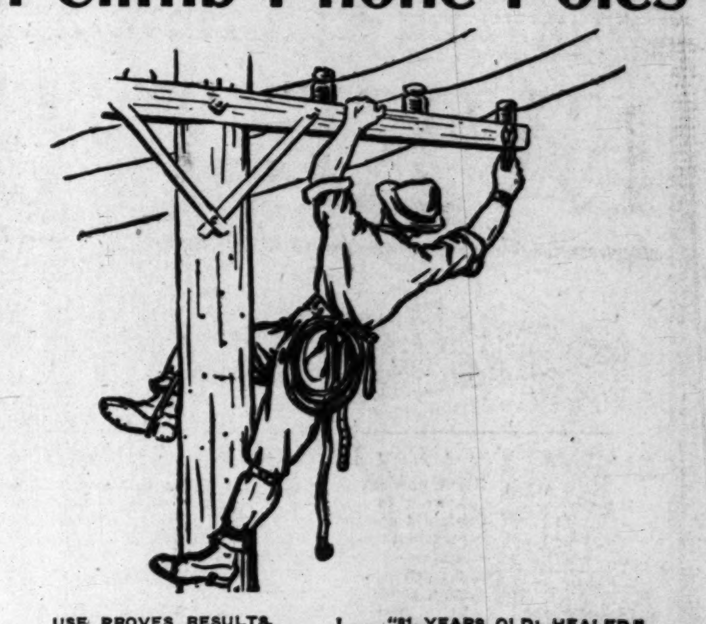
Ruptured for Fifteen Years, Now Can Climb Phone Poles



George Higgins Tells How Wonderful Schuiling Rupture Lock Cured Long Standing Rupture.

George H. Higgins, superintendent of construction for the Citizens' Telephone Company of Grand Rapids, Mich., suffered from rupture for fifteen years. No truss could give him relief. Often he was forced to go to bed. To work was torture.

One day he put on a Schuiling Rupture Lock.

He was himself again at once.

He found he could even climb a telephone pole with any of the "boys" if he wanted to.

He was convinced. A year later Mr. Higgins, certain that the benefits were permanent and that he was really cured, wrote a letter telling of his experience. He said:

"For fifteen years I went around as best I could with two ruptures, at times so painful that I was forced to take to my bed. Had tried for relief many times with worthless trusses, but all turned out the same, no good for me.

"I was advised to try a Schuiling Rupture Lock by a friend, who claimed he was cured, which I did, and in one year I was completely cured on both sides, health restored, feeling strong and active as a man of twenty.

MADE HIM YOUNG AGAIN.

"Now, being sixty-five years of age, can climb a telephone pole with any of the boys if I want to.

"I hope others may be benefited as myself."

Mr. Higgins' cure was remarkable, but not remarkable in the history of the Schuiling Rupture Lock. Hundreds have received just such benefits.

Mr. Higgins knows he is cured.

Any rupture sufferer interested can write to Mr. Higgins at No. 1431 Robinson Road, Grand Rapids, Mich., and he will answer all questions. He knows.

The experience of Mr. Higgins is proof positive of the safety and effectiveness of the Schuiling Rupture Lock.

When such an active man, with a case of such long standing, gets relief as Mr. Higgins did, any rupture sufferer, man, woman or child, can be sure that the Schuiling Rupture Lock will give satisfaction under any demands that may se put upon it.

MOST IMPORTANT OF INVENTIONS.

The Schuling Rupture Lock is the most important invention since the treatment of rupture began.

Rupture sufferers have been robbed for years by men who make trusses, worthless devices made only to "sell." The Schuiling Rupture Lock is made to use.

You no doubtless have been disappointed and discouraged by the rosy promises and seductive statements of all kinds of rupture quacks. You perhaps have tried many trusses and toturing devices that gave no satisfaction. Meanwhile, the handicap of rupture remained.

It has been a burden on your life and your work that you have been unable to throw off.

But this announcement brings you honest assurance that you can get real relief.

The Schuiling Rupture Lock will cure rupture.

You can put on the Schuiling Rupture Lock and throw your truss away forever.

USE PROVES RESULTS.

The Schuling Rupture Lock has been tested and proven by results that have stood for years. Results are proven by hundreds of cases. People in all kinds of occupations, from "desk jobs" to the hazadrous labors of the frontiers, declare it has relieved and cured them.

You can get the Schuiling Rupture Lock on thirty days' free trial. In that time we know that it will prove itself to you. You assume no risk whatever—and we have so much confidence in it that we know we are taking no risk at all. You will certainly want it. You will know at once that you cannot afford to be without it.

It does not matter what has failed bebefore. The Schuiling Rupture Lock is a wonderful invention that eliminates the possibility of danger. It will save the rupture sufferer from dangerous operations; it will cure rupture. It brings the ruptured parts together with a firm, but gentle pressure, under just the right conditions for nature to complete the cure.

COMFORTABLE TO WEAR.

The Schuiling Rupture Lock is simple in construction and comfortable to wear. It avoids acute pressure on the pubic bone, hips or spine. It has no unsanitary leg bands, elastics, springs or steel stays, and metal bands. The lock is free in its action, yet absolutely sure and safe.

Our book on rupture explains in detail all the wondeful features of this remarkable invention. This book will be sent free by the next mail, on your request.

Read here what some of the many who have used the Schuiling Rupture Lock write about it:

"81 YEARS OLD; HEALED."

John Schinnerer of Columbus, Ind., said: "I was fitted with the Schuiling Rupture Lock four months ago, and now find that the ruptured openings are entirely healed up. I am 81 years old, and never expected a cure at my age."

"WORE IT 8 MONTHS; CURED."

Edward E. Dickerson, Prescott and S. Division St., Grand Rapids, Mich., writes: "I had been ruptured for years—had worn all kinds of trusses and appliances, but all to no avail until your lock was tried. It held my rupture as nothing before had done. Wore it eight months and was completely cured.

WOMAN ESCAPES KNIFE.

Mrs. Catherine Sottong of Brookeville, Ind., writes:

"I had been a rupture sufferer for a long time and it was getting so bad that I could not drag myself around the house any more. It was as large as two fists; I was all bent over with pain; never could get anything to keep it up. My doctor and lots of other physicians said that I must have an operation to do me any good, but I was afraid and put it off, hoping that I might some day find some kind of an article that would help me; now I glad that I waited, for at last I heard of the Schuiling Rupture Lock. I ordered one to try, and, sure enough, it held my rupture from the very first, and now I am cured and only wore it five months."

The Schuiling Rupture Lock is the thing for you.

Just write us a letter or postal asking for the free book on rupture, giving your name and address clearly—or fill out and mail to us the blank form here.

Prof. G. J. Roberts, principal of the Escondido High School, was a guest in the home of his brother Prof. J. C. Roberts, this week.

Colton.

AMONG the many pleasures of Easter week indulged in by those not strictly "keeping Lent" was the merry house party given by Mrs. D. W. Willets, president of the Colton Woman's Club, at the cosy beach cottage of the family at Balboa, from Wednesday until Saturday night. The delighted guests were the members of the executive board of the club, including Mrs. M. A. Shumate, Mrs. M. A. Bausch, Mrs. C. F. Whitmer, Mrs. A. E. Copeland, Mrs. L. C. Newcomer, Mrs. M. A. Hebberd, Mrs. E. G. Palmer and Mrs. Charles Wondries. Surf bathing, rowing and beach trips in the Willets touring car, in addition to all the delights that life at the seashore affords, occupied happily every moment of the sojourn.

La France and American Beauty roses lent a charming embellishment to the table in the pretty little dining-room of Hotel Anderson, where, on Tuesday evening, Mrs. Martha Holt Hebberd entertained with a dinner of twelve covers. Place cards, nut cups and other appointments furthered the dainty note of pink employed for the event, which was enjoyed by Dr. and Mrs. Holt of Chicago, parents of the hostess; Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Copeland, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Curtis, City Clerk and Mrs. N. Davenport, Mrs. Ralph Garner, Miss Daisy Davenport and E. T. Eisenmeyer of Los Angeles.

Of interest among many friends in this city has been the announcement of the approaching marriage of Miss Stella Sankey, formerly a member of the High School faculty, and who is now being feted by former Colton folk residing in Los Angeles. The past week Miss Sankey was made the honoree of a needle and pin shower given there by Miss Jessie Booth, whose engagement to Attorney Ray Fitzgerald of Los Angeles was but recently announced.

The W. W. Wilcox cabin at Brookside, in Lytle Creek Canyon, has been occupied during Easter week by Gilbert Wilcox and a group of Los Angeles friends, Roscoe Beehan, Hershall Baskett, Richard Bullis and Howard Guinn, all students in L. A. High.

Mrs. M. C. Yard and daughter, Miss Bessie, of Canyon City, Colo., mother and sister of Mrs. O. G. Crawford, are in Long Beach for a sojourn of several weeks.

Miss Estrella Ross, Miss Frankie Dickson, Miss Florence Felton and Miss Margaret Easton of the city's corps of teachers, spent a portion of the week of spring vacation at the Arrowhead.

Mr. and Mrs. George Jantzen and son, and Harry Lawrence, also of the High School faculty, found the cabin of Dr. and Mrs. F. H. Pritchard at Brookside a cheerful recreation spot during the Easter recess.

Miss Louise Lothrop, a student in the Los Angeles Normal, was a guest of Miss Lenna King for a few days during the week of vacation.

J. H. Caster has been called to Colton from Trenton, Mo., by the serious illness of his mother, Mrs. G. B. Castor. His wife and child are to follow.

Casa Verdugo.

MISS HELEN M'MULLEN of No. 1560 Sycamore avenue entertained a party of her young friends on Tuesday evening. The house was charmingly decorated with fragrant roses and ferns. Dancing and games afforded the evening's entertainment, and later a delicious luncheon was served. The guests who enjoyed this delightful evening were the Misses Daphne Burlingham and Aileen Prieman, Leota Williamson, Jane Snider, Leona Shattuck, Marcella Orth, Emilie Burton and the Messrs. George Marsh, Bruce Dourte, Warren Wood, Bob Dewar, Milton Brown and Lawrence Davis.

W. L. Porter of North Brand boulevard has gone to Elsinore Springs for an indefinite period, hoping to benefit his health by a sojourn in that locality.

Frank Holdene of Stromsburg, Neb., was the guest of Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Eckles of No. 1601 Ruth street, last week. He is looking for a permanent location in Southern California.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Borden Johnson and their small son, of Los Angeles, are the guests of Mrs. Johnson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McMillan, of Mountain and Louise streets for the summer, and probably will make their permanent home here.

Mrs. N. R. Browne of No. 1620 Stocker street entertained at dinner on Sunday Mrs. Ralph Bourne of Glendale and L. K. Simms, who is her house guest for the present. A delightful morning was spent playing tennis, after which full justice was done to a charmingly-appointed course dinner.

Miss Williams, of the Hagar Apartments, of North boulevard, says that her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mengo Williams of North Central avenue, who are enjoying a trip abroad, are at present at Schwarzwald, in the Black Forest, Germany, having spent three weeks in Italy and some time in France.

Eagle Rock.

THE Twentieth Century Club held its annual flower show Friday and Saturday in the Masonic Hall. A novel programme was produced each afternoon under the direction of Mrs. Ward Dutcher Hume. Friday evening a supper was held and a large crowd attended that, Mrs. H. S. Bourne being in charge of that department. On Saturday evening a dancing party was given, with Mrs. R. McNitt in charge. In addition to the usual dances the programme was arranged with a view to entertain the spectators who attended, musical numbers being given by well-known artists of this city.

Saturday afternoon the Misses Louise and Fanny Baily of No. 149 Grand View avenue entertained at an informal tea in honor of their sister, Mrs. W. H. Baily of Des Moines, Iowa. About seventy-five guests were present, chiefly former residents of Des Moines, and the occasion offered an opportunity for a delightful reunion of old friends. The decorations were roses, tulips and orange blossoms. The dining-room was very prettily decorated with orange blossoms, and tea was served during the afternoon, with Mrs. Lamberson pouring.

Miss Blanche Hill of Santa Ana is spending her Easter vacation with her aunt, Mrs. C. W. Long on Myrtle avenue.

Mrs. L. V. Moulden of North Central avenue will have as her guest for the summer Mrs. J. N. Cropper of Pacific Grove.

Corona.

MONDAY evening the Auction Bridge Club was entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. Ross. A dinner was served to the guests at 6 o'clock. The evening was spent in playing auction bridge at three tables; the first prize was won by Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Andrews, it being a beautiful drawn-work dresser scarf. Those who were present were the following: Mr. and Mrs. George M. Blair, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Andrews, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Mueller, Dr. and Mrs. E. C. Reid, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence White, Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. Ross and the guest of honor, Mrs. Stanley Evans of Loomis, Wash.

The Woman's Improvement Club held a very interesting musical programme in the clubrooms on Tuesday afternoon. The affair was largely attended by a representative body of lovers of good music. The programme was given under the direction of Mrs. Alix Babel French.

William Morefield of Grand Island, Neb., arrived in Corona the first of the week to make a visit with his nieces, Mrs. O. Songer and Mrs. J. R. Wall, and nephew, Ira [illegible]. Mr. Morefield is well advanced in years and is enjoying his first trip West and from what he has seen of California he is quite willing to spend the rest of his days here.

A limited number of garments are offered tomorrow at my store for a final quick and certain clearance. Not because they are undesirable, not because there is anything the matter with them, not because they are shopworn in the least degree. Merely because I have got to make room for incoming goods. I have to keep my stock changing all the time, and this is the first of many such special offerings that I shall probably make.

There are 50 suits, 38 dresses and 29 coats that I am going to sacrifice tomorrow at $29.50.

And I want every reader of this paper to believe me when I state emphatically and conclusively that there isn't a garment in the lot which cost me, at wholesale, less than $25. There isn't a garment in the lot which is worth, at retail, less than $40 or $50. Come early—Please!

Claremont.

The Claremont Board of Trade members were hosts at a luncheon at the Claremont Inn last Friday noon, at which James McLachlan, general manager of the Pacific Electric, and E. C. Johnson, assistant chief engineer of the Pacific Electric, were the guests. The luncheon was given for the opportunity of discussing the proposed improvements of the Pacific right of way through the city. In the center of the table was a miniature railway, half of which showed the right of way in its present unimproved condition and the other half showing it planted with palms and flowers.

A delightful dinner party at the Claremont Inn was given Wednesday evening and was enjoyed by the following guests: Misses Barbara Sanborn, Lella Ackerman, Martha Ackerman, Marguerite Allen of Los Angeles, Katherine Cook of Los Angeles, and Messrs. W. A. Allen, Ackerman, E. R. Bruce and W. S. Ament.

A large family picnic, including thirty picnickers, from Claremont and South Pasadena, spent last Sunday at Ganesha Park. Among those who were there were Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Parsons and family, of Claremont, Mrs. Mary Parsons and son of Claremont, Mrs. Hazen Parsons and son of South Pasadena, Wallace Parsons and family of South Pasadena, Mrs. Albert Gates and family, Mr. and Mrs. Don Gates and family, Miss Bertha Foster and mother, of South Pasadena, and Mrs. Harris from the East, who is the guest of her niece, Mrs. Mary Parsons.

Miss Barbara Sanford is entertaining as her guests for a few days Miss Marguerite Allen and Katherine Cook of Los Angeles.

A very enjoyable social was given at the parish house last Thursday evening by the ladies of the New Home Miscellaneous and Foreign Missionary. A very interesting programme was one of the features of the evening.

The fortieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Smith of Indian Hill boulevard was celebrated with a surprise party by a number of their friends last Friday evening. A beautiful large cake was presented by Mrs. W. T. Russell. A handsome rocker was the gift of the guests to the couple, and after a few remarks by Rev. Harper of Pomona, the delicious supper, brought by the guests, was enjoyed. Besides Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Russell and Misses Russell of Claremont, there were present a number of Pomona and Lordsburg friends.

Mrs. William Bender entertained the Gamma Theta Club at the Easter meeting Thursday afternoon. A light tea was served at the close of the afternoon.

The meeting of the Cactus Club Tuesday was extremely interesting, being in charge of W. J. Pell, who spoke on Africa. This is a subject on which Mr. Pell was very well informed, and to which he did full justice.

The Chess Club was entertained at the home of Jesse Hough Friday evening.

Upland.

MRS. P. H. M'QUILLEN entertained both Wednesday and Thursday afternoons of this week at her home on North Second avenue. How to Overcome a Bad Constipation

There Is a Mild Laxative That Will Bring Safe and Pleasant Relief Over Night.

It is only natural that the simplest of ailments should be the most general, and so we have a whole nation suffering from constipation and indigestion, for they are closely allied. But common as constipation is, many people do not seem to know they have it. They will complain of headache, drowsiness or biliousness, all unconscious of the cause of the trouble.

You should have a full and free movement at least once a day. If you pass a day you are constipated, and the result will be that you will catch a cold easily or have a more serious ailment. To cure the constipation and forestall still graver trouble take a dose of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at night before retiring and by morning relief will come, without disturbance from sleep or any inconvenience.

Legions of people use it regularly in such emergencies, some of them formerly chronic invalids who had suffered from constipation all their lives. Mrs. N. Frantz, 67 Eighth st., Salem, O., took physics for years, and, worst of all, without much avail. Finally, she began to take Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and today she is no longer troubled and eats what she likes. Many others will tell you that they have tried most things recommended for this purpose, but have found Syrup Pepsin the only one always reliable. A bottle can be obtained at any drug store for 50 cents or $1, the latter size being sought by families already familiar with its merits.

MRS. N. FRANTZ.

Syrup Pepsin is mild, pleasant-tasting and non-griping. Mothers give it to tiny infants, and yet it is effective in grown-ups. It is for everyone who suffers from any form of stomach, liver or bowel trouble, constipation, dyspepsia, biliousness, etc. Its action will so delight you that you will forever avoid harsh cathartics, purgatives, pills and salts.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it postpaid by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 412 Washington st., Monticello, Ill. A postal card with your name and address on it will do.

SOCIETY.

Goodrich, Mrs. Hamilton and Mrs. Nellie Hoffman.

The recital given under the auspices of the Woman's Club on Friday evening was a splendid success and netted the club a nice little sum. Mrs. Florence Cowan Richards, violinist; Miss Ruth S. Tubbs, soloist; Mrs. Ralph Gates Spencer, reader, and Otto Hirschler, pianist, furnished the programme, and all numbers were splendidly rendered.

Amending the constitution and by-laws, election of officers, election of delegates to the State Federation of Women's Clubs to be held at Riverside the latter part of April and the first of May, were among the things done at the regular meeting of the Woman's Club on Friday afternoon.

Highland.

MRS. PROCTOR F. COY entertained the Wednesday Luncheon Club at her home on La Praix street. The table decorations were of pink cherokee roses, and covers were laid for Miss Eunice York of Boston, Miss Iva Dell Murphy of American Fork, Utah; Mrs. J. H. Evans, Mrs. Thomas A. Ewing, Mrs. M. M. Randall, Mrs. John Yarnell, Mrs. Grats Barnes, Mrs. R. S. Thompson, Mrs. C. H. Draper, Mrs. George Thompson, Mrs. H. H. Linville, Mrs. Fred Atkinson of San Bernardino and Mrs. Coy.

Miss Lida Colliver of Los Altos, who is a guest of Mrs. Florence M. Orton, was complimented with a "tango party" given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred A. True on Wednesday evening. The lovely spring roses decorated the rooms, and punch was served during the dancing. Late in the evening a buffet luncheon was enjoyed. The company included Miss Colliver, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Peacock, Dr. and Mrs. E. H. Lyman, Miss Hazel Cochran, Miss Roxie McNeil, Miss Jane Fuller, Miss Sylvia Sloan, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fisher, Miss Villa Nye, Mrs. Florence M. Orton, Mr. and Mrs. True, Messrs. Bruce McCraken, W. E. Byrne, Martin, Charles Taylor and O. P. Sloat.

F. H. Cole of Sacramento has been enjoying a brief visit with his mother, Mrs. Mary Cole.

Miss Ella Morton of Santa Barbara is spending a week with Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Bagwill and family.

Miss Iva Dell Murphy of American Fork, Utah, is a guest of Dr. and Mrs. John Hedley Evans and daughter, Miss Maude, at their home on West Main street.

Long Beach.

SEVERAL delightful affairs have been given this week for Miss Mildred Frances White, who is to marry Allan Bishop Easter Sunday. Miss Leah Frazer of Third street, was hostess to members of the Embroidery Club at the announcement party. At table each guest found at her place pink and white Easter eggs to which were fastened hearts bearing the names of the principals in the coming wedding.

Another coming nuptial event which has been made the theme for many affairs is the wedding of Miss Mabel Vale and William Hunter of Los Angeles. Miss Vale has been feted at one grand round of social affairs. Dr. and Mrs. Seicher of Vermont avenue, entertained many guests in her honor Saturday. Miss Hazel Hill, Miss Evelyn Daymen and Miss Joseph Pette Cott entertained lavishly for her at Sierra Madre, members of the Entre Nous sorority of the U.S.C. being guests. Other affairs given Miss Vale were a luncheon by members of the faculty of the Daisy School, a luncheon given by the Pi Beta Phi sorority, and a dinner at Hotel Virginia tendered by Miss Nellie Lyons and a group of friends.

At the home of Mrs. F. C. Meissner, No. 1572 East Second street, a delicious repast was served at 1 o'clock to a group of friends, followed by a series of games. A profusion of exquisite roses formed a charming decorative scheme.

Mrs. F. C. Lisk, No. 1022 East First street, was hostess to the members of the Friendship Club at a pleasant afternoon Wednesday. Needlework engaged the attention of the guests, and an appetizing collation was served.

Four generations were represented at the birthday party given in honor of Mrs. G. T. Davis, No. 2043 Olive street, and her grand-daughter, Miss Verne Witmar. The hostesses of the party were: Mesdames Smale, Clanton and Davis. The table was graced with a large birthday cake.

Long Beach Chapter, O.E.S., will give its annual ball at Hotel Virginia Tuesday evening. Past Matrons and Past Patrons are in charge of the ball, which promises to be an important social function. The guests invited are members of the Palos Verde Chapter, Masons of Long Beach, and matrons and patrons of surrounding cities.

Mrs. E. A. Padgham of No. 295 South Grand avenue entertained a number of neighbors at a prettily-appointed luncheon today, followed by an afternoon of needlework and conversation. The dining-room was bright with red and white roses.

A delightful afternoon of Five Hundred was enjoyed by guests of Mrs. Shirley V. Bacon, No. 854 Magnolia avenue, at which Mrs. E. A. Courtney was honor guest. A profusion of roses adorned the rooms, and a dainty luncheon was served.

Announcement of the engagement of Miss Pearl Getchel of Los Angeles and John Robertson of this city has been made. The wedding of these two popular members of the younger set will occur in June.

Miss Isabel Baycroft and Miss Helen Nelson, who have been spending the winter here, will leave for their home in Saskatchewan the first of next week, going to Vancouver by steamer.

Rev. and Mrs. F. M. Rogers have as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Price of Green Forest, Ark., who will leave shortly for their home, after spending the winter here.

Misses Katherine Stein and Frances Yeomans returned to Pomona College Tuesday, after spending their spring vacation here with their parents.

Mrs. George Beuzeveille and Miss Laurelle Chase were guests of Miss Anna Thorpe at the Dominant Club Saturday afternoon, when the programme was given by Harry Clifford Lott.

Santa Paula.

MRS. L. TAYLOR was hostess at a delightful meeting of the I.B.C. Embroidery Club Friday. Decorations of branches of apple blossoms were used effectively, and an enjoyable musical programme was given.

The Pomona College Club of Ventura county held their annual banquet Saturday at Glen Tavern. Ten alumni and several guests were present, among the latter being President Blaisdell of Pomona College and Mrs. Blaisdell.

Thirty-five couples enjoyed a dance given by the Native Daughters Monday night at the close of their regular business session. Punch was served.

"Casa Ladrillo" was the scene of a delightful banquet Monday, the host being the Rev. George F. Weld, rector of the Episcopal Church of Montecito and dean of the convocation of the Santa Barbara District, which includes Ventura county. Yellow jonquils were effectively used in combination with a Japanese garden centerpiece, in the dining-room, and all appointments for the five-course dinner were in yellow. In other rooms, pink roses and ferns formed tasteful decoration. The dinner was in the interests of the work of the local Episcopal church. Covers were laid for sixteen.

Mrs. Earl Pollock entertained eleven little tots at a baby party in honor of her one-year-old daughter, Helen Virginia. Guessing the baby pictures of the mothers occupied what time was not taken up watching and admiring the babies present. Mrs. Arthur Walden was the successful contestant, and her little son, Keith, was awarded the prize, a bouquet of Cecile Bruner roses, which were also used throughout the house. Music and refreshments for the mothers formed pleasant features of the afternoon.

San Dimas.

THE San Dimas Five Hundred Club met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton DeWitt last Thursday evening. Besides the regular members of the club, quite a few special guests were present.

Mrs. G. W. Hosford was the hostess of the San Dimas Study Club Monday afternoon. Mrs. Frank Taylor was leader in the study of that interesting subject, "Political Life in Austria-Hungary," and in the magazine article on Vienna which followed. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. E. A. Spencer, with Mrs. E. W. Hart leading.

Those who were present at the Lenten song recital at Mrs. Spencer's last Thursday evening enjoyed a rare treat. Mrs. Roy Arnold, an old-time friend of the hostess, sang the old familiar songs with great charm of voice and manner. Especially beautiful was the cycle of bird songs by Liza Leahman.

The San Dimas and Claremont auction bridge teams were entertained by Dr. Hawley of Claremont, Tuesday evening. San Dimas led at the end of the evening's play. The club will be entertained by Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Compton, Tuesday evening a week.

The Enewah Club met yesterday with Miss Augusta Bont at her home in Los Angeles.

The Good Time Club was entertained last Thursday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Haydn H. Jones. The house was profusely decorated with roses and greenery. The fascinating game of Five Hundred was played and the club prizes were won by Mrs. William Steele and H. E. Howard. Mrs. C. L. Compton and William Landon won the guest prizes. The special guests were Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Johnstone, Mr and Mrs. William Landon, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs T. R. Hobbs and Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Compton. The club will meet with Mr. and Mrs. B. H. McCurdy next Wednesday evening.

The Wednesday Afternoon Club will meet at the home of Mrs. Clinton De Witt next Wednesday afternoon, with Mrs. DeWitt and Miss Emma Hawks acting as hostesses.

The many friends of Mrs. Colburn, mother of Mrs. Charles Butler, attended the at home given at the Butler residence Wednesday afternoon by Mmes. Haydn Jones, Edward Bixby and Charles Butler in honor of Mrs. Colburn's 90th birthday. The house was most beautifully decorated with red roses, lilacs and smilax. Among the nearly three-score guests present were the following from out of town: Mmes. T. J. Kerns, T. E. Gibbon, J. R. Colburn, S. A. Gibson, George Butler from Los Angeles, Mrs. Jordon from Pasadena, Mrs. Harry Jones, Mrs. M. A. McKibban and Misses Lucile and Agnes Findlay of Pomona, and Mrs. R. L. Ware of Fullerton. A musical programme was given, consisting of vocal selections by Miss Lucile Findlay and instrumental music by Mrs. C. H. Rice and Mrs. T. R. Hobbs.

San Jacinto.

MRS. EDWARD HYATT and two daughters, Misses Marguerite and Inez, arrived in San Jacinto Wednesday by automobile, Mrs. Hyatt and Miss Inez having driven the entire distance from Sacramento in the machine. Miss Marguerite is teaching in Los Angeles county and accompanied her mother and sister to San Jacinto to visit Mrs. Gabrilla Gill, Mrs. Hyatt's mother. Mrs. Gill and son, A. T. Gill, will accompany the Hyatts on their return to Sacramento.

Miss Ethel Caughron, the Misses Parkins, Miss Adda Light and Miss Oyler, former teachers in the San Jacinto schools, are visiting San Jacinto friends this week.

Miss Imogene Costello, who has been quite ill for the past ten days, is now much better and it is hoped she will be able to leave her room in a few days. The young lady was stricken with a nervous breakdown.

Miss Nellie McCleish entertained a dozen fellow-teachers at her home on Central avenue, Tuesday evning with a course dinner. A very delightful evening was passed.

Mrs. L. N. Cree accompanied her son, Ray Cree, County School Superintendent, to San Jacinto, this week, and has been the guest of Mrs. Mary Fowler.

Mrs. Alice France entertained the ladies of the Missionary Society of the Congregational Church at her home on Central avenue, Wednesday. A programme was rendered and refreshments were served. About twenty ladies enjoyed a most pleasant afternoon.

Miss Lulu Malone entertained the visiting lady teachers at her home on Main street Thursday evening. It was a "kid" party, and the staid school marms went dressed as little boys and girls—some of them, at least.

Mrs. Clark Devaney left Thursday for her former home in Colorado where she will make an extended visit with her mother.

There will be a joint Easter sunrise service on Park Hill Sunday. There will be selections by the band and congregation singing. The address will be given by Dr. O. B. Waite.

MR. AND MRS. R. LOUGHEAD were honorees of a surprise party, the members of the D. D. Card Club, calling at the Loughead home to express regret at the approaching departure of Mr. and Mrs. Loughead, who will leave within a few days for the northern portion of the State, where they will make their home. During the evening refreshments were served.

The D. D. Card Club was entertained by Mrs. George Lindoerfer at her home in the northern portion of the McKittrick district, the afternoon being very pleasantly spent in closely contested games. Mrs. Ralph Hulbert was awarded the prize for the best score, while Mrs. Ward was given the consolation prize.

Carissa Circle, Women of Woodcraft, at its weekly session, presented a handsome souvenir to Mrs. Rufus Loughead, one of its officers, in recognition of her work for the order. Mrs. F. T. Willis made the presentation address, expressing the good wishes of the circle for the future success and happiness of Mrs. Loughead in her new home. The gift was acknowledged in most graceful terms by Mrs. Loughead.

Mrs. Hubbard M. Miller, Mrs. R. J. G. Miller and Mrs. William G. Ross enjoyed an auto trip this week to Maricopa, where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Schell, at the Midway Natural Gas Company property, of which Mr. Schell is the superintendent.

E. E. Yarbough, superintendent of the State Oil Company, and Mrs. Yarbrough, have removed to Sha where they will in future reside.

Mr. and Mrs. Traver and family spent the past few days with friends in Los Angeles.

Redlands.

AN IMPORTANT social function here will be the marriage of Miss Emelie Ford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Henderson Ford of Edgewood ranch, to Clare Henry Co born of this city. The bride is one of the most popular girls in Redlands society and the function, which will take place at the Edgewood ranch, will be attended by all the members of the smart set. The marriage will take place Tuesday, April 28, at 8:30 p.m. The invitations were issued several days ago.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Whitfield G were host and hostess at the Ol Tuesday night at a social function known as an anniversary dinner. The guests numbered about seventy. A dinner of more than usual excellence was served at rose-decorated tables to the music of Scott's orchestra. The favors were ribbon-tied Easter baskets with eggs and candies. At the musicale which followed there were piano duets by Mrs. C. L. Risser of Spokane, and Harry Risser Petty. Miss Imogene Brent sang contralto solos, Miss Georgianna Strauss some brilliant selections and Roy Kendall some charming little tone songs. These, with Mr. Petty joined in fine quartette. The occasion was one which will long be remembered by the many guests.

Many Redlands people arranged social events within the past week or two in honor of Miss Helen Humphrey, who, after spending months at Casa Moriaca, the home of her cousin, Mrs. Henry Fisher, left this week for her home in Washington, D. C. Miss Humphrey had become very popular and as soon as the date for her departure was announced her friends vied to do her honor. Mrs. F. P. Morrison and Mrs. A. G. Hubbard gave complimentary dinners. Mrs. Fisher gave a tea, and there were other gatherings at which Miss Humphrey was feted. Her absence from Redlands will be temporary, as she is to marry Harley, a well-known member of the social set of the city. The date of the marriage has not been announced, but it is not likely to be long delayed.

Miss Estelle Curtis entertained the members of her class Monday with camp fire and other entertaining features Monday afternoon. The camp fire was lit in the back yard and the company gathered around it and toasted weinies and marshmallows and told stories. Games and other amusements were followed by refreshments served by the hostess.

The Rev. and Mrs. James L. ton of Newton Center, Mass., have been visitors this week with the family of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. They had just returned from Berkeley, where Dr. Barton had been giving a ten-days' series of lectures at the University of California. Barton is the secretary of the American Congregational Board of Foreign Missions.

The Redlands Contemporary Club will be the scene of the annual spring exhibition of the Horticultural Society, to take place Friday and Saturday. Two society happenings will take place in connection with the exhibition. One will be the dinner at the clubhouse Saturday evening, tables for which have been reserved in advance by a number of well-known people. The other will be a "Flower Dance" given by a number of the Redlands girls on Friday evening. The flower show is to be a social function, all the officers being society people. Some exhibits are planned.

The Chevalier Club was host at a gathering held Wednesday evening at Pythian Hall. An hour was devoted to the study of the dances and the rest of the evening was given up to enjoying the steps. The club is planning other aquatic dance at Springs in the near future, when the assembly hall and the swimming pool will be secured for the exclusive use of the club and its guests for the evening.

The marriage of Miss Gill, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. McGill of Redlands, to Colla ton Bridge of San Dimas, was at the home of the bride's parents Wednesday evening. The Rev. bert Murkett officiated. Miss Gill was attended by her sister, Myrtle McGill, and by the groom's sister, Miss Lora Bridge. ser of Los Angeles was best man. The ceremony was performed in a bower of roses, the rose decorations being carried out throughout the house. The bride wore white broidered net with satin girdle slippers. She carried lilies of the valley. The maid-of-honor, Myrtle McGill, wore yellow chine and carried yellow roses. lowing the reception a served and Mr. and Mrs. Bridge parted for a brief honeymoon in Los Angeles which they will reside in Los Angeles where the groom is a practicing attorney.

Rialto.

THE wedding of Miss Lillian leen French, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. French, to Oron Chapin occurred Sunday noon at the pretty ranch home of the bride's parents, Rev. G. F. Mat ficiating. The bride, who was tended, wore her traveling blue tailor-made, with hat and in harmony.

Only members of the two families were present, and the ceremony was used. Immediately following the ceremony a luncheon was served. The

Mrs. L. N. Linnell and daughter, Miss Florence Linnell, have been passing the week in Los Angeles and Pasadena.

Duarte.

THE members of the Tango Dancing Club were tendered a merry party Monday evening by Mrs. Ernest B. Rivers at Los Rios Rancho. The out-door dancing pavilion was brilliantly lighted and the moonlight added much to the picturesque setting. The pavilion is at the upper end of the handsome Japanese garden and the gay galaxy of young people had a merry time with dancing, supper and music at Los Pios, where Mrs. Rivers was assisted by several matrons in dispensing lavish hospitality.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ferguson gave a prettily appointed dinner Wednesday in honor of Mme. Agnes Leffler of Los Angeles. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Leffler and Mrs. John Dickie.

Mrs. Arthur Boyle was the charming hostess of the ladies of the Auction Bridge Club Tuesday at her pretty home on Mountain View avenue. Roses in rich profusion were used in the living-rooms and other spring blossoms were effectively massed at points of vantage. Among the guests were Mrs. Frank Ferguson, Mrs. W. K. Shaw, Mrs. Richard Poor, Mrs. Alexander B. Downe, Mrs. B. H. Morgan, Miss Edith Morgan, Mrs. C. H. Sarwine, Mrs. Bruce Radabaugh, Mrs. Andrew Ryder, Mrs. L. G. Cross, Mrs. E. A. Rutledge, Mrs. E. L. Ellsworth, Mrs. E. W. Bushnell, Miss McPhail and Miss Hammond.

Mrs. Charles Shrode, who has been spending a fortnight at Long Beach and Los Angeles, has returned to her home on Buena Vista street and has as her house guests Miss Grace Petro and Miss Evelyn Shrode of Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fowler entertained Friday evening at their home on Duarte avenue in compliment to Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Brown. Unusually pretty floral decorations prevailed and tables were conveniently arranged for the guests, who passed the evening with "Forty-two as a diversion. Later supper was served.

Mrs. J. G. Heisley opened her home on Friday to the ladies of the Methodist Church for a prettily appointed April party. The Easter motif found expression in the decorations and in other ways, and all the guests were given a thoroughly enjoyable afternoon, which was concluded with 4 o'clock tea.

Mrs. Thomas Meredith has been spending two weeks with friends at Riverside and Redlands, where she was the honored guest at several functions.

The members of the Duarte Five Hundred Club were tendered a jolly April First party by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Taylor Renaker Wednesday evening. The evening's programme was replete with happy surprises and much merriment was provided by the host and hostess, as well as the guests.

About twenty ladies and gentlemen shared Mr. and Mrs. Renaker's hospitality.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dixon, who are soon to leave for England for a summer abroad were tendered a delightful company Friday evening at the home of Rev. and Mrs. L. J. Milliken on Buena Vista avenue.

Much skill had been employed in decorating the rooms, where a large number of young people assembled and spent the evening hours with games and music. Mr. and Mrs. Dixon expect to sail early in May for the British Isles.

Anaheim.

MRS. ANGUS M'AULEY entertained with a beautifully-appointed luncheon at her home on East Center street on Sunday in honor of her nephew, Clarence Beebe, who represented the Anaheim High School at the track event at Stanford. The High School colors of orange and blue were utilized attractively as a color motif and were carried out in the menu as well as with the place cards and favors. The favors were wee bunnies, and Easter eggs, on which were sketched miniature views of the High Sihool, marked places for the Misses Imogene Griesemer, Gladys Gervais, Janet McAuley and Myrtle Hein, Messrs. Clarence Beebe, Earl Spencer, Robert McAuley and Earl Crist, Mrs. S. L. Beebe and the delightful hostess, Mrs. Angus McAuley.

Complimentary to her sister, Miss Turrace Hehnen of La Crosse, Wis., Mrs. Herman Noll entertained with a dinner at her home on South Olive street, Thursday evening. A profusion of roses and ferns had been used in decorating the living-rooms, while in the dining-room only lillies were combined in table adornment. The guest list included Mr. and Mrs. Ray Fisher, Miss Katherine Backs, Charles Osbourne, Peter Nicolas and Claude L. Swope.

The clubrooms of the Ebell Society presented a gay appearance on Saturday afternoon when the members assembled for the annual luncheon. Mrs. A. J. Lawton of Santa Ana, who has been recently appointed president of the Federation of Southern California Clubs, was the guest of honor. Following the luncheon an interesting programme had been arranged, after which the following officers for the ensuing year were elected: Mrs. Ida Dutton, president; Mrs. George W. Terry, first vice-president; Mrs. C. E. Chamberlain, second vice-president; Miss Alice Grimshaw, recording secretary; Mrs. Earl Abbey, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. J. O. Reed, treasurer.

One of the unique affairs of the week was a surprise party given in honor of Miss Josephine Larson of Hollywood, who is the house guest of Miss Adela Hauck, given at the home of the latter on Thursday evening. A huge bonfire was built, over which the guests toasted marshmallows and later assembled around the glowing fire, where baked weinies and a Dutch supper was enjoyed. Among the members of the younger set present were Misses Leila Gentry, Berndetta Jemerz, Josephine Larson and Adela Hauck; Messrs. Clevenger Megede, Alex Houck, Lane Benz and Fritz Yoern.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Dwyer will leave shortly for an extended tour of the States, spending several weeks at the home of the former in Connecticut. They will travel via New Orleans. Several social affairs will be given in honor of this delightful couple by their friends in Anaheim before they start on their journey.

Hemet.

AN ASSEMBLY held in Tyson Hall Saturday evening by the dancing class that has been under the instruction of Miss Adelaide Clarke for the past season proved one of the pleasantest events of the year. The hall was prettily decorated in lilacs and lupines and attractive programmes in the colors were given the guests. Those present were not confined to the members of the class, but included a number of others who enjoy dancing, each class member having the privilege of inviting guests. A dainty intermission luncheon was served. The dancers were: The Misses Chase, Oldaker, Becktley, Rives, Riesland, Rensler, Louise Rensler, Rogers, Weston, Blackwell, Ruth Blackwell, Jones and Ellis, Messrs. Hudgins, Fletcher, Millington, King, Williams, Lewis, Mudd, Sebastian, Dryden, Rather, Botterell, Moody, Oliver, Weston, Morse, Wagner, Ryan, Shaver, Geisel, Palmer, Brant, Blackwell, Center, Percival, Hoxie, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton, Jacques, Spaulding, Fast, Bartlett and Webber.

Mrs. H. S. Dukes was hostess Friday afternoon at her home on Florida avenue to the Friday Afternoon Auction Bridge Club. The entire membership was present and enjoyed an interesting afternoon of play.

The Merry Wives Whist Club met with Mrs. W. C. Goodhue Wednesday afternoon. There were four tables at play.

Mrs. Edgar Bartlett entertained a few friends at whist one evening this week. Her guests were: Mr. and Mrs. George Boalich, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Spaulding, Miss Adelaide Clarke and Mr. Francis Shaver.

The parents of the members of the sophomore class of the High School were the guests of the faculty of the school at a reception tendered them Friday evening in the corridors of the school building. After a formal programme, the home economics department served punch and cake of its own preparing.

Brawley.

MONDAY evening the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Dunn, on Imperial avenue, a delightful reception was given to the members of the various card parties of Brawley, their husbands and a few invited friends. The guest of honor was Mrs. Fred Wagner of Portland, Or., a sister of Mrs. Dunn, who has made a large circle of friends during her recent sojourn in Brawley. The approaching Easter season was the motif for the elaborate decorations of roses and jonquils. Little chickens and rabbits were used as favors and the score cards were typical of Easter. Five Hundred was the game enjoyed, after an informal reception was tendered Mrs. Wagner. Mrs. H. L. Fulton received first prize and Mrs. George C. Gay the consolation. W. C. Campbell held the highest score of the men and Harry Humphrey scored for booby.

Dr. and Mrs. Frank Dunlay of Horton, Kan., former residents of Brawley, have returned to Brawley and will reside here in the future. With Dr. and Mrs. Dunlay are Mr. and Mrs. T. McNerney, who have also decided to reside here.

Miss Dyer of Wisconsin is a guest of Mrs. Harriet C. Fortiner. Miss Dyer has been traveling throughout California during the past year.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Potter left Friday evening for Forest Hill, Ark., called there by the serious illness of Mrs. Potter's mother, Mrs. A. L. Beck. Shortly after the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Potter, a telegram was received announcing that Mrs. Beck had passed away. Mrs. Beck will be remembered by a large circle of friends in Brawley, where she has visited a number of times.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. de Haven, who have been spending the past year in Los Angeles, returned to Brawley Sunday and will be at their ranch home for several weeks.

I. M. Clippinger arrived Sunday evening for a visit to his daughter, Miss Frances Clippinger, who is city librarian of Brawley. Mr. Clippinger is postmaster at Huntington Beach.

Wednesday afternoon the Avondale Card Club met at the home of Mrs. W. H. Best, who was assisted by Mrs. D. L. Morse and Mrs. C. O. Snow.

The Five Hundred Card Club met at the home of Mrs. Frank Birkhauser, Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Birkhauser was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. W. S. Campbell.

Thursday afternoon, Mrs. Earl McReynolds was hostess for the Pedro Club.

"Easter Thoughts" was the theme for the roll call at the meeting Friday afternoon of the Mothers' Club at the home of Mrs. F. F. Palmerlee. Mrs. C. F. Eckert read a paper on "Education in the Home."

For the remainder of the season the Bridge Club will be entertained by the different club members instead of at the Bungalow Hotel. Thursday Mrs. W. T. Dunn and Mrs. Roy Rea were hostesses at the home of Mrs. Dunn. Mrs. A. N. Morgan was the recipient of the first prize. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. W. H. Best.

Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Anderson are entertaining Mr. Anderson's mother of San Diego. Mrs. Anderson has been visiting her sons in Imperial Valley for several months.

Mrs. H. L. Fulton was the hostess to the members of the Pedro Club Thursday afternoon. The prizes went to Mrs. T. B. Edgar and Mrs. R. T. Servoss.

Mrs. Frank Birkhauser entertained with a reception at her home Friday afternoon, complimentary to Mrs. Philo Jones's sister, Miss Nance of Santa Marie.

Thursday afternoon the Linger Longers were entertained by Mrs. Jack Neville.

Mrs. Edith Abbott of Los Angeles, a former resident of Brawley, was the honored guest at a party given by Mrs. Hiram Plush at her home on D street, Friday afternoon. A large number of ladies, most of them pioneers of Brawley, were present and a most enjoyable afternoon was spent. Music, readings and valley reminiscences were parts of the programme. The stories told by the ladies of their first impressions of the valley were the cause of much mirth. Their impressions were varied, but all told the same story of their firm determination to live only a short time in the valley and yet with few exceptions they have remained all the time and have been happy and prosperous. Those present to welcome Mrs. Abbott were Mmes. C. C. McCullough, J. W. Klasgye, C. C. Jenkins, Jerome Akin, J. W. Cox, Earl Pound, M. Sacre, J. P. Baker, A. L. Sebille, Jack Kuns, J. A. Miller, W. H. Best, E. R. Bartlett, J. D. Bennett, Grace Hawkins and Mrs. A. B. Hawkins of Los Angeles.

Ontario.

AT HER HOME, No. 625 North Euclid avenue, Miss Evelyn Stone was hostess at a jolly house party over the week end. The guests arrived for dinner Friday evening. Table decorations were in keping with the Easter season. Miss Stone was assisted in entertaining by Miss Stella Tuttle. On Saturday the party spent a most enjoyable day in Stoddard's Canyon. Those who enjoyed the delightful hospitality of Miss Stone included Miss Julia Smith, Miss Gladys Grant, Miss Anna McDermott, Miss Adelaide Smith of Los Angeles; Miss Marjorie Hardy of Alhambra; Miss Ethel Ardis of Redondo Beach; Miss Lalilia Reynolds of Whittier; Mrs. J. H. Goodwin of Beverly Hills and Miss Tuttle.

In honor of Charles A. Pierce, for the past several years chorister at Bethel Congregational Church, who with Mrs. Pierce expects to leave soon to make his home in Connecticut, the members of the society entertained with a farewell reception in the Sunday-school room of the church Friday evening. The room was converted into a veritable bower of beautiful roses and ferns for the occasion and a most enjoyable programme of musical numbers and readings was presented. Walter Hastings Olney of Los Angeles and H. Howell of Upland rendered vocal solos, while a violin quartet under the direction of Mrs. Florence Cowden Richards, furnished several enjoyable numbers. Mrs. Ralph Gage Spencer pleased with several readings. Mr. Pierce was presented by the members of the church with a handsome silver loving cup, Dr. Jean Frederic Loba making the presentation.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Edson Swan entertained Thursday evening at their home, No. 515 North Vine avenue, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Pierce. The evening was spent at music, and a tempting collation was served. At the close Mr. Swan, who is vice-president of the First National Bank, where Mr. Pierce has been assistant cashier for the past two years, presented Mr. and Mrs. Pierce with a set of sterling salad forks as a token of the esteem of the directors of the bank. Among the out-of-town guests at the enjoyable gathering were Mr. and Mrs. Andrew M. Chaffey of Los Angeles.

In compliment to Mrs. Price, better known as Alice Barnett, the noted composer, who is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. Barnett of North San Antonio avenue, Mrs. Florence Cowen Richards entertained a few friends with charming informality Monday afternoon at her home in the California apartments. Roses and ferns were used in decoration and Mrs. Price delighted the guests with the rendering of her own vocal compositions. A dainty luncheon was served during the course of the afternoon. Those present included Mrs. Price, Mrs. Charles Benjamin Ford, Mrs. Walter Lennox, Mrs. Earl B. Williams, Miss Ala Ballou, Miss Ethel Bacon and Mrs. Richards.

Mrs. John Rankin Merrill entertained the members of the Progressive and East Side Circles of Bethel Congregational Church with an all-day picnic at her ranch home Wednesday. Thirty-five women attended. Luncheon was served on the veranda and under the pepper trees.

graduate of Wellesley, and has just returned from a year of study in Germany. She told of the intimate domestic life of the Germans, comparing it with that of the United States, also of the politeness of the Germans, especially the shopkeepers, but contrary to the general idea, that the servant problem in Germany was as vexatious a question as in this country. She stated that she found the real German life in Dresden, as the population of Berlin was more cosmopolitan. The programme was in charge of Mrs. C. C. Browning and Miss Jennie Kennedy, the music of Mrs. A. F. Brown, and the numbers selected were in keeping with the afternoon's programme, Miss Lenore Hamm and Miss Helen Mason, presenting German vocal selections, with Miss Claire Wilde at the piano. Mrs. Sarah Longley and Mrs. Rebecca Cairns were the hostesses, serving tea following the programme.

Mrs. W. D. Newerf presented a chest of silver to the members for their new clubhouse, containing twelve dozen each of knives, forks, salad forks and twenty-four dozen tea spoons. The idea originated with Mrs. William H. Harrison, who asked a number of ladies to contribute $5 each, payable $1 monthly, for the silver.

Mrs. Jonathan S. Dodge, Mrs. W. P. Freeman, Mrs. Frank Stephens, Mrs. Leo Longley, Mrs. E. E. Thompson were chosen as delegates, and Mrs. E. H. Rust, Mrs. John W. Monahan and Mrs. William Council as alternates, to represent the club at the coming State convention to be held in Riverside from April 28 to May 2, inclusive.

ONE OF WASHINGTON'S SHINING FAMILIES.

Mrs. William J. Harris, Wife of the Director of the Census, Is the Daughter of the Beloved Hero of Two Wars, Gen. Joseph Wheeler of Alabama.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

Mrs. William J. Harris and her small daughter, Julia.
Family of the Director of the Census.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—"Behold in me," laughed Mrs. William J. Harris, wife of the Director of the Census, "one who openly delights in telling all about her smart little daughter. I know it is stupid and old fashioned, hopelessly out of vogue to mention one's children or to be unduly concerned about them. The 'mission' has overshadowed the child prodigy fad. One hears now about the victory for the cause in this State or that, the details about chances here and there, and home talk is much frowned on. I just adore getting hold of a woman who will tell me about her children, even their diseases, their hair-breadth escapes, their proneness to wear out shoes, seemingly while they are merely trying them on. I love to tell about my daughter. So to be just, I have learned to enjoy hearing of other people's sons and daughters, ejecially if they be still in the pinafore age. But to be fair to my sisters, especially the women who are leading the new movement, they may pose as proof against the little weaknesses of the sex, but touch the hidden spring and we are all alike. Many a cosy chat have I had between acts, so to speak, with a woman who was a public character and crusading for some momentous cause. We talked about measles and colds so absorbingly that votes and reform were forgotten. As mothers of the race, the welfare of children is the paramount issue, no matter how it may be befogged for the time being by fads and missions and, to use the word which embraces all the movement, the 'uplift.'"

Mrs. Harris does not frown on any of the activities of the new woman. She is too broad for that. But she finds content and diversion at home and in the traditional lines followed by the gentlewoman of the South. Alabama just now seethes with all manner of new policies and the suffrage question has not been neglected. Women like Mrs. Harris are not disturbed in either direction. They are content to await developments and meantime there are home, the youngsters and the creature comforts of the man kindred to furnish abundant occupation and interest. It is notable here in Washington, where the representative woman may be studied at close range, how few assume a constructive view towards public questions. Even those who have voted for years represent the quiet type, the wife who aids by having a comfortable, happy home and by keeping the small vexations away from the husband in order that he may give a whole heart and invigorated body to his life work. Mrs. Harris is, essentially, this sort of woman. She admires the strong women who go in the open and fight for their convictions or press a worthy cause on to success.

"But dear me," she said, "I could never assist such a work. So very wisely I stick to what I can do well, my home-keeping, the care of my husband and my small girl. Getting back in Washington was a keen delight, though it is somewhat tinged with sorrow. It recalls my dear father and our happy years together here when he served in Congress. I was educated here at the Norwood Institute and many of my school friends reside here and have made my winter so memorable. Yet in a way I regret that my little girl is being reared in a city, even if a city with so many open places as Washington. My childhood was spent on a farm which my father owned not far from Huntsville and we enjoyed all that plantation life meant in those days. Much of the glory of the old regime has passed away from the rural South, but I saw enough of the ancient ways to make me regret keenly such a delightful existence is now a reality only in literature. Huntsville is one of the most charming cities of the State and the surrounding country is picturesque and fertile. It is almost the geographical center of the Tennessee Valley or the heart of that wonderful region wherein are located vast agricultural, industrial and stock-raising interests. Railroads came to Huntsville long before the industrial awakening of larger cities. The beauty of the cotton fields must be seen to be realized and then the wonderful forests and woodland flowers skirting the edges and making all the highways look like gardens.

"Cooks in the South and the southern dinner can rate highly in the cuisine of the world. Still, the menu is liable to be sprinkled with French dishes of astounding name, and the home dainties to give place to the modish fad of the moment. I am one who prefers the old way best. As a rule we exist on the good things which so pleased our fathers and mothers and the newfangled in cooking is regarded with suspicion in the genuine southern home, as something exceedingly disloyal. But I must confess that on occasions I join the long procession who take their orders from Paris and depart from the way of my youth, especially if we are to have guests. To my utter amazement, I find some unreasonable beings do not relish hot bread and pone cake, or the glorious fried chicken and cream gravy dear to every southern palate.

"It has been my good fortune to have traveled much and to have lived in many fascinating cities. I spent a long period in Paris, truly the most beautiful city in the world and the one which offers the best opportunity for combined pleasure and benefit. I met some of the distinguished savants of Paris, artists, authors, statesmen and musicians and from my experience there, I shall not fail to permit my daughter, if possible, to enjoy the same advantages."

As Miss Julia Wheeler, Mrs. Harris and her sisters spent the eight years with her father when he served in Congress, and she was active in the philanthropies as well as socially. She has gracefully taken up many of her old pursuits in the congenial companionship of old friends. She was always considered studious and formed one of a group of southern girls who possessed intellectual attainments of a high order. Mrs. Wheeler died just as her daughters were budding into womanhood and Mrs. Harris, with her sisters, filled the dual role of mother and daughter in her father's home. Her devotion to her father is a ruling passion. She has gathered some valuable data concerning the different phases of his varied career. As a mere child she watched the growth of the historical writings which have fixed the fame of Gen. "Joe" Wheeler as solidly in the war literature of his country as his military achievements. After the Civil War Gen. Wheeler studied law and started to practice in his home county, Madison. He also turned his attention to cotton raising, and incidentally he continued his war memories which began in 1862 with a paper which is now authoritative, "The Complete Account of the Kentucky Campaign." He wrote about the same time a book called "[illegible] Tactics," and lastly his most [illegible] effort, "The Military History of Alabama."

Mrs. Harris delights to tell of her father, his affection for the South so well displayed during the Civil War and his undying love of his country. Never could he be persuaded to utter one word of regret over his broken career, with the failure of the South.

"But," said Mrs. Harris, her whole face lighting with tenderness, "when the war with Spain became inevitable, he was like a boy long deprived of what he loved the best. He grew younger by twenty years as it seemed over night. He took down his swords, looked all over his stock of guns and became as restive as an unbroken pony. He confided to me and my sister that he had put a good face on things all these years, but that out of the army he was a bird flying with a broken wing. How happy he was preparing for the journey to Cuba! A boy with his first commission could not have been as enthusiastic. He renewed his youth entirely in the years he survived after the Spanish-American War, and the friendships formed then gave him profound enjoyment. Compared to the tragedies of the Civil War, the war to aid Cuba was almost a farce. But my father delighted to dwell on how well the work was done and how well prepared the officers and men were to do it. He took up his pen again after the commission which he had accepted from President McKinley had been faithfully executed and I think his latest work will prove his most enduring. Mr. Harris was his faithful aid during Gen. Wheeler's declining days. He spent weary months on his history of Cuba from [illegible] to the independence, and in this his daughter was closely associated. The campaign of Santiago appeared when public feeling ran high and the country was torn from stem to stern over the rival claims of various admirals and generals. It was written in scholarly, dispassionate language and is considered one of the most valuable documents on the subject. He wrote also some intimate sketches of the men with whom he was closely associated during his second tenure as a soldier of the United States. One of these is on President McKinley and another of Theodore Roosevelt. His sketch of Admiral Dewey has also been highly praised.

Gen. Wheeler took up his residence in New York after the Spanish-American War and it was here that his daughter first met her husband. Mr. Harris, however, was an old friend and frequently visited the Alabama home, though he did not know Miss Julia until the New York days. The marriage occurred in that city at Wheeler's residence [illegible] a somewhat prolonged [illegible]. Miss Wheeler had meantime taken a long foreign tour, going to the Orient and passing some time in the American possessions in the South Seas. Mrs. Harris is a cousin of Mrs. Richmond Pearson Hobson and the two are frequently associated in the social way.

In the complex windings of official life, the Director of the Census and his wife are on occasion, aids to the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Redfield. Following an old custom, Mrs. Redfield frequently asks Mrs. Harris to aid her on Wednesdays, such as when large festivities, such as New Year's receptions are planned.

ENGLISH QUEEN A POOR TALKER.

Converses Well Sometimes, Then Breaks Down.

Presentation at Court Is Often Over-Valued.

"Suffs" Supply Unionists with Big War Chest.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, March 21.—Queen Mary is a poor conversationalist, according to her most recent critics.

On someone being brought up to her it is said she will begin to talk with remarkable felicity, setting the other at ease and delighting him. Then, all of a sudden, she suddenly ceases, [illegible] silence supervenes, and the other does not know whether to break the pause or slip away. The fact is the Queen talks well by dint of concentration; this does not always last until the end of the conversation, and once the thread is broken, she grows abstracted, thinking of something else.

It is suggested that Her Majesty has adopted the idea, not new to many politicians, of posting herself on a subject that she knows she will be called upon to discuss. Miss Muriel Wilson, one of the most popular girls in society, carried this idea out to perfection, and thereby won the reputation of being one of the most interesting women in England. She supported at her own expense, a former governess, and the only demand that she made in return was to be coached. When there was to be a party at Tranby Croft, her father's residence, Miss Wilson would send the governess the names of any celebrities who were to attend, and next day, when the governess had been to the British Museum library she would dispatch a complete precis of what they had written and done, so that Miss Wilson could talk to them with absolute familiarity about their achievements.

COURT PRIVILEGES.

A matter that the court officials have felt it necessary to impress upon foreigners presented to the King and Queen, is that the fact they have been presented at court does not carry all the privileges that are sometimes suggested. Nobody who has not been presented at a court or levee can be asked to meet the King and Queen, but the fact they have been presented does not mean that they will be invited to meet their majesties on some other occasion. The presentation at courts or levees has no further results than the appearance of the names of the presented in the following morning's papers. It confers no privilege except that of entry—when invited—to a foreign embassy abroad.

The suggestion that presentees are entitled to receive at least one invitation to a state ball, lacks any authority. The lists of invitations for royal functions are compiled from the book containing the names of those presented at court, but in the first place, the Lord Chamberlain makes out the lists and then they are carefully scrutinised by the Queen. In the last reign, King Edward went over the lists, but King George has left this task to his consort, so that every name is carefully considered before it is passed.

"SUFFS" AS LABORITES.

The suffragettes have introduced a new phase into the political situation by their determination not only to support labor candidates, but to finance them as well. There is to be a great outpouring of funds. The result will be that when the general election comes there will be innumerable triangular contests.

A well-informed political writer says that this probably will return the Unionists "with too small a majority to be workable, whereas in all ordinary events the government will come back with only the loss of a comparatively few seats."

He continues: "There is no question of patriotism; suffragettes care nothing for empire. They mean to have the vote, and they are not likely to shrink from financing irresponsible political candidates drawn from labor when they pour chemicals into letter boxes, burn country houses and destroy masterpieces such as the Rokeby Venus.

An illustrious statesman has said that he regarded the danger of suffragette interference in elections as a greater peril than any civil war in [illegible]. Their funds cannot be [illegible], for they are lodged in Paris and Brussels; their resources are practically limitless, and how they would exercise power if they ever obtained it, may be diagnosed by the methods they are taking to obtain the

BRIAN BORU'S VICTORY.

Irish Patriots Prepare to Celebrate the Thousandth Anniversary of the Battle of Clontarf.

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

DUBLIN, March 21.—Large groups of patriots in Ireland are still busy with the preparations for celebrating the thousandth anniversary of the battle of Clontarf. Some one has suggested a grand parade of Irish volunteers on the lines of a Belfast [illegible] day. The best celebration would be a settlement of the home rule question by consent, but the date, April 23, is perhaps too close.

Clontarf is a suburb of Dublin, the lost glories of which William [illegible], the poet, has lamented. Brian Boru, the victor of Clontarf, has a name that is familiar to the most ignorant of foreigners. He is dragged into all the jokes of the kind that most irritate the sensitive Gaelic Leaguer. He is the Irish king from whom every stage Irishman claims descent.

As a matter of fact, the O'Briens of today, with Lord Inchiquin at their head, are willing to trace their ancestry to Brian Boru; and every now and then this family, even since it became Protestant, has furnished Nationalist Ireland with another champion. Smith O'Brien, a younger son of Lord Inchiquin, led a plucky rising in the forties. Thackeray sneered at him, and so did the Dublin apple woman.

"What was he?" asked the visitor of the O'Brien statue at O'Connell [illegible].

"It's all written on his back," replied the apple woman.

"There's nothing on his back," said the visitor.

"That's what he done," said the apple woman.

ANXIOUS TO FLY ACROSS OCEAN.

AIRMEN OF EUROPE FALLING QUICKLY INTO LINE.

Six of the Most Noted Aviators in the Business Will Probably Enter the Race With Americans Who Have Taken Up the Wanamaker Project.

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, March 21.—One after another the airmen of Europe have fallen into line with Wanamaker and have projected plans to fly across the Atlantic sometime in 1915.

Up to this date six have published their names and their schemes, but there are several others, keen, resourceful and distinguished, who also intend to take a hand in the game, and are now busy about financial and mechanical difficulties.

Directly these last are surmounted, they too will put up their names and their dates, it will include at least two whose names are famous all over the world.

There is no doubt, however, that some of the most practical experts in flying in England do not think that this trans-Atlantic flight has any chance of success.

The mechanical difficulties are of a very grave character, the more so because mechanics as a science has so far entered extraordinarily little into the calculations of the builders of flying machines. There have been cases in which ignorance of laws known to every mechanical engineer has caused serious structural accidents on aeroplanes.

Increase in size due to the necessity of carrying a heavier engine and a huge quantity of fuel seems to present very little difficulty. In reality the problem of maintaining in an aeroplane three times the size of the present type the same margin of safety in construction as the present one enjoys is a very serious one, because the relation between the weights of the two machines is by no means the same as the relation between the measures to be taken for safety in either case.

It is within the experience of everyone who has flown across the English channel that a short twenty-one miles journey is a hazardous one when fog prevents one seeing one's destination. One man was drowned in the attempt, and the evidence showed that without knowing it he had been flying, not in a straight line, but in a half-circle.

Last year another airman flying with a lady as a passenger from near Dover to France lost his way in mid-channel and only landed with difficulty far down the French coast, near Dieppe, after having spent hours, instead of minutes in the air. If such a thing can happen in a short sea-crossing to expert flyers carrying compasses, what is likely to happen to a man crossing an ocean 3000 miles broad?

Lieut. Porte, Wanamaker's British pilot, has himself admitted the difficulty. His compass will give an airman direction in the sense that it will always tell him where the points of the compass are in relation to his machine, but it will give him no information as to how he is actually traveling in relation to it, because it gives him no means of estimating drift, that is to say, the effect of large air currents on his path from land to land.

With the modern aeroplane compass in flying over land drift can be allowed for. It is impossible to allow for it flying over the sea, because there is no point from which deviations can be estimated.

As for taking the sun or using any of the means employed by sailors in an aeroplane, even were it floating on the water, that would be impossible with preesnt instruments. If a means has been invented for doing it under flying conditions, it would have to be severely checked and tested before it could be relied on.

These are only a few of the objections which occur to British air experts who think the matter over carefully.

HIRED GIRLS AT DEBATES.

New Departure in London the Latest Sensation in Circles Domestic and Aristocratic.

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, March 21.—Would you like to hear hired girls discuss the momentous question: Was Queen Elizabeth a better Sovereign than Richard I?

If so, why not go when next in England, to Mary Jane's Debating Society, where it will be thoroughly threshed out in argument by the cooks, parlor maids, housemaids, dressmakers and typists who are members of the Alexandra Club at No. 120 Edgeware road, London.

The Alexandra is, in fact, the hired girls' social rendezvous. It was founded as the Heartsease Club ten years ago at premises in Knutsford place. There were originally no residential facilities, but when the club moved three years ago to its present position sleeping accommodation for over forty girls was provided.

Says the sister in charge: After our set discussion comes an original feature of our own, which we call the sharpshooting debate. It is managed in this way: Six subjects are written down on slips of paper and placed in a hat. One of the girls draws a slip at random, and whatever the subject is she has to get up and speak for a minute only on it, and anyone else can follow her and speak for a minute.

"The sharpshooting debate draws the girls out wonderfully. They do not even know the six subjects out of which one is to be chosen, so they have to speak quite extempore, and it sharpens their wits marvelously. You should have heard them some time ago on the Insurance Act. And so should Lloyd George! We had to allow them two minutes that night.

"We get about twenty to every debate. On Wednesday evenings, when there are games and charades, we have about fifty girls. Some of them act and recite very well, showing a marked preference for burlesque.

"Our membership is about 700, but of these the great majority can only come in at odd times on their evenings out. Membership costs 48 cents a year.

"We have thirty-six girls in residence now, from 16 years of age upwards, and of many nationalities, including Swiss, German, Scandinavian, and French, as well as English.

ANTY DRUDGE

Don't wash like mother used to wash; the Fels-Naptha way is far better—it's the way for you.

Instead of boiling clothes and wearily rubbing them on the board, you place them in cool or lukewarm water, soap with Fels-Naptha, roll tightly and allow them to soak about half an hour; rub lightly, blue and then rinse.

Your hands don't crack and get red; your clothes are saved from the wear of boiling and hard rubbing; your family is not driven frantic with steaming, wash-day smell and you save about half your time.

Not only this; but Fels-Naptha Soap does the work better than it can be done by the old, boiling, hot-water method.

Mrs. Nexdornabor—"Good morning, Anty Drudge! Can you lend me a cake of Fels-Naptha Soap? When I came to do the wash this morning, I found that I did not have any in the house. The grocer told me he was sold out. He offered to send me over some other kind, but I think too much of my clothes and of my health and hands to accept any substitute for Fels-Naptha Soap."

Anty Drudge—"You are perfectly right, my dear. Never risk those 'just as good' soaps. Wait here a minute, and I will get you a cake of Fels-Naptha Soap."

MEN AND EVENTS.

Frank C. Baker, a New York attorney, applied recently to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, to have himself disbarred. He said that on February 24 he had been convicted of grand larceny in the second degree and that sentence was suspended. His motion was granted. This is said to be the first case in which a lawyer has applied for his own disbarment after having been convicted of crime.

Herbert Childs, an accountant at work in Lawrence, Mass., claims to be the champion heavyweight tennis player in Massachusetts. He stands six feet three inches, weighs 280 pounds and is an enthusiastic member of a tennis club near Boston.

J. L. Hart, a Kansas City (Mo.) voter, recently put an advertisement in the paper saying that at the three previous elections someone else had voted for him before he arrived at the polls, and that at the coming election he would be lined up ready to vote at sunrise.

The list of long-time voters in and about Biddeford, Me., now includes Charles H. Andrews, who has been voting forty-eight years, with but one election missed; Police Commissioner John Townsend, forty-nine years; John R. Staples, fifty-three years. Each of them has missed only one election.

Ambrose Locker of Atchison, Kan., says he has a hen which lays every other day, and then lays regularly a double-yolked egg.

N. B. Tracy has just sent to England from Portland, Me., two rare gems, which are said never to be found outside of Maine in any degree of purity. They are a blue indicolite and a royal apatite cut as a brilliant.

Paul F. Myers, whom President Wilson has just appointed income-tax expert, is a member of the faculty at Princeton.

ACTIVE WOMEN.

Mrs. Kate Penner and Gertrude Pendel, English nurses connected with the Constantinople Hospital, have received Red Cross medals from the German Emperor for gallant service during the Balkan War.

Miss Maude Kelly, of Birmingham, Ala., is the thirty-fifth woman to be admitted to practice in the United States Supreme Court.

Miss Aldrich Blake, M.D.M.S., has been appointed dean of the London School of Medicine for Women. Miss Blake is the senior surgeon of the new hospital for women, Euston road, and is one of the few women doctors practicing general surgery.

Mrs. Leo J. Frachtenberg of Washington, D. C., a stenographer on the Board of Indian Commissioners, has the distinction of being one of the few persons in the government service who has an Indian ancestry.

Miss Alma A. Johnson, a servant, of Plainfield, N. J., was greatly surprised when she received news of the death of her uncle, Gustav Waling, in Stockholm, Sweden, and that through his will she inherited $25,000. But her surprise was even greater when she learned that in order to get the money she must marry within a year.

Eskimos Have More Backbone.

[New York Times:] Charles Dawson of London, who found the famous Piltdown skull, has made another discovery of considerable interest to anthropologists. He has discovered that the members of a certain Eskimo tribe have literally more backbone than the rest of humanity; that is to say, they have one extra vertebra to which small ribs are attached. Mr. Dawson has lately been making an examination of various skeleton remains brought from the Arctic regions and has found that both men and women of the Eskimo tribe in question have this abnormal development.

Newcomb's CORSET SHOP
623 So. Broadway

Our Elastic section shows abdominal supporters priced from $3.50 to $8. Monday we offer a discount of one-fourth from the usual price.

Berthe May
Its Advantages

This Maternity Corset is made for its own purpose and is not an adaptation of an ordinary corset to which some elastic bands and side lacings have been added to fill the bill. In this model, there is no elastic band to stretch and rot, no clumsy side lacing to pinch the flesh and hurt you. This corset never loses its shape and is the easiest thing to wear and put on. Your dressmaker will find it easy to fit a dress over it.

It is very soft and light, containing very few bones, but still firm enough to preserve the figure and procure an absolute and continuous abdominal support.

Mail Orders

We wish to inform those who are unable to do their shopping in town that we give painstaking attention to mail orders forwarded to us. In most cases our Sunday advertised specials may be secured as late as Wednesday by mail-order patrons.

Improved Front Laced Corset

As suggested above the laced in front corset sold by us is the last word in perfect construction of a corset of the laced in front idea. There are none better and few if any as desirable in every feature as the models we show. Our corsetieres will be pleased to show interested ladies. The laced in front has been endorsed by the medical profession very extensively. Priced $3.50 to $15.00. We show other laced in front from $1.50 to $4.

Ovida Reducing Brassieres

With or without corsets the most successful figure-shaping and health-making garments ever created for femininity.

Scientifically contoured to nature's model, the elastricot bust sections mould a graceful youthful outline and immediately reduce the measurement 2 to 4 inches. Priced $3.50 to $5.00.

Bitter Struggle Over It Expected in Diet.

Government Seeks to Foster Sports in the Army.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

BERLIN, March 21.—A measure bearing the harmless title of "land division bill," which has just been introduced in the Prussian Chamber of Deputies, would make the Prussian government the largest real estate operator in the world. The bill is another step in a campaign against the Poles, and another move in the direction of state socialism.

It proposes to give the local administrative officials the right to prohibit any division of landed estates less than twenty-five acres; and, while the government's report accompanying the measure describes its purpose as purely economic, it is well understood that the real purpose is to prevent the extension of Polish influence by the division of Polish estates and the settlement of Polish peasants upon them in competition with the government's policy of settling German peasants on these lands. Provinces like Westphalia, Hessen-Nassau, and the Rhine province are ever exempted from the provisions of the law, and Schleswig-Holstein is evidently only included in order that the bill may be used against the Danes.

In order to keep the division of estates fully under government control, the bill gives the government a pre-emption on all lands. Whenever a sale of land occurs the contract must be laid before the local administrative officials, who have the right to take the land at the price named for the government. The evident purpose of this is to facilitate the Germanization of the Polish provinces, the intention being that the government parcel out the estates purchased, and sell to German peasants. One of the most radical provisions of the bill gives the government the right of prohibiting the sale of land by one Pole to another.

It is expected that the measure will call forth a bitter struggle in the Diet, probably even more bitter than that of six years ago over the bill giving the government the right to expropriate Polish estates.

In order to develop the interest of the German army, in the Olympic games to be held in Berlin in 1916, the Military Weekly has started the publication of a sporting supplement, and Emperor William has presented a gold cup as first prize in a lawn tennis tournament for officers of the army and navy.

The Military Weekly is the official organ of the army. The supplement appears monthly under the title, "Sport in the army," and publishes orders and regulations of the Minister of War concerning athletics, reports of the military Olympic committees, etc.

The first number contains the regulations for two big military athletic meets this summer, a track and field meet with the modern pentathlon added, open to all officers, June 5 to 8, and a meet open to all enlisted men June 8. Leave will be granted to all officers and men desiring to enter these meets at the stadium. Officers' sections have been added to most of the larger athletic clubs in Germany, and contests for officers are regular and well-filled events on the programmes of most club athletic meets.

German tennis experts see very little chance for the German representatives in the coming contests for the Davis international cup. On the basis of the draw it is thought that Germany will have to meet Australasia, regarded as the probable winner in the first meeting with Canada. The representatives of the British Isles, it is anticipated, will defeat both Belgium and France, and in the final match, it is regarded as almost certain, Australasia and Great Britain will compete for the honor of playing the United States.

German officers always have manifested keen interest in riding, pistol competitions and other branches of sport identified directly with military life, but since the award of the Olympic games to Germany for 1916 this interest has been extended to all forms of athletics.

BIRD PRESERVES.

The establishment of bird preserves at various places along the Baltic coast about five years ago has already had the effect of greatly multiplying the numbers of ducks, brant geese, gulls, plover, and other aquatic birds there. Still greater success is reported from the North Sea, where the preserves are somewhat older. On one of the East Frisian Islands the number of silver gulls has increased from less than 200 to nearly 4000. Other islands have become favorite haunts for various kinds of sea swallows, while still another has been pre-empted by the elder duck.

EDUCATORS, SCIENTISTS.

Emily G. Balch, head of the department of political economy of Wellesley College, has been appointed a member of the Boston City Planning Board.

Dr. Harry Pratt Judson, president of the University of Chicago, has begun a trip around the world. In the East he will be joined by Dr. Francis Peabody of Boston and other members of a commission appointed by the Rockefeller Foundation to study and report on medicine, surgery and public health in foreign countries.

One of the most popularly known university professors in the country is Richard Burton, professor of English literature in the University of Minnesota, a member of the National Institute of Arts and Letters, perhaps the foremost authority on the drama in the United States today, and widely known and extremely popular as a lecturer.

To a Bird at Dawn.

O, bird that somewhere yonder sings,
In the dim hour 'twixt dreams and dawn,
Lone in the hush of sleeping things
In some sky sanctuary withdrawn;
Your perfect song is too like pain,
And will not let me sleep again.

I think you must be more than bird,
A little creature of soft wings;
Not yours this deep and thrilling word—
Some morning planet 'tis that sings;
Surely from no small feathered throat
Wells that august, eternal note.

As some old language of the dead,
In one resounding syllable,
Says Rome and Greece, and all is said—
A simple word a child may spell;
So in your liquid note impearled
Sings the long epic of the world.

Unfathomed sweetness of your song,
With ancient anguish at its core,
What womb of elemental wrong,
With shudder unimagined, bore
Peace so divine—what hell hath trod
This voice that softly talks with God!

All silence in one silver flower
Of speech that speaks not, save as speaks
The moon in heaven, yet hath power
To tell the soul the thing it seeks,
And pack, as by some wizard's art,
The whole within the finite part.

To you, sweet bird, one well might feign—
With such authority you sing
So clear, yet so profound, a strain
Into the simple ear of spring—
Some simple understanding given
Of the hid purposes of heaven.

And all my life until this day,
And all my life until I die,
All joy and sorrow of the way,
Seem calling yonder in the sky;
And there is something the song saith
That makes me unafraid of death.

Now the slow light fills all the trees,
The world, before so still and strange,
With day's familiar presences,
Back to its common self must change,
And little gossip shapes of song
The porches of the morning throng.

Not yours with such as these to vie
That of the day's small business sing,
Voice of man's heart and of God's sky—
But, O, you make so deep a thing
Of joy, I dare not think of pain
Until I hear you sing again.

SWEDISH CROWN MAY BE STAKE.

Coming Parliament Election Stirs the Country.

King's Armament Speech the Cause of Crisis.

Socialists Attack Proposed Big Expenditures.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

STOCKHOLM, March 21.—Preparations for the election of a new Swedish Parliament are in full swing with a tremendous wave of popular clamor for a stronger national defense aroused by fears of Russian aggression. Two parties—Conservatives and Liberals—make this the dominant issue of the campaign, but beneath this is a question deemed by Socialists as even more pregnant with immediate consequences than the possibility of invasion. It is declared in some quarters that the King's crown is at stake.

The point is that while the demand for stronger national defense has stirred the whole nation, some classes are apparently still more concerned in defending themselves against an excessive exercise of power by the King, Gustave V.

THE KING'S SPEECH.

The crisis on this point was brought about by the King's speech to a throng of 30,000 peasants who gathered in Stockholm from all parts of the country on February 6 in a demonstration in favor of increased armaments. The King told the peasants that the problem of defense was one which must be solved without loss of time, and on that point he would not yield.

The King's speech was made in the face of warnings from the Crown Prince and Prince Charles, and, indeed, from a number of Conservative and Liberal party leaders. The Queen and some of the King's personal friends, however, advised His Majesty to make the speech as originally drawn up, and their counsels prevailed.

MINISTERS RESIGN.

The Ministers forthwith resigned. They contended that as a constitutional monarch the King should not make political speeches without ascertaining if the Cabinet approved of them. The King replied: "I cannot agree to this; I will not deprive myself of the right to speak without restraint to the Swedish people."

Dr. Knut Hammarsjoeld was invited to form a new Cabinet with himself as Premier and Minister of War, but, as his adherents were in the minority in the second chamber, there was no chance of the defense bill becoming law.

Parliament therefore was dissolved and the issue placed before the people. The result is that the whole country is torn with the question of militarism and constitutionalism.

The Riksdag just dissolved consisted of 101 Liberals, sixty-five Conservatives and sixty-four Social Democrats.

DEFENSE PROPOSALS.

The defense proposals upon which the King and his Cabinet will ask the support of the voters are, according to minutes of the Cabinet meeting, as follows:

"For army drill there will be days and three training periods each of thirty days. Students and similar persons are to serve a longer time but not more than 500 days.

"The navy is to consist of two divisions, each composed of four armored ships, four divisions of destroyers each of four ships, and two divisions of submarines. An aeronautic fleet is to be organized.

"The expense will be paid by a progressive defense tax on big fortunes and incomes, which is to be set aside solely for military purposes."

The minutes concluded with the following declaration by the King:

"On the solution of this question, so vital for this nation, depends the possibility of preserving our liberty and independence and defending our neutrality."

SOCIALIST DEMANDS.

The proposals do not differ greatly from the programme of the Liberals. The Socialists, however, are not only demanding a reduction of expenditures for army and navy, but have definitely decided to make the establishment of a republic a plank in their platform. The Conservatives are drawing the person of the King into their contest and the fight is plainly between the crown, supported by them, and the other two parties.

Socialist assertions that King Gustave assumed powers not granted by the Constitution, have drawn from him the following declaration:

"I declare that every desire and effort in the direction of personal regal power has been, is and will be alien to me. I have hitherto performed my royal duties in accordance with the order and spirit of the fundamental law and in fidelity to the device: 'With the people for the fatherland.' I never will depart from my determination to do so in the future."

THE FOOD DEMAND.

The United States Is Not Raising Enough for Itself Today and Trouble Is Predicted.

[Ohio State Journal:] We are now told that the world's meat supplies, from all sources, are unequal to the growing demand—that is, the supply is growing less and the demand growing more, which may mean that before many years the eating of meat will be a lost luxury. The meat eaters are increasing and the meat raisers are diminishing. This comes to pass because the drift of the people is from the country to town.

This big country is not raising enough for itself today. It is getting wheat from Canada and beef from Australia. A land that can support 300,000,000 people is not supporting 100,000,000; and unless it bestirs itself serious consequences will follow, for the number of food-growing States is declining. This country is putting industrialism before agriculture, but there will come a day when it will feel the burden of its neglect.

Of course, we do not feel the discomfort of our partiality to industrialism, but we will one of these days and then we will hurry to plant the waste places and adopt better methods of culture. But it is going to be almost a catastrophe to lure the people away from the blandishments of the city back to the cornfields and potato patches, but they will have to come to it or this dear old country will have trouble and before many decades pass by.

The Doctor's Advice

by Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply to any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Building, College-Ellwood streets, Dayton, O., enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initials will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

"Al" writes: "I should like a good reliable treatment for the hair and scalp. Something that will cure dandruff and stop falling hair, also cure an itching scalp."

Answer: The most reliable treatment for the scalp is sold in 4-ounce jars at any drug store, and is called plain yellow minyol. It is superior to anything known for the scalp. It gives new vigor and helps the hair to keep its natural color. This will positively cure your dandruff and stop the itching of the scalp.

"Harry M." writes: "I am quite tall and do not weigh enough for my height. Am very nervous and my skin is very pale."

Answer: You can readily increase your weight by taking three-grain hypo-nuclane tablets regularly for several months. These tablets will also overcome nervousness, help digestion and assimilation and thus improve the color of the skin. Many report gaining 10 to 30 pounds with improved health in every way. The tablets are packed in sealed cartons with directions and are widely prescribed for your ailment.

"Poor Ann" writes: "Every winter I am troubled with slight attacks of rheumatism. I have tried many things but with no avail."

Answer: The best thing for rheumatism is made by mixing the following ingredients and taking a teaspoonful at mealtimes and again at bedtime. Iodide of potassium, 2 drams; sodium salicylate, 4 drams; wine of colchicum, ½ ounce; comp. essence cardiol, 1 oz.; comp. fluid balmwort, 1 oz., and syrup sarsaparilla comp., 5 ozs.

"Mrs. A. C." writes: "My little daughter has a very bad cold and cough which we do not seem able to even relieve. What shall I do?

Answer: Purchase a 2½-oz. bottle of essence mentho-laxene and make a syrup according to directions given and your daughter will be cured within a few days. This is very pleasant to take and will drive the cold out of the system.

"P. P. C." writes: "If you can prescribe something to prevent an attack of appendicitis, please do so. I have constipation, sour stomach, headache and am weak and listless with pains after eating."

Answer: The best treatment for disordered stomach and bowels, due to indigestion, is tablets triopeptine, sold in sealed cartons with full directions.

"Energy" writes: "Let me say that my condition puzzles and worries me. In the last year I seem to have been growing old rapidly, though only 38. My food and sleep do not recuperate my strength and energy, and lately I have dizzy spells, trembling, headaches, loss of appetite, memory and hopefulness. Despondency and worry over my condition are ever present."

Answer: Cheer up, get well and then conserve your vitality by proper, temperate living. Obtain three-grain cadomene tablets in sealed tubes with full directions, use them and an agreeable, pleasing restoration should ensue to your entire satisfaction.

"Miserable" asks: "I was miserable all through the summer last year on account of being too fat. Can you please help me to reduce with something harmless?"

Answer: Hundreds of persons who are too fat suffer. It is needless suffering. The discovery of the principles contained in five-grain arbolone tablets, make it comparatively easy to reduce from 10 to 50 pounds. These excellent tablets are put up in sealed tubes with directions for self-administration.

"Gwendaline" writes: "Kindly tell me what to do. I suffer with liver, kidney and stomach trouble. Am constipated and have slight attacks of billiousness."

Answer: For your stomach, liver and kidneys, take three-grain sulpherb tablets (not sulphor.) These little tablets are packed in sealed tubes and contain full directions for using. They will purify the blood and act directly on the liver and kidneys, and if taken regularly will gradually effect a relief for all ailments that arise from chronic constipation.

"Wife:" Incontinence or bedwetting in children is usually corrected by using the following in 10 to 15-drop doses in water one hour before meals: Tincture cubebs, 1 dram; tincture rhus aromatic, 2 drams; comp. fluid balmwort, 1 oz. Mix well.

"C. R." writes: "I have a very troublesome case of catarrh of the head and throat. I suffer annoyance and embarrassment very keenly. Can you give me something to stop this trouble?"

Answer: Use daily a nostril wash and gargle made with antiseptic vilane powder. Obtain a two or eight-ounce box of it and use it according to the directions enclosed. —[Advertisement.

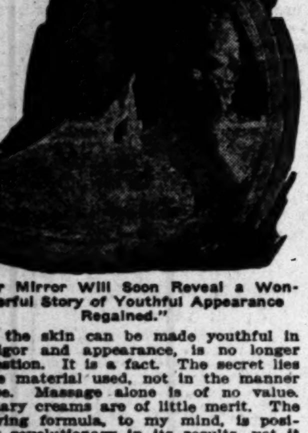
A Sure Wrinkle Remover and Other Beauty Secrets

Secrets That Will Save You Years of Time and Many Dollars in Your Quest for Beauty, Told by Valeska Suratt, Famed as the Greatest Self-Made Beauty Actress.

By Valeska Suratt

WE ALL more or less lead lives of quiet desperation, and the older we become the more pronounced seems to be our resignation. And particularly is this true with women upon whose faces Time is sketching, in wrinkle characters, an epic of its flight.

More wonderful to these then, seems the statement that wrinkles can be eradicated as surely as chalk from a slate. We are all sisters in the skin—skin is skin.



"Your Mirror Will Soon Reveal a Wonderful Story of Youthful Appearance Regained."

That the skin can be made youthful in its rigor and appearance, is no longer a question. It is a fact. The secret lies in the material used, not in the manner of use. Massage alone is of no value. Ordinary creams are of little merit. The following formula, to my mind, is positively revolutionary in its results, yet it is simplicity itself. Mix this formula yourself at home in a few moments and you will have a quantity of surpassing wrinkle remover which would ordinarily cost many dollars if it could be bought in stores already prepared.

To half a pint of hot water, add two ounces of eptol and two tablespoonfuls of glycerine. This forms a cream. When cool, apply regularly, every day, generously. The eptol will cost not more than fifty cents at any drug store. This cream removes light and deep wrinkles, lines of worry, habit and age, and makes a difference of years in your appearance.

MISS HOW?—Poor girl! You will be able to comb and brush your hair vigorously without having a single strand come out and your hair will begin to grow out most beautifully again if you will apply every other day or so, and in liberal quantities, a mixture made of half a pint of alcohol, half a pint of water, and one ounce of beta-quinol. Shake thoroughly, and then it will be ready to use. If you prefer, you can use imported bay rum instead of the water and alcohol. The beta-quinol you can get at almost any drug store for not more than fifty cents.

MRS. O. F. L.—Most of the beautiful complexions you have admired have been developed after years of painstaking effort. But such labor and patience are no longer necessary by the use of a formula which I believe is the most wonderful beautifier I have ever known. With a half-pint of hot water mix two tablespoonfuls of glycerine, and while stirring pour in one ounce of zintone, obtainable for not more than fifty cents at any drug store. When cool it makes an exquisite, satiny cream and is ready to use. This is exceedingly economical, and you can and must use it generously on face, arms, hands, neck and shoulders, every day.

MRS NO-FORM—It is a difficult matter, at best, to develop the bust, but there is only one way that deserves a trial, and that is to make a mixture of two ounces of ruetone (sold at drug stores for not more than one dollar), half a cup of sugar, and a pint of cold water, and taking of this two teaspoonfuls after meals and at bedtime. This should do it if anything can.

MISS O. N. R.—The best soap in the world can never cleanse the scalp of all scurf, dead skin particles and dandruff as can eggol. This produces a wonderfully rich, creamy lather and is unexcelled as a scalp cleanser. Dissolve a teaspoonful of eggol in half a cup of hot water for your shampoo. Enough eggol can be secured from your druggist for twenty-five cents to give over twelve exquisite shampoos.

DISSATISFIED—I do not wonder that you are dissatisfied with the many superfluous hair removers you have used. You will remove such hairs perfectly, and without burn or irritation by using simple sulfo solution, which dissolves the hair instead of burning it off and leaving a red spot. It is very startling in its action. You can get simple sulfo solution for not more than one dollar at the drug store.

LOOKS BAD—You will go on forever using creams to get rid of pimples, and never succeed. What you need is a powerful blood cleanser. There is nothing better than a mixture of twelve ounces of sugar dissolved in a pint of water and one ounce of sarsene, taken in doses of three or four teaspoonfuls three or four times a day. Get the sarsene in the original package, by the ounce, at the drug store. You will get rid of your pimples quickly.

• • •

MRS. D. M. L.—It is an astonishing fact that blackheads can be removed in a few minutes by sprinkling some neroxin on a hot-wet sponge and rubbing this on the blackheads. It removes them all, the big and little ones. The neroxin can be obtained at the drug store for not more than fifty cents.—Advertisement.

THE ADVENTURES OF KATHLYN.

BY HAROLD MAC GRATH.

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS CHAPTERS.

Kathlyn Hare, believing her father, Col. Hare, in peril, has summoned her, leaves her home in California to go to him in Allaha, India. Umballah, pretender to the throne of that principality, has imprisoned the colonel, named by the late king as his heir, because he fears the American may insist on his royal rights.

Upon her arrival in Allaha Kathlyn is informed by Umballah that, her father being dead, she is to be queen and must marry him forthwith. Because of her refusal she is sentenced to undergo two ordeals with wild beasts.

John Bruce, an American, and fellow-passenger on the boat which brought Kathlyn to Allaha, saves her life. The elephant which carries her from the scene of her trials becomes frightened and runs away, separating her from Bruce and the rest of the party.

After a ride filled with peril Kathlyn takes refuge in a ruined temple, but her haven is also the abode of a lion, and she is forced to flee from it. She finds a retreat in the jungle, only to fall into the hands of a band of slave traders, who bring her to Allaha to the public mart. She is sold to Umballah, who, finding her still unsubmissive, throws her into the dungeon with her father.

Bruce and his friends effect the release of Kathlyn and the colonel and the fugitives are given shelter in the palace of Bala Khan.

Supplied with camels and servants by that hospitable prince, the party endeavors to reach the coast, but are overpowered by a band of brigands, and the encounter results in the colonel being delivered to Umballah. Kathlyn and Bruce escape from their captors and return to Allaha, where Kathlyn learns that her father, while nominally king, is in reality a prisoner. It is arranged to find a bride for him. Candidates come from near and far, Kathlyn among them. She hopes by gaining access to the palace in disguise to be able to get her father out of Umballah's clutches, and to join Bruce and Ramabai outside the palace gates. Her plan is succeeding when the leopards which guard the treasury become free and enter the throne-room, throwing the entire court into a wild panic.

Chapter XXV.

[Copyright, 1914, by Harold Mac Grath.]

CROUCHED in the palanquin, Kathlyn waited for the onslaught of the leopards. Once she heard a tremendous scratching at the rear of her hiding place; the palanquin tottered. But the animal was not trying to get inside; he was merely sharpening his claws after the manner of his kind, claws which were sharp enough, heaven knew, since, regularly, once a month, the keepers filed them to needle points.

An elephant trumpeted nearby, and Kathlyn could have wept in despair. Outside the wall were friends, doubtless by this time joined by her father and Ramabai, and all wondering where she was. She dared not call out for fear of attracting the leopards, whose movements she could hear constantly; the jar of their padded feet as they trotted under and about the palanquin, the sniff, sniff of their wet noses, an occasional yawning.

By and by her curiosity could not be withstood, even though she might be courting death. Cautiously and soundlessly she moved the curtain which faced the wall. A mass of heavy vines ran from the ground to the top of this wall. If only she could reach it; if only she dared try! Presently the keepers, armed with goads and ropes, would be forthcoming and all hope of flight banished. Umballah, on close inspection, would recognize her despite her darkened skin and Indian dress.

From the other window she peered. There, in the path, were two leopards, boxing and frolicking in play. As she watched, always interested in the gambols of such animals, she noticed that two other leopards left off prowling, approached, sat upon their haunches, and critically followed the friendly set-to. Then the other three, seeking diversity, sauntered into view. Kathlyn quickened with life and hope. The seven leopards were at least half a dozen yards away. It was but a step to the vines sprawling over the wall.

To think that all depended upon the handle of the palanquin door! If it opened without noise there was a chance. If it creaked she was lost; for she would fall into the hands of the keepers if not under the merciless paws of the cats.

But the longer she hesitated the less time she would have. Bravely, then, she tried her hand upon the door handle and slowly but firmly turned it. There was no sound that she could hear. She pressed it outward with a slow, steady movement. Fortunately the dress of the Hindu was short, somewhat above the ankles, and within her strong young body was free of those modern contrivances known as corsets and stays.

She sprang out, dashed for the vines, and drew herself up rapidly. In unison the seven leopards whirled and flew at her. But the half a dozen yards which they had first to cover to reach the wall saved her. Up, up, desperately, wildly, with a nervous energy which did far more for her than her natural strength. The cats leaped and snarled at her heels. She went on. Beneath her the leopards tore at the vines and tried to follow, one succeeding in tearing her skirt with a desperate slash of his paw. He lost his hold and tumbled back among his mates.

But every minute the vines, sturdy as they were, threatened to come tumbling to the ground.

Her long and lonely experiences in the jungle had taught her the need of climbing quickly, yet lightly. She flung herself across the top of the wall, exhausted. For the time being, at least, she was safe. She hung there for a few minutes till she had fully recovered her breath. Below the leopards were still leaping and striking futilely, and even in her terror she could not but admire their grace and beauty. And, oddly, she recalled the pet at home. Doubtless by this time he had fallen back into his savage state.

When she dared risk it she gained a securer position on the wall and sat up, flinging her legs over the side of it. She saw things in a bit of blur at first, her heart had been called upon so strenuously; but after a little objects resumed their real shapes, and she espied the two elephants. She called, waving her hands.

"It is Kathlyn!" cried Bruce, for the eyes of a lover are always keenest.

"Kit!" shouted the colonel, who shared the howdah with Bruce. "Kit, hang on for a moment longer! Ahmed, to the wall!"

The colonel and Ramabai had left the zenana by one of the windows overlooking the passage which ran past the garden of brides. They had had no trouble whatever in reaching the elephants. But the subsequent waiting for Kathlyn had keyed them all up to the breaking point. The pity of it was, they dared not stir, dared not start in search of her. Had it been leopards only Bruce would have made short work of it, but it would have been rank folly to have gone in search of the girl. If she had been made captive she needed their freedom to gain her own. Besides, the counsel of both Ahmed and Lal Singh was for patience.

Ahmed had the greatest faith in the world in Kathlyn's ability to take care of herself. Think of what she had already gone through unscathed! Kathlyn Memsahib bore a charmed life, and all the wild beasts of the jungles of Hind could not harm her. It was written.

And then Bruce discovered her upon the wall.

It took but a moment to bring the elephant alongside, and Kathlyn dropped down into the howdah.

"A narrow squeak, dad," was all she said.

"Let us get on our way," said the colonel, hoarsely. "And, remember, shoot to kill any man who attempts to stop us. My Kit!" embracing Kathlyn. "Perhaps the escape of the leopards is the luckiest thing that could have happened. It will keep them all busy for an hour or more. Since Umballah believes you to be dead, he will be concerned about my disappearance only. And it will be some time ere they learn of my escape. Forward, Ahmed! This time . . ."

"Don't father!" interrupted Kathlyn. "Perhaps we shall escape, but none of us is sure. Let us merely hope. I'm so tired!"

Bruce reached over and pressed her hand reassuringly, and the colonel eyed him as from a new angle.

"Good!" he murmured under his breath. "Nothing better could happen. He is a man, and a tried one, I know. Good! If once we get clear of this hell I shall not stand in their way. But, Winnie, Winnie, what in God's name will that kitten be doing all these terrible weeks? Will she try to find us? The first telegraph office we reach I must cable her under no circumstances to stir from home. Ahmed," he said aloud, "how far are we from the nearest telegraph station?"

"Three days, Sahib."

"Shall we be obliged to stop at the gate to change our mounts?"

"No, Sahib; only to take supplies enough to last us."

"Lose as little time as you can. Now drop the curtains, Bruce."

So through the streets they hurried, unmolested. Those who saw the curtained howdah took it for granted that some unsuccessful candidate was returning to her home.

It was well for Kathlyn that she had made up her mind to leap for the vines at the moment she did. For the elephants had not left the first turn in the street when keepers and soldiers came running pell-mell into the street with ropes and ladders, prepared for the recapture of the treasury leopards, which, of course, were looked upon as sacred.

At the ancient gate the fugitives paused for the supplies awaiting them. Ahmed was not known to the guards there, which was good fortune. In the dialect he jested with them, winked and nodded toward the curtained howdah. The guards laughed; they understood. Some disappointed houri was returning whence she had come. Ahmed took his time; he had no reason to hurry. Nothing must pass which would arouse the suspicions of the guards, and haste always alarmed the oriental.

To the colonel, however, things appeared to lag unnecessarily. He finally lost patience and swept back the curtain despite Bruce's restraining hand. A native mahout, who had been loitering in town that day, recognized at once the royal turban which the colonel still wore. The colonel's face meant nothing; the turban, everything. The mahout stood stock still for a moment, not quite believing his eyes. By this time, however, Ahmed was comfortably straddled back of his elephant's ears and was jogging along the road.

"The king!" shouted the surprised mahout to the guards, who had not seen the man or the turban.

"What king, fool?" returned the guards.

"The white king who was betrothed this day! Ai, ai! I have seen the royal turban. It is he!"

The guards derided him. So, finding no hope in them, he ran to his elephant, mounted, and rode back into town. Durga Ram would pay well for this news.

"Father," said Kathlyn reproachfully, "that mahout recognized you. I warned you not to move the curtain."

Bruce shrugged.

"But, Kit," returned her father, "Ahmed was so infernally slow! He could spend time in chattering to the guards."

Ahmed heard, but said nothing.

"Never mind," interposed Bruce pacifically. "At any rate we shall have the advantage of a couple of hours, and Umballah will not catch us with the elephants he has at hand. By the time he starts his expedition we shall be thirty miles away. Let us be cheerful!"

"Kit," said her father, "I couldn't help it. I can't think quickly any more. I am like a man in a nightmare. I've been down to hell, and I can't just yet realize that I am out of it. I'm sorry!"

"Poor dad!" Kathlyn pressed him in her arms, while Bruce nodded enviously but approvingly.

By and by they drew aside the curtains. Kathlyn saw here and there objects which recalled her first journey along this highway. If only she had known!

"One thing is forecast," said Bruce. "When Ramabai returns it will be to fight. He will not be able to avoid it now. I shouldn't mind going back with him. Ahmed, what is this strange hold Umballah has over the actions of the Council of Three? They always appear to be afraid of him."

"Ah, sahib," said Ahmed, resting his ankus or goad on the skull of his mount, "there is said to be another prisoner in the palace prison. Lal Singh knows, I believe."

"What's your idea?"

"Sahib, when I put you all safe over the frontier I am coming back to Allaha to find out." And that was all Ahmed would say regarding the subject.

"I'll wage rhe knows," whispered Bruce.

"But who can it be? Another poor devil of a white man? Yet how could a white man influence the actions of the Council?" The colonel spoke irritably.

"Look!"—from Kathlyn. "There is one of those wonderful trees they call the flame of the jungle." She called their attention to the tree merely to cause a diversion. She wanted to keep her father's thoughts away from Allaha.

So they journeyed on into the sunset, into twilight, into the bright, starry night.

Back in the city the panic was already being forgotten as a thing of the past. The leopards were back at their patrolling; the high officials and dignitaries, together with the unsuccessful candidates, had gone their several ways. Umballah alone paced the halls, well satisfied with the events of the day, barring the disturbance caused by the escape of the leopards.

His captain entered and saluted.

"Highness, a mahout has news."

"News? Of what?"

"He claims that he saw the king's turban in a howdah which passed the ancient gate about an hour gone."

"That is not possible," replied Umballah.

"I told him that the king was in his chamber."

"So he is. Wait! I will go myself and see," all at once vaguely perturbed. He was back in a very short time, furious. "Is is true! Woe to those who permitted him to escape!"

"Highness, the escape of the leopards and the confusion which followed. . . ."

"By all the gods of Hind, and 'twas you who left the door open! You opened it for me to pass out first. Summon the council. Off with you, and give this handful of silver to the only man who has sense enough to believe his eyes. Hare Sahib is mine, and I will follow him into the very house of the British Raj! Guards and elephants And the bride-to-be what of her? Look and see. Nay, I will go with you."

Umballah found an empty chamber; the future queen was gone. More, he found one of the women of the zenana—his favorite—bound and gagged with handkerchiefs. Quickly he freed her.

"Highness, the bride's face was dark like my own, but her arms were as light as clotted cream! And she spake the tongue of the white people."

Kathlyn Hare! She lived! she had escaped the brigands; she had fooled him! And Ramabai had played with him as a cat plays with a wounded mouse. O, they should see this time!

Suddenly he laughed. It echoed down the corridor, and one of the treasure leopards roared back at the sinister sound.

"Highness!" timidly.

"Enough!" I hold you blameless." He rushed from the palace.

Poor fools! Let them believe that they had escaped. There was still the little sister; in a short time now she would be inside the city walls. The Colonel Sahib would return; indeed, yes. There would be no further difficulty regarding the filigree basket of gold and gems. Still, he would pursue them, if only for the mere sport of it. If he failed to catch them all he had to do was to sit down and wait for them to return of their own volition.

Ramabai, however, was a menace; and Umballah wondered how he was going to lay hold of him. While waiting for his elephants to be harnessed he summoned the council. Ramabai's property must be confiscated and Ramabai put to death. Here for the first time the council flatly refused to fall in with Umballah's plans. And they gave very good reasons. Yes, Ramabai was a menace, but till the soldiery was fully paid. To touch Ramabai would mean the bursting forth of the hidden fire and they would all be consumed.

"Open the treasury door for me, then."

"We dare not. The keepers understand. They would loose the leopards, which we dare not shoot. The law . . . ."

"What is the law to us?" demanded Umballah frankly. "Let us make laws to suit our needs. The white man does. And we need money; we need each other," pointing a finger suggestively toward the floor.

"Only when we have the troops," replied the council firmly. "We have bent our heads to your will so far in everything, but we refuse to sacrifice those heads because of a personal spite against Ramabai, whom we frankly and wisely fear. We dare not break into the treasury. The keepers are unbribable; the priests are with them, and the people are with the priests. Bring back the white man and his daughter first; if that is impossible, marry this second daughter, and we will crown her; and then you may work your will upon Ramabai. You have failed in all directions so far. Succeed but once and we are ready to follow you."

Umballah choked back the hot, imperious words which crowded to his lips. These were plain, unvarnished facts, and he must bow to the inevitable, however distasteful it might be. For the present, then, Ramabai should be permitted to go unharmed. But Ramabai might die suddenly and accidentally in the recapture of the Colonel Sahib. An accidental death would certainly extinguish any volcanic fires that smoldered under Allaha. So, with this secret determination in mind, Umballah set forth.

Ahmed, his mind busy with a thousand things, forgot the thousand and first, at that stage most important of all: and this was the short cut, a mere pathway through the jungle but which lessened the journey by some thirty miles. And this pathway Umballah chose. The three hours' headway was thus pared down to minutes, and at the proper time Umballah would appear, not behind the pursued, but in the road in front of them.

There was, to be sure, a bare possibility of the Colonel and his party getting beyond the meeting of the path and the road—that is, if he kept going forward all through the night, which, by the way, was exactly what the astute Ahmed did. But Kathlyn's curiosity the next morning neutralized the advantage gained.

A group of masked dancers, peripatetic, was the cause. Confident that they had outstripped pursuit, she saw no reason why she should not witness the dancing.

How Umballah came upon them suddenly, like a thunderbolt, confiscating the elephants; how they fled to a near-by temple, bribed the dancers for masks and garments, fled still farther into the wooded hills, and hid there with small arms ready, needs but little telling. Umballah returned to the city satisfied. He had at least deprived them of their means of travel. Sooner or later they would founder in the jungle, hear of the arrival of the younger daughter and return.

Ahmed was grave. Lal Singh had gone. Now that the expedition had practically failed, his place was back in the shoe shop in the bazaars. Yes, Ahmed was grave. He was also a trifle disheartened. The fakir had said that there would be many disappointments, but that in the end . . . He might be a liar like all the other Hindus. Yet surely one part of his foretelling [illegible] many disappointments.

"Kit," said her father, "Ahmed warned you not to stop."

"I am sorry."

It was on the tip of her tongue to retort that his own carelessness was the basic cause of the pursuit, but she remembered in time what her father had been through.

"There is a village not far," reminded Ahmed. "They are a friendly people. It is quite possible, with the money we have, to buy some horses, small but sturdy. But there is one thing I do not understand, sahib."

"And what is that?" asked the Colonel.

"The readiness with which Umballah gave up the pursuit. It's a long walk, let us be getting forward."

Late that afternoon they were all mounted once more, on strong, tractable ponies, with water and provisions. And the spirits of all rose accordingly. Even Ahmed became cheerful.

"We'll make it, please God!" said the Colonel. "Give me a telegraph office. That's all I need just now."

"Two days, sahib," said Ahmed, "we will reach the sea."

They rode all through the night, stopping only at dawn for breakfast and a cat nap after. Then forward again till they came upon a [illegible] rest house, deserted. Here they agreed to spend the night. Beyond the rest house were half a dozen scattered huts, occupied by natives who pretended friendliness, lulling even the keen Ahmed into a sense of security. Bt at dawn when they awoke cheerfully to pick up the trail, they found their horses and provisions gone.

The Colonel, Bruce and Ahmed, still armed, never having parted with the rifles out of their keeping, set out grimly in pursuit of the thieves, while Kathlyn proceeded to [illegible] on her own initiative.

FICTION.

ROMANCE IN NEW CLOTHES.

THE FORTUNATE YOUTH. By William J. Locke. John Lane Company, New York.

WE CONFESS an affection for Mr. Locke based on the rather intangible quality of charm. His art is [illegible], lambent—playing over the characters of all classes from the vagabond to the princes and illuminating only those traits and foibles that we love. He seems [illegible] the sordid, and even squalor is [illegible] by the whimsical fantasies that [illegible] in the alleyways and sculleries.

In "The Fortunate Youth" we find a [illegible] written contrary to all the rules [illegible] of romance. Mr. Locke brings [illegible] all the settings of the "lost prince living with the cruel old hag," much like a fairy [illegible], and then knocks all of the settings [illegible] and proceeds with a dramatic, essentially modern story, with explosive situations steadily increasing in interest until the [illegible], but none the less enjoyable [illegible].

As usual, there are quaint and lovable characters. Especially is "Barney Bill" entitled to consideration, with his poor twisted [illegible] and his great heart, and his meditation [illegible], which runs in this manner: "I don't [illegible] how I don't hold with Gawd, but if [illegible] I thinks of Him, I like to feel that He's [illegible] the wind or in the crickle-crackle of the earth, just near and friendly like, but not worrying of a chap, listening for every [illegible] word as he uses to his old horse and [illegible] every half-pint he pours down his [illegible] throat. No; that ain't my idea of [illegible]. But then I ain't got religion."

"The Fortunate Youth" is a beautiful-featured, young Hermes of a child, living [illegible] the grimy children and drunken [illegible] of Budge street. Paul knows that he [illegible] from his surroundings, and surreptitiously reads romances and dreams of [illegible] with princes and princesses in the foreground. He escapes from his stepmother (who he sincerely believes has been [illegible] in the image of the devil) and [illegible] his way to London, and continues to [illegible] his way in the world until he becomes [illegible] prominence in the affairs of England.

Of course the story is improbable. We [illegible] be disappointed if Mr. Locko wasted [illegible] on the commonplace. But it has [illegible]—the same dainty cleverness, neatness of expression and choice humor that [illegible] its author beloved by all who care [illegible].

UNHAPPY, BUT RESPECTABLE.

THE WOMEN WE MARRY. By Arthur Stanwood [illegible] Houghton, Mifflin Company, Boston.

THERE is a depressing absence of happiness in the lives of all the characters appearing in "The Women We Marry," which makes us confident that Mr. Pier has not held the mirror up to nature, and also [illegible] concerned in the hope that he has not held it up to his own experiences. The author is far too finished a writer for [illegible] question his ability to present his [illegible] and the resultant situations other [illegible] the manner he wished to have them [illegible], so we are constrained to wonder [illegible] this is a mild satire on the women [illegible] marry, or merely a refined discussion [illegible] maritial infelicities.

[illegible] told the story is this: Rosamond [illegible] Graham Rappallo principally because he has served in the Rough Riders [illegible] a horse well. In a few days she [illegible] tells her husband that she is [illegible] she did not marry George [illegible], but the benedict seems impervious to jealousy and ignores the situation. [illegible] is dejected because Rosamond has married him; even after the wedding he [illegible], nay, almost parades, his love for [illegible] marries Dorothy a few weeks later, [illegible] that he loves her more than he [illegible] Rosamond. Dorothy takes up a [illegible] writer as a protege, ultimately falls [illegible] with him, and plans to run away [illegible] the scribbler, but for a rather vague [illegible] which brings the proverbial "awakening" [illegible] remains loyal to her husband. Rosamond and her husband are never passionately happy, but wholly above reproach—[illegible] this age when novel characters display such a woeful lack of morals in seeking [illegible] "own happiness," it amounts to almost a vindication of faith to have a man [illegible] woman remain respectable although [illegible] discontented with married life.

[illegible] matter of coincidents seems a bit [illegible], for the characters often bump into [illegible] another in the most unexpected [illegible] until it may be said that all of the [illegible] in the action of the plot are dependent on accidental meetings.

BEHIND THE SCENES.

THE MASKS OF LOVE. By Margarita Spalding [illegible] Harper & Bros., New York.

IN "THE MASKS OF LOVE" Mr. Newbold, the young wizard of a theatrical [illegible], kisses Marjorie, and demands [illegible] what else he hired her for, since [illegible] and cannot act, but plainly lets [illegible] understand that he doesn't want to [illegible] her. Shortly afterward, however, he [illegible] virtuously indignant when Mar[illegible], having many pertinent things [illegible] his erroneous suspicions, rather [illegible] suggests that her recent mode of [illegible] not above reproach.

[illegible] this same remarkable Mr. Newbold [illegible] up for money to put on his new play. [illegible] his brokers inform him that the [illegible] amount has been advanced. The [illegible] put on, is a "howling success," and [illegible] learns that Marjorie (who is really [illegible] satisfied to remain incognita and [illegible] parts in a melodrama) has advanced the money. He is noisily angry that [illegible] her money on his production [illegible] that it must be repaid at once, [illegible] the reader is likely to be a trifle [illegible] know what reason he has for [illegible] excitement, especially as there [illegible] to be every assurance that the play [illegible] as much money as successful [illegible] in novels usually do.

[illegible] drag their weary legs across [illegible] from the opening situation, when [illegible] is given "five minutes" with the [illegible] and consumes a half-hour discussing Burne-Jones, until the final spasm [illegible] over the busy producer's rarified financial matters.

[illegible] is no reformation that satisfied us [illegible] Newbold from the day he up[illegible] her for dressing in a fashion to [illegible] passion without being com[illegible] until the last chapter when Mar[illegible] the hallway after him and [illegible] into his arms. The author [illegible] on Marjorie's moral indefectibility [illegible] patience that tires our own, [illegible] a climax culminating in [illegible] love.

[illegible] believe that wholesome women [illegible] who have tried to debauch them the uninterrupted opportunity of learning to love them respectably—with marriage in the end.

ANNALS OF AN ACHING HEART.

MY WIFE'S HIDDEN LIFE. (Anonymous.) Rand, McNally & Co., New York.

ALTHOUGH it may prove a little tiresome, "My Wife's Hidden Life" is worth reading if one chances to be growing weary of his wife and cares to know what she may suffer. There is a note of sincerity—we shall even say truthfulness—in this book that offsets the numerous uninteresting phases of it.

The plot is old, but perhaps eternal: A man loves a woman other than his wife. Then we take up the variations, which are simple: A missent letter reaches the wife's hand; she dies of heart failure, leaving a diary which shows that she has long suffered torture in the knowledge that her husband is slipping from her and in the suspicion that "the other woman," whose letter brings on death, is responsible.

The diary in itself is a pious lamentation, filled with matter extraneous to the plot which may have been put in to give it realism, but should have been eliminated to give it interest.

We are out of sympathy with the characters because their imperfections are protuberant. Gilbert Trent allows himself to be lured into clandestine passion for Maud Lacy, who has so little charm that we are at a loss to understand why, although he is married to a woman even so exasperatingly beatific as Hester.

However, there is, in spite of all that, a pathetic veracity in the protraiture of these flawed lives that commands attention; it is a book to make one think.

HIGHLIGHTS ON SPOONING.

THE CONFESSIONS OF AN INCONSTANT MAN. (Anonymous.) D. Appleton & Co., New York.

WE TRUST that these "confessions" are fictional. Let us believe that the author has chosen rather to impersonate a cad than to autobiographically reveal his own love experiences. True, there is a preface which tries to put the onus of shame off on another anonymity . . . it is all so obscure and indefinite that our suspicions are aroused, and, anyway, we feel justified in holding the author to blame because it was not mandatory that he tell us of a dozen love affairs, and with disgusting crudity bare the intimacies of boyhood spooning. With something that resembles aplomb he shows how several of the numerous maidens were jilted, and professes having firm affection for one who was married and developed a belated loyalty for her husband.

In conclusion, he admits that he has reached the ripe old philosphic age of thirty-one years, so perhaps it is impertinent for young and inexperienced persons to chide their elders. However, we must say that the book is not well written, and that it is vulgar without being indecent. He has given the impression of jeering at women for being foolishly affectionate on the slightest provocation, and he seems to think that his lack of sincerity in the love-making is not only sufficient excuse to escape culpability, but justifies a certain boastfulness.

BACK TO FEMINACY.

THE CONGRESS WOMAN. By Isabel Gordon Curtis. Browne & Howell Company, Chicago.

IT IS AN ACHIEVEMENT when a story of unusual happenings is told without in any way taxing the credulities. In this way the adventures of the "Congress Woman" are related. All of the events are in the most natural settings. The denouements are logical, the "woman of destiny" slipping easily into the place which awaits her.

The Congress Woman is a lady who has practically lost nineteen precious years of her life, married to a stern man who does not believe in wives drawing an independent breath. He proceeds to grind all spontaneousness out of her, and leaves her a widow before she has reached her fortieth year. The resurrection comes when Cynthia discovers that on some of the lands by the purchase of which her husband had kept the family on close margins in a red sand Oklahoma town, oil has been discovered. She becomes suddenly wealthy. But she lacks an interest in life. This is given her in the cause of the suffragettes. Going into it first with no serious purpose, she suddenly finds herself in demand to fill the candidacy to Congress for the Suffragette party. She is thrown in partly because of the sudden unpopularity of the woman who has been working for the candidacy. And thereby hangs a tale of revenge. Cynthia at first flatly refuses the honor, but is finally persuaded by her idolized boy of eighteen. She does not take it seriously at first, and is terribly frightened when she finds herself in a real fight against a vicious, even criminal, candidate. Against him she determines to throw her whole heart into the contest, and to win. Her suffragette rival marries the criminal, and the two come near ending Cynthia's campaign by a stone flung while she is lecturing from her automobile. But while she is recovering from the wound, a gentle male creature, who has been an unsuccessful candidate at every election, uncovers the criminal, and Cynthia sweeps into office by an overwhelming majority.

Cynthia, her beauty regained, and accompanied by a fine poise of personality, finds everything in Washington very different from what she had expected. The men of the House treat her with courtliness and chivalry. Although she is little fitted for the demands that are made upon her, she adapts herself to the duties imposed with admirable tact and intuition. At the same time, she runs the social gamut. The way in which her old enemies reach her, and the tragedy of the $2,000,000 Central Oil check furnish ammunition for the opposition.

The processes of the militants, and the final veering in the wind of Cynthia are part of the story. Jane Hagner, who has been in the movement for years, experiences a change of sentiment when she sees something of Washington militancy. She is a simple-hearted, little educated, earnest-hearted woman from Oklahoma. She is one of the distinctive characters.

The author does not shirk any of the political speeches by men or women, and she makes some very good ones. The romances tangled up in the plot do not turn out as in the usual storybooks. But they are exceedingly natural.

A FRIVOLOUS SKELETON.

THE FAMILY CUPBOARD. By Owen Davis. The Macauley Company, New York.

LIKE THE USUAL run of novels adapted from plays, this story cannot claim any literary distinctiveness. The plot carries it, together with the most striking speeches from the play. Furthermore, there is a deep-bedded revelation concerning home, social and economic conditions, vitally affecting the personal family relations. The thoughtless selfishness with which a wife takes for granted the sacrifices of her husband, who has given all his energies to gratifying her lust for fine raiment and social prestige, the smug confidence with which she neglects her wifely duties, and lets him drift away from her, her steely unforgiving spirit when she finds that he has bought the domestic companionship and kindness which has been denied him at his own hearth—these are the problems that are more or less familiar through Owen Davis's play. The mistake of both book and play is in the type of young woman depicted as the choice of the husband and father, as a sympathetic companion. The man is too fine and sterling a character, too cultured not to have been a little more select. And the cold way in which he has been sacrificed by his family throws the sympathies rather strongly in his direction.

The finest character in the book is the social secretary—a noble girl, worldly-wise beyond her years, but with a splendid integrity.

But the art of the drama and the art of the novel are two distinctly different things, although related in some features. And as we have before asserted, it is seldom that a good dramatist can turn out a good novel. Furthermore cuts made from theatrical photographs entirely spoil the illusion of a storybook. One cannot but wish that the author had spent a little more time, study and care in the making of his novel.

[From the Bystander.]

Gilbert K. Chesterton.

With some truth this may be called an "intimate" photograph. It brings Mr. Chesterton closer to the spectator than is customary. It also serves to explain somewhat the ponderosity of his humor as displayed in his latest book, "The Flying Inn," and in his first and recently produced play, "Magic."

POETRY.

A SWEET FLUTE.

LOVE AND THE UNIVERSE. By Albert D. Watson. Introduction by Katherine Hale. Macmillian Company, New York.

WE ARE GLAD to say that Mr. Watson is an old-fashioned poet in that he respects the uses of meter and believes that there is more to versification than rhymes. His is a spiritual music, a loftiness of thought and an ease and charm of expression that make us think of the poets who sang before football yells and rhythmic advertisement left the impress of their rough influence upon contemporary literature.

He is a believer in and a lover of God. We seriously doubt if the true poet can be an infidel. This is not the best of his poetry, but is the nucleus of his philosophy which pervades his poetry:

"The Universe is God. There is no heaven
To bribe, no hell to affright;
Ills are but justice banished, good is leaven
To fill the worlds with light.
The Universe is Form and Light and Beauty—
All this in dream I saw—
Is godlike strength, and great-souled Love and Duty,
Is firm but kindly Law."

True, Pope has said practically the same thing in even a better manner in his "Essay on Man," but then, so far as we know there is very little that is worth while that has not been said many, many times.

This from "The Comet" is vivid:

"Spectral, mysterious, flame-like thing
Cleaving the western night,
Waking from chrysalis-dream to fling
Out of thy spirit's long chastening
Far-flashing streams of light,
Rising anew from thine ancient pyre,
Vapour and dust thy frame,
Still art thou Psyche, the soul's desire,
Wingless, save when from reefs of fire
Mounting in shafts of flame."

The poems to great men—Caesar, Charlemagne, Browning, Cromwell and many others—are very good. Strength is combined with delicate expression in the shaping of his verse.

STRANGE VERSE.

SALOON SONNETS; WITH SUNDAY FLUTINGS. By Allen Norton. Claire Marie, New York.

A MORE peculiar book of poems we have never seen. The author is much as we imagine an exotic Browning would be. The "Saloon Sonnets" are not at all what might reasonably be expected from the title, and have a hue of futurist cleverness that will either amuse, disgust or enchant the reader—for this poet is not insipid. There is scorn in his tone at times, but no anger.

This is found at the close of "Chee Toy: From the Theater!"

"The white ants creep across the rotting wall,
And here hourly, inside my garden small
The flowers harden and the days grow cold;
I in my twenty years am more than old!
And yet tonight in the worm-eaten grass,
Like little fingers comes a thing of glass."

On "Theodore Roosevelt" we find this:

"He feeds the multitude its loves of wishes,
And changes sides as jugglers would a shilling—
While if they cry for miracle he's willing
To swallow the near river for its fishes."

Especially among "With Sunday Flutings" do we find the undeniable flashes of genius, although elsewhere there are sometimes lines of painful crudity.

This is from "Fantasie" and has a quality of which it seems useless to speak:

" 'Tonight,' she said, 'the fleur-de-lis
Shall be my only emperie.'
Then through a dim, deserted street
She raced with giddy, girlish feet
I caught the sighing swish and stir
The swirling breeze bore back from her;
I caught a glint of lace again
And grasped my wild Parisienne."

His lyrics are far superior to the sonnets; the former often show a merit that is rare, for the dearth of lyrists is and probably always will be great.

CHARMING LETTERS.

THE THINGS HE WROTE TO HER. By Richard Wightman. The Century Co., New York

A BROCHURE of hopes and ideals, done into exquisite phrases, is the result of "The Things He Wrote to Her." The letters are iridescent with moods, but always charming.

Rare discrimination has guided the compilation or the writing; there is an indefiniteness about it all—we don't know what her answers were—we don't know much that passes between them, and it gives us the feeling of wistful strangers.

"I did not know that I was going to meet you," he writes, "and you caught me quite unarmed. There are so many women—they swarm—and one really ought to be ever on the alert and on the defensive, but last night when you stood in the path and challenged, I was scarcely ready. My shield appeared to be mislaid, and my scabbard empty, and my sense of distance most unreliable. . . . For the first half hour I thought you cold, blase, opinionated. Later in the evening I began to think that estimate decidedly unjust; and this morning my memory holds you as warm, expectant and receptive."

We hazard this guess: The letters have been culled from among the precious possessions of the woman who received them, not as manuscripts, but as epistles.

INTIMATE SIDELIGHTS.

OUR FRIEND JOHN BURROUGHS. By Clara Barrus. Houghton Mifflin Company, Boston and New York.

ONE WILL wander lovingly through the pages of this beautiful and delightful volume, that tells us so much about the poet naturalist—our John Burroughs. The author, Dr. Barrus, has been a friend of Mr. Burroughs through many years. She was with him and John Muir on the 1909 trip to the Yosemite, and went to Hawaii at the same time Burroughs made the journey, assisting him in his literary work when professional duties would permit.

Some years ago Dr. Barrus suggested to the author that he write her a number of autobiographical letters, which are, with the author's sanction, included in the volume. There is a most interesting chapter entitled "Self-Analysis," which is a "frank, introspective study," written by Burroughs himself. This rare glimpse of intimacy is most interesting as a psychological study, and is written in a happy spirit of naturalness. There are many reminiscences of early playmates, and interesting references to notable friends of his later life. There are delightful accounts of vacations at "Slabsides" and "Woodchuck Lodge." "During his excursions into West Park," writes Dr. Barrus, "Mr. Burroughs had lingered oftenest in the hills back of, and parallel with, the Hudson." In this region he finally chose the site for his rustic cabin. Here, on Black Pond, he had fished and rowed. Here he had tarried with his friends, one of whom was Walt Whitman. Whitman, seated on a fallen tree, wrote a description of the place, ending with the words: "A primitive forest, druidical, solitary and savage—not ten visitors a year—broken rocks everywhere, shade overhead, thick underfoot with leaves—a just palpable wild and delicate aroma." The book is beautifully illustrated, one of the most striking cuts being a picture of Burroughs and John Muir together in the Yosemite. It is not often that two such faces are seen on the same plate.

Many visit Slabsides in these days. "But," writes the author, "not all who seek John Burroughs really find him."

REVIEWS IN BRIEF.

THE FIRST STEP. By Eliza Orne White. Houghton-Mifflin Company, Boston and New York.

A very pretty story of a young spinster who comes into the possession of a suburban home through inheritance. Her humorous experiences with advising neighbors, plumbers, carpenters and architects are recorded, as are also some rather unanticipated lover affairs.

EAT AND GROW THIN. By Vance Thompson. E. P. Dutton & Co., New York.

The author claims that under the Mahdah method of reduction, set forth in his book, one continues to live really well, gains in health and strength, yet will lose twenty-five to thirty pounds in a few weeks without producing a wrinkle. The book aims to show that the fat friend may eat, and still grow thin.

MY OWN STORY. By Joseph H. Appel. Platt & Peck, New York.

A practical little volume telling the story "of a boy who got into the spirit of life, so that the spirit of life got into him." It explains, through the working of the universal law of cause and effect, that to try to cheat life is only to cheat self, and that the only course of wisdom is to swing into harmony with the law.

IRISH WITCHCRAFT AND DEMONOLOGY. By St. John D. Seymour, B.D. Norman Remington & Co., Baltimore.

A book such as this will doubtless prove interesting to those in any way acquainted with the Irish folk-spirit and superstitions. The author makes a distinction between fairy lore and witchcraft—excepting in such instances as when the two become inextricably blended, not touching upon the former.

APRIL MAGAZINES.

"Bamby" begins in this month's number of the American. Majorie Benton Cooke is the author, and a sweet, snappy maiden is "Bamby"—similar in type to Pam. Mary Antin continues her forceful articles on "They Who Knock at Our Gates," championing the emigrants. "Dictated But Not Read," by Edna Ferber, is a "McChesney story" below the average Ferber story. Walter Prichard Eaton writes with illumination on "The Slump in the Theatrical Business," and Brand Whitlock knows fiction as well as politics, for his golf story on "Doting Fathers" is clever.

The Woman's Home Companion is better than usual, which means that it has exceed a good standard. Among the things that help are "John Bull's Militant Daughters," by J. Nilsen Laurvik, a comprehensive account of suffrage activity in England; "The Liar" (short story,) by Mary Heaton Vorse, dealing with a tiny girl who makes life interesting for her family; "Sergeant Dicks," by Lloyd Osbourne; "The Diary of a Beauty," by Molly Elliot Seawell, and "A Day With Father," by Francis E. Leupp. One of the truly humorous writers in Ellis O. Jones, and he has benefited his reputation with "Mrs. Pipp's Waterloo," a one-act play with a suffrage theme. As is to be expected in an Easter number of a woman's magazine, hats are discussed and illustrated at length.

"Can the Panama Canal Be Destroyed from the Air" by Riley E. Scott, is a feature of the Sunset for this month. The answer is enough to give our military experts the jim-jams, for Mr. Riley not only thinks it can be, but has made lofty (literally speaking) observations to that effect from an aeroplane. Peter B. Kyne doesn't seem to improve with success as a popular short-story writer, for "The Great Aztec Wonder" is below par. Fine pictures show the Panama-Pacific Exposition buildings as they are at present; "The Pacific Coast and Dissolution," by Walter Willard, explains why this State will suffer if the Central Pacific and the Southern Pacific are "unscrambled." Other articles and fiction are included.

In Physical Culture, Horace Fletcher explains the art of drinking water for the ultimate good of the body; Bernarr MacFadden begins the story of his life; Elbert Hubbard tells some of the things he knows about "Choosing a Wife"; Leonard Keene Hirshberg, A.B., M.A., M.D., discusses "Baldness—Its Cause and Treatment" and, to use a Rooseveltian expression, knocks hair-tonics through the ropes. Orison Swett Marden tells of "The Marvel of Rest and Relaxation" and contends that the average person needs eight hours sleep. Other hygienic subjects are treated.

A deep subject is treated in a manner to interest the average reader in Harper's, by Sir Oliver Lodge, who writes on "What Is Gravity?" and explains the attraction of matter. "Shall We Standardize Our Diplomatic Service?" is a discussion of the proposition in dialogue by David Jayne Hill. The group of impressions—painting from scenes along the Thames—by F. Walter Taylor are striking. Ellsworth Huntington of the Department of Geography at Yale University explains "The Mystery of the Yucatan Ruins," in which climatic changes have played a large part. Several short stories, as well as other articles, are given a place.

LITERARY CHIT-CHAT.

Fancy a supposedly sane, sensible and up-to-date author making answer to the naive question, "What is the first step toward literary production?" by giving such an answer as this: "It is imperative, if you wish to write with any power or freshness at all, that you should utterly ruin your digestion!" And yet this is the reply credited to H. G. Wells, author of "The Passionate Friends." Of course Mr. Wells said it with a straight face, if he said it at all, and didn't even put his tongue in his cheek. But he watched out of the corner of his eye for uproarious laughter from his auditors, which of course, out of courtesy, was forthcoming, and after which he assured them all, still with a serious countenance, that he meant every word of it. One can imagine Max Nordau with a horrible attack of indigestion, when, after a number of dignified and subtly marvelous chapters in his "Degeneration" he breaks loose and whacks Wagner and Shakespeare, along with the pre-Raphaelite brotherhood of poets, all over the literary platform, finally shrieking that all, all genius is the sign of degeneration! We know Carlyle suffered from indigestion. All sharp, incisive writers have it in their systems. It used to be the fashion with poets—it was absolutely necessary. Fermenting food inside caused discomfort, and without discomfort how could the cry from the depths be gotten out of the system? It just couldn't, that is all! Could anything more disgusting than a healthy, well-fed poet be imagined—at least in decades past?

But this period, when it was the proper thing for a creative writer to fling his hands to the high heavens and cry out mournfully to deity, has vanished into the past, as has also indigestion for genius. It is out of style, for fashions change in these things as well as in all others. Mental and moral indigestion is likewise out of the running. Great geniuses are quite respectable in these days, and very contented in their respectability. Is it because genius is becoming more phlegmatic? Perish the thought! Perhaps it is partly because of a greater approximation of mental equality and a better understanding between the sexes. Think it out.

No—no, Mr. Wells, genius does not have indigestion and a weak heart these days. Genius studies hygiene and keeps its physical vehicle in as perfect condition as possible. It does not waste its energies in a debauchery of drink, food or melancholy. It hitches its steeds to the chariot of the sun. And so we have our national poetess innocent of stays, with the figure and complexion of a young girl, in her fullness of years. And there is the Jovian poet on Staten Island, who knows the value of fresh air, sunshine, exercise and simple food, and abides by this knowledge—and yet he wrote "Virgilia." And there is—but what is the use? This Coast is full of them. Poets do not have to sniff at decayed apples, as did Schiller, nor to become foul within before beautiful thoughts may be displaced.

We study our art, and take care of our digestion. If we have a surplus of energy we take it out in healthful adventure and hobbies. We travel, plunge into the wilderness, or go up in aeroplanes. And we turn all of these adventures to profit. John Kendrick Bangs's poetry may be less subtle than that of the more attenuated brotherhood, but the reading of it makes you feel as if you had taken a tonic.

Edgar Beecher Bronson couldn't have written "The Red-Blooded Reminiscences of a Ranchman" without red blood to back it up, and that meant a good digestion. Bronson was a journalist, aeronaut, ranchman, explorer and big game hunter. He commenced his adventures early. When he was night city editor of the New York Tribune, away back in '72, he had one adventure thrust upon him. There was an assignment for a twenty-six-hour balloon trip. Everybody clamored for it until the trip ticket arrived, when the eagerness disappeared. Bronson was abruptly singled out for the honor. Bronson, by the way, had charge of that colossal piece of newspaper work, the report of the Henry Ward Beecher trial. And then good digestion and red blood sent Bronson into the big West, where there was room to dissipate surplus energy to some purpose. He worked on the fortieth Parallel Geological Survey Report and then in Cheyenne, Wyo., went through the successive stages of tenderfoot, cowboy and ranch owner. And that was just the beginning. So much for the making of the present-day author. Indigestion forsooth!

Here is an author who has reversed the usual order of things by writing a novelization of his own drama. Joaquin Lait—popularly known as "Jack"—has put into book form his "Help Wanted," which was presented by Oliver Morosco at the Maxine Elliott Theater, New York, and the Cort Theater in Chicago. The novel will be published by the H. K. Fly Company of New York within a few weeks. We shall await the result with interest. Often a writer will make a good drama from his novel; but less frequently is a good novel the outcome of a drama—at least in point of construction.

"Crops" were evidently on the mind of Gerrard Harris, forecasting his "Joe the Book Farmer," in his very early youth. And it was equally plain that the utilitarian outweighed his esthetic instincts. His grandmother, when he was six, called his attention to a clump of beautiful bleeding hearts, explaining how the lovely flowers had come out of the homely bud, very like a potato. Now, it was not enough for Gerrard to be told. He must see for himself. As soon as he found himself alone he dug up the roots. Yes, they were very like a potato, and it was very wrong to let anything of that sort go to waste. So he took the roots in and commanded the cook to prepare them for his dinner. With the assistance of a hair brush, the small man's mistake was explained to him, and the lesson of plant growth, reproduction and increase impressed upon him. Fourth of July was approaching. He had a small brass cannon, somewhat dilapidated. He planted it and, watering the ground daily, watched for his crop. Grandmother would be so surprised and delighted. Alas! The "book farmer" had another lesson to learn.

MRS. MASSON,
the noted palmist of London, England, may be consulted at 322 S. SPRING ST., by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND READINGS, FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.

The earnest student and thinker will soon learn in his investigations along psychological lines that that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT information.

PALMISTRY HONESTLY PRACTICED WILL NOT tell you your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in every-day life.

Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health and domestic life, financial conditions and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill luck into wide paths of success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry, WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL.

MRS. MASON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.
HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED.

WANTED—
LISTEN TO TRUTH!
Many a woman recognizes in herself the ability to do better than she is doing, but how to get the opportunity to demonstrate that ability is a real problem. Recognizing time and energy as capital, there is no other business that will make the financial returns upon that capital that the real estate business will do. If you are ambitious, have better than average personality and appearance, and will do just as you are told, I will teach you the real estate business. You can make good money while learning and I will guide you on the road where other women are making from $5000 to $10,000 a year. I will be glad to talk with you any day from 8:30 to 5:30.

TIRES GUARANTEED FOR 5000 MILES—

We wish to call attention to tire buyers that we have the exclusive agency for the old, established Revere tire in Southern California. There are thousands of them in use right here and many people will use no other. These tires are all fresh stock, fully guaranteed up to 5000 miles. We have them in all styles, plain, chain and nobby, and in order to move them quickly we have made a big reduction in the price. A price that has never been made for tires of this standard and quality in this market before. A price almost as low as "seconds," or defective tires, are now being offered. An examination will convince you. Take advantage of these prices while they last. Here are a few of the popular ones.

28x3, plain tread	$8.75
32x3½, plain tread	$12.95
34x4 plain tread	$19.25
36x4½ plain tread	$27.50
32x4 chain tread	$26.30
36x4½ chain tread	$35.50
32x3½ nobby tread	$28.25
34x4 nobby tread	$31.75

POULTRY--POULTRY SUPPLIES—
For Sale, Exchange, Wanted.

FOR SALE—
Pioneer incubators have been sold to nearly every hatchery in this State since December, and what the big hatcheries use is what you should investigate before paying a cent for any incubator. We can give you a large list of users of this machine, take their word for their hatching ability. We claim and warrant the Pioneer Incubator to be the highest-class hot-water incubator on the American market, regardless of price. We claim they will hatch equally as well or better than any other incubator at any price. Try them, on this guarantee, and you be the judge. It makes no difference what kind of incubators you use, we will guarantee to sell you a better incubator and at a less price than any other dealer, anywhere. We manufacture and sell direct, don't buy any incubator from any agent and let them make 25 per cent. profit on your machine. Ask for free 32-page catalogue. See the machines, here, any day. My Word!

ENGLAND IS HAVING A BIG REVIVAL OF BOXING.

Sporting Experts on the Other Side Are Beginning to Admit that the American Methods and American Physiques Are Too Much for Old Britain—The King Is a Real Fight Fan.

BY THE RED HUZZAR.

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, March 27.—Boxing is once more a national pastime. During the last five years the contests between famous masters of the game have been watched by crowds as inclusive as those which attend the boat race or keep the festival of Derby Day; and, what is even more to the point, the number of more or less efficient boxers, professionals or amateurs, has vastly increased—certainly not less than fivefold, according to one who is well acquainted with the progress of the revival in all its aspects. Boxing is now as popular in both services as football; it is cultivated at the universities and the lic schools; and in London and the provisional towns, great and small, its advantages as an exercise for persons of scant leisure and as a training for the control of the temperament, as well as the temper, are generally acknowledged.

ROYAL INTEREST.

If any lingering doubt existed as to the right of this essentially English sport to the regard of all sorts and conditions of Englishmen, it would be removed by the presence of the King on Monday at the tournament of the Second Life Guards.

There is no record, so far as we know, of the presence of any King of England at the ringside on a previous occasion. George IV was a connoisseur of pugilism, and, versed in the fantastic argot of the old prize ring, with its strange excess of metaphors, some of which—such as "claret" for blood, and "mouse" for bruise—are still occasionally heard. But he ceased to attend prize fights while he was Regent, his distress at the sight of an unfortunate fatality at Brighton causing him to vow that he would never again be present in person. However, his keen interest in the doings of Tom Cribb and Tom Spring and other pets of "the fancy" was maintained to the end, and he would sit in a gorgeous dressing gown—almost as glorious as those worn by American champions of today when they go to their corners processionally in a cloud of seconds—and let his chocolate get cold as he listened to some great officer of state read a description of the latest duel with naked, pickled fists.

It is necessary to point out here that modern boxing is not in the least like the old perilous form of pugilism. Nobody who has seen a modern contest needs to be reminded of that fact. Unfortunately, the few surviving enemies of boxing have never visited the National Sporting Club or the Ring, and believe that the ancient descriptions are applicable to the swift and scientific game of today, which can be called the chess of athletics because of the mental concentration it requires.

NEGLECT OF INFIGHTING.

There is much more boxing—good, bad and indifferent—in England than in any other country. Boxing is a national game only in this country; elsewhere it is at most a national spectacle. When, however, it becomes a question of the art and science of boxing, we have to confess our inferiority to foreign nations. Many reasons have been suggested for this unhappy state of things. We have been told, for example, that the American athlete has an advantage in physique which is increased when it comes to games that require both strength and skill, by the training of baseball, in the opinion of its votaries a better form of general education for the athletic specialist than any of our ludi humaniores. There is probably a grain of truth in this contention. By the side of Jeffries, Johnson, Ruhlin, Willard, Palzer, and other mountainous American boxers of the past and present, the biggest men seen of late years in the English prize ring dwindle into insignificance. Indeed, in the last twenty years only one English boxer with all the requisite gifts has been seen in action, and he was a true-blue amateur who never really cared for the game, much preferring Rugby football or cricket!

In point of fact, the question of our inferiority was finally answered when the French boxers decided that the American style was superior to the English, and that infighting is as indispensable a part of the modern game as outfighting. The victories of Carpentier, Ledoux, Criqui and other French boxers are a proof that they were wise in deciding that a system of offense and defense based on the "straight left" is not sufficient nowadays. The straight left, of course, is an invaluable asset against a rushing opponent; it is always scoring points and at the same time breaking down the other man's stamina; and, since the point of the jaw is the most vulnerable spot in every boxer's physique, head fighting must remain at least half the game—perhaps rather more. But until English boxers learn the value of infighting, which the most skillful practitioner of the old-fashioned style cannot evade at all times, they will be beaten by the American or "Americanized" experts, who fight systematically in both planes, attacking the body and the head, either or both, as occasion offers.

A CHOICE OF METHODS.

To the ordinary spectator the subtleties of infighting, with their fascinating revelation of individuality, are meaningless; even to see them, when both men are on top of one another, requires a trained eye. The best way, perhaps, to help English boxers to acquire an art without which they will always be beaten by the American or French fighter in both planes is for those who watch boxing entertainments to take an intelligent interest in "mix-ups" at close quarters. They will soon learn that it is not the infighter but the outfighter who has been caught, who holds and leans on his opponent. The truth is that a knowledge of infighting is the only antidote to the clinching, which is a blot on English boxing.

Boxing.

CHOOSING FOES THROWS LIGHTWEIGHTS IN CHAOS.

BY DE WITT VAN COURT.

THE LIGHTWEIGHT boxers hold the boards first, last and all the time, and judging from their chatter and that of their friends, it will be many moons before their troubles are settled to the satisfaction of the boxing fans of this country.

Willie Ritchie holds the title and receives many challenges each month. He, like all past champions is out for the money, but like all the rest, except Ad Wolgast, likes to choose the company he keeps, when it comes to making a match.

The little Dutchman has them all beaten when it comes to fighting. He never asked who, or what the reputation of a fighter was just so long as he was in his class, and he got what he asked for.

I have had the pleasure, during the past month, to talk to several close friends of most of the good lightweight boxers in this country, and each has his choice, his fear and his say as to whom he would like and dislike to meet.

WHY DID RITCHIE RUN?

Jimmie Toman, formerly one of our league umpires, who is a close friend of Harry Foley, manager of Willie Ritchie, said a few days ago that he could never understand why Ritchie ran out on Freddie Welsh up in Vancouver last year.

Toman was umpiring up in that country during the Welsh-Ritchie mix-up, and is familiar with all the doings of the match. Jimmie credits Harry Foley, who was training Ritchie, with saying that "If Joe Rivers was a game fighter, he could lick any lightweight in the world." I saw the match between Ritchie and Rivers and fully agree with Harry's statement, regarding Rivers.

The whole situation seems to be this.

Ritchie does not want any of Freddie Welsh. Welsh said a few days ago to Jim Jeffries, "They can all say what they like about Ad Wolgast, but he is a tough one, and I do not want him just now. I am after Ritchie."

MURPHY'S CHANCE.

Ritchie remarked to Harry Monahan, a personal friend of his, "I boxed Leach Cross in New York and he gave me the touhgest fight I ever had. I am not afraid of Wolgast, as I do not believe he is as good as he used to be, and think he is going back, but Harlem Tommy Murphy will be easy for me."

Willie is to meet Murphy this coming Friday night up in San Francisco, and it remains to be seen just how good a prediction he is making. From all accounts Tommy is in grand shape and can easily make the required weight. Willie has a lot more trouble in making it than he and Foley will admit.

Then there remains Jack Britton, Jimmie Duffy and Charlie White, all of whom are to be considered in the reckoning in the lightweight championship.

Ritchie received an offer from Bob Vernon, who offered to back Welsh for a $25,000 side bet to meet Freddy in London. Now comes Hector McKenzie, a well-known sporting man (who's word is good,) who represents Charlie Cochran of London, that he will match Welsh and Ritchie at the Olympic in London on June 30 this year, and if Ritchie beats Murphy he can get $25,000 flat for his end and the picture rights.

SPLENDID OFFER.

Willie cannot claim that this is not an offer, as McKenzie is willing to post $5000 to show that the offer is on the square.

This is the largest sum offered any boxer since Bob Fitzsimmons and Jim Hall met in New Orleans years ago. Fitz never got what was promised him, but it is safe to bet that McKenzie will keep his word.

Ritchie is a fine champion in every way, but he should have some of Wolgast's gameness instilled into his system.

Welsh, of all the lightweights in the world, is most entitled to a match with Ritchie, and as England has never won a world's title in boxing it is up to the sports of this country to give Johnny Bull the chance he has been longing for for many years.

The sidestepping of this and that fighter by any champion is becoming sickening. If they are what they claim, they should be willing to meet anyone in their class and prove their worth.

Jack Dempsey once fought for the championship for a $300 purse. Three hundred dollars is sometimes taken in at the gate of a training camp on a Sunday, just as the price to watch some of these present-day, so-called champions train.

U.S.C. AND POMONA NAME DATE FOR FOOTBALL CLASH

THE good old times are with us again. Yesterday afternoon at the close of the conference track meet, Managers Hankey of Pomona and Bovard of U.S.C. got together and discussed plans for the football season next fall. Before they separated a tentative schedule was drawn up, which calls for a game of the good old American variety on the gridiron at Claremont, November 14 next.

Although the last contest on the tanbark between the two institutions was staged in the up-country town, if the regular series of games had been continued, the coming season would again bring the Trojans to Hun territory, and in view of this fact it was thought best to begin again where the rivals broke off relations three years ago.

The schedule as arranged, subject to the consent of Manager Lawson of Occidental, gives each of the "Big Three" a major game at home, Pomona coming to Occidental, and the latter playing U.S.C. at Bovard Field. This will insure two high-caliber games for the local lovers of the American brand of football, besides a possibility of a third contest between the Trojans and the Quakers, who have come to the front remarkably in the years that the university has been playing Rugby, till they can be considered as serious factors in the race for the championship.

The scheduling of the Pomona-U.S.C. battle recalls the last meeting of the pair on the tanbark. On that November day in 1910 was played what experts at the time as well as since, have agreed was the best exhibition of football ever staged in Southern California. After an hour of the evenest play imaginable, the game ended in a 9 to 9 tie, three place kicks by "Cannonball" Clary for Pomona, equaling Walter Hall's touchdown and a field goal from the toe of "Hal" Paulin of U.S.C.

Defeat the Bond Issues.

LOS ANGELES, April 11.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Past reports of aqueduct engineers show that at least seven units of power can be developed on the line of the aqueduct, each presumably equal to "Plant No. 1," now nearly completed. As water is now available at all these natural power sites, it is quite certain that the people will vote the necessary bonds to complete the seven power plants contemplated, or possible, as fast as same can be judiciously and economically built, provided no mistakes are made.

"Plant No. 1" will cost approximately $5,000,000, and the completed system, or seven plants, $35,000,000, but every dollar thus expended will be doubly productive of profits, because a large primary cost is eliminated in the cost of the aqueduct. The average primary cost or cost of necessary water head equals the cost of the power plant. If the proposed bond issue of $6,500,000 was to complete "Plant No. 1" and No. 2, there would be no doubt as to results, because the chief profit possible is from the wholesale product, and the profit from retailing the product through a distributing system that will cost more than the producing plant is doubtful, if even successful. Without auxiliary plants, it is liable to be expensive and unsatisfactory; if so, then further development of aqueduct power will be shelved for years.

The defeat of the bonds for this purpose was attributed to local lighting companies, but it is doubtful if their efforts did not make as many votes for the issue as were changed by them. I do not know the wishes of any representative of the lighting companies, but I do know that the people, though not engineers, have and always will use better business judgment than is credited to them.

It is unfortunate that the bond issue was not separated, but its defeat a second time may convince the lawmakers that the people do some thinking, and will bolt the useless expenditure of money, the defacing and obstructing of streets incident to a triplicate distributing system in our already wire-netted city.

The saw-mill oiler knows that the plant makes money only while the saw is in the log and the plainest voter knows that interest on about $30,000,000 expended goes on daily without a cent of revenue from aqueduct water or power, simply because officials were too much absorbed to anticipate future business necessities. Better let "Power Plant No 1" rust another year than by unsatisfactory distribution of its product defeat the complete development of the aqueduct's best source of revenue, its possible power.

ERNEST C. JOHNSON.

TOBACCO FOR HEALING.

Was Once Used for the Cure of Ulcers and Other Sores, as Well as for Allaying Wounds.

[New York Press:] Worshipers at the shine of "My Lady Nicotine"—and how many millions burn incense before her altar—are not all aware of the origin of the word nicotine, or of the correct account of the awakening to the value of tobacco on the continent of Europe. Most of us are satisfied with the statement that Sir Walter Raleigh introduced the "weed" into England, and suppose that it spread thence all over Europe simply for smoking purposes.

If we go back to an old Black Letter volume dating from the year 1577 we gain a clearer view of the subject and interesting light on the origin of the word nicotine as applied to the chief element in tobacco. According to this venerable authority, now more than 300 years old, Master John Nicot, counselor to the King, being ambassador for the King in Portugal in the years of our Lord 1559, 1560, 1561, went one day to see the prisons of the King of Portugal, and a gentleman being the keeper of the said prisons presented him a herb, as a strange plant brought from Florida.

This same Master Nicot, having caused the said herb to be set in his garden, where it grew and multiplied marvelously, was upon a time advised by one of his pages that a young man, some kin to that page, made a plaster of that herb, bruised, both the herb and the juice together, upon an ulcer, which he had upon his cheek near his nose, coming of a noli me tangere, which had taken root already at the base of the nose, and that he found himself much easier at once. Therefore, the said Master Nicot caused the sick young man to be brought before him, causing the said herb to be applied to the sore eight or ten days, until it was completely cured and healed. And he had it sent, while this cure was working, to a certain physician of the King of Portugal, the most famous in his time, to see the further working and effect of the said nicotiano. He then sent for the same young man at the end of the ten days and brought him before this physician that he might see how the herb had acted upon the sore, and he certified that the said noli me tangere was indeed utterly obliterated, and, indeed, it never returned afterward.

Some time after this one of the ambassador's cooks, having almost cut off his thumb with a big chopping knife, the steward of the house of this gentleman ran to the said nicotiano and dressed his thumb therewith five or six times, and it was finally thoroughly healed thereby. From that time on this herb was famous throughout all Lisbon, where the court of the King of Portugal was held at that time, and the virtue of this herb was announced far and wide, and the people called it "the ambassador's herb."

The London ambassador, seeing that such beneficent effects were produced by this herb, and having heard that the Lady Montigny had died at St. Germain of an ulcer on the breast, which had turned into a noli me tangere, for which no remedy was known at that time, and that the Countess of Ruffe had consulted all the famous physicians of that realm to help to heal her face, but that none of them had found any remedy, he thought it wise to communicate his good news to France, and, therefore, sent to King Francis II, and to the Queen Mother, telling them all about tobacco and how to use it, as well as how to apply it to this dread disease, as had been proved by experience.

In this way we have evidence that tobacco was considered the cure for ulcers and even cancerous growths, more than for smoking, and in this way the word nicotine is to be traced to this ambassador, John Nicot.

United States exports of automobiles have grown from $1,000,000 in 1902 to $35,000,000 in 1913.

Plainly Told.

MODERN WAY OF BANKING.

Address to Students by Sir Edward Holden

Makes Plain Rules of Exchange in Business

And How Imports and Exports Are Balanced.

[New York Journal of Commerce:] Sir Edward Holden, Bart., recently delivered an address to the students of the Birmingham Municipal School of Commerce on "The Theory and Practice of Banking," with special reference to international finance. Sir Edward said in part:

About six years ago I delivered a lecture to the Liverpool bankers, and I then showed in the simplest way what a bank really is. I made use of the illustration of an isosceles triangle. Those of you who are bankers know what is meant by the debit balances of your ledgers. Consider for a moment that the right side of this triangle represents those, and that the left side represents credit balances. So long as confidence exists a banker might increase his loans ad libitum, which means that the right side of the triangle might be elongated indefinitely. You know from your experience that when a banker grants a loan or an overdraft in this country, that loan or overdraft is operated on by the person to whom it is granted by means of checks. Those checks are used in making purchases, and are placed to the credit of the persons from whom the purchases are made. These checks, therefore, constitute a large proportion of the credit balances represented by the left side of the triangle. The credit balances thus created are again drawn upon by means of checks, so that the credit first created is exhausted by the checks drawn against it and new credit balances are created through the latter checks. This continues until the original loan is paid off by an equal amount of credit.

We have seen if the loans of banks be increased, the credits of banks are also increased. In other words, the loans create the credits, but in pursuing this argument we must remember to treat all banks collectively as one bank. As every bank, therefore, is engaged in creating loans, it is also engaged in creating credits, and this is true in every country. The instruments used in carrying out these operations are the check and the bill of exchange.

THE BILL OF EXCHANGE.

The bill of exchange is one of the most powerful instruments we have in common with other countries. I will try to explain how a foreign bill of exchange does its work. A merchant in India buys jute for shipment to this country, and places that jute on board ship. He receives from the master of the ship a document, which you all know is technically called a bill of lading. The merchant in India has made arrangements with his house in London, or some other house, on which he is empowered to draw bills for the value of the jute, plus the charges for conveying that jute to London. When he has drawn the bill of exchange he has two documents in his hands—first, the bill of exchange, and, secondly, the bill of lading, and, if he has insured the jute, he may also have the insurance policy. He then sells to a banker the bill of exchange, with the other documents I have mentioned attached, and receives from the banker in respect thereof rupees, with which he pays for the jute. When the jute arrives in London it is sold and the proceeds of the sale are used to pay the holder of the bill. Now, on the other hand, cloth, say, is shipped from Manchester to India, for which the Indian importer pays in rupees. Now, how does the Manchester merchant receive the proceeds of this cloth? Bills are drawn in sterling on the firms in India which import the cloth, and are remitted to India. When a bill is presented, it is paid in rupees at the exchange of the day. The exchange banker in India who has received the rupees converts them into sterling at the same rate, and the shipper in Manchester receives back in sterling the amount of the bill which he drew on India, less commissions, postages and stamps.

EXPORTS PAY FOR IMPORTS.

Let me now endeavor to explain how exports pay for imports, taking, as an example, wheat shipped from Canada to this country. The firm in Canada who purchases and ships the wheat on account of the buyer in England having received the bill of lading for the wheat, draws a bill of exchange on the buyer, which he sells. In technical terms, this is selling exchange, and the shipper of the wheat in Canada is the seller of exchange. In the same way there are sellers of exchange for all exports. There are many classes of buyers of exchange, but the most important are the importers. The sellers and buyers of exchange do not deal personally with each other, but through an intermediary called a broker. Brokers, therefore, sell exchange on account of exporters, and buy exchange on account of importers, but the brokers ultimately buy and sell through bankers in America or Canada. The bankers buying the export bills remit them for discount and credit to their agents in London. Against the credit balances thus created the bankers sell bills to importers, who use them to pay for the goods they purchase from abroad. You will thus see, when a bill is drawn against an export and sold to a banker, he uses the proceeds by drawing bills on London, which he sells to the importers. In this way the bills drawn against exports provide the means, through the banker, for paying for imports.

IMPORTS EXCEED EXPORTS.

The total imports of merchandise into Canada last year amounted to £130,000,000, and the total exports to £70,000,000. To the extent therefore of £70,000,000 her imports were paid for by her exports, leaving a balance of £60,000,000 to be paid in some other way. In addition to this import balance, Canada has to pay a large sum every year, amounting at the present time to about £15,000,000, in respect to interest on money borrowed. The total amount, therefore, to be paid otherwise than by means of exports, was £75,000,000. How is this done? By borrowing in London through the issue of stock, Canada creates credit balances there against which she sells exchange to importers. If she cannot continue to put out her loans, she cannot continue to import commodities to such an extent as at present, because she would not have sufficient exchange to pay for them. Consequently, our traders must watch these issues carefully. If they continue, all will go well. If they do not, her imports must go down; therefore, the exports to Canada of other countries, including our own, must also go down. The alternative would be to pay for her surplus imports in gold, but this would be manifestly impossible.

ISSUES ON THE LONDON MARKET.

When a loan is brought out on the London market it is first underwritten. When the public apply for these loans they draw their checks on the various banks to pay for the stock, and the balances at the banks are thereby diminished, while the aggregate of the amounts withdrawn from the banks becomes concentrated in one balance in the bank making the issue. Although the money is subscribed in London, it does not follow that the borrowing country actually spends the money here. Goods might be purchased in any part of the world and paid for by selling exchange against this aggregated balance in London. For example: Assume Canada issues a new loan for £500,000. Of this total £100,000 might be spent in Germany, the same amount each in the United States and France, and £200,000 in this country. To pay for the goods purchased, say, from Germany, checks would be drawn against the London credit and paid in by the German merchants to their bankers, who would remit them to their London agents for collection and credit. Against this credit the German bankers might remit checks to pay for goods exported to Germany by English merchants, who would receive credit for them in their banking accounts. In this way the money withdrawn to pay for the issue would ultimately return to the various banks from which it originally came.

It may be concluded from what I have said, although the foreign and colonial loans issued during the last three years in London have amounted to the enormous sum of about £500,000,000 sterling, that the actual credit created and circulating in our banks has only been increased in those cases where money has been borrowed from the banks for the purpose of taking up portions of these issues. In these cases, of course, the loans made by the bankers will have created credits; if, on the other hand, the issuing bank, by the clearance of the cheques sent to it to pay for the issue, accumulated a credit at the Bank of England, and withdrew from the banking department, Bank of England notes, taking such notes to the issue department and exchanging them for gold, which it shipped abroad, then there would be a cancellation of credits equal to the amount of gold so withdrawn. The amount of gold exported from this country during the last three years has been about £137,000,000 sterling, and, after providing for the requirements of India, the balance may have been mainly taken by means of exchange created by these issues. Thus, while, on the one hand, the country may have benefited from the increased trade arising from these issues, on the other hand, it has undoubtedly suffered by having to pay higher rates for money, causing large depreciations in securities and higher prices for commodities. We must, therefore, conclude that if loans continue to be issued in London the volume of our trade will continue, and if the issues be curtailed our trade also will be curtailed.

INFLOW AND OUTFLOW OF GOLD.

It will be interesting to you to examine the inflow and outflow of gold through the issue department of the Bank of England. This department is so distinct from the banking department that the former might be located in Birmingham and the latter in London. When bar gold is sent by any country to London after being assayed, there is always a market for it in the Bank of England. For every ounce of bar gold of a certain fineness paid into the issue department bank notes are issued to the owner of the gold at the rate of £3 17s 9d per ounce. The Bank of England is understood to have a rule that it will not give more than £2 17s 9d per ounce, and as almost the whole of the South African gold has recently been sold to foreigners at £3 17s 9¼d per ounce, the Bank of England has received very little, and has consequently been obliged to put up its rate to 5 per cent., and may even have to go to 6 per cent., in order to protect the gold which it has, and in the hope of attracting more from abroad.

In addition to watching the bank rate, we must also watch the market discount rate. As a rule, this rate fluctuates with the bank rate, but it also fluctuates irrespective of the bank rate. When the market rate is low, gold flows out of the country; when it is high, gold flows in from abroad. If, therefore, gold is flowing out, the Bank of England raises its rate and the market rate follows it, and by this means we not only check the outflow of gold, but gold is attracted to this country.

IRISH OUT FOR THE JOBS.

Redmond's Followers Are All Seeking High Offices in the Coming Parliament.

DUBLIN, Dec. 24.—This year the "Sinn Fein" party have started the formulation of a fresh policy, but this does not indicate that they have any fears of the realization of a home rule Parliament in 1914.

The chief plank in their platform hitherto has been an attitude of uncompromising contempt for Irish representation in the British Parliament. Some of John Redmond's present followers, including Stephen Gwynn, Richard Hazleton, T. M. Kettle and Sir Thomas Esmonde, supported that attitude, but subsequently relented and all are now anticipating high office in the Irish Parliament.

In that Parliament the Sinn Feiners will support a forward policy, which will mean a free and unfettered Assembly subject to no jurisdiction from the imperial Parliament. It is in such an attitude that Redmond sees his greatest trouble, because he has again and again during the home rule debates and on public platforms throughout Great Britain given his assurances that the Irish people would be satisfied with an Assembly subject to imperial control.

He had not the wisdom of Parnell, who told Gladstone and the home rulers of that period that no man could place a limit on the demands of a nation. Everyone now agrees that Redmond's position as Irish Premier will not be a sinecure.

NEW GLIDDEN TOUR.

If the 1914 national reliability tour—better known as the Glidden tour—is awarded to the Chicago Automobile Club, which has made application for the event, the run will be a non-stop affair, from Chicago to Boston. Plans for a similar endurance run were made a year ago, but the run was not held because of the objections of manufacturers to the stock car rules then prevailing. Since then in the endurance run promoted last autumn by the Motor Dealers' Contest Association, of New York City, new rules were successfully tried out by special sanction from the American Automobile Association contest board.

Jimmy Powers of the Boston Athletic Association, who is one of the quartet of American athletic stars who showed their prowess in the Antipodes, will be given a big reception when he returns to Boston.

TRUST POLICY IS TEMPERED.

Democratic Ardor Said to Be Cooling Down.

Change in the Sherman Law May Not Be Radical.

Carrying Out Wilson's Idea May Be Passed On.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Anti-trust legislation supplementary to the Sherman act probably will not be undertaken at this session of Congress on the broad scale originally outlined by the administration.

This became known here tonight, Democratic Senate and House leaders agreeing that a practical solution of the vexatious problem to cope with evils of big business through legislation had been suggested.

The plan, it was asserted, is to pass one bill which would create an interstate trade commission with broad powers to investigate affairs of corporations, and with specific authorization to inquire into the relation to commerce of interlocking directorates, holding companies, stock watering, the issuance of railroad securities and price discriminations which tend to destroy competition. The commission would recommend to the next Congress what furthur trust-regulative legislation it deemed advisable for the welfare of the country.

Such a culmination of an anti-trust programme, originally suggested by President Wilson in a special message to Congress, has been working out in conferences between the President and Senate and House leaders for many weeks. The task tentatively outlined in bills proposed assumed proportions that precluded its accomplishment, leaders believed, in view of other legislative problems confronting Congress, and also because of the many conflicting opinions of men in the counsel of the dominant party as to just what should be done.

It was pointed out tonight that President Wilson, in his trust message, sought merely to suggest to Congress evils of big business which needed regulation. Since then he has had many conferences with members of the House and Senate committees which have, from time to time, submitted tentative trust regulation bills.

Some time ago a substitute committee of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee was appointed by direction of Senator Newlands, he chairman, to incorporate into one measure all features of the various bills contemplated. Since that committee has been at work many stumbling blocks have been encountered as to how far Congress should go, in enacting legislation supplementary to the Sherman act; just what would strengthen the provisions of that act and just what might weaken it.

After many conferences of Democratic and Republican Senators, who in turn have conferred with members of the House Interstate Commerce and Judiciary committees, a tentative amendment to the Senate bill to create an Interstate Trade Commission has been drawn, designed to take the place of proposed bills to prohibit or regulate interlocking directorates, holding companies, stock watering, to provide for government regulation of the issuance of railroad securities and to solve the problem of destructive price discrimination. It would provide that all these problems be referred to the proposed Interstate Trade Commission, directing an exhaustive study of the subject for the information of Congress.

THOMPSON LOOPS BIPLANE IN AIR.

De Lloyd Thompson looped four loops in the air over Ascot Park yesterday afternoon, handling his Day tractor aeroplane easily and surely in the heavy breeze. Only eight minutes were consumed in mounting 2000 feet, turning four loops and four headlong double spirals, and making his landing.

Thompson takes less chances than Beachey, starting from the south turn and landing in the center field, instead of attempting the stretch in front of the grandstand; but in other respects his qualifications as an airman seem equal to any ever shown here.

Barney Oldfield drove his late purchase, the Fiat "Cyclone," three miles in 2:41 1-5, later making a single mile in 50s., flat, with the Christie "Demon."

This afternoon these performances are to be repeated, with a race between biplane and automobile added, provided the wind is not too unfavorable.

Sugar Law Puts Us to Shame.

[Bay City (Mich.) National Farmer:] Beet sugar is produced in sixteen of the great nations of the world, in practically every country lying in the north temperate zone, and in every one of these countries protection is extended to this industry. Even free-trade Holland so adjusts her regulations governing the refining of sugar as to protect her home indurtry and make it unprofitable for refining the can sugar produced by Dutch capital in Java, a Dutch colonial possession, and they are forced to find a market for it elsewhere. Germany furnishes an object lesson to this country in the protection and encouragement given to her beet industry, whereby she produces 2,500,000 tons annually, that puts the Congress of the United States to shame.

If Feather Offends, Pluck It Off.

[St. Louis Globe Democrat:] Every man has an inalienable right to protect himself from the long feathers with which a modern hat is adorned, Judge Turnbaugh of Chicago, ruled when he discharged Ernest de St. Aubien, a real estate dealer, who had been arrested on the complaint of Miss Eva Julien.

"He sat behind me and my mother," Miss Julien said. "He got mad and pulled the feathers out of my hat. And all I had done was to call him an old fool."

De St. Aubien produced the feather from his pocket and said he had torn it from the hat when it struck him in the face every time she half turned her head.

"I protested and she called me an old fool and gave me a look of such disdain. Then she whirled around and the feather hit me in the eye so I gently removed it."

AGREES WITH MRS. TAFT, WOMEN SHOULD NOT VOTE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE THE TIMES, April 10.—On the heels of the news that Mrs. William H. Taft, wife of the former President, is an anti-suffragette, comes the announcement that the widow of the late J. P. Morgan is also an anti-suffragist.

Nothing much ever has been printed about Mrs. Frances L. Morgan because, as she once said, she abhors publicity. In 1911 when she returned from a trip to Europe she even refused to tell ship news reporters how long she had been abroad.

"I won't tell you," she said to the reporters, "because I abhor publicity. To a woman of refinement it is dreadful to find things in the newspapers about herself. I never give interviews and I cannot understand why men remain in the newspaper profession. They should get into a decent business."

Mrs. Morgan is enrolled in the New York State Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage.

Mrs. Morgan was the second wife of the great financier. Her maiden name was Frances Louise Tracy and the banker married her in 1865.

Ventura.

WANT TO KNOW WHAT HUNTINGTON WILL DO.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VENTURA, April 11.—Railroad Commissioner Edgerton heard today the application for a franchise of the Pacific Light and Power Corporation, a Huntington concern, which proposes to bring light and power into the county by way of the San Fernando Valley, the Simi and Camarillo. The territory mentioned is not served by any company and lies in the eastern section of the county. The present company furnishing the balance of the county with light and power, made no objection.

There was objection, however, from Venturans who were anxious to know just what the objects of the new concern were and how far its coming would affect the local company which is to be cited before the Railroad Commission to show why the price of light and power should not be reduced and why better service should not be furnished.

Samuel Haskins represented Huntington and E. R. Davis, also a Huntington man and general manager of the Pacific Light and Power Corporation, was a material and the only witness called. George Farrand and Don Bowker represented the interests of the Venturans.

The head of the corporation has already purchased the controlling interest of the Ventura County Power Company and it was largely to find out what he intended to do with this property that the Ventura lawyers were on hand.

Davis for Huntington explained that it was the intention to connect the two corporations as soon as possible and also to reduce the rates over the county and to make a service that would be entirely satisfactory. The showing made by the witness was such that the Venturans were highly pleased at the outlook for the future.

Commissioner Edgerton took the application for franchise under advisement.

AUTO SHOW AT LONG BEACH REAL SUCCESS.

LONG BEACH, April 11.—Remarkable interest was taken in the second annual auto show of the Long Beach dealers, held in the Forum and Majestic Hall, the first three days of the week. The show was far more successful than the first one given, although the initial showing of cars was a memorable occasion and in every way a success.

The show at the Forum was given under the auspices of the Long Beach Automobile Dealers' Association. An overflow show was given at the Majestic Pavilion, under the management of the Hudson Sales Company, F. S. Albertson, manager.

The dealers in the show were Long Beach Auto Company, Studebaker; J. S. Bolton, Paige; Mercury Cyclecar Company, Mercury and Cartercar; Roger N. Brown, Oakland; F. J. Setinke, Regal; Bob Evans, Reo; A. R. Smith, Buick; A. C. Walker, Detroit Electric; Baldwin Garage, Lozier; City Garage, Ford, Menominee and Federal trucks; H. Bigness, Metz; C. B. Bellows, Cadillac; T. A. Stephens, Kissel and Overland; Central Garage, Moreland trucks.

The cars shown in the Majestic show were the Hudson, Packard, Franklin, Chalmers, Rausch & Lang, Saxon and Packard trucks.

As a result of the show dealers display sheaves of checks from those who purchased autos after a discriminating review of the cars on display.

Some Fish!

REPORTS FROM VARIOUS STREAMS ARE IMPROVING.

BY FRED W. THATCHER,

Secretary of Southern California Trout Association.

AFTER ten days of fishing on the different streams in Southern California, the general reports point to the San Gabriel and its branches as being the best stream for the early season fishing. This is especially so above the forks; there has been excellent fishing in the vicinity of Camp Rincon, and on the East Fork near Camp Bonita and Follows Camps there seems to be no difficulty for good fishermen to obtain the limit. Although some of these are small, still a number of fish ranging up to thirteen inches have been caught.

Joseph Welch and party have just returned from an extended trip on the West Kork. He has fished the San Gabriel for many years and in his opinion early fishing on the San Gabriel was never better than this year. The wagon road up the canyon will not be open for some time, but it is possible to reach any point on the San Gabriel with saddle horses. There have been lots of steelhead taken from the canyon down for a number of miles.

The Ventura River along the first of the season was somewhat riled, but reports received from there this morning show that this has cleared up and it is now an easy matter to obtain the limit catch. This stream will undoubtedly provide the best fishing of any of our local streams from now on. This is largely due to the fact that the ocean run of steelhead ranging from nine to thirty-six inches can easily run up the river from the ocean. Fred Hadley has just returned from a trip to Matilija where he was successful in landing four Steelhead trout from eighteen to twenty-two inches.

The Bear Lake country is still inaccessible through the Santa Ana Canyon, but it is expected that this road will be passable by the latter part of the month. Harry Pritchard, the local game warden, started on a trip Friday for Big Bear Lake. He goes there in the interest of trout protection, as there are numbers of spawning fish that must be carried back into the lake on account of the receding waters in the streams, where fish go up to spawn. In order to reach there, it will be necessary for him to go by way of Hesperia or Victorville by machine and from there by wagon to the lake. Little Bear Lake can be reached by machine without hardships.

F. D. Owen and J. J. Baker returned from Camp Rincon on Friday. They report limits.

Karl Klokke, A. L. Schwartz and R. Froescher will spend a few days in the Bear Lake region.

C. S. Van Horn and A. Wright intend to motor to Ventura for a couple days' fishing.

Mr. Roberts of Roberts Camp on the Santa Anita reports good catches and that the water is clear. His camp is reached from Sierra Madre.

HORSE-RACE MEN DEFY GOVERNOR.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

TULSA (Okla.) April 11.—Ordered by Gov. Cruce to stop the races scheduled to begin here today under the auspices of the Tulsa Jockey Club, even if it was necessary to call out the militia, Adjutant-General of the Oklahoma National Guard arrived here this afternoon.

Officials of the jockey club deny the right of the Governor to interfere, asserting that pending the referendum petition on a State anti-betting bill, there is now no law in this State prohibiting betting on horse races. These officials said the meeting would be carried out as scheduled.

FEDERALS GAIN IN CONTRACT WAR.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

KANSAS CITY (Mo.) April 11.—That Earl Hamilton's contract with the St. Louis American League baseball club was invalid in the light of the decision given by Judge Sessions in Grand Rapids in the Killifer case, was the opinion accepted today by C. C. Madison, president of the local Federal League team. Hamilton last Thursday jumped from the St. Louis club to the Kansas City Federals.

"By invalidating the old style of contract, reserve clause and all," said Mr. Madison, Judge Sessions has invalidated Hamilton's old contract. Hamilton had signed on the old form and the St. Louis club cannot go into court with this paper which has once been declared void."

WOMAN AND THE LAW

Editorial.
By Dr. Anna Howard Shaw
President National American Woman Suffrage Association.

It has been said that Dr. Shaw has no respect for the law. She has also been accused of encouraging militancy. Her arguments, as she gives them in this editorial, show the fallacy of such charges, while the soundness of her message would appeal to even the Anti-Movement.

ASHES OF DESIRE

Story.
By James Hopper.

To be able to graphically and clearly suggest many things in a few lines was the gift of De Maupassant. This talent is evidenced in Mr. Hopper's story, which tells of a man who permitted a supreme moment in connection with a great love to pass out of his life. After twenty years the sight of the lady's name sends his mind back and the big question "IF" is the key-note of his reminiscences. It is an unusual story of heart throbs.

MY SKIRMISH WITH MADNESS

By Morgan Robertson.
Illustrated by Oscar Cesare.

Just one look at the drawings which illustrate this article is sufficient to create an eager desire to read it. And like the illustrations, Mr. Robertson's experiences can be gone over again and again. Each time a new and amusing situation is sure to present itself. There has never, perhaps, been an experience equal to Mr. Robertson's. Because of his belief that he was bordering on insanity he betook himself with his remnant of sanity to the Psychopathic Ward of the famous Bellevue Hospital. The details of his confinement are excruciatingly comical. At the same time there is an undercurrent of pathos for the miserable and hopeless cases and a glowing tribute to the keepers for their patience, strength and kindness.

THE PRINCE OF GRAUSTARK

Serial Story.
By George Barr McCutcheon.

The plot in this installment doesn't exactly thicken, but the amusement does. The strong, independent American red blood that flows through Prince Robin's blue veins has begun to assert itself, and it would seem as though there were fireworks ahead for our self-confident Millionaire Blithers.

This cartoon and the lines which it decorates are so good-naturedly humorous and clever that even the subject of it—Secretary Bryan—has a laugh in store for him.

VILLANELLE OF WASHINGTON SQUARE

By Walter Adolf Roberts.

Beautiful lines inspired by the green-robed Spring which came to Washington Square one April night.

The Cover Design will be appreciated by even those devoid of humor. It is grotesque in its treatment, but so cleverly done that it is a work of art. It is also timely, as it appears when the Easter fashions are given their first outing.

FACT AND COMMENT.

Much has been said about the constant transformation of the skyline of downtown Los Angeles. Year-to-year visitors are always amazed at the changes wrought even in short periods. Tourists returning after intervals of a few years can scarcely believe their eyes. Those who come back to modern Los Angeles after an absence of a decade or more experience difficulty in believing they are in the same place, much as they may have heard in the meantime about the progress of the city.

The change in the business district has been just as pronounced in the past months or more that have elapsed since business conditions generally over the country began to assume an aspect of dullness, as in the boom days of 1911, 1912 and 1913. Though project after project has been temporarily held up by the national money tightness, enough big enterprises have always been going ahead to keep up the high average.

Now that things are righting themselves in the financial world and it seems fair ahead, careful observers are justified in believing that Los Angeles is on the eve of a wave of development that will see the transforming in the heart of the city accelerated as never before.

—o—

Important Factors.

The importance of one contributing element in the downtown building situation cannot be overestimated. The owners of downtown property generally are awakening to the big, decisive fact that in a city which is forging ahead as is Los Angeles the only way to sustain, let alone to increase values in any given portion of the business district is to improve their sites as rapidly as possible with modern structures in keeping with the metropolitan trend of events. It has come to be a question of protecting investments while the protecting is good. The too-conservative owners have seen one pioneer after another seize upon a corner well out of the bounds of the older business zones and, by erecting an up-to-date and attractive building, draw tenants away from them.

The lesson thus learned is manifesting itself in the aggressive agitation upon the part of business men and property owners for the opening of Bunker Hill and the establishment of easy and convenient communication between north, northwest and west Los Angeles and the downtown thoroughfares. It is plainly realized and will continue to be shown by the increasing volume of high-class improvements within the confines of the present far-flung area given over to business purposes. Men of judgment and perception realize that the downtown district already covers an area entirely sufficient for the business interests of a city of twice the population boasted by Los Angeles and that the development to date has been too haphazard and scattering for the practical purposes of the trading and shopping public. The compact upbuilding of the whole of the present downtown area has, in fact, come to be regarded as absolutely expedient by the shrewd investors and builders, and as it is the practical consideration that always wins in the long run there is every reason for believing that this will be the next great step in the city's development.

It naturally follows that if the business district is to be confined even temporarily within reasonable limits it must be made accessible from all parts of the city. Hence it is that the various questions arising in connection with the boring of tunnels through the hills, the creation of crosstown boulevards and the solution of transit and traffic problems generally have ceased to be merely local or sectional considerations and have become of city-wide interest.

—o—

Rookeries Vanishing.

The most desirable result of this movement to completely modernize the present business district, will, from the point of view of the average citizen, be represented in the great improvement of the appearance of the downtown skyline itself. Wonderful as has been the change in the business section, even in the past three years, Los Angeles is unfortunate in that its large buildings are so widely scattered. Compressed into a space half the size of the present business area, downtown Los Angeles, with its splendid office blocks, lofts, hotels and banks, would challenge the attention of the world. As it is, the admiration and amazement of visitors is often qualified by their observance of the fact that the development is inclined to be ragged excepting on a few cross streets. Corners have been improved at the expense of inside lots and there are unsightly gaps and breaks in nearly every block.

The day of this kind of thing, thanks to the activity of the builders, will soon be past. Even by the time the San Francisco exposition crowds begin to come this way, there will be a wonderful difference. In Part VI of the present issue of The Times are pictured eight magnificent business improvements now well advanced in construction or nearing completion in the downtown area. Seven of these structures are in the older business district north of Seventh street. All are replacing buildings that, considered by the standards of modern Los Angeles, were antiquated rookeries. Five of the eight, it is interesting to note, are on inside lots.

Not all of the downtown improvements now being erected are pictured on the page in question. A dozen other fine structures only recently occupied by tenants might have been included in the group as showing the latest developments in the business district and the newest factors in the enhancement of the metropolitan effect of the downtown skyline. On Fifth and Seventh streets, especially, the owners have done themselves and the city credit in the last year.

At least six large business buildings are to be started on various sites within the next month or two. A score or more of additional projects are shaping and at least ten of these will soon be taking definite form. The desire to improve their neglected sites with modern buildings is strong in most owners and as loans become more available, the long list of high-class construction projects will keep on growing. The throngs who visit Los Angeles next year are bound to go away with the conviction that this is the liveliest city in point of building activity in the country.

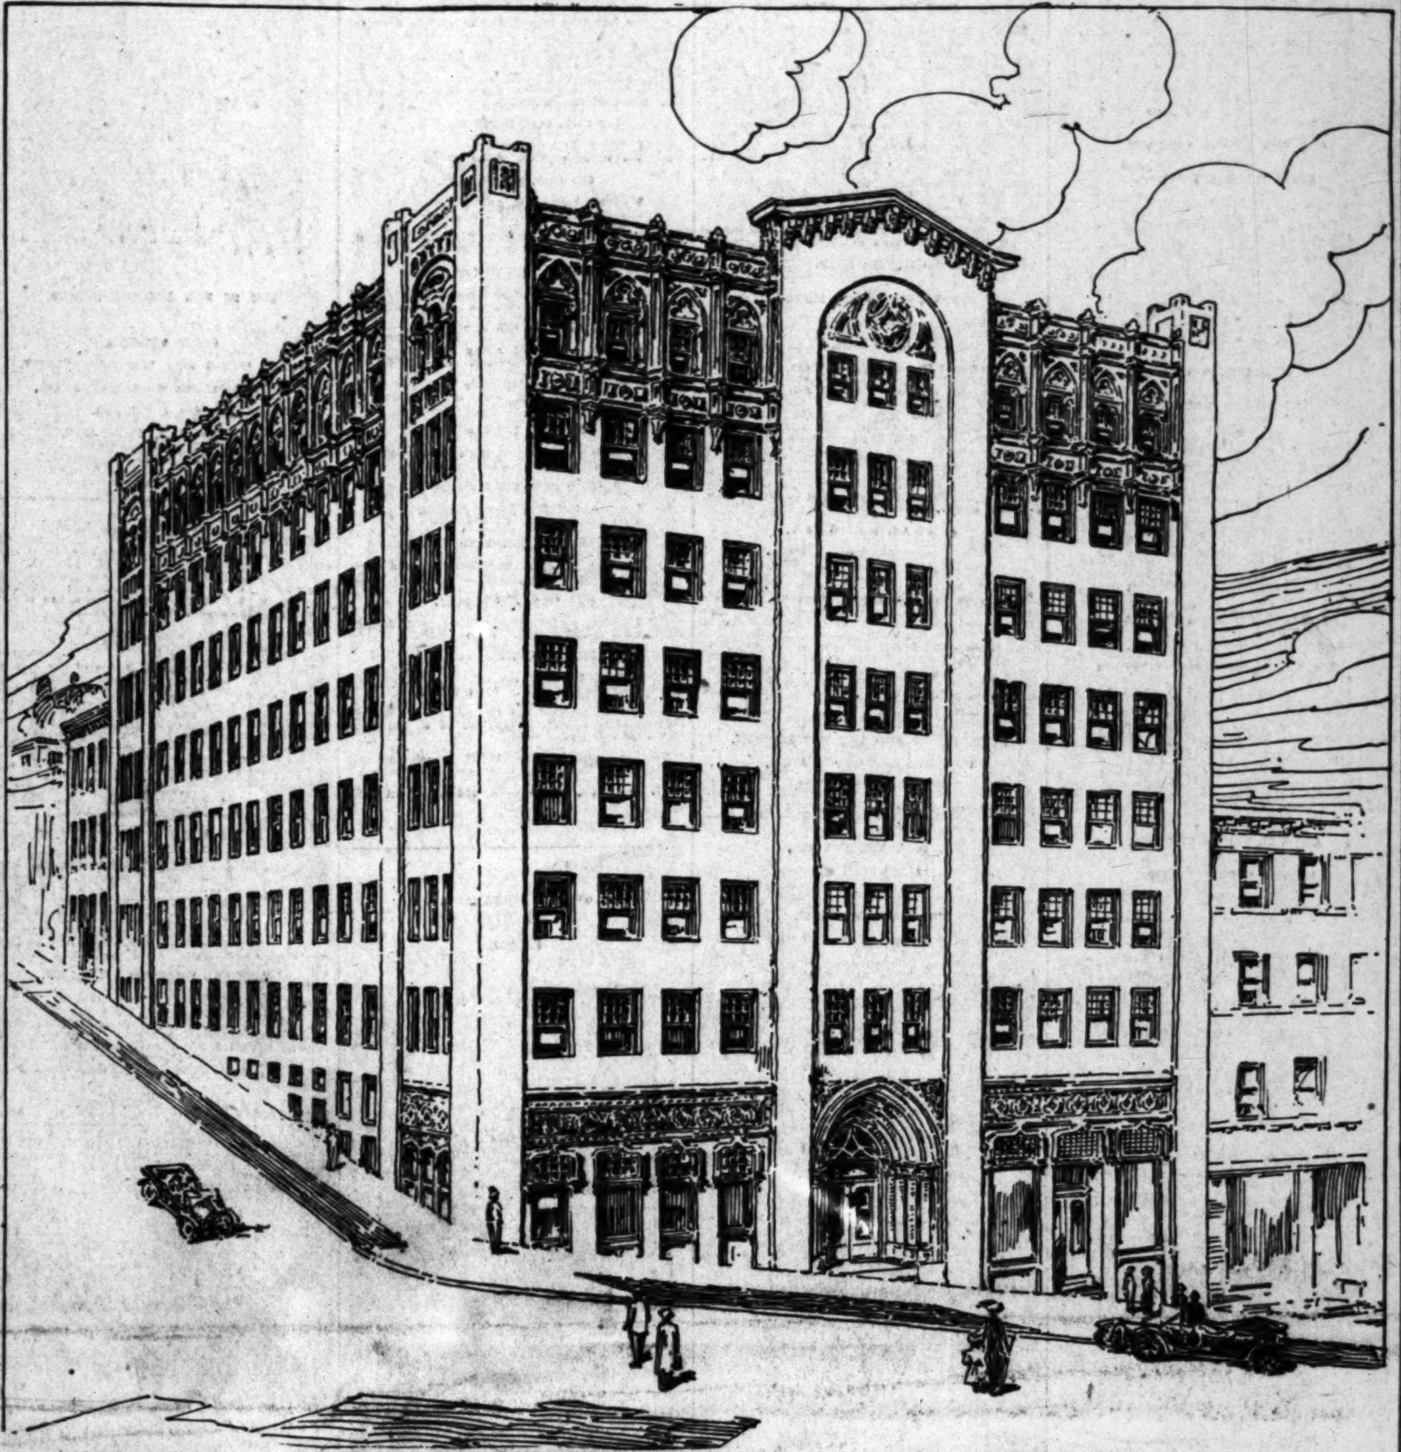
CITY PLANNING EXHIBIT.

Great Educational Display of American City Bureau to Be Opened to Public Tomorrow.

The city planning exhibit secured by the County Supervisors, the City Council, the Engineers' and Architects' Association and other civic and professional bodies, will be opened to the public tomorrow in the Bronson building on West Seventh street, near Grand avenue. The display, which is declared to be the most comprehensive of its kind ever assembled in this country, will be in charge of John E. Lathrop of New York, who is associated with the work of the American City Bureau.

The exhibition will last over a period of ten days, the doors being open day and night. No admission will be charged, as the purposes of the display are entirely educational. Lectures on subjects of importance in the field of city planning will be delivered daily by experts. The exhibit consists of an extensive collection of panels, placards, maps, charts, photographs and realistic models, all showing the various phases of scientific city development.

Attractive Fireproof Hostelry for Bunker Hill Site.



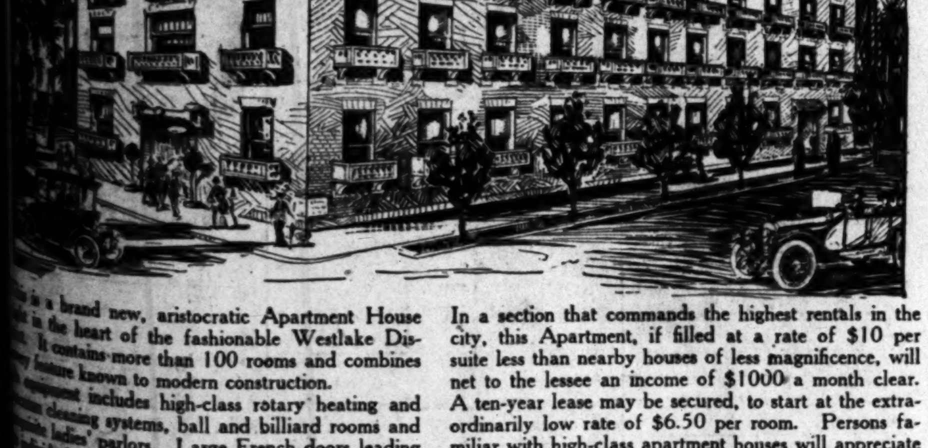
Perspective of Hotel Monnette, to be built at Fourth and Olive.

Plans for this modern eight-story structure were recently completed by Architect John Montgomery Cooper, who secured a permit for the building on Thursday. The Alta Planing Mill Company has the construction contract.

GOOD BEGINNING.

Building permits issued to date this month total 346 and represent new structures to cost in the aggregate $835,307. Of these buildings, 159 are to be houses of one, one and a half and two stories. Twelve permits have been granted for class C brick structures and two for class A fireproof improvements.

FOR LEASE
New Westlake Apartment



This is a brand new, aristocratic Apartment House right in the heart of the fashionable Westlake District. It contains more than 100 rooms and combines every feature known to modern construction. The equipment includes high-class rotary heating and vacuum cleaning systems, ball and billiard rooms and separate ladies' parlors. Large French doors leading to individual verandas give it distinctive and attractive lines.

In a section that commands the highest rentals in the city, this Apartment, if filled at a rate of $10 per suite less than nearby houses of less magnificence, will net to the lessee an income of $1000 a month clear. A ten-year lease may be secured, to start at the extraordinarily low rate of $6.50 per room. Persons familiar with high-class apartment houses will appreciate this exceptional lease. THREE-CORNERED DEAL.

Los Angeles and Azusa Properties Involved in Complicated Real Estate Transaction.

Frank W. Cain and Stewart & Tinklepaugh report a three-cornered exchange involving several Los Angeles properties and an acreage tract. In the deal Richard Garvey transferred to Frank H. Sanborn the southeast corner of Los Angeles and Market streets, 66x100 feet in size, improved with a two-story brick building and having a valuation of $55,000.

The next step was the transfer by Charles W. Stewart to Garvey of the northwest corner of Sixteenth and Toberman streets, 146x130 feet, improved with a two-story frame building and valued at a giv figure of $43,000. Sanborn in turn transferred to Stewart a ten-acre Valencia orange grove at Azusa, a lot on South Vermont avenue near Twenty-eighth street in this city and several small holdings in East Los Angeles. The differences throughout were adjusted by cash and mortgages.

WATER QUESTION SOLVED.

Backers of New Imperial Valley Townsite Declare Ample Supply for All Purposes Is Assured.

NILAND, April 11.—The organization of the Niland Water Company for the purpose of meeting the immediate necessity for water in the town of Niland and its vicinity has solved the last of the utility questions in this place. The company has been incorporated for $150,000 by Arthur E. Hull, John R. Woodbridge, D. B. Lyons, E. M. Coplen and Col. R. W. Richardson. The construction of immense reservoirs and settling tanks has been ordered rushed and in a brief time, it is expected, water will be supplied in quantity sufficient for a city of 10,000 residents, with a further supply for the suburban district around the town. Meantime "high-line" water has reached here and is flowing through the streets, and within a day or two will be ready for agricultural use.

Work has started on ten cement stores, the material for which is being brought here as quickly as possible. It is announced that between ten and twenty more will be under way within the next few weeks. These stores are being put up under an arrangement by which owners of business sites can take possession of the buildings completed on their own property and pay for them by monthly rental until the gross payments of rental have equalled the cost of the structure.

EXPECT TO CELEBRATE.

A great barbecue will be held on May 9 in Victor Valley by the Victor Valley Chamber of Commerce and the Victor Valley Club of Los Angeles. The occasion will mark the election of new officers of the former organization and the celebration of the progress of the district.

On Bunker Hill.

LARGE HOTEL FOR CLOSE-IN SITE.

SYNDICATE WILL BUILD AT FOURTH AND OLIVE.

Structure to Be of Modern Fireproof Construction—Will Contain More Than Two Hundred and Fifty Rooms—Permit Issued and Contract Let.

The intention of a local syndicate, represented by Buckman & Pope, to erect a modern eight-story hotel on one of the close-in Bunker Hill sites was signalized on Thursday by the issuance of a building permit for that improvement. Plans for the projected hostelry, which is to stand at the northeast corner of Fourth and Olive, were recently completed by Architect John Montgomery Cooper of Los Angeles and Long Beach, who had as an associate in the work John J. Cornwell of this city. The Alta Planing Mill Company has the contract and will, it is announced, begin construction operations within the next thirty days.

The hostelry will follow the Lombardic Gothic style and will be of reinforced concrete construction. The exterior of the first story will be ornamented with art stone, while moulded concrete and tile inserts will be used on the seventh and eighth stories. The structure will be absolutely fireproof.

The building will have a frontage of eighty-seven feet on Fourth street and of 120 feet on Olive. The contour of the site is irregular, the ground lying on the slope of the hill and both frontages having a steep rise. The ground overlooks a large part of the business district, and, although away from the noise of the downtown streets, is within easy walking distance of every part of the shopping section.

The first floor will contain in addition to two lobbies, a ladies' parlor, a billiard-room, a barber shop and a cafe having a street entrance. The main rooms will be finished in mahogany and will have ornamental plaster ceilings. The lobbies will have tile floors and marble borders. There will be 250 guestrooms, all finished in white enamel. The building will contain two elevaters, will be heated by steam and will possess a complete intercommunicating phone system.

The project will represent an investment of about $250,000. The improvement will be known as the Hotel Monnette, because of the fact that the site on which it is to stand has long been known as the "Monnette corner." The structure will be diagonally opposite the Fremont Hotel, one of the large Bunker Hill hostelries. Directly across Fourth street, on the southeast corner of Fourth and Olive, a hotel of six or more stories is to be started by William Garland within the next few months.

BUYS EIGHTEEN LOTS.

Local Capitalist Acquires Remaining Vacant Sites of Gramercy Park. Will Place Tract upon the Market.

W. B. Merwin & Co. report the sale for the Braly-Janss Company to Lee A. Phillips of eighteen lots of the original Gramercy Park tract, the consideration being given at $70,330. The property lies between Berkeley Square and West Adams street and along Gramercy place and West Twenty-fourth street.

The lots are all of large size and bear high-class residence restrictions. They adjoin the grounds of the beautiful Berkeley Square home of Mr. Phillips, whose intention it is to place them immediatel yupon the market.

GAIN IN PERMITS.

More Buildings Started in Country Last Month Than in March Year Ago—Loss in Valuation.

Permits were taken out in eighty-three principal cities in March, according to official reports to Construction News of Chicago, for the erection of 20,936 buildings, involving a total estimated cost of $65,870,993, as against 19,293 buildings and $67,122,506 cost for the corresponding month a year ago. This is an increase of 1643 buildings and a decrease of $1,251,513 or 2 per cent. in cost. The figures in detail are as follows:

	—1914—
Cities—	No. of bldgs.	Est. cost.

OLD FIRM TO MOVE.

The firm of Nicoll the Tailor, one of the oldest tailoring concerns in the Southwest, has completed arrangements for moving to a new and handsome store at No. 622 South Spring street between May 15 and June 1. The company is at present located on the ground floor of the H. W. Hellman block, having occupied this site since the completion of the building. The business of the company was founded in 1848, the Los Angeles branch opening a store in the old United States Hotel on the Plaza in 1886. The firm later moved to No. 242 South Spring street, remaining there until the jump to the present location.

AS WEDDING PRESENT.

The McCarthy Company reports the sale to Thomas L. Duque of the southwest corner of Kenmore and West Ninth, comprising two lots 50x135 feet each in size. The buyer will present the site to his daughter, Miss Evangeline Duque, who is shortly to be married to Irving Walker, a local attorney. Duque will also build the young couple an attractive home. The property is in the McCarthy Company's new West Ninth-street Heights tract.

BUNGALOW SNAP SOUTHWEST.

$3350.

Here is a practically new 6-room, down-to-date bungalow that would be a good buy at $4000. A perfect gem on a 50-foot lot to alley, situated in one of the choicest blocks southwest. Has a splendid garage; convenient to cars, and has improved grounds both front and rear that would be a credit to any $10,000 home. For very good reasons owner is forced to make this sacrifice, and only $1000 cash is required.

ASK THE BRIGGS COMPANY.

BIG CHALET BUNGALOW.

$6500.

Do you like that handsome, story-and-a-half bungalow type with two fine bedrooms upstairs? There isn't a prettier one in the city than this. It has eight rooms, including breakfast-room, den and four bedrooms, if you like. There are two baths, all hardwood floors, furnace pipes, garage and some hardwood finish besides. It's a dandy home and a dandy bargain, and located on a high, fine street in Wilshire.

ASK THE BRIGGS COMPANY.

AN 8-ROOM BARGAIN.

$7500.

Here is a new, 8-room, two-story home, located near Fifth street on a fine Wilshire street. It has all hardwood floors, two balconies, big bedrooms, large living-room, a breakfast-room, furnace and garage. We haven't been able to find another house to equal it, and we know it's the best there is. It's a bargain and built as a man's home should be built all through.

ASK THE BRIGGS COMPANY.

BERENDO STREET SACRIFICE.

$8000.

The greatest slashing of values we ever saw! A handsome 9-room home, with two baths, 5 bedrooms and every convenience, must be sold this week. Think of it! There are hardwood floors all through, furnace, automatic water heater, and big rooms throughout. It stands on a high east-facing lot, 60x155 feet in size, and close in. The property is worth every dollar of $10,000. But owner cannot wait a day for money. Don't let this opportunity slip. It's a snap. You know what a foreclosure means.

ASK THE BRIGGS COMPANY.

HERE'S A CLASSY HOME.

$11,000.

It is on Ardmore avenue, and on a high, east-facing lot. No chalet type house in the city has broader, handsomer lines, deeper porches, wider windows or sunnier rooms. There are 10 in all, a great big living-room, a cosy library, a handsome dining-room, and a beautiful lounging room and conservatory combined. There are two baths, 4 bedrooms, a maid's room downstairs, a big sleeping porch, mahogany and white enamel finish, a furnace, garage, etc. We guarantee you will be pleased with the property. It has that beauty and charm which only an artistic builder can give.

ASK THE BRIGGS COMPANY.

VERY LARGE VALUE HERE.

$18,500.

This handsome new residence is located one block from Wilshire blvd. It is of white cement plaster, semi-colonial in design, and built as few homes in the city are built today. The 12 rooms are all spacious, finished with the best hardwoods below stairs, and egg-shell enamel with mahogany doors above. There are 3 baths, shower, breakfast-room, sun balcony, furnace, automatic water heater, garage with two servants' rooms and bath—in fact, all the essentials of the large, well-fitted home for discriminating people. We want to impress upon you one other fact—this property is worth $5000 more than the price at which we offer it. We consider it the best bargain in its class offered today.

ASK THE BRIGGS COMPANY.

NORMANDIE HILL SHOW PLACE.

$27,000.

This magnificent, new, 12-room, white cement and plaster house, situated on one of the highest and most desirable corners just north of Wilshire Blvd., with an eastern exposure and a frontage of nearly 120 feet, is the equal, if not actually superior to homes that are supposedly of good value at $35,000 and $40,000. Finished in mahogany, quartered oak and hand decorations. Has 5 bed chambers, 2 tiled baths, one with shower. Maid's room and bath on first floor. There is a 2-story garage, containing separate laundry and servant's quarters with bath on second floor. Charmingly improved grounds. A substantial and dependable home at rock bottom price and on easy convenient terms. Arrange to see this in our machines.

FOR SALE—$12,500.
This house is $2000 under value; the best buy in the Wilshire district. Built on elevated ground, of tapestry brick and shakes. The artistic arrangement of beam projection, the harmonizing shades of the brick and cement porches, steps and driveway present a rich and unique appearance.

The living-room is finished in Juan Costa mahogany, beautifully decorated and opening at the right with three wide French doors. The mantel is of tile. The cozy den, finished in the same wood, has a large built-in desk and an artistic bookcase.

In the dining-room fumed oak is used in finishing. A light fixture of semi-indirect design and a unique built-in buffet add materially to the tasty appearance of this room.

A more beautiful breakfast-room could hardly be imagined. Redwood in the natural grain is used and the wall decoration is in handwork in the colors of this wood. A rustic idea is carried out in the design, lattice work with delicately beautiful vines and flowers winding and peeping through. Bright, cheery, artistic, original, are words that but faintly describe this room.

Ruud automatic heater and furnace in basement. The maid's room, having its own bath, is on the first floor. Price $12,500.

CONTRACTORS—
And Builders.

ARE YOU GOING TO BUILD?
My specialty is building apartments and flats. I can build you a double four-room flat, complete with the latest built-in effects, including cabinet kitchen, disappearing bed, buffet, tasty electric fixtures, water heater, white enamel kitchen and bedroom, and cement sidewalks, etc., for $1600 and up. Two-story, three-room, four-flat frame building from $3300 and up. Two-story four-room, four-flat frame building, from $3600 and up. If you have a clear lot I can negotiate a loan. I charge nothing for the plans and specifications. If you desire another contractor to erect the building I will sell my plans and specifications (four sets of each,) for $10 and up. I guarantee all my plans and specifications to pass all the building requirements. Call in and see me any time, any information you may want about building I will cheerfully give you free of charge. JAMES E. BOHANAN, Designer and Builder, 610 Delta Bldg., 426 S. Spring st. Phones: Bdway. 1792; Home F2100.

CHARLES M. MOFFET, MASTER BUILDER, is now located at 809-10 San Fernando Bldg., 4th and Main sts. Phone B'way 2042. Will draw practical plans for rentable buildings. Will build on percentage contract. Investigate my guaranteed cost percentage contract. Every detail receives my personal attention, which has caused my success in the past. No $10-a-week clerk supervises my work. Handling work on this basis I can save you over 10 per cent. on all buildings. You furnish the money; let me do the worrying. If you want an artistic and practical plan, if you are in doubt what to build, if your present plans don't work, if you can't rent your buildings, if you can't get the money to build, if you want a guaranteed cost estimate, if you want any information on advice about building—see one who knows. I am in touch with good tenants.

FOR SALE—
We Believe This to Be THE BEST BARGAIN
IN THE WILSHIRE DISTRICT
in a high-class home site.
100x150, facing east, on one of the highest points, probably the highest; close to Wilshire blvd. Magnificent outlook, which can never be obstructed, and will always be a delight to the occupants.
Building protection $6000. You will agree with us that this lot is worth $10,000, but the owner wants to realize cash at once. She has given us a price of $6000, which means a loss to her, although she bought some time ago, when values were much lower. There is a $5000 mortgage, 6 per cent., due on or before August, 1915, so $3000 cash will do.
If you don't want to build it will pay you to buy this property to resell.
Telephone us Monday.

FOR SALE—

ALFALFA LAND

WITHIN SIX MILES

LOS ANGELES CITY LIMITS.

Forty acres, San Fernando Valley, good alfalfa soil, underlaid with water, short lift; abundant quantity.

Will make very easy terms on this to anyone who will develop water and put into alfalfa. This is a sure money-maker and a small investment in plant and pump will put a man into shape where the price of the land can be taken out of the profits in easy installments. Will cut into two twenties, or help a man who wants twenty to find another man to help pay for a pump.

If you have the money to put in the pump and to plant the land in alfalfa, come in and see

We can give you a real customer for your crop, who will guarantee to pay you enough to take care of your monthly payments after the first six months, and pay you back the entire purchase price of your lot. Grasp the "Little Lander" idea. One of them made $700 from a fifth of an acre of cactus. Another customer of ours made $250 from five cactus plants. Investigate these lots at once. Let us show you at our expense. What others are doing you can do. You don't have to pay from $500 to $1000 for a lot either, the price is the lowest of any beach suburban property.

FOR SALE—

NEWPORT BEACH.

The most delightful residence beach on the coast, clean white sand, no undertow.

BUY NOW BEFORE WE ADVANCE TO SUMMER PRICES.

No other beach affords the variety of amusement, good boating, fishing and hunting on the still waters of the inner harbor, where you can safely sail a canoe, motor boat or a sailing yacht.

Orange county has ordered built an auto boulevard along the ocean front from the Los Angeles county line to Newport Beach. This will make one of the most delightful auto rides in the country.

THE GREAT CITIES OF THE WORLD ARE HARBOR CITIES.

Newport has a natural harbor and a natural breakwater. The required dredging to accommodate large vessels can be done at a comparatively small cost.

The United States government has made a survey of Newport harbor. Call at my office and see map of survey. Also plan for harbor improvements, wharves and jetties. The inner harbor has an immense area for ships, and tidewater terminals for all the transcontinental railroads.

Newport has splendid advantages for a commercial city. No better site on the coast for manufacturers. The Newport Glass Works is now in operation, making high-grade art and ornamental glassware. Plant cost $55,000. The three adjacent counties, Orange, Riverside and San Bernardino, are the richest on the coast, yielding millions of dollars worth of products for export.

During the past year the sale of lots at Newport Beach has been very heavy to people who appreciate the best. Many handsome seaside bungalows are planned for the coming season.

Good beach lots are getting scarce and prices will be advanced for the coming season.

Lots at Newport Beach are cheaper than at any other first-class beach on the coast.

Call at my office and arrange to go to Newport any day during the week.

DOS PALOS RANCHO

ALFALFA AND FRUIT LANDS

are the
CREAM OF THE SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY.

We control several sections of the finest lands for the growing of alfalfa, dairying, fruit trees, grapes, olives, nuts and vegetables that can be found in the State of California.

It is located in Fresno county, about 55 miles west and a little north of the city of Fresno, being but three miles south of the station of Dos Palos on the Southern Pacific railroad, and connected by excellent roads, giving good transportation, freight, passenger and express facilities.

The soil of this tract is ideal in texture, being easily worked at practically any season of the year. It is a rich, deep, productive silt about 45 feet in depth and of great fertility, as evidenced by the native growth, and further proved by the crops we are raising there, and the splendid growth of our planted fruit trees.

There is absolutely NO ALKALI, hardpan or adobe on this tract. It lies as level as a floor, with a fall of ten feet to the north and 6 feet to the south, making it ideal for irrigation. The cost of preparing for irrigation is thus nominal. The soil takes water easily, retains it a long time, and the water table is low enough to insure its never becoming water-logged or sour.

We have a banner stand of alfalfa, planted last April 2nd, and yielding 6 tons to date with another heavy cutting ready.

Fruit trees of all varieties planted about the same time last year have made a strong, healthy growth.

We have fully demonstrated the water supply, which is ample as to quantity and excellent as to quality, developed by wells and pumped by electricity.

Experts who have but recently examined our tract report it as one of the finest they have ever examined in California or elsewhere.

We will sell tracts in any size, with or without water development, at very low prices compared with real values.

Call at our office for full information and to see soil samples, or write for descriptive circulars and information.

This property will stand right up to every representation, and will bear the strictest investigation.

If you are looking for the VERY BEST at today's low prices, on liberal terms, do not fail to look into our offer on this property. We will consider offers for large acreage on a basis that will be satisfactory to you.

INVESTIGATE THIS WITHOUT FAIL.

IT WILL PAY YOU.

FOR SALE—

LARGE ACREAGE TRACTS. WE SPECIALIZE IN LARGE RANCHES.

$20 per acre—1260 acres, 40 acres in prunes, sold 45 tons last year, $6000. 75 acres good soil and plow land. Balance good pasture. About 15,000,000 ft. redwood and pine. Good terms.

$20 per acre—1000 acres. Splendid improvements, plenty of water for irrigation. All fenced. 80 acres in cultivation. 80 acres has been. Is in the Thermal belt. Several hundred acres is level land, rich alluvial soil.

$10 per acre—33,000 acres on R.R. and river, with water right for 20,000 acres, 8000 acres in alfalfa, fenced, very extensive improvements.

$6.50 per acre—30,000 acres, only four miles from rail and water transportation. 30,000 acres more of government land used for range. Has carried 10,000 head of sheep and 1000 head of cattle; also 2000 acres of patented land, with water rights, which is used as a summer range on account of the water controls a large additional territory. One of the very best ranges in the State, having living streams the entire year.

$15 per acre—12,000 acres, 1¼ miles from R.R. in Sacramento Valley. 1000 acres creek bottom land, about 5000 acres fair agricultural land, balance timber range. Irrigation: Very large rivers run through the land, from which 8000 acres can be irrigated. Improvements: 30 miles of fencing, with several sets of farming buildings. Power: High power extends across the tract. Climate: Unsurpassed. The tract is mostly surrounded by large fruit and alfalfa fields. Would make one of the best subdivisions in the State.

—SANTA CLARA VALLEY ORCHARDS—

$15,000—26½ acres, 4 miles from Santa Clara, 2 miles from Sunnyvale, in the very best part of the fruit section. Soil the best; plenty of water for irrigation. Solid prune orchard, full bearing, produces about $6000 per year. One of the very best orchards in Santa Clara county.

$56,500—56½ acres, 35 acres prunes, 10 acres walnuts, 9 acres in cots. Pumping plant, 60-h.p. motor. Splendid improvements. One of Santa Clara county's most productive orchards. Situated only about 3 miles from San Jose. Would exchange for good vacant land.

GOVERNMENT LAND—

ACT NOW—

NEARLY GONE—CAREY ACT LANDS

AT 50 CENTS AN ACRE

—in the famous U. S. Govt. Delta Project of Central Utah—land that is tested and proven—under $1,000,000 irrigation system (completed and paid for.)

If you have not used your Carey Act right—act at once—there is no time to lose! This is an opportunity that comes seldom—the opportunity to buy good, proven alfalfa land at 50c an acre—Old California ranchers who have bought and settled here state that they would not take $200 an acre for their land. State of Utah has limited price of water to $60 an acre—$7 per acre cash and 13 years' time to pay the balance. For the land you pay only 25c an acre down, the remaining 25c an acre in three years.

In a settled district with good schools and ready markets. Invigorating climate—good, pure water. Only five hours from Salt Lake City and twenty hours from Los Angeles. Irrigation water ready for delivery to every acre open to settlement. No speculators wanted—only those who are able and prepared to settle and establish themselves. The land should soon pay for itself. 15 tons of sugar beets to the acre have been raised here, as high as 50 bushels of wheat and 100 bushels of oats from land one year from the brush; $75 to $100 an acre netted from alfalfa seed, 260 bushels of potatoes to the acre the first year. Write or call at once for folder containing detailed information, testimonials, etc. Inquire about the special homeseekers' excursions leaving Los Angeles Wednesday and Saturday mornings at 9 o'clock. Special rates will be given those applying at our offices. We will be glad to give you testimonials from former California ranchers. Don't overlook this opportunity. Land passes from the Federal government to the State and from the State to the settler. Title is perfect. Don't delay. Your opportunity may be gone tomorrow.

SOMEWHERE IN LOS ANGELES THERE IS A man with $1500 who wants a home and who has got brains enough to know one when he sees it. To settle an estate, I offer for sale a 160-acre relinquishment on the Gila River, main line Southern Pacific Railroad, Arizona. 600 feet from railroad station, $2000 improvements and $500 worth of other junk, all for $1500. It must be sold this week, else it would sell for $3000. If you've got the brains and the money and the nerve, go look at it. I can also locate four men on quarter sections of open government river bottom land; this is the last of 40,000 acres that was thrown open for entry four weeks ago. Talk is cheap, but it takes money to do business. I will be here several days. If interested, come and see me personally. No letters answered under any consideration. MURRAY J. MORLEY, Secretary Southern Arizona Development Association, Westminster Hotel, Fourth and Main sts.

Here is Really A Great Buy. Whether for immediate improvement or to hold for the Big Increase In Value that is SURE, there is NOTHING in the City like it at the price. In a High-Grade Subdivision, but 12 minutes' ride from the business center, it is one of three (only) lots where the restrictions allow apartment or flats of the "chalet" type. The ordinary apartment or flats covering the lot not permitted owing to the high-class of homes surrounding. This type—one now being completed on lot adjoining—"fits" the surroundings, and will be a money-maker for the owner. Would rent immediately at good prices. The lot is high and sightly and fronts 62 feet on 100-foot paved boulevard. At the price of $2150 it is a great buy. Will make terms to suit the right purchaser. See Owner, 600 FERGUSON BLDG., 3rd and Hill, mornings. Phone Broadway 2902; afternoons, Wilshire 407.

FOR EXCHANGE—$12,500. ONE OF THE BEST ranches in Southern California, 175 acres, 85 tillable, 25 acres alfalfa, ten acres apples, 3 years old. Variety orchard of 75 full-bearing; water supply piped from mountains (where rights are secure,) into reservoir 300,000-gallon capacity reservoir. Water is conducter over entire alfalfa field and orchard in pipes under 600-foot pressure, and irrigation is by means of sprinkling system, unique and effective, obviating arduous labor, requiring but the turning of a valve to set two miles of irrigation at work. Two houses, barn, pig sty of concrete floors, beautiful shade trees, 20 swine, 3 cows, 3 horses, 100 chickens, wagons, mowers, rakes, hay press, and all equipment, much wood; 2565 elevation, near station, and 18 miles from city of 20,000, on State concrete road in Southern California. Alfalfa brought $1500 at place last year, and apples will yield an increasing income from now on. Present owner is sacrificing the fruits of his labor of 18 years because his children are now all in the city, and wants to join them. If you want a place where money can be made with a certainty, submit a clear bungalow to one-third, some money, and mortgage back, and become owner of one of the best places ever offered at the price. BUSINESS INVESTMENTS—

BEST OFFERINGS OF ROBERT MARSH & CO'S.
COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT.

We do not solicit the listings of enterprises that are already offered for sale through other brokers.

Our terms are only 30 days exclusive privilege, and our commission charge is 5 per cent. on sales.

WE HAVE CLIENTS WHO ARE IN THE MARKET FOR THE FOLLOWING:

GROCERY—Value $1000 to $2000. Rent not over $75.
GROCERY—Value $5000 to $7500.
HARDWARE—VALUE $10,000 to $15,000. Must be a good one.
LAUNDRY—With established trade, not to exceed $10,000.
MANUFACTURING plant of any staple commodity that is established and does not exceed price of $10,000 cash.
MERCANTILE business, either in Los Angeles or nearby small town; value to about $50,000.
MOVING-PICTURE theater of about 300 to 500 seats.

OFFERINGS OF ANY OF THE ABOVE MUST BE SUBJECT TO OUR INVESTIGATION AND APPROVAL BEFORE WE WILL SUBMIT TO OUR CLIENTS.

We have investigated and offer for sale, with our recommendation, the following:

CONFECTIONERY—Good corner location, very attractive proposition for $5000. Complete in every appointment.

FURNITURE store, located in town near Los Angeles, doing good business on installment plan; assets about $12,000, no debts, has mercantile rating for amount of capital.

GENERAL STORE in nearby town; business about $100,000 per year; has very best credit standing, discounts all purchases; is an incorporated company. The president and general manager, owning controlling interest, is figuring on moving away and offers his holdings at a small advance over book value. Requires about $15,000 investment.

AUTOMOBILE truck agency with one new [illegible] truck in stock as sample; orders booked for three 5-ton trucks from reputable business firms at price of $4500 each, sold on payments, with 25 per cent. profit. This proposition requires sufficient cash to handle these orders and form the basis to start off an auto truck business. Parties now holding agency are enthusiastic over the merits of this particular make of trucks and wish to keep an interest in the business, but need financial assistance.

LOS ANGELES INVESTMENT GOLD-NOTE HOLDERS AND STOCKHOLDERS—In last Sunday's issue of this paper I stated that I could use $75,000 worth of these securities. After very careful investigation on the part of Los Angeles Gold-Note Holders and stockholders, and after approval of attorneys, TWENTY-SEVEN blocks in large denominations of these securities were turned in to us this week. These people have not only been shown a way to get back all their losses, but to realize a good return on their money besides. We do not care to bother with holdings of less than $200. Will deal only with principals and not with brokers. Address H, box 161, TIMES OFFICE.

KING OF THE FLORAL WORLD.

Southwick C. Briggs, a Wealthy Business Man, Is Greatest Grower of Orchids and Collectors From All Over the United States Make Pilgrimages to His Greenhouses—$5000 for One Albino.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—When you read that a dinner was made beautiful with orchids you may know it cost the man of the house $300 and possibly $1000 to provide that single item in the entertainment given his guests.

A bride's bouquet, always paid for by the groom, would look rather scant if it did not contain two dozen orchids at, say $1.50 apiece. The sum total of expense, laid by custom on the young man, can be lessened, however, by supplying the bridesmaids with violets, lilies of the valley, and ferns. Even so he will realize that he is taking a wife.

Orchids are the aristocrats among flowers. They are also wonders in the growing world because they live on nothing but moisture and air. Such being their diet, through all the generations since their creation, it would be natural to think of them as fragile vines with thread-like tendrils and dainty foliage.

Instead, they are robust-looking members of the floral universe, often with roots as thick as a man's thumb and with evergreen leaves as brilliant and heavy as those of a rubber plant. Nor are they beggars, feeding on the trees to which they are attached, but earn their own living by breathing in all they need from the atmosphere.

A library of books has been written about orchids. Poets have glorified them in words. Rich men collect them as they would pottery or pictures. Hunters have lost their lives in searching for them in tropical forests. Great orchid shows are held in London, Paris, Brussels, Berlin, Boston and New York.

There are many kinds of orchids—thousands of them, indeed. Families flourish by themselves or are intermarried, it might be said, and clans or new tribes are thus established. Cross-breeding is one of the delights of orchid growing—it makes of nature a lottery with beautiful or astonishing prizes as a possibility. Experts keep studbooks, as they call them, in which they write down their experiments in hybridization.

FAMOUS GROWERS OF ORCHIDS.

Southwick C. Briggs is a famous man among orchid growers. Specialists from all over the country visit his green-houses. Twenty years ago he was developing 1,000,000 feet of land in a large city and managing enterprises in six different States. Dear money at the banks got on his mind and then on his nerves. One line of thought, he saw, might lead to a physical collapse.

So he turned to flowers. He would grow violets for his wife. All the Briggses and Southwicks had been bankers, lawyers and horticulturists. Solomon Southwick was the editor of the Register in Albany and the owner of the Plowboy, the first agricultural paper in the State of New York. Southwick C. Briggs grew up among gardens and greenhouses.

Violets, as a recreation, led to roses, and a $250 order at a local florist's started Mr. Briggs in the pastime of playing with orchids. Now he grows little else. He is known in North America, South America, and Europe as a buyer of rare plants. There are 15,000 orchids in his collection. Some of them were purchased in the East Indies and the Philippines. Hunters negotiate with him in person.

"Orchids," he said to me, "grow in the ground or on trees and rocks. The former are known as terrestial orchids. Shakespeare called them 'long purples.' They are to be found in the meadows of England. There are several varieties of earth orchids in the United States. They are pretty, but not especially interesting. Air plants, that is, orchids which grow on trees and rocks, are native to none but tropical countries. These are the rare and beautiful plants exhibited at shows and purchased by collectors and form what I might term the commerce carried all over the world in orchids.

"Persons unfamiliar with the subject think that aerial orchids are parasitical, that they fasten themselves to a tree and flourish on its strength. That is not so. They thrive just as well on the bare parts of rocks, thus proving that they depend entirely for nourishment on air and water. The roots, which are really pseudo-bulbs, spread out in a mass on the bark of a tree and drink in moisture through the ends.

SEEDS LOOK LIKE DUST.

"Air orchids are found on tall trees in the forests of tropical countries and on low trees. Some are found in river valleys and others at an elevation of 14,000 feet above the level of the sea. The limits of no group in the vegetable world, perhaps, are more closely defined than orchids. There is certainly no group, within its limits, which shows a wider range in the color, shape and odor of its blossoms; also, I will add, in the structure of its flowers and in its remarkable characteristics.

"Take the seed of an orchid, for example. The seedpod is ordinarily an inch and a half long and three-fourths of an inch wide. In that small inclosure, Darwin tells us, are to be found a quarter of a million seeds. Separately, they are almost invisible. You have seen particles of dust floating in a sunbeam centered on a little spot in a room. Well, orchid seeds are about the size of those tiny atoms of dust.

"The seed is blown from the plant onto trees and rocks. It absorbs moisture from the air and after a long process of germination grows to be a green ball the size of the head of a pin. By and by a minute leaf appears at the top, while from the bottom a little root comes forth to gather moisture from the atmosphere.

"You can see orchids growing at my greenhouses in pots hardly larger than a woman's thimble. And they grow a long time in one pot and another. Plant a seed and watch it daily and in from four to eight years you may gather a flower. The flower, perhaps, will be an albino; a departure from its type, and in that event the plant may bring almost any price you ask.

"Let us follow an orchid from its habitat in South America," Mr. Briggs went on to say. "Debuck, the Belgian hunter, who now lives in this country, has found it, we will suppose. He went up the Orinoco River in Venezuela, by steamship, changing boats several times as the water became shallow. Then, hundreds of miles from the seacoast he journeyed into the mountains, accompanied by Indian guides and tree climbers.

ORCHID HUNTING IN TROPICS.

"From his camp which was frequently moved, the Indians have gone into the forests for a mile or two every morning. The search began when they turned back toward the camp. Each tree was closely examined. When an orchid was seen, an Indian went up into the tree and, slipping a dull knife under the mass of roots, removed the plant from the bark.

"At the camp other Indians were making rough boxes from lumber sawed by hand in the forest. Returned, the hunters spread their orchids in the sun to dry. Were the orchids packed while damp they might rot or start to grow before reaching the markets of London, Boston, Philadelphia or New York.

"Week by week the hunt went on. Finally the packed boxes were brought out of the forest to the bank of the river. They were loaded on a raft and floated to the Atlantic Ocean, a tedious, hot and dangerous undertaking. Once Debuck, reaching the Orinoco after a hard day in the tropical sun, took a bath in the river, though the natives tried to stop him. The next morning he was ill of fever. Before he recovered his harvest of orchids, through the neglect of the Indians, had been ruined.

"On another occasion he heard of a Frenchman who had been deserted in the forests by his guides. Leaving his orchids on the bank of the river, Debuck turned back in search of the Frenchman. He saved a human life, it is true, but he lost $15,000 worth of property. Such were two of his many experiences.

A SORRY LOOKING TRAVELER.

"The orchid, whose travels we are following," Mr. Briggs continued, "reached New York after a long sea voyage. It was not a promising-looking plant when unpacked, being very dry at the roots, while its leaves were a yellowish green. It, with forty other orchids, was placed in a box and, let us say, in order to help along the story, that the box was shipped to my greenhouses. A person unfamiliar with the orchid business would have looked at it and said it was worthless.

"But it was put on wooden slats, roots down, and in the warm, moist air slowly began to revive. This process is called plumping. New roots appeared and breathed in the water contained in the moist air. It was regaining its vigor, you see, for a long, productive life under glass many thousands of miles from its wild home in the forest of the South.

"There are several ways of transplanting orchids. My own are either put in earthen pots, having large round holes in the sides, or in square wooden frames which look like toy log cabins. Occasionally I fasten one to the rough bark of a cork tree. Dried moss and small lumps of charcoal but nothing else, are placed in the pots and frames. The orchids, often a foot tall, are usually kept perpendicular with wire. So they grow, fed on water and fresh air, for many years.

"One must have three greenhouses to cultivate successfully the many different varieties of orchids. The temperature in my East India house ranges from 65 deg. to 75 deg.; in my warm intermediate house the range is from 58 deg. to 65 deg., and in my cool house, for orchids found at high elevations, from 50 deg. to 55 deg. Necessarily a man must look after the fires at night. Between times, candle in hand, he searches the pots for nocturnal bugs. A cockroach will bite holes in $20 worth of blooms in a few hours. He is not a desirable boarder on such terms and so we are on the watch for him all the time.

A BATTLE WITH INSECTS.

"Various kinds of scales and insects come out of the tropics with the plants and have to be trapped or killed by fumigation. A fly, about one-third the size of the ordinary house fly, infects the whole family of cattleya orchids. It is called isosoma orchidearum and is just as destructive as its name looks in print.

"Greater progress has been made during the last fort yyears in the cultivation of orchids than in any other branch of horticulture. Fast steamships and daring and intelligent hunters have supplied the markets of Europe and the United States with orchids once found only in the greenhouses of very rich men. Orchids that formerly sold for pounds in London are now bought for shillings. One dealer in Europe annually imports 200,000 plants. Some firms of florists in this country buy 12,000 plants a year simply to supply their trade with cut flowers. Commercial orchids are not difficult to cultivate if one knows their natural temperature and altitude and the amount of rainfall in the region where they are found.

"There are agents in different parts of the world from whom collectors and dealers can purchase any species they desire. Among the thousands upon thousands of orchids the ones which Americans see most frequently belong to the great cattleya family. They come into our markets, one variety after another, throughout the year.

"These orchids are found only in South America and were named for William Cattleya, one of the earliest amateur growers and collectors in England. Cattleyas are seen southward from near Mexico City to Brazil. Their blooms are large and unusually beautiful. The cattleya labiata, from the Organ Mountains of Brazil, blooms in October and November. It has rose-colored sepals and petals and a crimson lip. Occasionally in a box of these orchids one will play a trick on nature and produce a white flower. Such an orchid, because of its rarity, is highly prized by amateurs. At Christmas time we have the blooms of the cattleya trianae, which has a blush-colored background and a crimson-purple lip with an orange-purple throat.

Southwick C. Briggs,
The unrivaled collector of orchids.

ORCHIDS ALL THE YEAR.

"Flowers from the cattleya schroderae are for sale in this country during February. They are large and fragrant and pale rose or lilac and orange in color. The cattleya mossica comes in April and May. It is found principally in Venezuela. Its lip is crimson and purple, marked with deep yellow. The cattleya gigas is a summer bloomer in this latitude. Thus you see, there are orchids all the year for weddings, dinners and other social functions.

"The blooms of the cattleya family retail at from $1.50 to $2.50 apiece White ones, gold colored in the center, sell at from $3.50 to $5 each. Some men wear orchids as buttonhole bouquets. Joseph Chamberlain, the British statesman, always had an orchid on the lapel of his coat when he appeared in the House of Parliament. He has his own collection, it is true, but even at that the flowers must have cost him a good, big retail sum. It costs me 80 cents a year to maintain an average orchid plant. If the plant is old it may have 250 blooms. That is the outside limit. The average plant produces from four to eight flowers. Carnations nine inches apart represent an expense of 6 cents each at the opening of the season. Roses cost more; 12 cents at least. Orchids often stand the grower from $1.50 to $2 apiece at the start of the blooming period.

"I should say that an expert florist could make from 8 per cent. to 15 per cent. a year growing orchids. There are ups and downs in the business as there are in all other kinds of money-making efforts. Orchids with which I began my experiments twenty years ago are still alive and fruitful. The vitality of orchids, considering their sustenance, is marvelous and that is one advantage on their side as a commercial proposition. And the possibility of finding a rare plant gives to the pleasure of orchid growing the mild excitement of discovery and speculation.

A PLANT SOLD FOR $5000.

"An albino orchid, pure white, was sold in this country to an Englishman for $5000. He cut it in two and went home in one ship with half of it, while a man followed him on another ship with the remaining half. He didn't mean to risk the whole plant in a single vessel. The odontoglossum crispum, whose flowers are white, with red or chocolate spots on the lips and a yellow crest at the base, are worth a great deal of money. When the white ground is blotched with purple and deep red the plant producing the flower will sell for $1000, and perhaps for $5000.

"Nearly sixty years ago, Sir Hugh Low discovered a beautiful orchid in Borneo. He took it to England, where it went into the famous collection of J. Day. It did not bloom until 1867. When it did bloom it caused a sensation. The sepal was white, striped with crimson. The petals, six inches long, were pale yellow and dull crimson, while the lip was rose colored. Mr. Day named the orchid after Stone, his gardener. A few plants were successfully propagated and the finest of them brought $5000 each at auction.

"Once there was a lost orchid. Botanically, it was known as the cypripedium fairricanum, getting its name from Mr. Farrie of Liverpool. It was about eight inches high when in bloom, with small flowers, rose purple in bloom, with white background. The petals, pale green, with purple veins, were shaped like a man's mustache. There were a few plants in the collections of wealthy Englishmen, but no one knew where they came from. This was away back in 1857.

DOWN WENT THE PRICE TO $1.

"In 1905, the same plant was exhibited at the Calcutta Gardens and later a few plants reached England. The orchid had been rediscovered in a river valley of Tibet by C. S. [illegible]right, a British explorer. The first of these orchids sold for $1000 each. They can be bought now for $1. Supply and demand as a law of trade governs the price of orchids as it controls the price of every thing else.

"Many of the rarest, and, therefore, the highest-priced orchids would not be salable in florists' shops because they are not appreciated by the average flower buyer. The big, showy blooms are the ones which attract popular attention, though plain white ones are always in demand. The persons wanting to purchase them seldom realize, however, that they are limited in number and can only be obtained during certain seasons.

"I spoke of the highly prosperous family of cattleyas," Mr. Briggs went on to say. "Now, let me speak about the odontoglossums. They are the plants of romance and adventure. Hunters have lost their lives in searching for them. Collectors have spent fortunes for uncommon types. The blooms will last for ten days in water if put in a cool place at night. A single flower makes a beautiful boutonniere. A spike, full of blooms, ought to delight the eye of any woman, and [illegible] her pride, if worn across her bosom. Some of the spikes, however, would be too long for that purpose. I have seen them five feet in length. There are numerous varieties of this orchid and many hybrids.

"They grow along the Pacific Coast from Mexico to Peru. Strikingly beautiful odontoglossums are found in Colombia. The plants only thrive in regions ranging from 5000 feet to 9000 feet above sea level and in a temperature that varies from 90 degrees at noon to 40 degrees at night. The best specimens are taken from cinchona, walnut and oak trees. They are torn off by hunters, dried and they look like rubbish, and shipped all over the world.

HOW ORCHIDS ARE NAMED.

"Orchids, as I have shown, are named after men. If one keeps the fact in mind the names lose their terror, if not their grotesqueness. [illegible] Boxall, in 1887, brought the cypripedium out of Burmah. Robert [illegible] Schomburgh, a German, came to the United States, and worked as a [illegible] in Boston and Philadelphia. He was financially ruined in Richmond, when his tobacco factory burned [illegible]. Then, although he was not a surveyor, he went to South America and made maps. His reports caused the Geographical Society of London to [illegible] his explorations of New Guiana. He is the man who discovered the orchid known as the schomburgkia. He also took to England the water lily, afterward and still called the victoria regia.

"The cattleya skinnerii gets its name from George [illegible], a Scotch botanist, who was a merchant in Guatemala. The hybrids, especially, are commonly named for the man who originated them. Cross-breeding, by the way, began in England and is now carried on extensively in this country. Darwin wrote a book on what he called 'the various contrivances by which orchids are fertilized by insects.'

"Insect fertilization is an old story now. Man has taken the place of insects in orchid greenhouses. It works to a purpose. Insects, however, do the work of fertilization unconsciously and with better results. Yet horticulturists have produced some wonderfully beautiful flowers by cross-breeding and their experimentations are still going on.

"I will say to those, who as amateurs, are interested in orchid culture, that a fair collection of the common varieties may be obtained for about $1000. There are no [illegible] in the business of cultivating these strange and interesting plants. There are probably 2,000,000 orchids in commercial greenhouses contiguous to Boston, New York and Philadelphia, but prices of the cut flowers have come down.

"Orchid-growing might be an attractive and profitable business for persons who like to work with nature and who have patience and perseverance. There is money in orchids—to the grower, I mean—at [illegible] cents a bloom, but it is a night and day job, as I have said, and a never-ending battle with insects."

MAKE FRIENDS OF RATS.

Miners in the Michigan Copper Regions Consider Them Valuable Agents in Keeping Mines Sanitary.

[Detroit Tribune:] There is at least one region in the United States where rats are held in high regard. This is the copper mining district of Michigan. The regard entertained for the rodent does not, however, apply to the rats which dwell in and about the habitations of man. It is extended only to rats which never see the light of day, rats which make their homes hundreds and thousands of feet below the surface of the ground—rats which frequent the copper mines.

Rodents above ground are carriers of disease as well as costly preyers on the food and buildings of man. Rodents under ground are valuable aids to sanitation, preventives of disease; they indulge in no depredations for the reason they exist within rockbound walls inclosing nothing possible for animals such as they to destroy.

Rats are the scavengers of the mines. They keep the workings clear of refuse. They are protected by the men, are often fed from dinner pails and have become so accustomed to the miners that they frisk about among the workers wholly unafraid, secure in the apparent realization that, while elsewhere they are hunted and slain as enemies of mankind, underground they are treated as allies and are immune from harm.

With their very existence concerned, no living creatures suffered more from the strike of the Western Federation of Miners in the copper country than did the mine rodents. Not only was the food supply cut off in most instances, resulting in a heavy mortality from famine, but large numbers of rats were drowned when the pumps draining some of the shafts were put out of commission and workings filled with water. It is believed the survivors owe their continued existence to cannibalism.

The rodent population of the mines apparently comprises various branches of the rat family. There are white, brown and black rats, with combinations of colors; there are rats of various sizes and of somewhat varied shapes; some with long tails and some with short appendages. At some shafts food was especially provided during the period the workings were deserted by men, but in general the rodents were left to work out their own salvation. It will be a long time before the rats regain their normal numbers. These numbers are ever such that the mines are overrun, and nature apparently regulates, and cannibalism, no doubt, plays a part.

THE ARMY OF SMALL INVESTORS.

[Copyright, 1914, by C. M. Keys, New York.]

The president of the Pennsylvania Railroad recently made the public statement that on the books of his company there are the names of nearly 100,000 people who own stock of the Pennsylvania Railroad. He ventured an additional guess, presumably based on the number of registered bondholders, that there are more than 200,000 investors in the world who own bonds of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

This statement is very interesting for two reasons. The first reason is that it shows the largest number of stockholders that the Pennsylvania ever had. The second reason is that it furnishes, for the first time, a fair guess at the proportion of bondholders to stockholders in the case of one railroad. If it were possible to assume that there are two bondholders to every stockholder, it would be a new factor in reckoning the number of people interested in corporate enterprises. It is not, however, definite enough to be adopted as a common factor in making such calculations and any conclusions based upon it must necessarily be imperfect.

The fact that the Pennsylvania, our biggest railroad, now has something like 300,000 people interested in its securities, is in itself a very significant fact. It means that there are more people buying securities of this type than ever bought them before. The bonds of the Pennsylvania are, of course, considered very excellent securities and they do not yield very high returns to the investor. The stock of the Pennsylvania is considered by most critics to be a good stock and it does not yield nearly as big a return as many other well-known stocks. Both securities are considered to be standard of their class.

The wonder is where this new army of investors comes from. Ten years ago there were almost as many people in the United States as there are now, but there were a good many less than half as many people who owned the securities of this railroad. As a matter of fact, so far as the stocks are concerned, it seems that there are six or seven people who own stocks in corporations today to one ten or twelve years ago. A financial publication which has been carrying on an investigation in this matter recently published a table showing 226,000 stockholders in a group of the larger railway and industrial corporations in 1901 and approximately 1,500,000 people in the same corporations in 1913. The interesting question is where that 1,200,000 odd of people came from and why it is that they have bought stocks in recent years and did not buy them in former years.

Undoubtedly the principal part of the answer is that the growth of wealth in the country over the past twelve years has given power to the people to buy securities. In 1901 the country was hardly out of the throes of the big depression of 1893 to 1897. People who had made money and used it not for the piling up of investments, but for the purchase of necessities and luxuries and to replace comforts lost during the period of that depression. Since 1897, on the contrary, the country has been going ahead pretty steadily, the ordinary wants and desires of the people have been pretty well filled and the public has turned, particularly in the past few years, from the purchase of necessities and luxuries to the purchase of investments, putting their money to work for a fair return where they believed it would be safe and satisfactory.

For a long time the very little investor had not much temptation to go into good securities. He was, however, constantly tempted, during this period, when he was growing comparatively wealthy, to go into all sorts and conditions of gambling enterprises. The get-rich-quick game flourished almost without interruption up to 1910. The postoffice authorities had done something prior to that time, but they really became active in that year to crush out the most flagrant instances of financial schemes to rob the public. The newspapers, the magazines, the lecturers, and even the ministers, recognized at about that time that something ought to be done and began to warn the public strongly against this sort of finance. Nobody can calculate how many people who otherwise would have gone into reckless ventures of this sort have become stockholders, or even bondholders, of municipalities and corporations, but the number must be very considerable indeed.

It is astonishing in going over the list of stockholders of a corporation to discover how many hold one and two shares. These are, for the most part, very small investors who would otherwise have thrown their money away or spent it. According to the tables, the number of stockholders in the principal corporations practically doubled from 1901 to 1906, and doubled again from 1906 to 1911. In other words it took five years to double the list. From 1911 to 1913 the list increased from 864,000 to 1,500,000. In other words, in two years the list almost doubled again. This was the most rapid increase shown in any recent compilation. It will be observed that the period from 1911 to 1913 has not been a good period in the stock market. It has been a period of declining prices. The average high price of twenty of the best known railroad stocks in Wall street in 1911 was 123.86. The average high price of the same stocks at the close of 1913 was around 104, so that these stocks show a decline of about nineteen points in price. Similarly the average high price of a group of twelve industrial stocks in 1911 was 87.06, while at the end of 1913 it was 77, a decline of 10 points.

If these figures mean anything, they mean that the small investor has been buying stocks as they went down. There used to be a theory in Wall street that you could never get the public to come in and buy stocks except when the stocks were at very high prices. That was a perfectly good theory during the boom years when the public was speculating quite generally. It was a fact in the early part of the last decade that if you wanted to get the public to come and take stocks off your hands, all you had to do was to start a big speculation in the stock, run it up ten or fifteen points and leave it to the public to do the rest. The public would come in and buy stocks at 100 cents on the dollar which it would not look at, at all at 30 cents on the dollar.

The big growth of the army of investors, then, means two things: The first of them is that the public has more money to invest than it had ten or twelve years ago. The second thing is that the public is not speculating as much as it was ten or twelve years ago. Nowadays the man who has saved money does not want to gamble with it. He wants to put it where it will be safe and where it will yield a return to him. Therefore, instead of opening a margain account at some place and trading until he had lost his money, he buys some stock of this, that or the other railroad and joins the army of stockholders. That may be a very bad thing for Wall street as a business proposition, but it is not at all a bad thing for the general public.

AUSTRIA-HUNGARY SHOWS IT BY RUTHENIANS' TRIAL.

Four Educated Men Are Charged with Treason Abetted by the Czar's Government in Stirring Up the Disaffected in Galicia Against the Dual Monarchy.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

VIENNA, March 20.—The anxiety of the dual monarchy over its northeastern frontier and its lively suspicion of continued attempts by Russia to undermine Austrian influence among the already disaffected people of this district, are illustrated again by the trial of four Ruthenians on the charge of treason, which has begun at Lemberg. The defendants, all educated men, have already been in prison nearly two years. They are a journalist named Bendasiuk, a law student named Koldra, and two orthodox priests, Sandovitz and Hudyma. Two officers of the Austrian general staff are attending the trial, since the charges against three of the men include that of espionage in favor of Russia.

All the defendants are accused of having carried on an agitation from 1909 to 1912 in favor of the incorporation of Galicia with Russia. Generally they are charged with having endeavored to convince the Ruthenians that conditions in Russia are better than in Austria, that the orthodox (Greek) faith is the faith of their fathers, and that the Galician Ruthenians are rightfully a part of the Russian nation and owe only hatred to Austria.

As in the recent trial of some ninety Ruthenians at Marmaros Szgiest for treason, the activities of Count Bobrinsky, the Russian agitator, will play an important part. Bendasiuk particularly is charged with having been in close relations with Bobrinsky since the latter's visit to Galicia in 1909. Bendasiuk was Galician correspondent for the Novoe Vremya of St. Petersburg. It is asserted that he spread broadcast Russian books and pamphlets, that through his agency a number of teachers of the Russian language were appointed in Ruthenian educational institutions, and that he had funds at his disposal for subsidizing students. Koldra is charged with having carried on an agitation in favor of Russia and the Greek church by means of magic-lantern lectures in villages of Western Galicia. Hudyma, one of the priests, is accused of having glorified to the common people conditions in Russia, and Sandovitz, the other priest, is charged with having blasphemed the Roman Catholic religion in public.

TAKE VAN NUYS AGENCY.

The Western Improvement Company, of which Frank D. Haddock is president and general manager, and T. J. Lawrence sales manager, has taken over the selling interest of W. D. Whitsett in Van Nuys townsite and Van Nuys Acres, and will at once enter upon a vigorous campaign for the marketing of lots and acreage, and for the development of Van Nuys and its surrounding country. The beginning of this activity will be signalized by an opening-day celebration on Saturday, April 18, for which many interesting features have been planned, including free excursions to Van Nuys by auto and electric cars, a barbecue, musical concerts and addresses. Especial provisions have been made for showing all visitors the results of the phenomenal development work of the past three years in the San Fernando Valley. The Western Improvement Company has for some time been identified in an active way with San Pedro harbor property, and is still interested in that direction.

SAKURA-JIMA STILL RUMBLING

Further Activity Predicted by Volcanic Expert.

Island Which Sprung Up Made of Pumice Stone.

Mt. Unzen Near Nagasaki on Verge of an Eruption.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

TOKIO, March 15.—The Sakura-jima volcano, whose eruption in January caused great devastation, is likely to show still further activity according to Dr. Thomas A. Jaggar, professor of geology at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and director of the Hawaiian Volcano Observatory. Dr. Jaggar, who has just ascended Sakura-jima, made the following statement to the Associated Press concerning his observations:

"Owing to the closure of the eastern passage around the island, the average tide level in Kagoshima Bay has risen two feet. In the short space of 1000 years remarkable changes may take place in the topography of the gulf of Kagoshima. To preserve the symetry of its volcanic cone, Sakura-jima is likely to erupt once or twice on the northern side in the future and if the lava ejected were to equal the amount thrown out this year, it might easily cut off the northern part of the gulf, thus forming a lake. Then the water level would rise and finally this water would become fresh so that a large lagoon may possibly be formed and the present villages on the northern shores may in time be submerged just as the temples of Philas were covered by the Nile after the completion of the Assouan dam in Egypt.

"We climbed two-thirds of the way to the summit in an ash shower. Lava was still flowing, though less copiously, and the average height of the bed was 200 feet. A phenomenon difficult to explain was the presence of round pits four feet deep and ten feet wide on the western side in devastated areas. I am not willing to accept the Japanese hypothesis that they were caused by lightning bolts. They were probably due to the impact of falling stones or to the explosion of hot substance buried by their fall in the moist earth."

The new island which recently sprung up near the Bonin group off Japan has been visited by a party from the steamer Chefoo who describe it as a mass of lava covered with pumice stone and white ash. The Chefoo locates the island at latitude north 24 17 deg. and longitude east 141 29 deg. When the steamer approached, the island appeared pure white with blackish cliffs rising about 200 feet. For a radius of three miles the sea was filled with floating pumice. The land party found it exceedingly dangerous to row near the cliffs as they were constantly breaking away and falling into the sea to join the already great mass of pumice. Also, on account of the very soft nature of the surface no attempt was made to journey inland.

The main crater was located to the southwest, being a quarter of a mile wide. It emitted enormous clouds of black smoke, obscuring the sun. At night there was a red glow and occasional tongues of flames. On the eastern side a small crater which discharged poisonous fumes made an approach impossible. The water about was warm.

The captain of the Chefoo thinks the whole island will gradually cliff off until only the solid central mass of lava remains.

MT. UNZEN VOLCANO.

Prof. Frank A. Perret, the American volcanologist who recently arrived from Italy to study volcanic phenomena in Japan, received an urgent request upon arrival to examine the volcano on Mt. Unzen, near Nagasaki. The residents of the district had heard many rumblings and were in great fear that the mountain was about to erupt like Sakura-jima. Prof. Perret found "no cause for alarm," but the emission of hot gases indicated that a revival of volcanic activity in some part of the peninsula was always a possibility. He found the hot spring district in a normal condition, with little or no hydrochloric acid, the presence of which would indicate greater activity. Experiments with an electric microphone for hearing subterranean sounds showed normal conditions and less internal rumbling than at the well known "Solfatara" near Naples.

WALNUT PARK SALES.

HARBOR ITEMS.

The American-Hawaiian steamer Isthmian sailed tonight for San Francisco with balance of cargo, loaded at Salina Cruz. All Los Angeles cargo was discharged last night, but the steamer was held over one day and opened to visitors on account of the celebration today to dedicate the new municipal pier A and shed I on the Mormon Island channel in the inner harbor, where the steamers of the line will berth in the future every six days. The attendance from Los Angeles runs into the tens of thousands. Assistant Secretary of War Roosevelt and Congressman Knowlton were guests of honor and delivered addresses.

Lumber carriers arriving from the north today were the steamer Tallac from Puget Sound, with a cargo of poles for the Southern Pacific, the Multnomah from Portland with cargo for Charles R. McCormick & Co., and the steamer James S. Higgins from Fort Bragg with redwood. The Multnomah proceeded to San Diego with partial cargo. The Helene arrived from Redondo Beach with partial cargo, loaded at Gray's Harbor. Departures in ballast were the Bee for San Francisco to load freight for Puget Sound, the Edgar H. Vance for Astoria to reload for the Hammond Lumber Company, and the Santa Barbara for Willapa, via San Francisco, with passengers.

The steamers Yale and Queen proceeded to San Diego today with passengers and will call here tomorrow on the return trip to San Francisco. The Hanalei arrived from San Francisco and sailed this afternoon for return.

The steamer Eureka is due here Monday, taking the place of the steamer Santa Clara of the North Pacific line. The Santa Clara has been taken off the run for one trip to relieve the disabled steamer Kilburn of the San Francisco-Eureka run. The Eureka runs between San Francisco and Santa Barbara and will continue south to this port Monday.

GREEN BUGS IN OKLAHOMA.

MAKE WHEAT SPECUDATORS FEED UNEASY.

Report of Visitation by Insects Causes Advance in the Chicago Pit. Delay in Spring Crop Seeding Helps to Give Courage to the Bulls.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, April 11.—Uneasiness over green bugs in Oklahoma had considerable to do today with an advance in the price of wheat. One firm bought 2,000,000 bushels. Largely in consequence the market closed steady with a gain of ⅜c to ½@⅝c net. Corn finished ⅜@½c to ⅝c down, oats unchanged to ¼c lower, and provisions off a shade to 2½@5c.

Delay to the start of spring crop seeding, both in the United States and Canada, helped give courage to the wheat bulls.

Corn broke sharply under selling pressure from leading speculators.

A moderate bulge at the commencement of trading served only to render the weakness later more evident by contrast.

Oats were unsettled, but finally displayed most sympathy for the downturn in corn. The chief contending influence was the weather hindrance to planting.

[Seal] T. L. CHAPIN,

Notary Public in and for the County of Los Angeles, State of California.

A. L. Dennis, being duly sworn, deposes that he is and has been for twelve years Superintendent of Circulation of the Los Angeles Times; that the detailed statement of circulation for the month of March, 1914, is correct, and shows the circulation of The Times for each day of the month named.

A. L. DENNIS,

Superintendent of Circulation, The Times.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 1st day of April, 1914.

[Seal] T. L. CHAPIN,

Notary Public in and for the County of Los Angeles, State of California.

The Times is the only newspaper in Los Angeles that does not make a practice of permitting agents, newsboys and dealers to return unsold copies of its issue, nor does it misbrand or predate its editions, or inflate its circulation by printing more copies than are actually necessary to supply its patrons.

The Times' entire circulation is paid and net, and it is more genuine and superior in every respect to that of any other paper.

STEEL STOCKS IN DISFAVOR.

BIG SHRINKAGE IN UNFILLED ORDERS REPORTED.

Trading Is Limited Largely to Professional Operations and While Movement Is Steadily Downward the Average Loss Was Not Severe. Bond Market Is Quiet.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

NEW YORK, April 11.—Aggressive support for the stock market was lacking today and prices eased off steadily, only a small amount of business coming in over the holiday and the foreign markets were still closed. Trading was limited largely to professional operations and while the movement was steadily downward, the average loss was not severe. Pressure converged on the steel stocks, which were in disfavor on account of the large shrinkage of United States Steel's unfilled orders. Petroleum shares continued their decline, and the Rumely issues made a new low record at 7¼ for the common and 22 for the preferred. In the railroad list Canadian Pacific fell to 198, a new low mark since 1911. New Haven broke, on its February statement, showing another deficit to 66⅝ within a point of the lowest price at which it ever sold. Rock Island collaterals touched a new low mark at 33⅝. St. Paul, Lehigh, Coast-Line and Northern Pacific were sensitive to pressure. Otherwise the railroad list held up fairly well. The bank statement reflected the return to normal channels of funds paid out to meet April 1 interest and dividend requirements. Loans were cut down $10,000,000. Instead of a small cash gain, estimated at around $2,000,000, there was an increase in the actual cash figures of $[illegible],461,000. The result for the week went far toward restoring the surplus to the amount held last month, more than $8,000,000 being added. The mercantile agencies reported a better sentiment on account of the good crop outlook. Nevertheless, trade distribution was said to be disappointing, buying for future account cautious and general conditions irregular. In the bond market business was quiet and prices were steady. Total sales, par value, $1,540,000. Panama 2's declined ¼. United States 2's registered ⅛, the 2's coupon and Panama 3's coupon ¼ and United States 4's registered ¼ on call on the week. United States 3's coupon advanced ⅛.

Boston Copper Stocks.

[Furnished by Logan & Bryan, Members New York and Boston Stock Exchanges, Bradbury Building, Los Angeles.]

BOSTON, April 11.—The report on unfilled tonnage of steel was more unfavorable than expected today and the bears were continuously aggressive in disposing of stocks. There was only a fractional change in the coppers in the local market and there seems to be no real liquidation in sight. Close:

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET

The fact that apples are about off the market has created a very heavy demand for bananas and during the past week 24 cars have been received here, this totaling probably as large, if not larger than for any similar period. The price on the fruit has not declined on account of this heavy arrival, but has remained at 3½ to 4 cents, culls selling at less occasionally in order to move them. There are three companies shipping to Los Angeles now by the way of New Orleans and Galveston. The west coast of Mexico is not sending any fruit at all.

Raspberries and blackberries have been added to the fresh fruit list as regular daily arrivals during the week. They have been selling anywhere from 12 to 18 cents a basket and are of good quality for early stock. Strawberries are bringing an average of 5 cents on very good quality. Loquats are way down, selling as low as 3 cents.

Egg receipts were 591 cases. The demand for them was fair. A shipment of Chinese eggs was reported in from the north. Some of these are to be placed in storage. Eastern arrivals are beginning to show up at the rate of a car a day.

Butter receipts were 79,075 pounds. The demand for the commodity was only fair and the market closed steady. Cheese receipts were 7940 pounds. The call for cheese was mostly northern fresh. Eastern offerings were made at a lower figure.

Potato receipts were 1516 sacks. They were of the River variety with the exception of one car of Oregon spuds. Onions continue steady and sweet potatoes very firm. Reported receipts of the latter were 136 sacks.

LOS ANGELES STOCK EXCHANGE.

High-Priced Oil Issues Reveal Easier Tone—Feeling Improves in "Cheap" Stocks.

High-priced oil issues were under more or less pressure yesterday on the Stock Exchange, while the low-priced oils were firm to strong. In the immediate list Los Angeles Investment made a new low of 79½ cents, from which it reacted toward the close, however. Only one trade was made at the price mentioned. The tone at the close was steady. Union fell off to $73.75. Associated was easy. Twenty-five shares of Amalgamated were reported sold off board at $77. Ten shares of Traders' Oil went at $24. Maricopa Northern sold at 7½ cents and United Oil at 22 cents. Fifteen shares of Home Telephone stock went at $25.25. The market was not active.

NEW YORK, April 11.—The curb market today was quiet. Oil and mining stocks as a rule were unchanged and dull. Boston coppers opened nominally at Thursday's close to a shade lower. Trading was limited.

"Should Be the Favorite Californian Investment"

One of our old customers, in commenting upon his investments in seven per cent. Improvement Bonds in California cities, made the above statement. "Because," said he, "the Improvement Bond represents the cost of improvements that are elemental and necessary in cities and which are the foundation of urban values; it is a security that is easy to understand, and is susceptible of direct and immediate appraisement. The supply within its limits is constant and will be for years to come, making possible a steady investment and reinvestment of funds at a satisfactory rate of interest without the inconvenience of constantly seeking new channels and making new investigations. Its exemption from taxes of all kinds, including the income tax, insures a fixed and unimpaired income return. The equipment of firms like your own, permanently engaged in the business of buying and handling these securities, assures service to the investor and the elimination of all details connected with the collection of interest and principal. I can see no drawback to the Improvement Bond."

This statement made after an experience of five years of steady investment in Improvement Bonds is worthy of careful consideration. We have had ten years of uninterrupted experience in the handling of seven per cent. Improvement Bonds issued by Los Angeles and other California cities. We offer for sale only carefully selected issues which we have first purchased for our own account. We make collections for our customers and attend to all necessary details without charge. The Improvement Bond is adapted to the small investor as well as the large one. Bonds can be had in amounts from fifty dollars up. We would be glad to demonstrate values. We have bonds in stock at all times and can supply demands immediately.

Local Stock Market Activities

By JNO. O. KNIGHT.

Interest centered largely about Union Oil during the week. While no definite announcement has yet been made, it seems pretty well settled that negotiations between President Lyman Stewart, on the one hand, and Messrs. Andrew Weir and R. Tilden Smith, representing English interests on the other, are progressing quite to the satisfaction of all parties concerned. What agreements have actually been reached probably will not be made public until after the Union Oil Company's annual meeting next Thursday.

It seems pretty well established, however, that control of the company is about to pass into English hands. Indications are that this will be accomplished, not by taking over Union Provident, as originally seemed probable, but through the purchase of the $18,707,200 Union Oil's unissued treasury shares and such other amounts as may be necessary to make a majority of all outstanding stock. In the meantime, the market in this issue remains comparatively firm on a light volume of business. Weak holders seem to have been entirely eliminated and the average trader is disinclined to make commitments without more definite information than is yet to be had.

Western States Life Insurance, after dropping to $7.00 on heavy selling a week ago, has shown considerable strength the last few days, and is now quoted around $7.75 to $8.25.

The monthly dividend on Tom Reed Gold Mines was declared Friday at the rate of 4 per cent. Production for the month of March amounted to approximately $105,000. Stock is quoted at from $2.00 to $3.05.

Transfer of the assets of the California National Life Insurance Company to the International Life of St. Louis, has been held up by a suit brought against the former company by W. J. Hunsaker of Hunsaker & Britt, who charges mismanagement in the financing of the California National. In addition to the California National Life Insurance Company, J. K. Tennant and L. E. Blochman are made defendants.

The mines of
again loom large in the public eye. Already there is heavy trading in mining stocks, presaging a veritable boom in mining shares in 1914. Tonopah is producing a million dollars a month in bullion. The recent strike in Atlanta opens a new era for Goldfield. Rochester has passed all stages of doubt and is shipping 100 tons a day and building a railroad into the heart of the District. Gold Circle is to have one or two mills this year. Every district in the State is teeming with activity.

NEVADA MINING NEWS
which gives all the news of all the important camps, will keep you informed and will point out the good investments. It will be mailed to you regularly as issued ABSOLUTELY FREE upon request. Write for it today and ask us about any Nevada mine in which you are interested.

NEW WIRELESS ALMOST READY.

Poulsen Transatlantic Service Opens in June.

Company Will Charge Only Five Cents a Word.

Three Great European Rulers to Visit Denmark.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

COPENHAGEN, March 19.—Wireless trans-Atlantic service under the system developed by Dr. Valdemar Poulsen of this city will be open early in June. The station in Canada is ready for service and the station at Ballybunian, in Ireland, is nearing completion under the direction of C. F. Elwell, an American engineer. The Irish station will also be in communication with the big Poulsen station at Lyngby, in Denmark. The Canadian and Irish stations will maintain communication over a distance of 2000 miles. These stations expect to handle from 100 to 150 words a minute across the Atlantic and under stress the inventor declares that 300 words a minute is not beyond their capacity. In the fight for a share of the wireless traffic across the Atlantic the Poulsen system will reduce the price to 5 cents a word.

In America the Poulsen system is in use between San Francisco and Honolulu, and the American government is now building a big station at Colon, which will use this system. If the present traffic cannot be handled by the Irish and Canadian stations a new line will be opened to New York with relay stations in Denmark and Greenland.

Dr. Poulsen is now experimenting with the wireless telephone, and has obtained favorable results over a distance of 300 miles.

THREE RULERS' VISIT.

American visitors to Denmark next summer may have an opportunity while here of seeing three of the most distinguished rulers of Europe. King George of England and President Poincare of France are expected here in the summer to return the visits which the Danish royal family will pay to their respective countries in May, and a visit from Emperor William of Germany may also be expected in return for the trip which the Danish King and Queen made last year to Berlin. The German Emperor will take advantage of his usual holiday cruise on the Hohenzollern to make a call at Copenhagen.

During the royal visits Copenhagen will have a big French exhibition of art in the State Museum of Arts. This will cover the nineteenth century of French art, and both the French government and the principal private collectors have promised to contribute to the exhibit, which will be valued at from twelve to fifteen million dollars.

WIDOWS' RELIEF.

Miss Sophie Irene Loeb has lately been in Denmark studying local methods on behalf of the Commission for the Relief of Widowed Mothers in New York.

Miss Loeb made a close study of the Danish laws for the relief of widows and orphans and she is enthusiastic over the excellent results obtained here. She was particularly interested in the law recently passed providing State pensions for widows and their children. This law offers features quite new in social legislation, and it is likely to be copied by other countries.

STARTS SCHOOL TO TEACH LOVE.

RECENT AUSTRIAN EXPERIMENT TURNS OUT FAILURE.

But Idea Is Gaining Ground in Germany and Educators Have Suggested that Universities May Eventually Include a Course of Instruction in Amatory Art.

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

BERLIN, March 21.—Should love be taught? The idea is certainly gaining ground in Germany and in German newspapers the curious may continually find stories of plans to found schools, colleges, and even universities of love. Even the highly dignified Frankfurter Zeitung published the other day an advertisement headed: "Wollen Sie Lieben?"

"Do You Want to Love?" This ended the offer of a Dr. Franz Ruderer (in Prussia a doctor is a real doctor) "to teach personally or by a course of correspondence, on scientific principles, how to display and provoke (this is the dangerous word) love."

The latest professor of love is an Austrian, an unmarried gentleman, named Stiller, decorated with several university degrees, who decided to start an institution where love would be taught. Dr. Stiller's one defect was his celibacy. He feared that people would conclude (quite wrongly, of course,) that unmarried men know nothing of love, so he sought a married partner, whose wife would act as chaperon.

He found one in a gentleman named Leonard. Herr Leonard came into the business and brought 7000 Kronen capital, which is $1500. The school of love was actually opened. It was not frivolously called a school of love, but an "educational institution for persons of both sexes who would love, are loved, or would be loved." To this title, which reads like an exercise in the subjunctive mood, was added "G. m. b. H." which is the equivalent of "limited liability company." And so everything was in order. What is more, pupils came.

This Bruenn plan did not realize the founder's notions. The pupils, for reasons of privacy, wanted separate lessons, and the notion of having a big class where all should be taught in common fell through. The plan ended in litigation over Herr Leonard's contribution in cash.

Instructive facts transpired about the organization of this school of love. The school proposed, if things flourished, to have an archive of love. The archive was to contain all the useful things said about love from Plato to Paul Bourget; further, "a bibliography of fiction which shows love in a pure, true, impassioned light." It further proposed to deal with "love's artifices," which meant, it is feared, mere maneuvers.

The fate of the love school of Herr Stiller and Herr Leonard is as bad as the fate of the previous love university of Dr. Hassall, who could not raise the capital. But should these first failures discourage other men, and will anyone urge that they discredit generally the notion of teaching love? The pioneers of all notions failed. The first man to start a cookery school was a Frenchman named Leroux, and he died in a lunatic asylum. Later, people grew up to his idea; and some day they will grow up to the idea of teaching love. The Ars Amandi will be as much a part of the curriculum of girls as is the art of cooking. And perhaps of the curriculum of boys.

The question is not whether love ought to be taught, but can it be taught? Are there any obvious fundamental principles of loving on which teachers would agree as they agree about geography and arithmetic? Are there things which can be taught by system? Why not? The geisha is taught "to please." The geisha is not a model but "to please" is half the art of loving and being loved. Most girls have no knowledge of how to please the other sex. They would be half-ashamed of having such knowledge, and of consciously putting it to use. But should this be so?

There is a further side to the school of love problem. The school would not only teach the winning of love, but also the keeping of it. The disillusion with love of the average married couple is one cause why men, and sometimes women, consciously choose celibacy.

The teaching of love is not a frivolous, musical comedy question. Absurd as were the long curriculum and ponderous generalisations of Dr. Hassall, the first love school projector, one true thing appeared in his prospectus: "Millions of women are taught to sing, paint and play, though most have no talents for these things and will never exercise the art. Every woman needs to love. Why should they be left to find out the way without guidance?"

GLIMPSES OF SAN FRANCISCO.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 10.—The construction work for the third municipal car line started under favorable auspices. It is expected that within four months cars will be running out to the exposition grounds along Van Ness avenue from Market street. Mayor Rolph broke ground for the new undertaking and also made an encouraging speech explaining the possibilities of the civic project. Not long since the people voted $3,500,000 for the extensions of the city lines and it will not be long before the whole system is complete.

All doubt as to the intention of the directorate of the San Francisco-Oakland Terminal Railways to refinance the affairs of the corporation has been dispelled. The management has decided to add $15,000,000 in bonds to the present authorized debt of $20,000,000. Now it all depends on the State Railroad Commission as to the issuance of these securities. Those who seem to know say that permission will be readily granted.

Because of a slight misunderstanding between Tax Collector Bryant and the Supervisors, the former gentleman is on the warpath. He says that he cannot collect the taxes unless an appropriation for twenty additional clerks is given him. If he is not allowed the money he threatens to appeal to the people to aid him. The taxpayers are non-committal in the matter and are not likely to be very active in assisting their natural enemy.

A number of energetic citizens have formed a Tourists' Association. The object of the organization is to advertise the city and get plenty of visitors here for the exposition. In order to do this the members say that they need $25,000. Of this $7000 is to be raised by general subscription and the other $8000 is expected to come from the Supervisors.

It is now eight years this month since the big fire and earthquake. People have almost forgotten about it but the Press Club show next week will be in the nature of a remindor. The members promise to make it thrilling and already the advance sale of seats has been large.

John P. Young, managing editor of the Chronicle, made an interesting talk to the Commonwealth Club. He deplored the fact that the city had insisted on keeping within the dollar tax limit and because of this natural expansion had been retarded. He also regretted that the city had lost control of its water-front, though San Franciscans always regarded such control as one of their chief assets.

Great interest is being taken in the announcement by the exposition management of a motor-boat race from New York to San Francisco. The prize will be $10,000. The route will be through the Panama Canal and the finish will take place next October, at the time of the international motor-boat regatta.

The theatrical attraction of the week has been Evelyn Nesbit Thaw at the Cort. She has not much to say—in fact, says nothing at all—but she does considerable dancing and competent critics insist that she dances well. Crowded houses greet every performance and it is probable that she will leave here satisfied that we are people of discriminating taste.

Miss Elizabeth Worley Baillie, born in China of English parents, has been granted full naturalization papers by Federal Judge Dooling. The lady says: "I am something of a militant suffragette. I have followed the fight of the women in England and I think that they are justified in what they have done. If I were in England I should fight with them." It is a pity that this pluck cannot have a chance to display itself, for no one will dispute the lady's right to vote here.

Frank B. Wilson has filed a suit for divorce against his wife, Alice E. Wilson, manager of the Columbia Graduate Nurses. He alleges that she has been cruel to him and spent too much for dresses. He particularly objects to the fact that she spent $350 for shirtwaists. The lady's side of the case has not been presented.

CLIFFTON-BY-THE-SEA.

The opening of Cliffton-by-the-Sea last Wednesday was attended by a large number of excursionists and the Campbell-Bentley Company, which is handling the property, reports several sales to those attending the event. The crowd for the most part went to the shore subdivision over the Pacific Electric. Swimming races and aquatic sports, exhibition golf matches on the new Cliffton greens and a field meet enlivened the occasion. Addresses were delivered by Judge T. R. Hudson, a member of the Campbell-Bentley Company; Mayor Cavanaugh of Redondo Beach, Dr. A. P. Campbell, senior member of the Campbell-Bentley Company, and Harry Brolaski of Redondo Beach.

PAY INCOME TAX OVER IN LONDON.

Americans Making Returns at the Consulate.

Admiralty Keeps Up Mystery of New Submarines.

Scientists Say the Flea Is Scarlet Fever Carrier.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, March 24.—American citizens in London who come under the scope of the new income tax law are making their returns at the Consulate with cheerfulness and alacrity. The returns are numerous but do not make a great sum in aggregate. The incomes of the very wealthy Americans residing here are taxed at the sources, so that the returns of them are made on the other side. The heaviest income thus far reported at the Consulate is one of $50,000. The citizen who paid this declared that the tax was a reasonable charge for the privilege of being an American citizen.

This was the tone adopted by most of the makers of returns, and the staff of the Consulate, anticipating unwilling and protesting citizens, were agreeably surprised at their attitude.

A resident who paid without grumbling stated that the few protestants against the new tax are Americans who have taken root here, and who have clung to their American citizenship for sentimental or business reasons. Some of these have been on the point of becoming British subjects for some time and the imposition of the income tax may hasten their decision.

VIEWS OF "GLOOMY DEAN."

Dr. William Ralph Inge, dean of St. Paul's, whose sermons and lectures on things modern have won for him the sobriquet of "the gloomy dean," declares that Protestant asceticism is responsible for that singular product of our civilization known as the modern business man.

When one reflects that a man is constitutionally indolent, that his natural desires are easily satisfied, and that unremitting attention to money-making disqualifies its votary from enjoying the finer pleasures of life, it must be clear, he said, that nothing but a queer sort of religious self-mortification could induce many persons to choose the life which the successful business man has to lead.

When the money-maker was an honest merchant, subduing the earth and really creating wealth to the public advantage, his work might be an instrument of valuable moral discipline. But now that the financier had dethroned the merchant, now that wealth was appropriated rather than created, the connection between religious austerity and business was almost dissolved, and there was the unedifying spectacle, so common in America, of the unscrupulous speculator, who made his home in his office, while his wife squandered his ill-gotten millions in vulgar and senseless extravagance.

In the new submarines the Admiralty is building, and about which a great deal of secrecy is maintained, a departure has been made for the first time in this country from the Holland type. The S 1, now building at Greenock, is of the Laurenti type. Enormous precautions were taken to screen her from the view of unauthorized persons, but it is known she is built under license from an Italian company design which is very favorably regarded by the Admiralty. The chief feature of it is the provision of water-tight compartments which find no place in the design of previous British submarines, and of a detachable keel weighing twelve tons, which can be released by those on board should all reserve buoyancy be exhausted. The two other vessels of the same design are now on order and will be known as S 2 and S 3.

CRACK FLYER IN LONDON.

Lieut. T. D. Milling, crack flyer of the United States army, is in England studying the latest aviation methods here. He will report to the Secretary of War on his return, consequently he refuses to discuss his visit until its results are in the hands of his superior officer. Milling is spending every moment of his time here with the flyers. He is making a close study of the latest types of machines. He is one of the few flyers able to fly a monoplane or biplane with equal ease and this ability has given him an excellent chance to actually try all of the new models.

FLEA SUSPECTED.

Suspicion has fallen upon the flea as responsible for scarlet fever. The public health department of London has tried since 1909 to obtain a detailed record of the seasonal prevalence of fleas in London. Last year additional information was made available by the examination of elementary school children. The records show that the "curve" of flea prevalence is almost identical with that of scarlet fever epidemics. While no actual conclusions can be drawn, it is regarded as possibly possessing great significance.

WITH THE ARCHITECTS.

Many Hotels and Apartment Houses Now Being Planned in This City. Several Contracts Awarded.

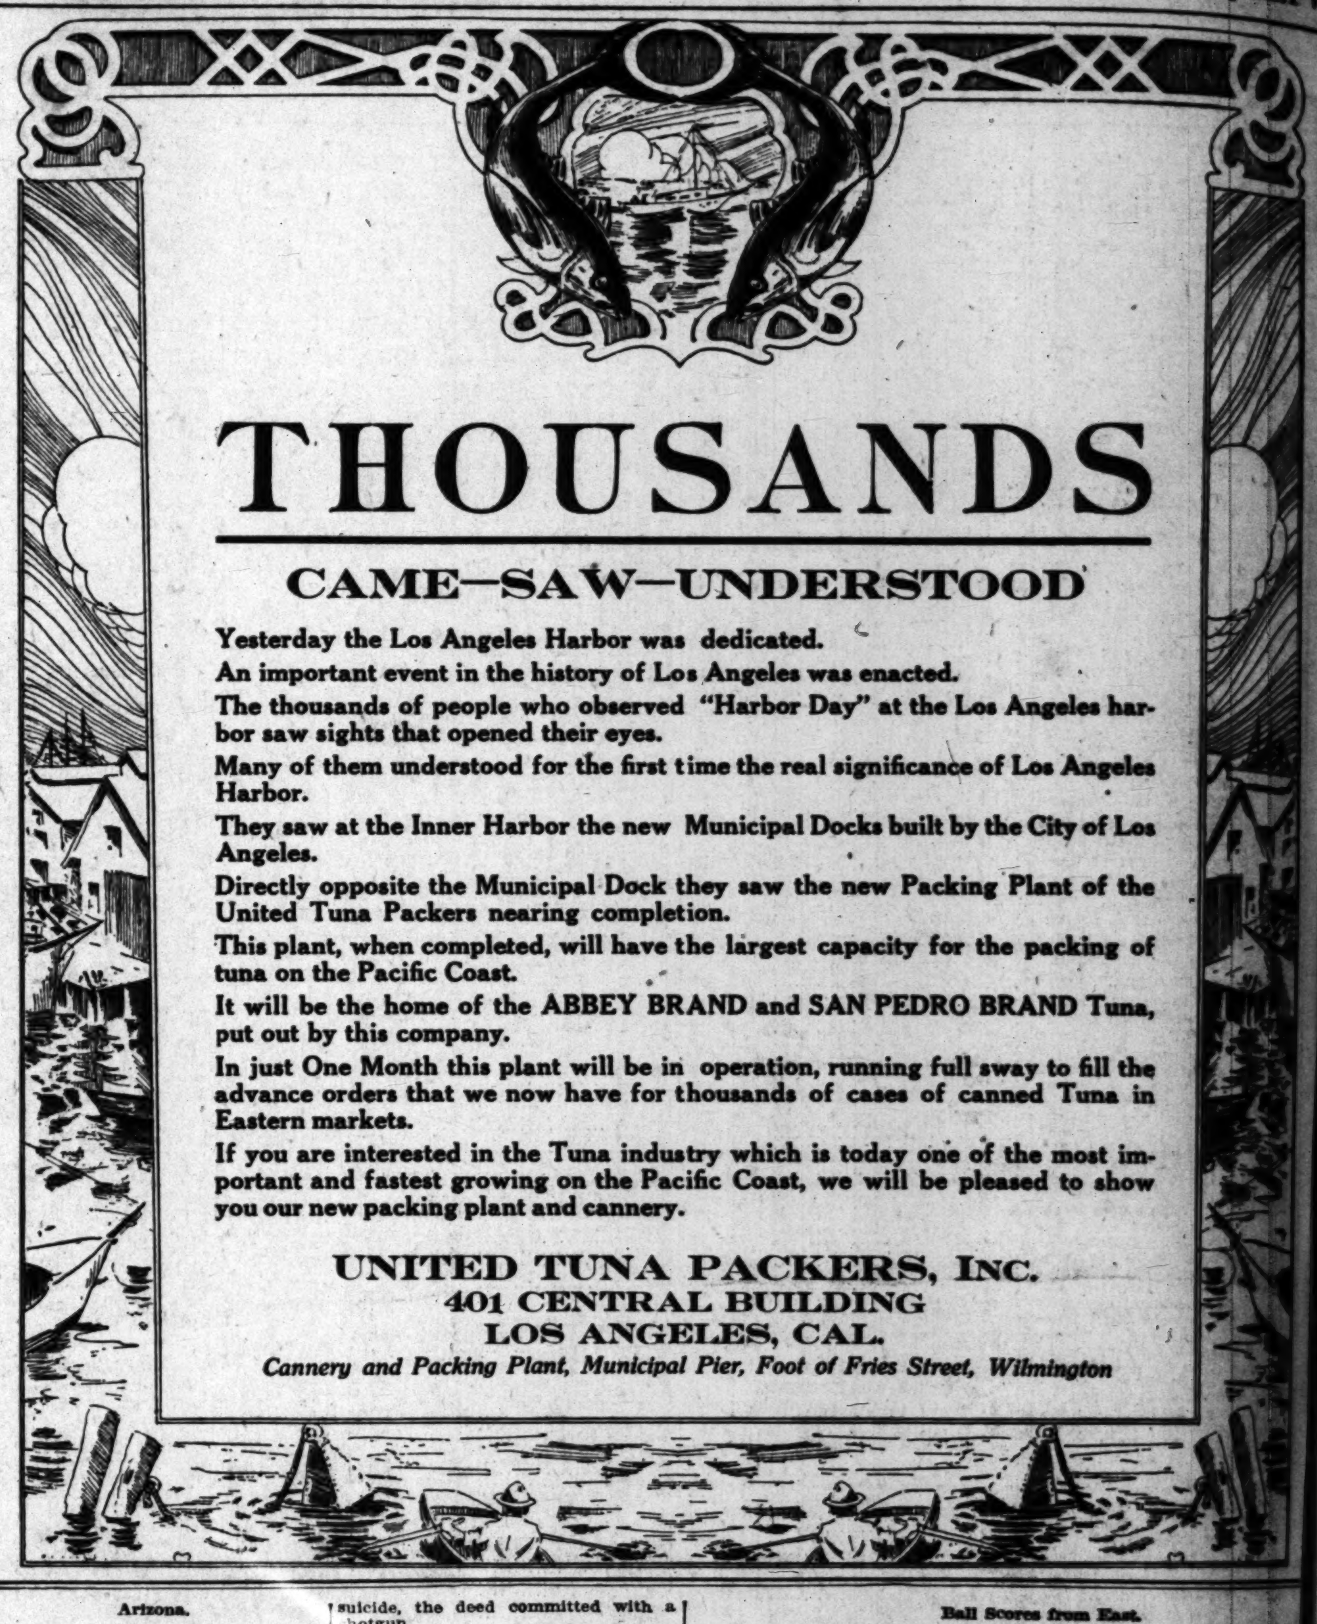
Among the hotel and apartment-house projects now taking shape in this city may be mentioned the following:

Architects Walker & Vawter are taking bids for the construction of a four-story brick hotel to be erected at the northwest corner of Sixth and Wall streets by D. F. Hill. The building will be 120x80 feet in size and will contain 120 rooms. The first story will be occupied by stores and a lobby.

A permit has been secured for the erection of a four-story brick hotel to be built by Herbert J. Goudge and others at No. 813 West Sixth street. The building, which will cost about $35,000, was planned by Arthur S. Heineman. Joseph Rhodes is preparing plans for a three-story brick rooming-house to be built by R. F. Bennett at No. 551 Ceres avenue. The structure will be 40x100 feet in size and will cost about $20,000.

C. C. Rittenhouse has drawn plans for a four-story brick apartment-house projected by A. Jameson at the corner of Carondolet and Ninth streets. The structure will contain 100 rooms. G. F. Costerisan and J. F. Kavanaugh are drawing plans for a four-story brick hotel building to be erected by J. B. Solomon on Olive street between Seventh and Eighth streets. This building, it is announced, has already been leased.

The contract has been awarded for the construction of a four-story brick apartment-house for G. R. Johnson at the corner of Ingraham and Witmer streets. This building will be 112x130 feet in size and will contain 170 rooms. F. M. Tyler is the architect.



THOUSANDS
CAME—SAW—UNDERSTOOD

Yesterday the Los Angeles Harbor was dedicated.
An important event in the history of Los Angeles was enacted.
The thousands of people who observed "Harbor Day" at the Los Angeles harbor saw sights that opened their eyes.
Many of them understood for the first time the real significance of Los Angeles Harbor.
They saw at the Inner Harbor the new Municipal Docks built by the City of Los Angeles.
Directly opposite the Municipal Dock they saw the new Packing Plant of the United Tuna Packers nearing completion.
This plant, when completed, will have the largest capacity for the packing of tuna on the Pacific Coast.
It will be the home of the ABBEY BRAND and SAN PEDRO BRAND Tuna, put out by this company.
In just One Month this plant will be in operation, running full sway to fill the advance orders that we now have for thousands of cases of canned Tuna in Eastern markets.
If you are interested in the Tuna industry which is today one of the most important and fastest growing on the Pacific Coast, we will be pleased to show you our new packing plant and cannery.

MIAMI DEMANDS COUNTY ITSELF.

Separation Plan Cause of "Back-Fire" Movement.

Labor Union Officials Fail in Court Complaint.

Unable to Show Violation of Eight-Hour Law.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

GLOBE (Ariz.) April 10.—Somewhat in the nature of a "back-fire" is a movement for the creation of the county of Miami, by the segregation of the western part of Gila county. A considerable number of Miami residents, led by C. S. Van Dyke, say that Globe has assumed too much authority within the county and that to Miami of right should be given a separate county administration. The trouble all centers around the effort to incorporate Miami, fought by Van Dyke and by his newspaper, the Miami Silver Belt.

UNION KICK FAILS.

On complaint of labor-union officials, the manager of the Dominion Hotel of Globe was examined in the local justice's court on a charge of working female employees more than eight hours a day. The evidence submitted failed to substantiate the complaint, which was dismissed by Justice Thomas.

DAMAGE DONE IN FIRE.

Yesterday morning damage amounting to $60,000 was done by a fire that destroyed the International and McKevitt buildings, lodging-houses on North Broad street, and three smaller business structures. A brick fire wall saved a half-dozen other buildings. The early spread of the flames was due to the fact that a firehose kept in the vicinity had been slashed and ruined, possibly by an incendiary. The cause of the blaze is now under official investigation.

DIES OF POISON.

Monday in Miami Josephine Palacio died of poison, bichloride tablets, self-administered, march 31. The woman had made three attempts at suicide in as many years. Relatives live in El Paso.

DEAD JAPANESE FOUND.

Near Miami a few days ago was discovered the dead body of Harry Sasaki, a Japanese boy, who had disappeared March 23. A room-mate testified at the inquest that Sasaki had dreamed his father had died and that it is probable he had offered himself a sacrifice in his parent's honor. The jury decided that death was due to suicide, the deed committed with a shotgun.

PIONEER DIES.

Charles Banker, one of the best-known pioneer business men of this section, died last Wednesday in this city, after returning from Los Angeles, where he had gone for medical attention.

JUSTICE RECALLED.

Justice of the Peace W. B. Fonda of Safford has been recalled from office by the voters of his precinct and George S. Andrus chosen in his place by a bare majority of sixteen, the election being the most exciting ever known in the town. The trouble was all over a charge that Fonda had been lax in his execution of the local option law that now covers Safford and all of Graham county.

SOCIALIST DEFEATED.

In Globe only belated activity defeated the election of a Socialist female candidate to the office of school director. All other parties rallied to the support of George R. Hill, who was elected by a vote of 340 to 256 for his opponent.

CALIFORNIA HONEYMOON.

In California on their honeymoon are Ernest H. Harley of the Old Dominion Bank and bride, formerly Miss Leona M. Vincent. The wedding was a secret one, to elude the attentions of friends.

THE TUCSON FIESTA.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

TUCSON (Ariz.) April 10.—It is expected that the November Indian fiesta in Tucson will at least rival the far-famed Frontier Festival of Cheyenne. Present are to be be repsentatives of every Indian tribe in the Southwest and they are to be shown in tribal dances and in full tribal regalia. There will also be featured the development of the Arizona Indian and there is to be an exhibit of his modern handiwork. In this the co-operation of the Indian Bureau already has been asked. There are to be hundreds of cowboys and it is expected that a squadron of United States Cavalry will be present. When he passed with a circus a few days ago, the help of "Buffalo Bill" Cody, was asked and he promised the committee that he would return for the carnival time and bring with him men and equipment for the staging of an out-door frontier drama. Cody is the owner of mining property near Tucson and has been a frequent visitor to this city.

WORSLEY UNCONVINCED.

State Senator A. A. Worsley is unconvinced by the elaborate denial of his charges against the management of the university and sagely avers that "Imposture always has worn a crown." He declares that his charges have not been answered in thereport to the Board of Regents made by President Wilde of the university.

Y.M.C.A. BUILDING.

Foundation work on the Y.M.C.A. building has been finished and the entire structure will be completed some time this summer, at a total cost of $100,000, this sum, a gift of the El Paso and Southwestern Railroad system and comprising return of that amount given in subsidy to the railroad by the business men of this city.

ASSASSINATION PLOT.

A plot to assassinate H. V. Anaya, Mexican Constitutionalist agent at Nogales, Commandant Fontes of the rebel forces at Nogales, Sonora, and Collector of Customs Corella of the same post, was frustrated lately by the receipt of advance information to the effect that the officers and their families, traveling home by automobiles from the circus at Tucson, were to be held up at a lonely spot on the road by agents of the Huerta regime. The services of American officers were secured and the party went through without mishap.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 11.—With four umpires present, President T. M. Chivington of the American Association opened his annual "school" for umpires here this afternoon. Those present are O'Brien, Johnstone, Johnson and Connolly. Murray, Westervelt, Barr and Irwin were expected during the day. Each rule will be taken up separately and discussed.

President Chivington said the rule permitting a base runner to turn to the left when he reached first base, without being liable to be put out, would be ignored. The rule left too much to the discretion of the umpire to say whether the player intended to go on to second base. Further, a special rule of the association will compel base-runners to turn to the right at first base.

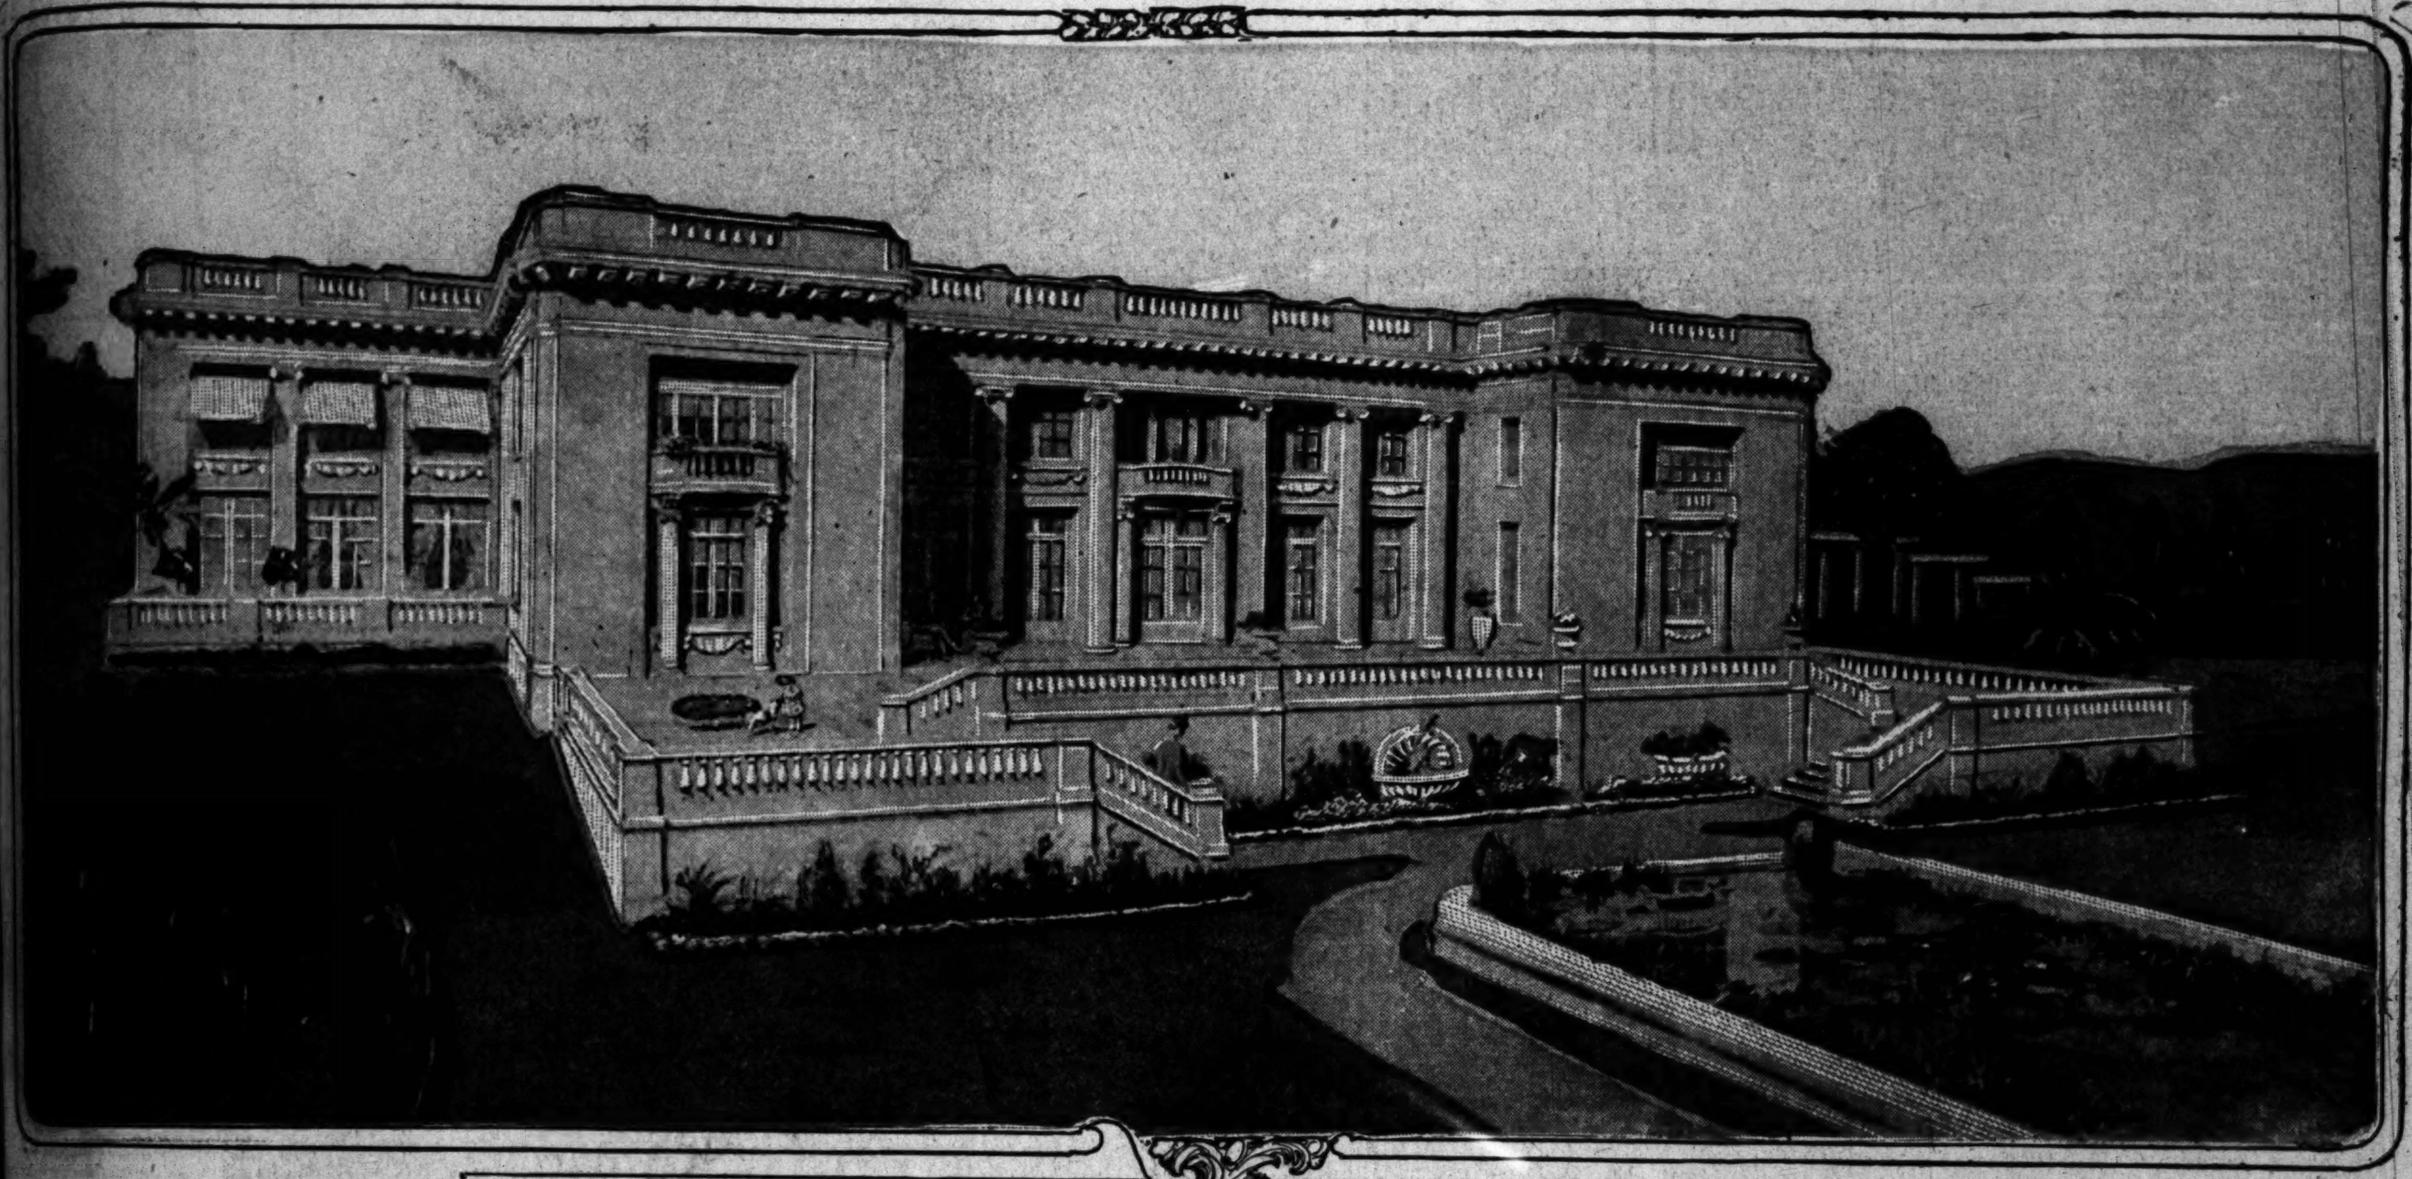
LOS ANGELES REACHING WESTWARD TO SHORES OF CRESCENT BAY.



Palatial Italian Renaissance mansion to be erected by C. R. Stephens on commanding elevation in San Vicente-Santa Monica district.

The house, which will be one of the residence show places of Southern California, will, with its immediate grounds, occupy a ten-acre plateau at the crest of a hill of peculiar conformation, known for a generation as the "Tiger's Tail." It will overlook the whole of the Santa Monica region, and will be visible from almost every point in the great and rapidly-developing area between the western edge of Los Angeles and the Crescent Bay. The builder, who is a wealthy manufacturer from Moline, Ill., bought the site two weeks ago from the Santa Monica Land and Water Company. It is his intention to transform the entire hill into a magnificent private estate. The improvements are being handled by the Milwaukee Building Company, designers and contractors.

Trend of Growth.

IDEALS PRESERVED IN SEAWARD HOMES.

Rapid Transit, Urban Conveniences and Suburban Comfort in Happy Combination Chief Factors in Building Up Magnificent Residence District that Now Extends Solidly to the Ocean.

LOS ANGELES, mighty metropolis of the West, growing in industries, in commercial strength and in population, is stretching forth to acquire for her citizens the most picturesque and luxurious homesites on earth. Combining utility with beauty, commercial achievement with artistic home life, the city is entering upon the final stage of encompassing all the land between its business section and mountain and seas.

Great ranches, held by a few individuals between the city and the ocean beaches, have been cut up into smaller holdings. The next step, recently accomplished, was the transformation of barley fields into [illegible] subdivisions. The last step in the transformation is now in progress—the building up of the tracts with beautiful homes. The time is almost at hand when all the wide stretch from the city to the sea will be thickly dotted with the houses of [illegible], for the intervening territory of acreage has practically disappeared.

Lots ranging in size from a liberal fraction of an acre to ten and twelve-acre sites are now being placed on the market in all the Santa Monica-San Vicente region, stretching from the foothills, overlooking the Pacific, along the line of rapid electric car service and paved boulevards, right up to the thickly settled residential districts, closer in.

In keeping with general local conditions Los Angeles and surrounding territory has grown faster than the market value of its property. Thereby has been created a situation probably unparalleled in the United States. Luxurious semi-country homes, prohibitive elsewhere except to owners of swollen fortunes, are here within easy reach of people in moderate circumstances.

Within thirty minutes' ride, by automobile or electric cars and later, more rapidly by subway, the Los Angeles business men can at once keep in close touch with the throbbing activities of the most progressive city in America, live, at moderate cost, in a comfortable suburban home, with inspiring view of mountain and sea and invigorated by the matchless Southern California air.

Some time ago Los Angeles capitalists foresaw that the city must extend in every direction and particularly toward the sea. The beauties of Cahuenga Valley and its nearness to the city made it invariably the location of one of the choice residential sections. The purchase of large tracts of land, subdivision and improvement have been followed closely by the building of homes.

A consistent policy of high-class improvements and the large size of the lots maintained in that and other suburban districts has undoubtedly been a strong factor in preserving the California ideal of home life. A million people can live in a comparatively small area, as is demonstrated in some of the eastern cities, but not in the manner suited to the people of Southern California. When Los Angeles has 1,000,000 population, which will be within the next five or six years, it will require a great amount of room.

No matter how big the city becomes, its people will require and demand plenty of room for their homes and other conditions to enable them to take advantage of the glorious climate and scenery. So Los Angeles, in its march toward the million mark, is extending its domain to include in many directions broad acres of homes in ideal settings.

In the development west to the sea the owners of subdivisions have builded well for the future. They have spent money liberally for wide boulevards and other improvements and have made restrictions concerning the character of the buildings. In all the district there can be no inharmonious commingling of low-priced bungalows and elaborate residences. There can be neither apartment-houses, hotels nor business buildings except in locations assigned to them.

Utility and the best type of civic conveniences have been secured in nearly every suburban district. In that part of Cahuenga Valley now being built up rapidly from the city to the sea the problems of rapid and comfortable transit have been well taken care of. The Pacific Electric Railroad lines run through the district and later the subway, with stations conveniently located, will bring the dwellers of the slopes and foothills within fifteen or twenty minutes' ride of the business section.

Smoothly asphalted and macadamized boulevards branch in almost every direction and more are to be built soon. The new Pico-to-the-Sea boulevard will provide a route shorter than any now existing. The County Board of Supervisors long ago adopted a policy favorable to the building of a large number of roads from the city to the ocean and the support lent by them will undoubtedly aid the people in various projects for new and shorter roads.

The system of good roads extends and will extend far beyond the Cahuenga Valley residence districts, thereby bringing the people of that district within easy reach of wild mountain and canyon scenery. The county has recently improved the coast road beyond Santa Monica northward and is completing a road through Topango Canyon, into the San Fernando Valley. Nearer than that will be a road through Benedict Canyon, which lies just beyond Beverly Hills and which will give the people of Van Nuys and vicinity a direct route to Santa Monica and the Crescent Bay beaches.

As in the Wilshire and other districts, the development between this city and Santa Monica has been rapid. Yesterday the whole region was in barley fields and ranches. Day before yesterday it was divided into vast grants, almost without inhabitants. Today it is the scene of urban activity and residential expansion of the highest type. Values have increased tremendously. Land worth $100 or less per acre is now worth well up into the thousands. But the present prices, based on intrinsic value as sites for residences, are in the opinion of realty experts, still low, less than half the market value of property similarly situated and with but a tithe of the advantages in other cities.

HIGH ABOVE THE SEA.

Ethelwyn Manor Heights Scene of Great Improvement Activity—Tract Overlooks Whole Bay District.

As an indication of the renewal of activity in Los Angeles residence property, comes the announcement from Robert Marsh and Company that twenty-five lots have been sold recently in Ethelwyn Manor Heights. This "balcony of Santa Monica" is on a great plateau 360 feet above sea level and within easy reaching distance of both the city and the sea.

Ethelwyn Manor Heights adjoins Ethelwyn Manor, a tract placed on the market by the Marsh company several years ago, but now practically sold out. The heights was withheld from the market until recently. Last week the Santa Monica City Council granted a permit, which now makes it possible for the Marsh company to begin the immediate construction of streets, installation of a sewer system and the laying of water and gas mains in the two holdings. Electroliers are to be installed at Ethelwyn Manor immediately and a little later at Ethelwyn Manor Heights.

One of the recent purchasers at Ethelwyn Manor Heights is Hugo Loewenbach of Milwaukee, who bought two sightly villa lots, upon which he will build a $15,000 residence.

Ethelwyn Manor Heights is situated in the center of the Santa Monica race course and towers above the valley surrounding. A network of fine boulevards serves the property. From the observatory at the summit may be seen Santa Monica, Venice and the beaches, the foothills and mountains and Los Angeles.

The first improvement work to be done at Ethelwyn Manor Heights will be the extension and paving of Franklin avenue through the tract, connecting Wilshire boulevard and Montana avenue. This work will be begun at once.

WILL BUILD PALACE ON "TIGER'S TAIL."

Wealthy Illinois Manufacturer to Transform Famous Hill in San Vicente Santa Monica District into Magnificent Private Estate—Gleaming White Mansion to Be Visible Over Large Area.

ON a ten-acre plateau overlooking the whole of the San Vicente-Santa Monica district and a large part of the valley region between the Crescent Bay and Los Angeles, C. R. Stephens, a wealthy manufacturer of Moline, Ill., is planning the early erection of a magnificent home, that promises to be not only one of the residence show places of Southern California, but a landmark for all time in the north beach section. Stephens bought a site about three weeks ago from the Santa Monica Land and Water Company, and has commissioned the Milwaukee Building Company to handle the improvements.

The property acquired by the Illinois man comprises in all thirty acres, this including, in addition to the plateau itself, the whole of a hill of unusual conformation lying back of of and above Brentwood Park. This elevation has for many years been known as "The Tiger's Tail." Reserving the crest of the hill for his immediate grounds, Stephens expects to plant its sides and base with live oak, wild walnut, wild lilac and other hardy trees, converting the entire holding into a splendid estate.

The house itself will follow the style of the Italian renaissance and will be of white plaster exterior over hollow tile construction. It will have a frontage of 150 feet by a depth of 125 feet, the latter measurement allowing for terraces. The most striking and beautiful architectural features will be a series of Ionic columns, and the heavy dentil moulding of the cornice.

The main hall will be 45x80 feet in size, the rear portion being divided off by a colonnade and used as a music-room. With its landings, the main stairway will be thirty feet in width. The house will contain a total of twenty-five rooms, with seven baths.

The finish, excepting in the billiard-room, which will be in oak, and in the den, which is to be in curly redwood, will be carried out in dull enamel. All baths are to be in tile and will be lighted by means of skylights. The walls of the main rooms, instead of being paneled in wood, as in most large places, are to be beautifully decorated. Cornices and friezes will take the place of the usual beams.

The house will have the shape of a capital "H," one entire wing being given over to servants' quarters. The porte cochere will be at the rear. The approach to the front will be by way of a double-balustraded stairway following the contour of the ground, and leading to a wide paved terrace. At the base of this stairway will be a lily pool.

Practically the entire ten acres of the plateau will be put into lawn, borders of low shrubs and groups of palms, giving variety to the effect. A summer-house, a servants' lodge and a garage for seven machines will be placed at suitable points on the grounds.

For Exchange

Lots on Washington Boulevard—highly improved, restricted—offered for exchange at a lower figure than you can buy in surrounding tracts. Can put in with this a fine $14,000 home rented at $100 a month—whole business $50,000, mortgage $18,000. Want California acreage—prefer Imperial; might take eastern income, clear.

House for Dr. Norman Bridge.

Attractive place planned and now being built by Milwaukee Building Company in Beverly Hills.

CROWNS SIGHTLY KNOLL.

Beverly Hills Home of Prominent Physician Follows Old English Lines and Has Elaborate Grounds.

One of the most charming of the homes of Beverly Hills is that now being completed by Dr. Norman Bridge on the crest of a sightly knoll just above and to the north of the main part of that fashionable subdivision. The place occupies large grounds. The site is elaborately landscaped.

The house follows old English types and was planned and built by the Milwaukee Building Company. The exterior is shingled. The steep gables and roof lines are the characteristic features of the design. The dwelling contains nine large rooms and is attractively finished in hard woods.

KENSINGTON GREEN.

The Pratt Sales Service, which is handling the Kensington Green tract along Washington boulevard between Los Angeles and Venice, reports recent sales in that subdivision to the amount of $20,000. Several attractive bungalows have recently been completed in the tract, which is well improved and provided with public utilities. The laying out of Kensington Green was one of the interesting developments between the city and the sea during the past year.

FINE HOTED PROJECTED.

Syndicate of Venice Capitalists Trying to Acquire Windward Avenue Site—Unique Apartment-house.

VENICE, April 11.—A syndicate of local capitalists is trying to put through a deal to dispose of six or more lots on the south side of Windward avenue, now used as an automobile parking stand, the site to be used for the erection of a fireproof hotel. All details are lacking as the plan is in an incomplete state. On the other hand, Abbot Kinney, said today, that as soon as the legal cloud to land owned by him on the same side of the street, but nearer to the pier, is removed, he proposes to put up a fine fireproof hotel with stores on the ground floor.

The erection of a large apartment-house at Westminster avenue and Ocean Front has been begun. The property adjoins that of the Hotel Potter, owned by Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Armstrong. The new house will have a novel feature in the construction of bungalows on the roof for families desiring absolute privacy and more room than is afforded by suites such as are usually found in apartment-houses.

March of Progress.

OLD GRANTS TO BE DEVELOPED.

FORMER RANCH LANDS WILL BE SUBDIVIDED.

Twenty-two-Thousand-Acre Holding to North of Santa Monica to Be Converted by New Owner into Great Area of High-Class Improvements.

The largest and most significant real estate transaction in the recent history of the Crescent Bay district was concluded early in March, when Arthur H. Fleming, a Pasadena millionaire, paid the Santa Monica Land and Water Company a reported consideration of $2,500,000 for 22,000 acres of land comprising the remaining unsold portions of the original Rancho Boca de Santa Monica and Rancho San Vicente y Santa Monica, lying to the north, northwest and northeast of Santa Monica, and its environs. The deal, which was reported exclusively in The Times on March 8, marked the passing of the largest of the unsubdivided Spanish grants left near Los Angeles.

The great holdings involved extend from a point west of Topango Canyon almost to the grounds of the Los Angeles Country Club at Beverly Hills. It includes nearly all of Santa Monica Canyon and skirts Brentwood Park, Carlos Heights, Westgate, Soldiers' Home and Sawtelle. On the north it stretches along the edge of the Van Nuys-Lankershim ranch in the San Fernando Valley. The land was a part of the original 33,000-acre tract of the Sepulveda family, a gigantic holding, which included all of the area of the present city of Santa Monica and the various developed districts around it.

The new owner of the 22,000-acre domain will within a short time begin the development of the more accessible parts of the property and has already engaged landscape engineers to lay out roads and drives through the area immediately adjacent to the present subdivisions of the San Vicente boulevard and North Beach districts. As rapidly as possible, too the rest of the property will be opened up with well-constructed highways, hundreds of acres of beautiful land being made available for subdivision into large private estates.

These assured developments above the Santa Monica-San Vicente district, in the opinion of realty experts, will mean the early and compact building up of all the sightly tracts around the Palisades, along Santa Monica Canyon and fronting on San Vicente and other boulevards of the Crescent Bay district.

CHURCH PLANS OUT.

Handsome New Venice House of Worship to Follow Lombardic Italian Style of Architecture.

VENICE, April 11.—Plans have been completed by the C. H. Russell Company of Los Angeles for the handsome house of worship to be erected by the Union Congregational Church at the corner of Innes place and Zephyr avenue. The building will follow the Lombardic Italian style and will be of brick construction. A bell tower sixty feet in height will be a striking architectural feature.

The church will contain an auditorium seating 300, with numerous classrooms and a completely-equipped basement. A special room will be provided for church conferences. The Rev. Fenwick L. Holmes is the pastor.

LARGE SALES TOTAL.

Third of the J. J. Davis Palisades Subdivisions Scene of Constant Market Activity—A Fourth Planned.

Sales in the third of the Palisades subdivisions to be put on the market by J. J. Davis are reported to have reached a total of nearly $350,000 since the opening of the property. A. C. Waiters, sales manager for the tract, expresses the belief that the transfer last month by the Santa Monica Land and Water Company to Arthur H. Fleming of the 22,000 acres of ranch lands lying in back of the present North Santa Monica developments, would serve to stimulate activity in the Palisades vicinity as has no other single factor in the recent history of the district.

Practically all of the later purchasers in the Davis Palisades property will, it is said, build substantial improvements, adding to the already fine development of the tract, and of its neighboring subdivisions. The lots in the newest Davis tract are 50x150 feet in size and front on eighty-foot boulevards. Every site commands a sweeping view of the ocean and the mountains. The land, though almost within sound of the surf, is at the same time high enough to enjoy the advantages of the hill holdings far back from the sea.

The improvements of the tract are all in and paid for. Wide parkings, ornamental trees, gas, water, electricity and fire hydrants give the subdivision the best of conveniences.

A fourth subdivision of the J. J. Davis Palisades holdings, comprising sightly land just back of the company's present field of operations, will soon be put on the market. The ground to be included in the tract has an average elevation of 300 feet above sea level.

UNIQUE COUNTRY ESTATES.

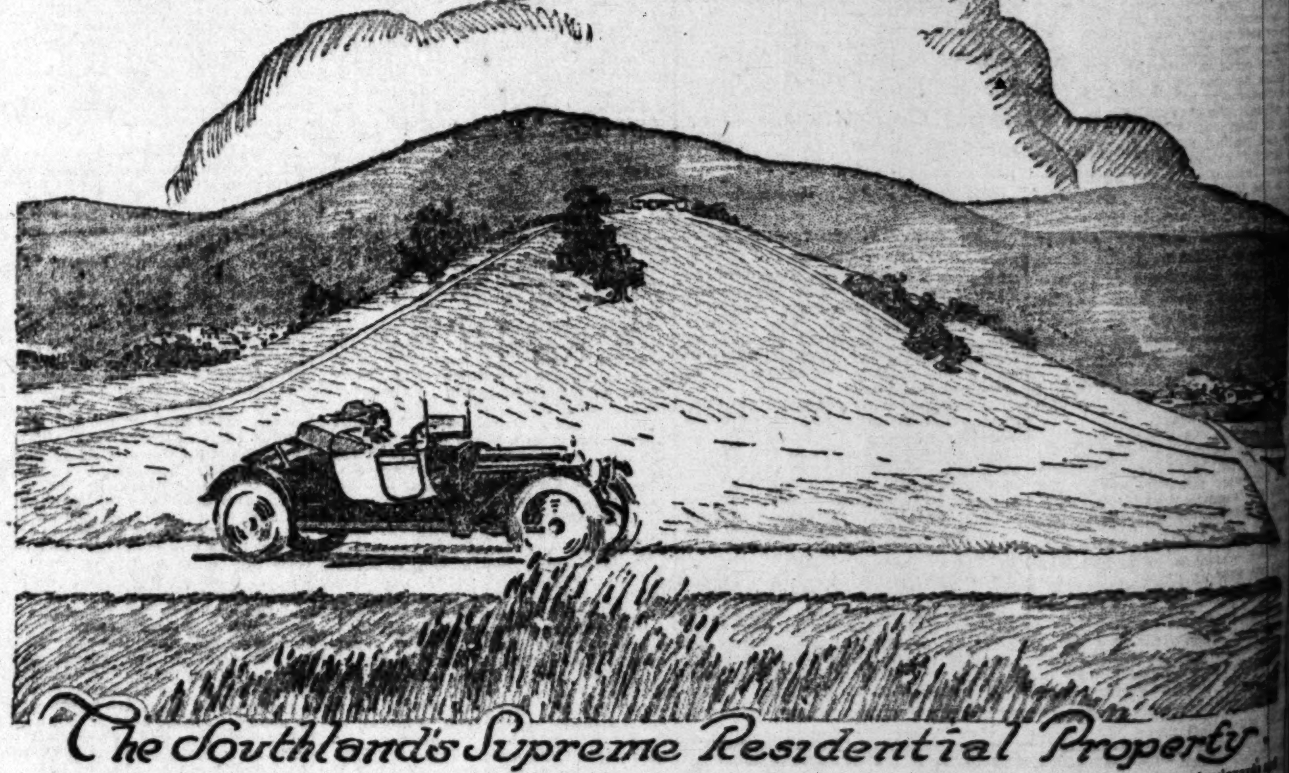
Architect to Convert Topanga Canyon Ranch Into Residence Park for Lovers of Picturesque.

The beauties and opportunities of the canyons in the mountains north of Santa Monica have long been recognized and several country homes have been erected there. The most recent happening in the development of that region is the sale of 160 acres in Topanga Canyon for $16,000 by Dr. Von Wodelstaeda of Ocean Park to Aurele Vermeulen, landscape architect of this city.

Vermeulen, who came to this city from Paris, and who is an enthusiast on the beauties of California and its opportunity for effective home building, says the tract will be developed immediately into an exclusive residential park, with estates of from five to twelve acres each. It will include playgrounds and a residential [illegible] etude park of sixteen acres for Vermeulen.

The property is among the most picturesque in the canyon, and is about midway between San Fernando Valley and the ocean. It has good contours, springs, and a fine view of the ocean. Vermeulen says the property can and will be improved to equal old and new eastern and European estates.

What the Man from Milwaukee did
—a true Story and a Prophecy about
Ethelwyn Manor Heights
"The Balcony of Santa Monica"



The Southland's Supreme Residential Property

A shrewd, far-seeing real estate operator of Milwaukee—a man whose sound business judgment and clear vision had enabled him to amass a fortune from his investments—arrived in Los Angeles several weeks ago. He previously had visited every important city on the Pacific Coast. He had invested in none.

This keen-minded gentleman from Milwaukee was accompanied by his wife and two daughters. Chiefly on pleasure bent, he nevertheless was on the alert for something "good" in the way of an investment. And, mind you, the scores of real estate propositions that had been submitted to this Milwaukeean were absorbed in a degree similar to the proverbial "water on a duck's back."

By auto and trolley "everything worth seeing" was visited by the Milwaukee man. He was impressed with the gorgeous scenery, the industrial activity, the climate and the optimism of our people—but he kept asking the question: "Where can I make the most money on an investment that is absolutely safe?"

The name of this man from Milwaukee is Hugo Loewenbach. He may be reached in care of Loewenbach & Son, Milwaukee, of which institution he is the head. This firm has been in business in Milwaukee for more than thirty years.

Before returning East, Mr. Loewenbach—this same astute realty operator—bought two villa lots at Ethelwyn Manor Heights. He chose Ethelwyn Manor Heights because he believed it to be the BEST buy in Southern California—yes, the best on the whole Pacific Coast.

We keenly feel and appreciate the compliment that has been paid Ethelwyn Manor Heights, its present and its future, by Mr. Loewenbach. We're not unduly gratified because he invested in our tract, but BECAUSE HE PLACED THE STAMP OF "BEST" ON ETHELWYN MANOR HEIGHTS.

We've known for a long time that somebody would come along—somebody who has made a study of realty values elsewhere—and grasp the tremendous possibilities of Ethelwyn Manor Heights.

The summit of this tract stands 360 feet above the level of the sea, yet is only two miles back from the beaches. It has fittingly been termed "the balcony of Santa Monica," and unquestionably commands a view of city, sea and mountains that is simply incomparable.

In the heart of a network of fine boulevards and situated in one of the world's most superb residential communities, this great plateau lends itself to distinctive architectural treatment such as no foothill site ever could hope to attain.

Lots and villa sites may be secured at [illegible] up. Terms to suit your convenience may be arranged. Your opportunity to buy a homesite in a tract that eventually will be the retreat of millionaires is here—NOW.

Comfortable touring cars and courteous attendants are at your disposal by appointment. We will be pleased to call for you if you will simply tell us that you would like to see Ethelwyn Manor Heights.

Today is a mighty good time to visit this delightful subdivision. In telephoning for appointment, kindly ask for the Manager of the Subdivision Department. And, remember, when you DO see Ethelwyn Manor Heights, you're going to WANT to own a part of it. Grasp opportunity by the forelock and give it a good strong pull. You'll thank us if you do. And don't forget that these lots are going fast. There's a little army of Loewenbachs right here in Los Angeles and it's getting bigger every day. Get in while you can.

ONE SIGN ENOUGH.

Exclusive Agency Arrangement Declared by Realty Publication to Be Best for Both Seller and Broker.

[National Real Estate Journal:] It's the little things that count in the real estate business just as in any other profession. A little consideration on the part of the agent and owner of the "mere trifles" would bring about more effective results in the selling and renting of property.

Owners of real estate should absolutely prohibit more than one "For Sale" or "For Rent" sign being placed on their property. The evils that result in the appearonce of several signs on a house or even a vacant lot are numerous when one stops to consider.

In the first place, several different signs create a suspicion in the mind of the prospective purchaser or renter that there must be something the matter with the place because it takes so much effort to sell and rent it, or that the price is high so as to allow a good commission to all of the agents in whose hands it has been placed. Besides injuring the sale, the house itself is actually damaged by too many signs. The nails and tacks used are usually ordinary wire ones which make big rust spots and often run long yellow streaks down the front of the structure.

The marks of many signs having been on a house naturally suggest that it has been a long time in the market and that there must be something of an undesirable character about the place or it would not have remained vacant so long. The agent assures the prospect that such is not the case, but even though he convinces him, he has made a bad start towards making a sale.

The real estate agent himself should refuse to list a house unless he is given exclusive sign rights. It is to the property owner's interests as well as his that he have the property exclusively, for then he may advertise it for sale without fear of some other real estate man deriving the benefits of it. No real estate agent is going to spend his money putting a piece of property before the public and have an interested prospect look over the grounds, see some other agent's sign and make the purchase through the other agent.

It is a recognized fact that a neat, simple little sign will often rent a house where a huge bill-board will not. The owner and the agent should be careful as to the location of the sign. A good plan is to put it in the front window, behind the glass, and there is never a house so large but that a single little sign will be sufficient.

Standards Advancing.

SEE DAWN OF BETTER DAY.

ARCHITECTS FINDING PUBLIC MORE APPRECIATIVE.

"City Beautiful" Idea Catching Hold Throughout Country—Art and Business Found Not to Be in Conflict—Many Cities Are Setting Good Example.

To some extent architecture is a telltale of the financial, intellectual, esthetic, moral and spiritual condition of a community, says the Construction News. If the churches are inferior and neglected, then it is safe to assume that religious zeal is lacking; if the public buildings, such as libraries and schools, are poorly built and poorly equipped, education is not considered of great importance; if the municipal buildings are inferior, it is a sign of lack of enterprise and public spirit; if the homes of the people show indifference, the indication is there is moral and financial decline.

Furthermore, the lack of individual interest in architecture is encouraged by indifference on the part of public officials, the disastrous consequences of which can be seen on every hand. In most American cities there is an utter lack of regulations in building operations. A person may build almost any kind and design of a building, anywhere he may own the ground, thereby reducing the value of his neighbor's property greatly, and sometimes destroying it for the purpose for which it was intended.

The law provides for the punishment of the thief who enters upon the premises of a citizen and robs him, but there is no protection to the property owner who has spent much thought, time and money in making his neighborhood desirable and attractive, only to make it the more attractive to the speculator building cheap houses, who can and does charge more rent for his shacks on account of the desirable surroundings produced by others.

The effect of such lack of protection upon the home builder can be easily discerned. It is a common thing for a client to state to his architect that he is not particular about the external appearance of his house, provided the interior arrangement pleases him. This is to say that he does not care about his neighbors, but is solicitous only for his own comforts.

We have noted, on the other hand, that where the regulations exist as to the kind and quality and style of houses that may be built upon a certain piece of property, as is the case in private additions, the client takes the opposite position. He knows that his neighbors will be bound by the same regulations and so he feels safe in expending his hard-earned funds in the production of artistic exterior effects. Sometimes he instructs his architect to leave off the finishings of some of the rooms and omit some conveniences in order that the exterior may be made as attractive as possible within his means.

It may seem, on first thought, that such a treatment of a house is a pretense or sham. On the contrary, it indicates unselfishness and altruism, for his neighbors and passersby get the benefit, while the owner sacrifices his comforts.

One of the principal reasons for the indifference of the individual in matters pertaining to architecture is the almost criminal indifference on the part of the government. The national government has realized its responsibility in this matter and is setting a higher example throughout the country.

Many municipal governments are beginning to realize the importance of their influence and are employing experts to lay out cities along artistic lines. It is gratifying in the instances where work has already begun to note that the improvements in the artistic also carry with them improvements in the materialistic and that art and business are not in conflict.

All authorities are agreed that in the movement in favor of the "city beautiful," which has taken hold of American cities, a brighter day is dawning for American architecture, and that American architects will probably live to see the day when their relation to the public will be better understood and appreciated.

KENSINGTON TERRACE ONCE RAILWAY CENTER.

Latest of Schader-Wells Tracts on Santa Monica North Beach Remembered by Older Generation as Place Where First Railroad Touched Beach.

The third of three high-class beach subdivisions has just been improved at Santa Monica and placed on the market by the Schader-Wells Company. This property, adjoining Fremont avenue and at the terminus of the proposed Pacific Electric subway, is the last of the ocean frontage of the old San Vicente rancho, formerly a part of the great Sepulveda grant.

Seaside Terrace and Vicente Terrace, handled by the Schader-Wells Company, are already well built up. The opening of Kensington Terrace, now announced by the company, completes the development of the ocean front property from Fremont avenue to the Santa Monica municipal pier.

The Sepulveda grant included all the territory along the waterfront and extending far back into the hills. Part of this land was purchased by former Senator John P. Jones, who organized and built the Los Angeles Independent Railroad, which was the first railroad connection between Los Angeles and the beach. The terminus of the road was on the present site of Kensington Terrace. At that time the Pacific Improvement Company built the Hotel Arcadia.

The first real activity in the district came when a syndicate headed by Carl F. Schader and composed of prominent Los Angeles capitalists, purchased the land on the water front and extending back to Ocean avenue. Schader and his associates put in high-class improvements and subdivided the southerly portion as Seaside Terrace. The next piece was improved by Schader and developed as Vicente Terrace.

Early this year the Schader-Wells Company secured an option on the remaining portion of the waterfront tract and formed a syndicate to handle it. The property has now been improved in the same high-class manner as Seaside and Vicente Terrace and is subdivided as Kensington Terrace.

Improvements on the three tracts aggregate $150,000 for street work and over $300,000 in buildings. The rapid growth of that part of Santa Monica has already made most of the tract business property and values have increased rapidly. Frontage in Seaside and Vicente Terrace that sold two or three years ago at $50 to $150 per front foot, now has a market value of $100 to $450 per front foot.

Two four-story and two three-story hotels and apartment-houses have been erected on the property. J. S. Stotler has plans drawn for two modern double bungalows, which will be built at once in Seaside Terrace at Appian way and Arcadia Terrace. They will cost about $8000. The proposed site for the $150,000 municipal auditorium is on this tract, the land having been offered as a donation by J. S. Stotler and Charles T. Lemley. The plans for the auditorium provide for a seating capacity of 4000 and its erection, it is believed, will greatly stimulate north beach growth.

FOR EXCLUSIVE HOMES.

High Class Improvements and Favorable Location Stimulate Growth of Palm Place.

An artistic station will soon mark the stopping place of the Venice Short Line in Palm Place, which lies ten miles from Los Angeles, on Washington and Venice boulevards. Improvements in the tract represent an expenditure of over $100,000. The streets are paved with crushed rock and have six-foot walks and twenty-four-foot parkings. Water, gas and electricity have been brought to every lot.

The tract arrangement was designed by Wilbur David Cook. The lots range from 105 to 250 feet wide by 250 to 490 feet deep and are protected by rigid restrictions. Several fine homes have been built and the tract is surrounded by high-class residential property. The highway leading to the city is one of the best in Southern California and for a considerable distance winds through rows of tall eucalyptus trees.

BORDERS BALLONA CREEK.

Brooklyn West Tract Combines Civic Comforts and Unique Natural Advantages—Plan Many Homes.

The waters of Ballona Creek running the year round give Brooklyn West a uniquely beautiful parking feature. The Guy M. Rush Company, which is handling the tract, has deeded seven acres to constitute a park which will include a portion of the stream.

Brooklyn West faces Washington boulevard, is on high ground and is favorably located to take advantage of the rapid development in the district between the city and the sea. It comprises about ninety acres which have been divided into 600 large lots. The streets are paved and have parkings ten feet wide. Madison avenue, which runs through the tract is one of the best improved thoroughfares in the district.

The tract has only been on the market about a year but more than half of the lots have been sold. Seven fine houses have been erected and many others will be built in the near future. The building restrictions run from $1500 to $2500. The tract is all on high ground and has excellent drainage.

SEEK ACCESS TO STRAND.

Steps are under way to secure rights of way across private property along the ocean front of Santa Monica so that persons can cross the strand from any of the inclines leading down to the ocean. Heretofore the public has been allowed access by sufferance, but not legally. The Mayor and City Council of the beach city now propose to secure easements for sewage and storm drain purposes and to bring about an agreement as to the boundary line between Linda Vista Park and the beach lands of private owners. In the deed to the park given by the late Mrs. Arcadia de Baker, the question arose whether the boundary was the edge of the cliff, the outer side of the projecting bluffs, or contours as the engineers describe them. The property owners want to get a right of way from the railroad company for a paved road along the foot of the bluff.

Suburban Elegance.

BETWEEN OCEAN AND MOUNTAINS.

RECENT RAPID DEVELOPMENT OF BEVERLY HILLS.

City's Extension to the Pacific Particularly Emphasized by the Rapid Transformation of [illegible] Lands to Highly Improved, Restricted Home Sites.

Typical California homes, costing $500,000 in the aggregate, are now in process of construction in Beverly Hills, formerly a part of the Rancho de las Aguas. There, between Los Angeles and the sea, and ultimately destined to become a part of the city, the transformation from [illegible] fields to highly-improved residence property has been exceedingly rapid.

The tract consists of about [illegible] acres, several hundred acres of which have been highly improved with paved boulevards, lights and other features at a cost of $1,000,000. The land was purchased seven years ago by the Rodeo Land and Water Company, which is now the owner and selling agent.

A part of the tract lies nestling in the foothills of the Santa Monica Mountains and the rest upon a rolling plateau with the mountain range for a background. The streets are broad and smoothly-paved and wind about picturesquely, so that each street has its distinctive charm and always the delightful variety of view of mountain, valley and sea.

The lots range in frontage from eighty feet up, with a depth varying from 150 to 400 feet. In the foothills they range in size from three to eleven acres, these sites, presenting attractive possibilities to the landscape gardener. The suburb is exclusive in the sense that it excludes apartment houses, double houses, family hotels, stores and cheap houses, but the prices are not high enough to be prohibitive otherwise. The restrictions run until 1940.

Burton E. Green, president of the company, is completing a fine $[illegible]000 house in the upper part of the tract. Roland Bishop will soon erect a handsome residence nearby. J. [illegible] Danziger's new home will represent an outlay of $150,000. Many other costly residences are in course of construction or about to be built in the tract.

Among the unique and attractive features in this new residence district are the parks which contain [illegible] trees and shrubs in great variety. A water garden is made beautiful with lilies brought from the valley of the Nile, and near by is a coral tree from Brazil. The company maintains a well-equipped nursery, which has materially aided in beautifying the grounds.

The water supply is good and adequate for present needs. The Franklin Canyon pipe line that brings aqueduct water to Los Angeles crosses the tract, and Owens River water will undoubtedly be available to supplement the present supply whenever it is needed.

The Beverly Hills Hotel, which cost $350,000, is located on a commanding site in the center of the tract. Although it has 250 rooms, people have been turned away in the past [illegible] days for lack of room. The hotel is a composite in architectural style of Spanish, French and early English. A striking feature is a great veranda that encircles the hotel and provides a walk one-seventh of a mile long.

Adjoining Beverly Hills are the grounds of the Los Angeles Country Club, one of the finest and most complete country clubs in the [illegible]. Its golf course is unsurpassed.

In Beverly proper, on the [illegible] side of the railroad, the lots are smaller and not so high in price. This part of the tract is practically all sold out and is well built up. A new schoolhouse is to be erected [illegible]

DEL MAR IMPROVEMENTS.

Sales of $75,000 are reported in the Del Mar tract, which has a frontage of 1500 feet on the Venice Short Line, east of Venice. The $250,000 Union Polytechnic [illegible] School recently voted by Venice will be erected on the tract.

RECENT RAPID DEVELOPMENT OF BEVERLY HILLS.

City's Extension to the Pacific Particularly Emphasized by the Rapid Transformation of Ranch Lands to Highly Improved, Restricted Home Sites.

Typical California homes, costing $500,000 in the aggregate, are now in process of construction in Beverly Hills, formerly a part of the Rancho de las Aguas. There, between Los Angeles and the sea, and ultimately destined to become a part of this city, the transformation from ranch fields to highly-improved residence property has been exceedingly rapid.

RAPID TRANSFORMATION.

How a City Has Grown in Five Months Midway Between This City and the Beach.

That a barley field can be transformed into a promising city in five months has been demonstrated at Culver City. Although one of the youngest of Southern California cities, it has seven miles of sidewalks and curbs, 1350 trees, water mains and gas mains, electricity, and the following buildings: Harry H. Culver branch office building with two stores, costing $11,000; Merchants' Realty Investment building, $3500; two-story Culver Block, two stores and apartments, $15,000; Goedicke building, $4000; the Field garage, $4500; United States Medical Institute building, $3000; twenty-two residences, average cost, $3000.

That the next few months will see even greater growth is indicated by the fact that the following buildings are in course of construction or projected: Panama Macaroni Company's building, $25,000; Roberts Theater, $3000; bank building, $6000; Field block, $1000; Cycle Car automobile factory, $2000; church, $3000; about forty-five more residences, to cost $3000 to $15,000 each.

Sales of lots have already aggregated $350,000. The tract is owned by the Culver Investment Company, who are also the selling agents.

Culver City is located at the intersection of the Venice Short Line, the Santa Monica Air Line and Playa del Rey car line. It is midway between Los Angeles and Venice and is served by Washington, Pico, National and Putnam boulevards.

Contractors have already installed improvements costing over $90,000. The highest type of street work has been laid. A public park has been dedicated to the town.

MILES OF NEW STREETS.

Important Improvements for Brentwood Park, Pioneer Subdivision of San Vicente-Boulevard District.

A pending petition for the improvement of miles of new streets and roads in the newer sections of Brentwood Park is expected to receive favorable action by the Supervisors within a few days. The compleion of this proposed work will give Brentwood Park access to the sightly territory to the back of the tract and across Santa Monica Canyon. The roads are expected to connect with those to be built through the 22,000-acre ranch holdings recently purchased by Arthur H. Flemming and to link Brentwood with a large area of highly picturesque scenery.

Brentwood Park was practically the first of the San Vicente- boulevard subdivisions to be laid out and developed and has had the advantage of advanced tree growth and floral improvement. Many handsome homes have been built there, some of them costly "show places." It has water, gas, electricity and telephones.

Dr. Herman Janss, secretary of the Braly-Janss Company, developers of Brentwood Park, lives in that subdivision and his home, with its Japanese gardens, has been made more or less famous in the East by reason of photographs reproduced by magazines of the country life scope.

In Brentwood Park and other properties along San Vicente boulevard the Santa Monica road races have been factors in arousing interest. San Vicente is one of the boulevard angles of the triangle course.

WHERE NATURE HELPS.

Seaside Home Community in Beautiful Rustic Setting to Be Found in Santa Monica Canyon.

In historic Santa Monica Canyon, which was for years the playground of early Spanish families, the L. D. Loomis Company is establishing a highly-improved seaside home community in a rustic setting of great beauty. The Loomis Company, pioneer owners and subdividers in that section, sold $1,200,000 worth of San Vicente-Santa Monica property last year and predict that the present activity attendant upon the extension of the Los Angeles residence district seaward will speedily result in all the district being soon built up to fine residences.

An elaborate plan of improvement has been carried out in Santa Monica Canyon by Knapp and Woodard, engineers. Artistic stairways, an incline railway, a concrete channel for taking care of stormwater and an extensive system of automobile boulevards have added to the utility and beauty of the canyon and have made it one of the show places of Southern California. Sales have already passed the half-million mark.

The Loomis Company has also been identified with the sale of Brentwood Place, in which tract the company reports sales to date of $275,000. The most recent successful campaign of the company has been that in Gillette's Regent Square. This property contains 570 lots and faces San Vicente boulevard. The improvements are of the highest order.

—The finest location in San Vicente—Santa Monica, with no exception.
—Investors! Homeseekers! Consider well the merits of GILLETTE'S REGENT SQUARE—then ACT.
—Over half-million dollars worth of lots actually bought to date—by eager investors.
—Now comes the rise in prices! 25 per cent.—May 1. Only 18 days more. 25 per cent. is handsome profit in itself.
—Every day—every hour—the supply of property of this character is diminishing. Things are humming NOW in GILLETTE'S REGENT SQUARE.
—Don't let glittering generalities obscure your vision. Get down to the hard facts. Ask about the "Material" and the parts which make up any homesite you consider. We invite investigation of GILLETTE'S REGENT SQUARE, inside and out.
—GILLETTE'S REGENT SQUARE directly overlooks the sea. It is on a natural balcony, with a background of delicately-tinted mountains. This ideal combination makes the location unsurpassed for beauty. Not only this, but it has absolute accessibility.
—We made GILLETTE'S REGENT SQUARE lots 60 feet wide. Mark this well! We made them this size because buyers demanded larger lots. That our judgment was right in this regard is proven by the huge total of lots actually bought to date.
—Don't buy 50 feet and then find you need 10 feet more. It means to buy a pair of lots. Start right—60 feet is the practical size! GILLETTE'S REGENT SQUARE lots are that size.
—The finest kind of improvements have been put into GILLETTE'S REGENT SQUARE under the direction of noted landscape engineers and under the scrutiny of the Superintendent of Streets of Santa Monica.
—GILLETTE'S REGENT SQUARE is the best offering in all of San Vicente—Santa Monica. Best cement work. Best sewers (8-in. instead of 6-in., which would have been sufficient.) Best possible genuine rock macadam street work (not oiled dirt.) Best Gas and water piping and the finest of everything necessary which money can buy.
—This is a modern property at unusually attractive prices. Not an "old-timer" patched up to make a temporary showing. It's built upon modern ideas and it is a success. The Phenomenal record of past buying and present buying shows that it is.
—GILLETTE'S REGENT SQUARE is easily accessible. Beaches, amusement piers, canyons, shopping centers close by. Fine auto boulevards to Los Angeles. Car lines directly pass the property. All facilities, including water, gas, electricity, telephones.
—Right now is the time to act. Prices go up 25 per cent. May 1. Half-million sales to date. Only 18 more buying days. The remaining lots will go quickly.
—We want the opportunity to prove to you our claims.
—Call us up and we will place a private auto at your service for a trip to this scenic land.

Too Much Warfare.

CANNOT COLLECT ASSESSMENTS.

UNION ORGANIZATIONS REFUSING TO BE TAXED.

Mr. Gompers Admits a Weakness in the American Federation of Labor that Indicates Hard Financial Straits on the Part of the Unions Throughout the Country.

[The Square Deal:] The charges of Delegate McDonald at the United Mine Workers' Convention against President Gompers and the Federation of Labor placed Gompers on the defensive, both as to himself and the organization he represents. In his speech to refute the charges of Mr. McDonald, Mr. Gompers made open confession in regard to the inability of the Federation of Labor to successfully collect an assessment on the component parts of the federation to assist the Western Federation of Miners in their fight in the copper region of Michigan.

It has been customary for the allies of organized labor to so laud the strength and greatness of the Federation of Labor that the workingmen of this country, as well as many large employers, have greatly magnified its power. The confession of Mr. Gompers in his speech before the convention is proof that the boasted power and strength of the federation is very largely in imagination.

In discussing the levying of a 9-cent assessment against the members of the component parts of the federation, to assist the strikers in the copper country, Mr. Gompers declared that it was absolutely impossible for the federation to collect the assessments and gave as the reason that a very large proportion of the organizations could not pay. Some of them could and would, and some of them could and would not, conclusively showing that the great American Federation of Labor is a loosely-organized body with little or no power to enforce its decrees against its component parts.

The apology was also a confession that the many organizations composing the federation were in very hard straits financially. This has been brought about largely by the constant warfare which has been carried on by these various organizations in the past few years. Strike assessments have been so numerous that the organizations would not or could not respond again to an assessment of 9 cents a member.

According to Mr. Gompers, there are 106 organizations which compose the federation, fifty-six of which he said were absolutely unable to pay the assessment, nineteen that might be able, only eighteen that were able and would, six that were doubtful, two that could pay but it was not likely they would pay, one that could but would not, one said "yes," one would like to if it could, and two that simply said "no." The federation is having its own troubles. There is considerable dissension among the members of the organizations which comprise it. There is by no means any unanimity of action in the organization. The Socialists are a constant menace to the present administration and keep it on the defensive all the time. Really its only power is a semi-political one on which it uses its seeming strength of numbers to coerce legislators in both State and national affairs. It is done by continually keeping representatives under fear that they may not have the asistance of the labor organizations in being again elected. If these legislators really knew the actual conditions they would have as little fear of the Federation of Labor as most of them have of the influence of the moon upon legislation.

HOUSE CLEANING.

BISBEE (Ariz.) April 10.—Possibly in the way of a sort of house-cleaning, a large number of miners have been discharged lately by the Copper Queen Company. Very generally the men laid off have been unmarried, the older employees having been preferred in all cases. Most of those dropped have sougth new pastures, as the labor market of the camp already was abit overstocked.

The annual Phelps-Dodge report shows that the corporation last year handled 201,489,798 pounds of copper, sold for an average price of 15.37 cents cash in New York. The company's total income for the year was $9,581,495. After charging off depreciation and expenses, $7,907,709, or $17.50 a share was paid out in dividends.

At a recent meeting at Houghton, Mich., of stockholders of the Calumet and Bisbee Development Company, ratification was given for the sale of the Calumet and Arizona Company, for $60,000, of the balance of the Development Company's holdings in this district.

Another furnace is to be added to the equipment of the Democrata smelter at Cananea, which is then expected to contribute 500,000 pounds of copper to the company's monthly output. The Democrata property, a short distance from Ronquillo, is a small one, but has a very rich and compact ore-body.

In a cross-cut at the end of a 500-foot tunnel, G. J. McCabe has cut an immensely valuable body of copper ore, in a mine he owns in the Huachuca Mountains.

Goldfield Oro.

Developments of a highly gratifying character continue to occur at the property of the Goldfield Oro Mining Company. After passing through fifteen feet of quartz and penetrating again a stratum of the andesite formation, the shaft, at a depth of 755 feet, has revealed another quartz body of exceedingly promising appearance, which bears out the accepted theory as to the geology of the territory. Manager Thomas F. Manning states that the material being hoisted from the bottom of the shaft is the most encouraging thus far encountered in the development of the property and he is of the opinion that a discovery of importance will be made in the near future.

Report Tells of Fine Vein in Mine.

Record of Development in District.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

GOLDFIELD (Nev.) April 9.—The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Atlanta Mines Company was held today at the offices in this camp. The old board of directors was re-elected for the ensuing year as follows: George Wingfield, Charles E. Knox, Clyde A. Heller, C. B. Zabriskie and A. H. Howe.

The report of General Manager K. M. Simpson, submitted to the meeting, shows that twenty-two feet is the present width of the vein first revealed several weeks ago on the 1750-foot level. Six feet of the vein is excellent ore, while the remainder is of a lower grade. In addition to the showing in the long crosscut, a crosscut run at a depth of 200 feet from the Jumbo No. 2 workings of the Goldfield Consolidated Mines Company into the Atlanta claim along the line of the Florence property, recently revealed a vein eleven feet wide, with a six-inch breccia streak that assays $12 a ton in gold. This vein, which is now being explored, is apparently an extension of one of the veins of the Florence property.

Goldfield Consolidated.

While developments during the last week have been of a routine character, the properties of the Goldfield Consolidated Mines Company have splendidly maintained themselves, sending their usual quota of ore to the mill.

Merger Mines.

It is expected that the Goldfield Merger Mines Company will in the near future make an announcement as to the date upon which the lateral development of its property will be resumed. Upon the occasion of his recent visit to Goldfield, President C. O. Whittemore stated that, as a result of the splendid discovery at depth in the property of the Atlanta Mines Company, its neighbor to the southwest, the Merger would soon inaugurate work designed to prove the continuity of the Atlanta ore body into its ground.

It is the consensus of opinion that the northern extension of the ore body will be revealed with a comparatively small amount of work in the Merger territory.

Jumbo Extension.

According to a preliminary estimate, made public by Vice-President Charles S. Sprague a few days ago, the gross profits of the Jumbo Extension Mining Company for the month of March will, when returns on shipments of ore made are received, approximate $32,900, the best showing the property has made in recent years. Operating expenses for the month are calculated at $8500, which will leave net earnings of $24,400.

During March the mine shipped to the Millers' sampler of the Western Ore Purchasing Company fourteen carloads of ore of the total value of $24,400, while concentrates from the treatment of ore at the company's leased mill at Bonnie Clare are estimated to be worth $8500. Vice-President Sprague stated that the estimates are conservative, "in line with an established policy. The high earnings are due to the improved size and value of the ore bodies and increased production, as well as higher savings at the mill."

The final report of General Superintendent Walter S. Norris for February, just made public, shows that during that month the mine produced 762.4 tons of milling ore and 316.7 tons of shipping ore.

C.O.D. Consolidated.

The property of the C.O.D. Consolidated Mining Company, operated under a lease by the Nevada Co-operative Mining Company, came to the front a few days ago with a noteworthy development. A south crosscut recently started from the east drift on the 260-foot intermediate level has revealed three feet of excellent ore and the management is highly pleased.

Other Properties.

There were no developments out of the ordinary during the week at the Vernal, Blue Bull, Booth or Sandstorm-Kendall. However, the development work in each of those properties continues to make excellent headway.

MAGMA OWNERS LOOK TO FUTURE

Maintain Mine Like Great Deposit Vault.

Osborne Group Bonded to San Franciscan.

Progress and Activities in Mining Districts.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) April 10.—The now famous Magma mine at Superior seems to be held by its owners as a sort of safety deposit vault, with an immense amount of high-grade sulphide ore for future stoping. Development work is proceeding steadily and the ore taken out in the course of development is shipped, some of it running as high as 70 per cent. copper, with 100 ounces of silver and $2 or so, in gold to the ton.

The second-class ore is said to average sixteen ounces copper and twenty-five ounces of silver, which is far above the best record of any other southwestern mine of importance. Exploration to the depth of 800 feet has been accomplished and as soon as large pumps are installed the work will be continued. There has been drilling below the 800 level but the management refuses to announce results.

All the advertisement the Magma gets is wholly unsolicited by the management and a stranger is not welcomed down the shaft. In general terms, it is stated that on the lower levels the mineralized body is no less than sixty feet in width, all of it said to be capable of being worked at a profit.

While the ore is generally sulphide, masses of carbonate are found as low as the 800 level, where the evidence of leaching seem as strong as at any point above. The company has nearly finished a concentrating mill in which will be treated the lowest grade ores, probably in order to avoid too large a dump, for the matter of income seems at the present time immaterial to the company.

Power is to be secured from the Roosevelt works. The towers for the transmission line are finished and the wires are expected to be strung from Miami some time this month.

The old Osborne copper mines, thirty miles west of Wickenburg, have been bonded to F. C. Alsdorf, a San Francisco mining engineer, by James Hauxhurst. The property has been worked intermittently for the past thirty years, in turn by John Osborne, John Loosley of San Francisco, Colin Timmons, the Maricopa Copper Mines Company, and the United States Copper Company. Alsdorf states his belief that he has vein very similar to that of the famous Coronado mine near Metcalf. The mineralized area is 144 feet in width. Some difficulty will probably be encountered in securing a sufficient water supply. Alsdorf is understood to represent the Paine-Weber syndicate. The price to be paid is said to be $100,000.

Business Houses Now Operating in Culver City

Grocery, pharmacy, confectionery, restaurant, wall paper and paint house, hardware, bakery, newspaper, garage, lumber yard, medical institute.

If this development has taken place in five months at Culver City, what will the next three years bring? Real estate experts predict a population of 5000 people in 1916. City-building authorities assert that Culver City occupies the most strategic position of any city in Southern California.

A noted railroad official said recently that Culver City will eventually be the real business center of the future "Greater Los Angeles."

Is it any wonder that several hundred thousand dollars worth of business, residence and industrial property has been sold at Culver City in the past twenty-four weeks?

The early buying opportunities (10 years ago) in Long Beach, Whittier, Santa Ana, Pasadena, Hollywood and Santa Monica are gone—but Culver City opportunities are here today. History will repeat itself! Go and visit this enterprising city NOW. Get it at original prices. Population and improvements make increased land values. Go and see if Culver City measures up to this announcement.

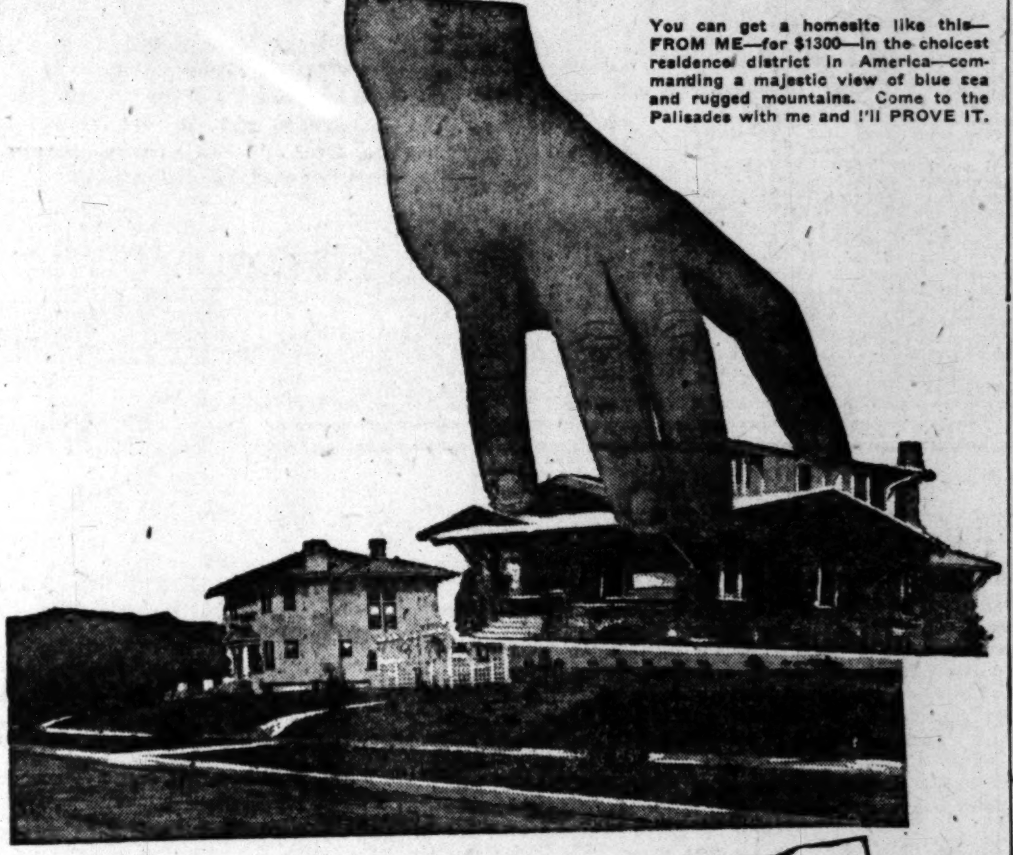
What a few months have done for Culver City.

Situated at the junction of important electric lines and between main traveled boulevards, this new seaward site has been a "go" from the very start.



You can get a homesite like this—FROM ME—for $1300—in the choicest residence district in America—commanding a majestic view of blue sea and rugged mountains. Come to the Palisades with me and I'll PROVE IT.

—put your new home in a neighborhood you can be proud of—next to $10,000 and $20,000 homes on $5000 and $10,000 lots. I can sell you a Palisades ocean and canyon view homesite—the best in the district—for $1300 and up.

Clip this ticket and present it at 519 Ferguson Bldg., 3rd and Hill Sts.

Let me show you these homesites — with improvements equaling anything in Southern California (all paid for)—on a 250-foot elevation, commanding a wonderful ocean and mountain view, the view that has made the Palisades famous.

Did you read of the $2,500,000 purchase of Santa Monica lands in the Los Angeles Times, March 8th? An elaborate improvement of this new property is virtually contracted for. It will be one of America's residential showplaces—where will be reared the imposing homes of some of America's wealthiest men.

Millions of dollars will be spent in this development — which will be practically adjoining my Palisades property.

I have not raised my prices—am still selling choice ocean and canyon view homesites at $1300 and up, $325 cash, balance 1, 2 and 3 years—right where lots are valued at $5000 and $10,000.

Clip the ticket and go to the Palisades with me in my private touring car. See my property. If it is not what I claim, don't buy.

WOODROW PARK OPENED.

New Subdivision Is Favorably Located to Participate in Present Activity of Seaward District.

The Sidney Goldman Company has opened a new residential tract on Washington boulevard, called Woodrow Park. The tract is located between Culver City and Venice, and adjoins the Del Mar Addition. It is well improved with paved streets, sidewalks, electroliers and water connection.

This district, in common with all the territory between Los Angeles and the sea, has recently entered upon a period of activity and the new tract is favorably situated to participate in it. A $5000 residence is to be built soon on a large lot sold last week to a Los Angeles man, and several other residences are projected.

THE SOUTH AFRICAN STRIKE.

Unionites Did Not Picket the Mines, but Marched Into the City to Pillage and Destroy Property.

"The tragedies which unfortunately attended the Johannesburg strike have been made the subject of strong comment by the unions in Australia," says Liberty and Progress, a Melbourne publication. "The West Australia Labor Congress no doubt voiced the general union view when it expressed the emphatic opinion 'that it should be recognized by all civilized governments that a person should not be killed in retaliation for any attempt or threatened attempt at the destruction of property.'

"The casualties in the Johannesburg riots numbered twenty persons killed and 150 wounded. Some 20,000 skilled white miners were concerned in the strike. They were demanding a forty-eight-hour week, bank to bank, working day (the wage being 25 shillings,) and the recognition of the union. Not getting their demands immediately acceded to, the miners went out on strike, and under the guidance of the union leaders marched on Johannesburg, taking possession of the railway station, which is some little distance out of town, and setting it on fire, then spreading into the city, looting the jewelers' shops, burning down the Star newspaper office and doing a great deal of other damage. A very grave situation was therefore created. An army of strikers, no doubt assisted by the criminal class, had taken possession of the biggest city in South Africa. They were burning public and other buildings, using dynamite, and helping themselves freely to the property of citizens, although the latter did not belong to the hated class of capitalists.

"The Johannesburg authorities, judging by the extent to which the riot spread, seem to have acted all too slowly. It is a serious thing for a city to see its railway in the hands of a destructive mob, the shops of its citizens looted, and lynch-law vengeance executed upon those whom the mob held in disfavor. A little more latitude in Johannesburg and the whole city might have been ruined. When, however, the authorities acted they did not flinch from the responsibility. Warning after warning being disregarded, the strikers were fired upon with ball cartridge, and the rioting was quickly quelled.

"The strike was also declared off, the men agreeing to submit their grievances to the government, which they could easily have done without striking and handing the city over to mob rule. Their actions showed that they neither considered their own interests nor those of the community in the matter. They might have taken possession of the mines, which stretch in three long lines over the famous Witwatersand, all belonging to the hated capitalists. But it was the city they wanted, which belongs not to the capitalists but to the community. Picketing the mines was cold and uninteresting work, but to pillage and perhaps destroy the city, and raise the red Socialist flag of revolution for a few days seemed to appeal to the leaders of the strike. To consider men slain in such a cause, which was practically war upon the community, as martyrs is a misuse of the English language."

A LABOR TRUST.

Employers Are About Willing to Leave Their Establishment Closed Until Unionists Want to Work.

[Isaac Barton in the Square Deal, "Is the Federation of Labor a Trust?"] Is this not a very pertinent question to ask pending the anti-trust bill now before Congress, which has for its object the restraining of all trusts, combines and monopolies which have been trying to monopolize business and dictate to others that they must do business to suit those mentioned or they would do their best to put them out of business? Now have not trade-unions been going along on about these same lines? History records a great number of costly strikes both to employer and employee brought on by the union to force an employer to recognize the union, or to force a closed shop, or because an employer refused to discharge some non-union man or because he had discharged a few union men—these are only a few minor incidents of what so often leads up to a walk-out and a strike. Labor leaders do not control the element they let loose or call out, and there is a certainty that rioting, lawlessness and destruction of property will follow—too often immediately.

It is being seriously considered by many employers now, especially textile workers, large manufacturing industries, etc., whether it will not be cheaper to simply shut down the plants until the unions want to go to work than to fight a strike as it is generally conducted.

When an organization of labor becomes so strong that it can tie up a whole railroad or railroad system, as was so nearly done recently with all the eastern railways, or tie up a whole street car line and other industries, along the lines now being laid down in the anti-trust bills, what may we expect?

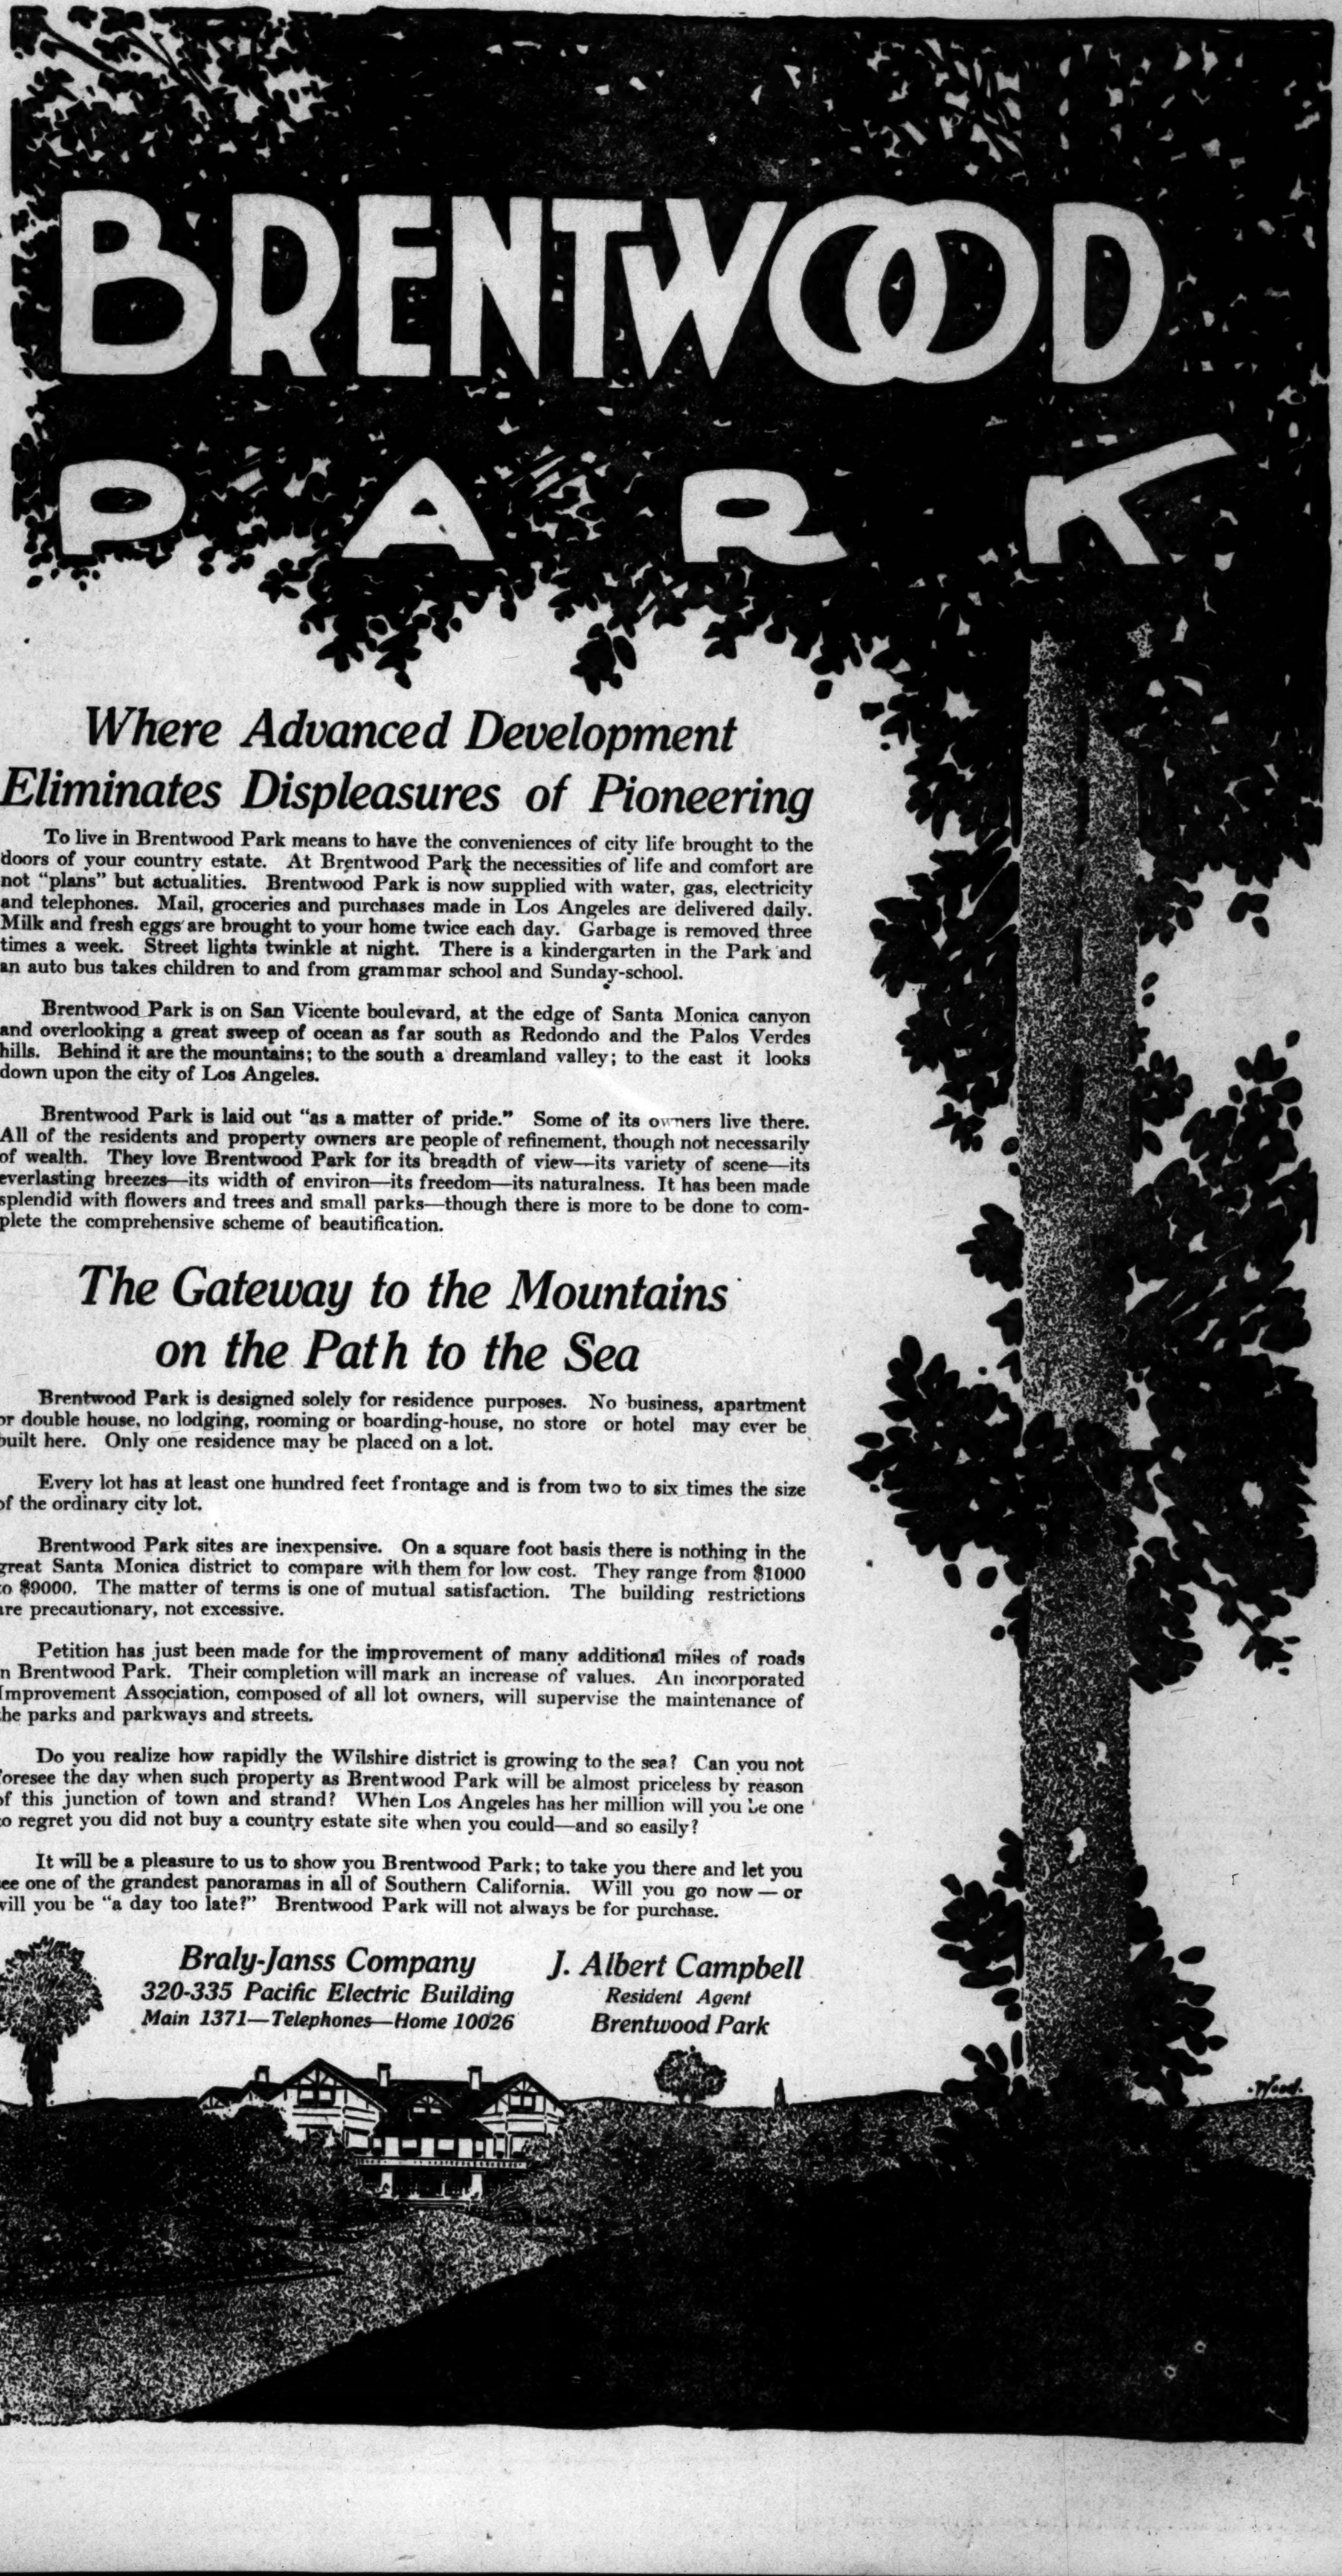
In those bills it is intended to control them by imposing heavy fines or imprisonment, or both. Now, suppose the heads of labor organizations were asked to obey the common laws of the country, morally, legally and financially, especially, as well as to recognize and live up to those principles. Down in the Constitution of the United States—the protection of the life, the liberty and the property of every citizen, whether an alien or native born—is guaranteed, and we simply ask why they should not do so. Now it remains to be seen in framing these anti-trust bills whether politicians and others will go along the whole line as a matter of equity and justice. If they do not then an opinion can easily be found as to why.

A Linguistic Baby.

[Washington Post:] Scientists of Denver are making a study of Goss Aragon, 3½ years old, regarded as an infant prodigy.

The child, the son of an Italian washerwoman and a Spanish laborer, not only knows his alphabet, but speaks English, Italian and Spanish. He sings well, writes, dances, and is a capable performer on four stringed instruments.

Physicians declare the child is normal, but the possessor of the most wonderful intelligence they have ever encountered in one so young.



Where Advanced Development Eliminates Displeasures of Pioneering

To live in Brentwood Park means to have the conveniences of city life brought to the doors of your country estate. At Brentwood Park the necessities of life and comfort are not "plans" but actualities. Brentwood Park is now supplied with water, gas, electricity and telephones. Mail, groceries and purchases made in Los Angeles are delivered daily. Milk and fresh eggs are brought to your home twice each day. Garbage is removed three times a week. Street lights twinkle at night. There is a kindergarten in the Park and an auto bus takes children to and from grammar school and Sunday-school.

Brentwood Park is on San Vicente boulevard, at the edge of Santa Monica canyon and overlooking a great sweep of ocean as far south as Redondo and the Palos Verdes hills. Behind it are the mountains; to the south a dreamland valley; to the east it looks down upon the city of Los Angeles.

Brentwood Park is laid out "as a matter of pride." Some of its owners live there. All of the residents and property owners are people of refinement, though not necessarily of wealth. They love Brentwood Park for its breadth of view—its variety of scene—its everlasting breezes—its width of environ—its freedom—its naturalness. It has been made splendid with flowers and trees and small parks—though there is more to be done to complete the comprehensive scheme of beautification.

The Gateway to the Mountains on the Path to the Sea

Brentwood Park is designed solely for residence purposes. No business, apartment or double house, no lodging, rooming or boarding-house, no store or hotel may ever be built here. Only one residence may be placed on a lot.

Every lot has at least one hundred feet frontage and is from two to six times the size of the ordinary city lot.

Brentwood Park sites are inexpensive. On a square foot basis there is nothing in the great Santa Monica district to compare with them for low cost. They range from $1000 to $9000. The matter of terms is one of mutual satisfaction. The building restrictions are precautionary, not excessive.

Petition has just been made for the improvement of many additional miles of roads in Brentwood Park. Their completion will mark an increase of values. An incorporated Improvement Association, composed of all lot owners, will supervise the maintenance of the parks and parkways and streets.

Do you realize how rapidly the Wilshire district is growing to the sea? Can you not foresee the day when such property as Brentwood Park will be almost priceless by reason of this junction of town and strand? When Los Angeles has her million will you be one to regret you did not buy a country estate site when you could—and so easily?

It will be a pleasure to us to show you Brentwood Park; to take you there and let you see one of the grandest panoramas in all of Southern California. Will you go now — or will you be "a day too late?" Brentwood Park will not always be for purchase.

APRIL WILL BE BANNER MONTH.

GREAT ACTIVITY IN REALTY, PORTERVILLE REPORT.

Deals Involve Every Variety of Land, Indicating a Widespread Demand Upon Part of Investors. Buyers from Southland Said to Be Numerous.

PORTERVILLE, April 11.—The predictions of dealers that April would be a banner month are being fulfilled as far as the opening days of the month are concerned. The week's trading saw transfers of perhaps as wide a range of property as at any period in the history of the district. The trades included mountain ranches, peach orchards, orange groves, alfalfa land, olive property and bare lands, indicating that the demand is widespread and that financial conditions are again returning to normal. While a large proportion of the investors (as usual) were from Southern California, various Eastern and Southern States were represented as well.

C. L. Colquhoun, who recently arrived here from Mississippi, has purchased of Walter Michaelis a ten-acre pomegranate grove in the Sunnyside district. Colquhoun will build a bungalow and make his home on the property.

G. Frank Re tre, a sugar planter of Cuba, closed a deal this week for the purchase of the E. B. Cornell orange orchard in the Sunnyside district. The tract includes fifteen acres of which fourteen are in full-bearing early navels.

The Rev. August Bahr, who is the spiritual head of a colony of German Lutherans now living in the Sanger country, has purchased 820 acres of general purpose land in the Deer Creek district south of this city. L. N. Cornell was the seller. About twenty acres of the tract will be put out to olive trees this year and twenty acres checked and sown to alfalfa.

B. J. Christmas has sold his ten-acre orange grove in the Worth district to T. A. Bell of Los Angeles. Bell has plans for the improvement of the property.

One of the big transfers of the week was the sale of the J. M. Thompson ranch in the dairy district, southwest of Tulare, to O. G. Myron of Alhambra. The property includes 480 acres, all of which is alfalfa land. It is stated that a large portion of the property will be put in to alfalfa this year. C. L. Lillis, also of Alhambra, has purchased the O. R. Sheldon property in the Tipton dairy district. This ranch includes 100 acres of fine alfalfa land.

J. Lonquist and B. Hage of Southern California have purchased twenty acres of orchard land on Tennessee Nob in the Terra Bella district. This year they will set out half the land to early navels. Work has started on an irrigation system.

B. J. Christmas has purchased of J. A. Wallace the 480-acre property in the foothills known locally as the "Rock Springs" ranch, one of the old-time cattle ranches of the district. This property is largely grazing land.

R. M. Lana has purchased the twenty-acre peach orchard of Alexander Watts, situated in the Reservation district east of this city.

Deeds have been passed today by C. E. Holland, southside property owner, to the Chamber of Commerce, for four acres of land situated just outside the city limits to the south to be used as the site for the cannery of the Tulare County Growers' Association. This marks the last step in financing the $20,000 plant which is to be run as a co-operative proposition by the growers of Farmersville, Exeter, Westfield, Plano, Porterville and Poplar.

Contracts are signed now for the delivery to the plant of 8000 tons of deciduous fruit for the first season's run.

BUYS NAVEL GROVE.

San Dimas Man Becomes Owner of Improved Charter Oak Citrus Property—Arizona Woman Acquires Ranch.

SAN DIMAS, April 11.—Frank H. Harwood has purchased from E. D. Keckler the ten-acre navel grove which lies just opposite the Charter Oak schoolhouse. The property is improved with a modern house. The consideration is given at $20,000, partly trade, Harwood turning in his home on San Dimas avenue. The deal was handled by Smith & Foster of Covina, and the San Dimas Real Estate Company.

E. M. Cheney has just sold his orange ranch south of the grammar school to a Mrs. Crowam from Arizona. The new owner will not take actual possession until fall. The consideration is named at $20,000, partly in exchange.

FINE SUBURBAN HOMES.

Brentwood Place Rapidly Building Up to High-Class Residences—In Heart of Growing District.

Fourteen fine residences have been built in the past year in Brentwood place, on the San Vicente boulevard, in the Westgate district. This highly-improved tract reflects the general extension and rapid development of all the district between the city and the sea. Recent sales indicate the entire tract will soon be built up to high-class suburban residences.

The lots are sixty to ninety feet in width and 145 feet deep. Of the 500 comprised in the tract 300 have been sold at prices ranging from $900 to $3500. The tract is 370 feet above sea level and commands a splendid view of the ocean and nearby mountains. The improvements are of the best type and in keeping with the general tendency to conform to high ideals in building up the residence district toward the ocean.

A $35,000 house is now being built on the tract for C. P. Thomas. C. L. Bundy has a $20,000 home there and James R. H. Wagner, president of the James R. H. Wagner Company, owners and agents of the tract, has recently completed a beautifully-designed $12,000 residence. R. C. Lewis and Paul King are among other men who have recently built expensive residences.

The tract has one of the finest cement tennis courts in California and on these have been played some of the best of the recent matches in the West.

Among six recent purchases reported in the subdivision was the sale of a lot to Mrs. K. S. Redding of San Francisco, who plans an attractive home.

ARTISTIC INTERIORS.

Real Possibilities of Arrangement and Decoration of Average Home Realized by But Few Persons.

[New York Press:] Comparatively few realize the possibilities of their own homes. They admire the artistic beauty of other houses, and long to make theirs the same, but cannot discover what is lacking.

The furniture is of an excellent quality and the floor covering in a good condition. They did not consider expense when selecting pictures or ornaments, yet the living rooms present a cheerless aspect. Wherein lies the secret of an artistic, livable room? If the furniture and rugs are in good taste, consider the wallpaper. This serves as the background, the scene setting for all else, and should be selected with much thought. A neutral tint or shade is best. Wallpaper should not be obtrusive. A plain amber, cream, dull green, tan or delft blue serves as an artistic wall covering for a living room.

Now examine the windows. Are the draperies in harmony with the walls? If not, change them immediately. Next to the windows hang curtains of plain or barred net, deep ecru in tone, and over these draperies of pongee, linen or casement cloth to match or harmonize with the paper.

A border of stencil designs produces an attractive decoration for window draperies, table or pillow covers.

Now carefully consider the small details of furnishing, which count for so much. The drop light may be of exquisite workmanship, but the shade is dusty and faded. If it is a fabric shade, recover the frame at home. Attractive shades are displayed in all the large shops covering an extensive range of prices.

Book racks can be purchased to keep books in a neat row. Any personal taste can be gratified in the selection of these. They are displayed in many charming designs.

The scrap basket is apt to be overlooked and thus it detracts from the artisticness of the room. Willow baskets are always charming. They come in all colors, and if decorated with a flat bow of ribbon, contribute a touch of daintiness not to be ignored.

If your room boasts of a fireplace, is it attractive? Japanese screens artistically painted or embroidered can be had at small cost. When logs are burned, use fire screens of brass or iron.

Do not overcrowd the room with bric-a-brac. A few vases and jardinieres of green or brown pottery are all that is required.

It is no longer fashionable to cram every available space with porcelain and china. They add nothing to the beauty of a room and only serve as dust catchers.

With careful thought and little expense your house can be made attractive. If you cannot afford to change everything at once, do it by degrees until every room in the house is a credit to the owner.

Steel-clad Bank Autos.

[Popular Mechanics:] French bankers, aroused by many recent robberies, have adopted steel-clad motors for conveying bullion, currency and other valuables through the streets of Paris, as well as distributing money to outlying banks. The automobiles are constructed with an all-steel body, entirely inclosed, except in front. Admittance to the interior is from the front of the vehicle, where an armed guard sits beside the driver.

Beverly Hills

BEVERLY HILLS is a setting for a home—YOUR home. The plan for the home may call for a modest bungalow or a replica of an Italian palace—but the setting, the site, is all-important.

The favored ones who are able to live in Southern California should never be content with a LOT on some street, where the outlook is bounded and restricted by brick walls.

No. That's not the place to enjoy California or a California home.

Come out into the open—to beautiful Beverly Hills.

Come out and watch the glorious sun rise and set—where the air is clean and clear—and these daily glories can be enjoyed.

Come out and see the Santa Monica mountains in their varying moods and colorings—never twice the same—always magnificent, mysterious, wonderful.

Come and stroll in the park at Beverly Hills and enjoy the collection of foreign and domestic flora, the rare trees and shrubs which far-away countries across seas have contributed.

The canyons, too, will be a wonderland to those who have been living on a town lot, and have yet to listen to the call of the wild. These are but a step from the Beverly Hills man's back gate.

Beverly Hills is a California homesite in truth. The lots themselves are big and generous. Villa lots have a frontage of from 80 to 100 feet and in many cases are from 250 to 350 feet in depth.

And the range of prices is big and generous, beginning at $1700 and up, each lot being well situated, facing a good street, with all improvements in.

Good neighbors at Beverly Hills—naturally no man with a grouch would choose beautiful Beverly Hills as a place to live, for the atmosphere, the view, the songs of the birds, the flowers and green grass, the sunshine and the glimpse of the nearby City of the Angels would all help to drive away his gloom and make him vow he had found another Arcadia.

COME TO BEVERLY HILLS

Our autos are at the disposal of those who would like to look over the beauties of Beverly Hills, and our agent, Mr. Rowe, will gladly act as guide in your quest for an ideal California setting for your home. You will enjoy reading our free book, "On the Road to Beverly Hills," illustrated.

MILLIONS BEING SPENT IN DOWNTOWN BLOCKS.

Building Activity in Business District of Los Angeles Practically Unaffected by Recent Lull in General Construction Operations—Many Splendid Improvement Projects Now Taking Shape.

WITH buildings costing in the aggregate close to $10,000,000 actually under construction in its business district, with structures representing nearly $5,000,000 more ready to be started at once and with other downtown improvement projects to the approximate value of $10,000,000 shaping toward a definite launching, Los Angeles is every day assuming more and more the aspect of a metropolis. The lull that has affected building in general, has not been in evidence in the downtown district, where big buildings have continued to go ahead as though no such thing as business dullness had ever been suggested.

Nearing completion at this time are the $1,250,000 Merchants National Bank building at the northeast corner of Sixth and Spring streets, the $500,000 Hotel Stowell and its neighbor, the $250,000 I. W. Hellman building, on the east side of Spring street just south of Fourth, and the $750,000 Metropolitan block at the northwest corner of Fifth and Broadway. The first two structures are each twelve stories in height and the last two seven and nine stories, respectively.

The steel framework of the thirteen-story new Rosslyn Hotel at the northwest corner of Fifth and Main streets has just been completed, and the F. O. Engstrum Company is making record time in the general construction contract. The Weaver Construction Company is rushing the building of the first unit of the new Broadway Department Store on the west side of Broadway, between Fourth and Fifth streets. Each of these splendid structures is costing in excess of $1,000,000.

The thirteen-story Mason building on the east side of Spring, between Seventh and Eighth, has passed the steel skeleton stage and is ready for the exterior finishers. The fourteen-story Building Owners' block on the south side of Sixth street, between Hill and Olive, has been faced with terra cotta to the third floor. Both are $500,000 improvements. The steel work of the first six stories of the projected eleven-story Sunset Telephone building on the east side of Hill street, between Sixth and Seventh, was finished last week.

On the east side of Hope street just north of Sixth the second of the two thirteen-story wings of the $1,000,000 Bible Institute has reached a height of ten floors. Workmen are now finishing the dome of the great $600,000 institutional church of the Trinity Methodist Episcopal congregation, a structure ten stories in height, which stands on Grand avenue, near Ninth. Construction has just been begun on the ten-story Broadway Leasehold building on the east side of Broadway just below Ninth.

Work is to be begun at once upon the $1,000,000 block of the Commercial Fireproof Building Company at the northwest corner of Fifth and Spring streets, the first floor of which magnificent twelve-story building is to be occupied by the Citizens' National Bank. The site for the twelve-story Haas building at the northeast corner of Seventh and Broadway is now being cleared. Contracts are being let for the eight-story Kerchkoff building at the northwest corner of Sixth and Los Angeles streets. Plans have been completed for a modern building to be erected at the northwest corner of Eighth and Broadway by Hulett C. Merritt of Pasadena, and for an eight-story hotel projected by a local syndicate at the northeast corner of Fourth and Olive.

Among the projects now shaping and likely to go ahead at any time may be mentioned an eight-story hotel planned by William Garland for the southeast corner of Fourth and Olive, a ten-story block to be built by I. H., M. M. and S. T. Norton, at the southeast corner of Fifth and Main, a twelve-story building projected by R. H. Raphael and James Moses at the northwest corner of Seventh and Main, an eight-story loft building for S. K. Lindley on West Fourth street, a thirteen-story building for Metcalf & Ryan on Seventh, near Spring, a now downtown department store; a twelve-story building for the Spring Street Investment Company on Spring, near Eighth, two hotels on West Sixth, a large loft building on Hill, near Second, and an office building for Herbert J. Goudge on Spring, near Seventh.

REPAIRING DAMAGE.

GLENDALE, April 11.—City Engineer Lynch has just informed the City Trustees that 10,000 feet of the sides of the Verdugo Wash, which caused so much damage to this section by breaking out at the recent heavy rains, have been improved and protected. Seventy-nine piling have been driven to an average depth of thirteen feet and in line with these dykes have been constructd composed of brush and trees backed by gravel. Street Superintendent Tarr has been instructed to clean Verdugo road of the sand which was washed upon it during the recent rains.

BIG OIL LAND CASE UP SOON.

Great Fraud in Osage Territory Is Charged.

Holdings Valued at Nine Hundred Millions.

Uncle Sam Oil Company and Others Involved.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

OKLAHOMA CITY (Okla.) April 8.—Charged with having conspired to defraud the government of Osage Indian land oil and gas leases, in Eastern Oklahoma, valued at $900,000,000, members of the Uncle Sam Oil Company of Kansas, and others, will be tried before Judge John H. Cotteral, here April 23. The case is considered one of the most important Oil Company and the Uncle Sam expected to bare secrets of certain big producing and marketing companies and the Uncle Sam Company in their fight for control of the vast mid-continent oil field.

The defendants in the case are, H. H. Tucker, president of the Uncle Sam Company, Kansas City, Kan.; A. L. Wilson, general counsel for the Uncle Sam Company, Kansas City, Mo.; T. J. Leahy, Pawhuska, Okla., former member of the Constitutional Convention of Oklahoma; William Leahy, banker, Pawhuska, Okla.; Wesley M. Dial, former chairman of the State Republican Committee, Pawhuska; E. F. Scott, attorney, Pawhuska; Ed Brown, former principal chief of the Osage tribe; Bacon Rind, elected principal chief of the Osage tribe, and William Plumb, attorney, Washington, D. C.

The government has subpoenaed nearly 100 witnesses, among them being Walter L. Fisher, former Secretary of the Interior. These witnesses will come from various parts of the United States, including New York, North Carolina, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and the District of Columbia. It is not known how many the defense will produce.

The indictments were first returned by the Federal grand jury at Enid, Okla., in June, 1913. The defendants were twice again indicted by the Federal grand jury at Lawton, Okla., in October, 1913. They are specifically charged with having conspired to defraud the government, and with having conspired to alienate from the government the confidence of the Osage National Council.

It is alleged that the defendants and other persons unknown to the grand jurors, conspired to procure by deceit and fraud the approval of the Secretary of the Interior to four leases, covering approximately 800,000 acres of Osage land for less than their leasing value and without competitive bidding or cash bonus, and upon terms and conditions hostile to the best interests of the Osage Indians.

CORRUPTED COUNCIL.

The defendants are charged with having corrupted and dominated the Osage National Council so that the council would not be governed by the rules and regulations promulgated by the Interior Department, and that they gave individual members of the council money, beer, whisky, wine and the promises of big rewards to secure the valuable leases at a less royalty than demanded by the government.

It is also charged that the defendants conspired—in the event that they could not deceive or obstruct the Secretary of the Interior—to have a bill introduced in Congress validating the four leases and that they had advertisements printed in various newspapers which contained misleading statements regarding the conduct of the Interior Department and called upon all persons who might read these statements to petition members of Congress to vote for the validation of the four leases.

The indictments also allege that as a part of the conspiracy the defendants corruptly elected the entire Osage Council in 1912, and compelled them to sign, before election, a written pledge by which they agreed to support the four leases and oppose all others.

The Osage reservation embraces 1,500,000 acres, and has produced to date over 60,000,000 barrels of oil, valued at approximately $50,000,000 upon which the government has received in royalties nearly $5,000,000. Two tracts of land have been leased under the new rules and regulations since the Secretary of the Interior removed the old Osage Council from office.

In the first leasing, bids were accepted for 42,000 acres and a cash bonus of $150,000 was received. At the second letting, bids were received on about 10,000 acres and over $500,000 in cash bonuses given. Oklahoma subsidiaries of the Standard Oil Company were successful in securing the greater part of the acreage, when the land was released.

TRY TO AVOID TPIAL.

The defendants in the coming trial have made every effort possible to avoid trial. First, they filed a motion to quash the indictment, upon the ground of alleged irregularities, charging that Special Agent Fred S. Cook, of the Interior Department, who worked up the case for the government in the first instance, had resorted to improper means in securing testimony of witnesses and had compelled some of the Indians to testify untruthfully.

They also alleged that Homer N. Boardman, at that time United States Attorney, had told the grand jurors that United States Senator Robert L. Owen desired the indictments returned, and had used other improper influences upon the grand jury.

The motion to quash the indictment was heard by Federal Judge John H. Cotteral at Guthrie, Okla., and a full and complete investigation was made of the grand jury probe and the work of Special Agent Cook preceding it. The judge ruled that as a matter of law, he could not inquire into the evidence submitted to the grand jury, and also decided that there was no evidence to sustain charges of impropriety of either Special Agent Cook or United States Attorney Boardman.

The defendants then filed demurrers to the indictments, alleging, first, that the United States had no jurisdiction of the subject matter; second, that the indictments did not charge any offense, and third, that the indictments were involved, confused and indefinite, and did not inform the defendants clearly of the crime with which they were charged.

These demurrers were argued at Guthrie before Judge Cotteral, who, after taking the matter under advisement several weeks, filed a lengthy written opinion overruling the demurrers. The authorities cited by Judge Cotteral are: first, the case of Hyde versus Shine, 199, United States 62, and second, the case of Haas versus Henkel, 216, United States 479. The former case was one of the celebrated Hyde-Benson land fraud cases originating in California, and the latter was the famous cotton leak case, which was originated in the Department of Agriculture, where secret information had been given by an official to a New York cotton broker, regarding the condition and the amount of the cotton crop.

The government had elected to go on trial upon the indictment, which was presented at Lawton in October, 1913, as it is the most comprehensive of the three indictments.

This indictment first sets out statements as to the existence and exercise by the government of the function of protecting Indian tribes in their possession and enjoyment of mineral lands, set apart for them by laws and treaties, and refers especially to the part taken by the Osage National Council in leasing lands of that tribe for oil and gas mining purposes.

It is also alleged that one of the governmental functions is to secure the best and highest rentals and royalties for such lands whenever they are leased. It is asserted that the Secretary of the Interior, in accordance with the act of Congress, approved June 28, 1906, issued rules and regulations governing the leasing of the Osage oil and gas lands and that the President, in accordance with the same act of Congress, fixed the royalty at one-sixth of the oil and gas production.

The government is represented in the coming trial by Edward C. O'Brien, of Washington, D. C., special assistant to the Attorney-General, in addition to the local United States Attorneys official force. It is expected that S. R. Rush of Omaha, Neb., special assistant to the Attorney-General, who is now prosecutting the Florida Everglades cases, will also participate in the trial of the case.

The defendants have retained for their counsel the following attorneys: Ledbetter, Stuart & Bell, McAdams & Haskell, Embry & Hastings and O. W. Cromwell. John Embry was formerly United States Attorney for the Western District of Oklahoma, and O. W. Cromwell was formerly Attorney-General o' Oklahoma.

ORDER FIVE NEW DIESEL SHIPS.

EAST ASIATIC COMPANY ADDING TO MOTOR FLEET.

Is Now Transforming Three Steam Vessels into Motorships, and Will Also Soon Have Training Ship. Means an Increase in the Use of Petroleum.

That the stamp of approval has been unqualifiedly placed upon the Diesel engine is evidenced by the fact that the East Asiatic Company, whose motorship Siam recently visited this Coast, has placed orders for five new Diesel ships to be delivered during 1914 or 1915, and also is now having three vessels fitted with the motor engines, besides building a training ship.

It will be remembered that the company's Siam, which is one of four motorships it now has in operation, arrived at Los Angeles harbor about Christmas time, and that oil men generally were greatly interested in the new type of explosion engine which uses crude oil as fuel.

The Diesel motor is proving a revolutionary invention, as far as petroleum in relation to maritime trade is concerned.

Of the vessels which the East Asiatic Company is now transforming into the Diesel type, each has a capacity of 3480 tons dead weight and each will be equipped with a 1600 horsepower engine. One is to be ready this month and the others are shortly to follow.

Of the five new ships for which orders have been placed, two will have a capacity of 10,000 tons dead weight and an indicated horsepower of 3300; two others will each have a capacity of 7000 tons dead weight and an indicated horsepower of 2500; the fifth will be of the same capacity but will have a 4100-horsepower engine.

The training ship will be a sailing vessel of 5000 tons dead weight capacity, equipped with an auxiliary Diesel engine of 600 horsepower. On this boat crews will be broken in to the work connected with the operation of a Diesel engine.

The Diesel motor in a general way is somewhat similar to an automobile engine in operation. However, the oil is ignited by the tremendous pressure to which it is subject when forced into the cylinders, instead of by a spark. When the vessel equipped with a Diesel engine is in motion practically no smoke issues from the small pipe between the masts which takes the place of the funnel in the modern steam liner. The engine for speed, cleanliness and economy already has attained great favor. It is believed that it will ultimately largely supersede the steam engine.

It is interesting in this connection to note that in this city at present are representatives of a syndicate of British shipowners who control the patents on the Diesel engines, and who are now endeavoring to secure an oil output in California to supply their needs.

STANDARD CONSERVING GAS.

Product of Every Well Used as Fuel at El Segundo Refinery After Gasoline Is Extracted.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WHITTIER, April 10.—Gas from the Standard's famous well No. 7 on the Emery lease is now being used as fuel under the boilers of the Standard's immense refining plant at El Segundo. When the famous well was brought in the gas was allowed to escape into the open air, and was burned, making a light to the southwest of this city that was several times mistaken for flaming buildings.

With crews working day and night the Standard completed a pipe line to El Segundo, and as quickly as possible, the great gas output is put through a compressor, and sent to the refining plant. The compressor is now taking care of 4,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily, taking from this about fifteen barrels of gasoline and light distillate, and forcing the dry gas to the big boilers at El Segundo.

The Standard No. 7 is now flowing about 6200 barrels of oil per day. With its immense production of gas, which is now wholly conserved, and its great record as an oil producer, this well easily maintains its rank as the most valuable south of the Tehachepi.

LEASE REVERTS TO THE BUICK.

General Petroleum Returns "Thirty-two" Holding.

Attempts to Revive Dead Gushers Being Made.

Record of Developments in State's Fields.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BAKERSFIELD, April 10.—The Buick Oil Company is once again in possession of its property on section 32, which for about a year was leased to the General Petroleum, and is endeavoring to get the old wells back on production. Superintendent F. O. Patterson, who had charge of the lease in the palmy days of the company, is again directing operations at the property.

The General Petroleum Company succeeded in shutting off the water in the famous No. 1 well, but was unable to get it on production without again letting in the water.

In order to test the further producing capacity of well No. 21 of the K. T. & O., on section 27, 31-23, which was such a spectacular sight when it caught fire, the crater is being emptied and the walls will be caved in that the foundation for a new derrick may be laid. The well will be cleaned and Standard tools used to redrill. Should there be danger of infiltration cement will be used to shut off the flow of water. It is believed that the well may again be made a good producer.

Well No. 1 of the Lakeview Oil Company on section 25, 12-24, which was once the greatest oil well in the world, is to be redrilled in the hope that it will again produce. Last Friday the well was dynamited at a depth of 1700 feet that a portion of the pipe might be side-tracked.

Water Trouble.

Well No. 2 of the Union Oil Company on the McLeod lease, section 34, 31-23, is to be abandoned and the casing pulled. The water will then be plugged off. Infiltration has threatened the adjoining territory and the Union will lose heavily by shutting off the well. However, it is believed to be the only safe course to pursue. No. 2 has been such a great producer that it is supposed it has undermined a large territory, and the casing collapsing, the water has seeped into the oil sand.

The Monte Cristo is redrilling, deepening and cleaning out its old producers in Kern River, with considerable success, as far as increasing their production is concerned.

The Standard's test well on section 16, 31-23, is down 3400 feet with a rotary.

The O. B. Oil Company on section 22, 32-24, has resumed drilling with the rotary after ten days' drilling with cable tools. This is the first well the O. B. company has drilled on the lease which was formerly known as the Maple Leaf lease.

The K. T. & O.'s No. 6 well came in lately, with 1400 barrels production of 29 gravity oil. Well No. 22 on section 35, 31-23, is also on the producing list with an average of 500 barrels a day. The oil is the same gravity as No. 6.

Well No. 3 of the General Petroleum, section 32, 12-23 had an oil and gas blowout last Thursday at a depth of 2440 feet.

Well No. 3 of the Olig Crude Oil Company in the McKittrick field is now on the pump with an estimated yield of 200 barrels daily.

On the B. B. and E. R. Dudley lease in the Lost Hills district, five wells are to be pumped by electricity. A fifteen-horse-power new style internal resistance motor will be used.

The rig of the Twenty-five Oil Company on section 25, 32-23, No. 4 well, was recently destroyed by fire. About midnight a workman carrying a lantern entered the rig and ignition from this started the trouble. No one was hurt and the property loss was covered by insurance.

A number of wells, the M. J. and M. and M. lease on section 36, 12-24, Maricopa flat, are producing and several are almost ready to be brought in. The well is ready to put on the beam.

In a fishing job on a well of the Section Twenty-five Oil Company, section 25, 32-23, air pressure was used to dislodge the tools.

Brea Canyon Well.

FULLERTON, April 10.—The Fullerton Oil Company has brought in well No. 4 in Brea Canyon with a production of about 250 barrels daily of 22 gravity oil.

The Brea Canyon Oil Company's well No. 12a, believed to be in the Birch sand, is now producing about 500 barrels of oil a day.

The deepest well in Brea Canyon is now being drilled by the Birch Oil Company at about 4200 feet. It is in the oil sand.

The St. Helena Oil Company expects to bring in well No. 2 on the Anaheim Union Water Company's lease within a few days at a depth of a little over 3000 feet. The well is now down in 150 feet of oil sand.

The company has a well down 1600 feet on the George Johnson place and has also commenced another new well on the same lease.

Purchase Lot.

WHITTIER, April 10.—Announcement has just been made that the Murphy Oil Company has acquired a fifty-foot lot fronting on Greenleaf avenue and will soon erect an office building. At present the Murphy Company's office is in the oil field, some three miles east of this city, but in view of the large development work now being done by the company in citrus culture an office is necessary in town. The lot acquired here is in the first block north of the city's business center.

The Murphy outfit not long since acquired valuable acreage on the Southern Pacific tracks in the west part of town, and it is likely that they will soon maintain their own packing house, as their large lemon and orange acreage will soon be in bearing. The company recently leased its valuable oil holdings to the Stanford.

RESULTS OF ELECTION.

Directorate of General Petroleum Chosen for Ensuing Year—Marketer Active in Northwest.

At the annual meeting of the General Petroleum Company during the past week the following directors were elected: John Barneson, J. C. Cebrian, R. R. Colgate, E. J. de Sabla, Jr., Victor Etienne, J. D. Grant, Leon Sloss, A. L. Weil, John Brown, William R. Kennedy, Virgil F. Shaw, L. N. Farnum and J. Leslie Barneson. On the Executive Committee are John Barneson, L. N. Farnum, A. L. Weil, Robert Mitchell and William R. Kennedy. Officers elected are as follows: John Barneson, president; R. R. Colgate, A. L. Weil and Victor Etienne, Jr., vice-presidents; Virgil F. Shaw, secretary, and Robert Mitchell, treasurer. It is stated that the company earned in excess of its bond interests last year $90,000. The production of oil totaled 3,500,000 barrels last year.

Among the recent developments of importance in connection with the General Petroleum's physical development has been the establishment of a marketing station by the National Petroleum Company at Vancouver, B. C. The National Petroleum Company, acts as the sales agent for the General Petroleum, and although not owned entirely by the same interests, is closely affiliated with the latter. The company has been selling at Seattle for some time, and is now marketing fuel oil in Canada, which enters that country free of duty. The Numana, a tank steamer of 30,000 barrels capacity, belonging to the interests which control the General Petroleum has been making regular trips to the Northwest from San Pedro, and the tankers De Sabla and Barneson will shortly be placed in service on the same run.

Satisfied.

DIRECTORATE IS ABOUT SAME.

PRACTICALLY NO CHANGE IN PERSONNEL OF ASSOCIATED.

Company's Refinery at Avon Is Rapidly Paying for Itself—Net Earnings Last Year from Plant Over One Hundred Thousand Dollars.

Directors of the Associated Oil Company elected at the annual meeting last week are as follows: J. A. Chanslor, T. O. Edwards, F. B. Henderson, Rudolph Herold, Jr., R. P. Schwerin, M. H. Whittier, F. H. Buck, Frank G. Drum, William F. Herrin, John C. Kirkpatrick and William Sproule. The last five named compose the Executive Committee. The following officers were elected: William Sproule, president; J. R. Lewis, vice-president, at New York; F. B. Henderson, assistant general manager; P. G. Williams, secretary; W. A. Sloan, treasurer; C. L. Coppage, assistant secretary; R. G. Page, assistant secretary, in New York. There was practically no change in the personnel.

Besides excerpts already published locally, the report of the Associated States regarding its physical equipment:

"Contract for construction of the new tank steamer Frank H. Buck, 62,000 barrels capacity, was placed with the Union Iron Works on June 11, 1913, and the vessel will be ready for service about May 1. Another addition to our fleet was the construction of a gasoline motor-driven vessel, the Avon. This vessel is used for the transportation of refined products of the Avon refinery to various points on San Francisco Bay and tributaries.

PROFITABLE PLANT.

"The refinery at Avon, on San Francisco Bay, was completed for full operation during December, 1913; partial operation of the plant was commenced in September. The net earnings of this refinery for the last four months of the year were $132,257. The cost of construction of the refinery was $724,937, in addition to which we have expended $188,167 for distributing stations, located as follows: Alameda, Fresno, Monterey, Portland, Sacramento, San Jose, San Francisco, Salinas, Santa Cruz, Santa Maria, Stockton and Watsonville. The construction of other stations at suitable points is under consideration."

Concerning finance, the report continues: "During the year 1913 dividends were paid amounting to $1,200,000. A dividend of $1.50 per share will be paid April 15, 1914, to stockholders of record April 1, 1914.

"Cash payments so far made on account of the cost of the Avon refinery and distributing stations, also construction of the vessels, Frank H. Buck and Avon, has been accomplished without increasing our bonded indebtedness and the cash necessary to meet additional payments for the construction of these facilities is available without borrowing money or selling bonds."

Disbursements and receipts of the company are shown each to total $18,871,893.19. Under disbursements are listed the following items: Purchase of merchandise, labor, material, etc., $13,084,139.07; interest on notes and deferred payments, $28,652.20; fixed changes, taxes and interest on bonds, $921,051.92; discount on bonds sold, $91,367.28; depreciation reserve, $1,924,070.46; balance to profit and loss, $1,822,412.16. Under receipts are listed sales and other revenue, $17,122,828.58, and dividends from proprietary companies, $748,864.61.

Clinochlore Variety.

PHOENIX (Ariz.) March 18.—Q.: I am sending under another cover sample of ore, of which I am desirous to know the minerals contained therein, through your "In the Earth" column. F.

A.: Glad to hear from you. From the number of inquiries regarding this variety of ore (?) we gave the samples a thorough analysis, with the result following: Olive green in color with a somewhat pearly luster. Transparent in thin place. Hardness, 2.15; sp. gr., 2.7. On the coating of the samples "slickenslides" of graphite and iron oxides appear. Percentages: Silica, 33.49; alumina, 15; iron peroxide, 2.80; oxide of chrome, 1; magnesia, 33; iron protoxide, 4; water, 10.71.

Throughout the mass microscopical sulphides of antimony, lead and bismuth occur, very sparingly indeed.

Prospective Prospecting.

LOS ANGELES, March 19.—Q.: I have read your column for the past two years with interest. I would like you to express your views on the "field" my father and I intend to prospect. First, I might say that we have enough funds to keep it up two or three years. We have decided to go to Eureka; then strike inland to the Trinity, Klamath and Scott rivers, through the Weaverville triangle. I have read "Bulletin 540-A" on auriferous gravels by J. S. Diller of that locality, and judge that there will be some good strikes to be heard from that district. Your views will be greatly appreciated. We break camp for the field the 1st of May. L. F. M.

A.: The bald truth is that gold in low values with more or less platinum, and magnetic-iron "a plenty" is scattered in the Eureka territory, and in the gravel of the rivers to which you refer.

Ex-Gov. Gillette at one time had an interest in the Klamath River prospect which (afterwards) was 'floated" with more or less success for a number of years. Bed-rock is deep on that part of the river, and by drilling it was not up to 5 cents per cubic yard. It is a questionable proposition, unless with dredgers, and then the dredges would have to be "well anchored" to keep amid stream.

If you desire gold and copper: For gold prospect near Orleans, and for copper near the three forks of Smith's River.

When, and if, you make a strike of native gold be satisfied. Do not waste the result of the strike in searching for other— "gold pockets." The copper and nickel ores located not far from Smith's River are worthy of serious thought, and thorough exploitation.

Silicious Oxides.

ROUND MOUNTAIN (Nev.) March 19.—Q.: Under separate cover I send you two samples of rock. Would like for you to test it, and let me know in your "In the Earth" column what it contains, and if of commercial value. I made two tests of same rock as I send you (one of each) in accordance with the field tests of Frank L. Hess—for uranium and vanadium—with results of both alike; took about one ounce of rock; pulverized it and covered it with hydrochloric acid half an inch deep. Imediately there appeared yellow beads; on bottom of the pulp it became greenish, and the solution became brown. I next added hydrogen peroxide, which made it greenish, but the yellow beads and brown color soon reappeared. Then I added zinc shavings, which made it yellow-greenish, and it remained in that state. Hoping to receive an answer to my inquiry. A. C.

A.: Glad to hear from you, and you must not be offended if we comment on your chemical methods; faulty manipulations, and doubtful results.

It has been our privilege to be at the side of Dr. Frank L. Hess in his rooms at the United States Geological Survey, Washington, D. C., and there, time and again, have witnessed his work for vanadates and uranium, and we have never observed such a procedure as you set forth; the wonder is (if you used a fair proportion of zinc shavings) that everything present, in your test, did not "pop" out of, and from, the container.

Your work, however, indicates that iron is present. Sample No. 1 (the brownish-yellow sample,) and No. 2 (the grayish-yellow specimen) are chiefly silicates, with iron oxides (ferric and ferrous.) Biotite, microscopical, (black mica;) garnetiferous matter with hornblende; traces of zinc, lead, antimony, arsenic, and graphite present. Chromic acid a trace. Uranium and vanadium absent.

Rensselaerite.

TEMPE (Ariz.) March 20.—Q.: I am sending you today by parcel post, some rock. Please answer through you paper and classify it for me. I have been trying about six weeks to find out what it is, and have got so many names for it that I do not know where it belongs. I sent some of the white rock to the Arizona State University at Tucson, and the college reported it to be "French chalk." I sent some of it East to a mining man, and he called it "kaolin." I gave it to an assayer at Phoenix, and he reported it to be a "hydrous silicate of aluminum." I also gave it to other mining men of Phoenix; one said it was "talc," and the other said it was "decomposed schist." I have received half a dozen other names for it. No. 2 I do not know where it belongs. It is a locality thirty miles northeast of Phoenix, and about one mile north of Cave Creek, postoffice. The white rock is from a ledge thirty feet wide. I have sunk a ten-foot shaft, and it gets finer as I go down on it. The green rock is in ledge 200 feet wide. Next comes the gray rock 200 feet wide also. I find that it makes the finest polishing powder in the world for gold, silver, brass, or glass. I am going to make polishing powder out of it so I will thank you to tell me what it is. W. M. G.

A.: Glad to hear from you. You are, perhaps, a very frank and outspoken gentleman. Why did you not refer to some work on mineralogy, and "squint" at the many names for almost any mineral?

All of your samples are French chalk; composition like that of talc. There is no aluminum in the white samples, and therefore the New York authority is "off color," as it were. One other authority you refer to improperly named the white sample.

We give you one other name for the mineral at the sub-heading, and, the tailors of Tooley street use the material for marking lines on cloth; it is therefore properly referred to as "tailor's chalk."

All of the samples are steatitic minerals (of the soapstone family,) and the white sample is the most pure of all.

The gray and green (?) specimens carry more silica, and yet, they too, are "French chalk," tripoli (polishing powder) present.

"French chalk is 'aphantic' or 'rensselaerite'" (Dana.) It consists of talc, and can be further named steatite or soapstone variety. Prof. Dana places French chalk under "margarophyllite section" sub-heading "Talc."

Once upon a time a collector of mineral samples took his collection to a mineralogist for names and classification. In the lot he had samples of silicon dioxide, rock crystal, amethyst, chalcedony, jasper, false topaz, prase, chrysoprase, sard, agate, mocha stone, onyx, cat's eye, flint, hornstone, chert, plasma, bloodstone, touchstone, silicified wood, opal, float stone, infusorial earth and sand. The collector got as mad as a hornet when the minerals were returned to him, for the reason that every sample was labelled "quartz."

In Part Harmotome.

LOS ANGELES, March 20.—Q.: This rock found in the eastern part of San Bernardino county. Please let me know through your column of the Sunday Times what it contains, and oblige a constant reader of your paper. A. B. & CO.

A.: Glad to hear from you. The sample is a silicious substance (lime a trace) carrying traces of iron oxides. Baryta, strontia, and alumina in the mass.

Calamine.

VICKSBURG (Ariz.) March 21.—Q.: Under separate cover please find sample of mineral which I believe carries zinc. The lead from which it is taken is narrow, but it may indicate other ores of value. Please give some information on the analysis of zinc, and its detection in presence of alumina. L. R. T.

A.: The sample is named at the subheading. The information you ask for is occasioned, probably, by the doubt in results on zinc and aluminum. From zinc sulphate solutions hydrogen sulphide precipitates (neutral) zinc solutions, but imperfectly. "In presence of mineral acids no precipitate forms, but in solutions of zinc acetate or salts of other weak acids precipitation is complete."

Attfield gives interesting matter on the subject as follows: "To solution of a zinc salt (sulphate) in a test tube, add solution of sulphydrate of ammonium; white sulphide of zinc is precipitated, insoluble in acetic, soluble in the stronger acids. This is the only white sulphide that will be met with. Its formation, on the addition of sulphydrate of ammonium, is therefore highly characteristic of zinc . . . Hydrate of aluminum, which is also white, and precipitated by sulphydrate of ammonium, is the only substance sulphide of zinc is likely to be mistaken for, and vice versa; but, as will be seen immediately: To solution of zinc salt add ammonia; white hydrate of zinc is precipitated. Add excess of ammonia; the precipitate is redissolved. This reaction at once distinguishes a zinc salt from an aluminum salt, hydrate of aluminum being insoluble in dilute ammonia.

Fixed alkali-hydrates afford a similar reaction to that above mentioned, the zinc hydrate redissolving if the alkali is free from carbonate.

The white precipitate from ammonium sulphide in zinc solutions is insoluble in caustic alkalies, and this white sulphide (precipitate) distinguishes zinc from all other common metals.

Dolomitic.

LOS ANGELES, March 21.—Q.: As a reader of your good paper, and interested very much in your "In the Earth" column, I am sending you two numbered samples. Will you kindly name them for me? No. 1 is in a ledge which comes up in a sort of earthy clay formation, and can be traced for about two miles on surface, and the ledge is about three feet wide. The locality is about ten miles east of Palmdale, Cal., in the desert, and No. 2 is located about a mile east of No. 1. Have either of the minerals any commercial value? M. E.

A.: No. 1 is probably altered silicious dolomite. One of the uses of this mineral, nothwithstanding the magnesia present, is as a polishing material for soft woods. Submit samples to wholesale chemists, and to dealers in "wall-packing" materials. No. 2 is dolomite; strontia present.

Titanic Iron.

LOS ANGELES, March 22.—Q.: I leave a sample at your office taken from the surface at a locality in San Diego county. The magnet does not touch it, and I do not take it as hematite. Please name the rock. H. F.

LITIGATION OVER.

PRESCOTT (Ariz.) April 10.—With the recent satisfactory termination of litigation in Philadelphia, involving a possible charge of $900,000 upon the Consolidated Arizona Smelting Company, a prospect has opened up for much greater activity around the company's smelter and mines at Mayer.

The management has made announcement that it will be in position to handle customs ores after May 1, on which date the production of copper will be resumed.

Work has been started again on the company's Blue Bell mine, with a force of sixty miners, taking out 200 tons of ore a day. During the past two months or so a number of important changes have been made in the equipment of the smelter.

In the Stein property, ten miles from Kirkland, a drift run sixty feet from the bottom of a 160-foot shaft has cut the vein sought, but much before it was expected. Samples from the face of the drift give $10 in gold and nearly 10 per cent. copper.

S. J. Gnash of Los Angeles was recently a visitor to the Mayer section, where he made an inspection of the Big Ledge copper mines, adjoining the Baumann property.

Sasse & Gwinn, a firm of Bisbee mineralogists, have completed sampling the Congress tailings dump and have determined upon the most available method for treating the tailings, which are said to be worth $3 a ton and of which, it is believed, there are at least a million tons.

How to Fill Church Pews.

[Christian Herald:] One hundred wayfarers from the streets of Chicago have united with the well-known Immanuel Baptist Church, of that city, as a result of a unique and practical campaign that church has made for them.

On some cold mornings last winter as many as a thousand hungry men have entered this church to get warm and be fed. The pastor, the Rev. Johnston Myers, arrives at the church at 6 a.m., often opening the doors to a hundred men even at this early hour. Hundreds of men owe their present jobs, both inside and outside of Chicago, to the free employment agency to which this pastor has devoted two whole days each week for more than two years.

HIGH GRADE REAWAKENING.

Spring Brings Renewal of Activities in Mines.

Britishers Take Option on Oro Fino Property.

Developments in Leading Districts of State.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SACRAMENTO, April 10.—Since the passing of winter interest has again been renewed in the high grade district in Modoc county. It is stated by well-informed parties that leading stockholders of the Sunshine-High Grade Mining Company, composed largely of Los Angeles and Oregon people, have decided to organize a leasing company among themselves for the aggressive development on the Sunshine and Yellow Jacket claims. On both of these rich ore has been demonstrated. It is planned to start work as soon as weather conditions permit, and at least $25,000 will be expended.

The noted Oro Fino mine in the Shingle Springs district, near Placerville, has been taken under option by Bewick, Moreing & Co., of London, according to advices from the property. It was recently examined by British engineers and a thorough sampling of the deposits made. Considerable work will be carried on under the option and if the ore bodies continue into new ground, as anticipated, steps will be taken to consummate the deal.

The property was formerly known as the Big Canyon and in the early days of California was profitably operated by the Hayward interests. The ore is low-grade, but of massive character, resembling the majority of mines of the Mother Lode.

Bewick, Moreing & Co. operate over forty properties in various parts of the world. One of these is the Plymouth Consolidated group in Amador county.

At the Argonaut mine, near Jackson, driving for the main ledge is progressing from the 4000-foot level. The Argonaut is the deepest incline mine in the West, and splendid ore has been opened on the 3800 and upper levels. The mine adjoins the famous Kennedy on the south and for years has been a large producer.

Arrangements have been made to move the mill from its present location to a point west of the hoisting works, where excellent facilities are available for storage of mill tailings. This will enable the company to handle its tailings to advantage and prevent their deposition in neighboring streams, an agreement to this effect having been made between the company and the farming interests.

The South Eureka Company is again troubled with bad ground in the shaft, and it has been forced to reduce the milling capacity 50 per cent. and greatly reduce its underground force, pending retimbering and other repairs. About a year ago a series of costly caves developed in the upper portion of the shaft and the company is taking precautions to prevent a repetition of the trouble. Mine developments will be continued.

The Oro Fino Mining Company, composed of New York and Southern California capitalists, has arranged to sink a double-compartment shaft at the Bullion mine in the Ophir district, tributary to Auburn, and an electric motor and other machinery has been installed.

The mill formerly operated at the Bellevue mine, also controlled by the Oro Fino, will be moved to the new Bullion shaft. This will give the plant a central location for the handling of quartz from both mines.

RICH ORE EXTRACTED.

Rich ore has been recently extracted from the Bellevue, and large deposits of good milling quartz are in sight at the Bullion. The new shaft is expected to open a highly-promising area of new territory.

Mine owners on the east side of the Shasta copper belt are planning the erection of an electric zinc smelter near Heroult, provided experiments now going on in the East are satisfactory, and satisfactory terms regarding the use of the method are agreed on. Several years' developments have demonstrated vast deposits of zinc-copper ore in the East Side field, but the large percentage of zinc has prevented ore reduction by the copper furnaces. The ores also carry considerable silver and some gold.

It is claimed by the inventors that the electric process has been satisfactorily demonstrated, and that it can handle the East Side ores without difficulty.

A picturesque example of the recourse of the gold-seeker is exhibited by miners in the famous Grass Valley district, where some of the richest gold mines in all the world are located. For years many of the old mills dumped their tailings in Wolf creek, the mill superintendents considering the product of little value, although known to carry some gold.

Recently several tests of the old tailings were made by practical miners, and arrangements are now being made to recover the auriferous values. It is planned to turn the course of the stream by means of a dam as soon at the water drops to a low level and work the creek bed by ordinary placer-mining means.

EXAMINING MINES.

An examination of the Commodore and other mines in the Klamath River fields of Siskiyou county is being made by D. S. Reynolds and S. B. Sipes of Los Angeles. They represent a coterie of Angel City capitalists, and have taken several properties under consideration, it is understood. The Commodore was recently the scene of an important strike, the discovery being made on the Insurance claim and showing quartz containing much gold.

Eastern people have taken an option on the Merced Mining properties near Coulterville, and are sampling the Malvina and other mines. The group was formerly one of the great mining enterprises of California, and about twenty years ago claimed much interest.

The Alleghany Mining Company has resumed work at its Balsam Flat placer and quartz claims, near Alleghany. A long tunnel is being driven to intersect an ancient gravel channel under Lafayette ridge, and the property will be worked as a drift mine. It is estimated that $200,000 has been expended in the past ten years on development work and improvements.

EYES DO NOT SEE ALIKE.

Besides the Question of Refraction Is the Education of Perception to Recognize What Is Seen.

[Cleveland Plain Dealer:] All good eyes do not see alike. People whose eyes will show the same focus by an expert test do not see alike. They may look at the same object and see it entirely different.

Some men are adepts in finding something with their eyes, while their companions who may possess just as good vision are not able to locate objects at all without great difficulty.

The man who can walk about the lawn or in the park and pick up four-leaf clovers has an eye that is worth big money to him. He can easily be trained to see things that the ordinary man will miss, or have to look a long time to find.

Some men who go hunting can see a squirrel in an oak or hickory tree with apparent ease, while others will go strolling about the timber and never see the game at all. It is the same way in the open field. The rabbit can be found sitting by some while others will almost run over the creature before they are detected.

This ability is a gift. This is not only a gift developed by some and undeveloped by others as a result of their surroundings, but it measures the exact amount of intelligent effort they have expended in attaining this ability, also their perseverance in this line of endeavor.

Aside from the external causes that have made us what we are, environment and heredity, is an inherent capacity of individual intelligence, or in other words natural ability.

To define intelligence is not herein attempted, the purpose being only to show what natural ability aided by the right method has done and may still do.

It therefore remains that it is not the physical condition of the eye alone that determines the difference of perception, but how well it has been trained, along what line, and the innate capacity of the individual intelligence that directs it.

LINCOLN'S LOST GIFT FOUND.

Two Half Dollars Were Given to a Poor Cripple at the Entrance of Ford's Theater.

[New York Sun:] That almost the last act of Lincoln was one of charity to a poor old cripple becomes known as a result of a story told by William Jones, a merchant at Hoosick Falls, N. Y., at a Lincoln anniversary celebration.

Henry Babcock, employed as a rag sorter by the Thompson & Stevens Co., paper manufacturers of North Hoosick, during the course of his work discovered two old half dollars wrapped up in a piece of paper, sewed up in an old pair of trousers. On investigating he found a note, barely legible, because of its age, which stated that the two half dollars had been presented to the owner, who was a cripple, by President Lincoln at the entrance to Ford's Theater in Washington, D. C., on the night he was shot.

The coins were of liberty head type and one bore the date of 1826. Although probably many times in dire want, the cripple had carefully preserved the half dollars as souvenirs of Lincoln's kindness.

WATER SYSTEM IS DOING WELL.

Its Ownership by Phoenix Proves a Success.

Number of School Children Gains Thirty Per Cent.

Woman Sends for Revolver and Shoots Husband.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) April 8.—Municipal ownership of public utilities has proven a grand success in Phoenix, according to the annual report of the superintendent of the city water-supply system. The system was purchased in 1907 of M. H. Sherman of Los Angeles for $150,000, considered at the time an exorbitant price made necessary by legal complications. Since that time the profits of the system have not only covered the original cost of the plant, but also of an almost entirely new distribution and pumping system. Though a reduction in rates cut off $14,400 revenue last year, the total net earnings of the plant have aggregated $276,563. The city took over the system when it had only 2087 service connections, compared with the present number of 4500. During the first year the average daily consumption of water was 1,354,000 gallons, compared with 4,013,000 in 1913. The original thirty-three miles of mains, generally insufficient, have almost all been replaced, and the city now has eighty-one miles of mains, most of them cast iron.

SCHOOL CENSUS.

Though Phoenix school district is small in area, the school census this spring found 4631 children of school age, a gain over last year of 1349, or about 30 per cent. The gain of the year before was 25 per cent.

SHOOTS HUSBAND.

About midnight last night, at their tent home near Ingleside, ten miles east of Phoenix, Mrs. Minnie Mullenex, aged 19, shot and mortally wounded her husband, Claude A. Mullenex. The couple were married in Columbus, O., only last September. Almost at once, according to the woman's story, the man commenced to abuse her and she concluded to leave him. Yesterday she visited the Sheriff and asked assistance in securing her clothing from her husband. She received no help from the officer, but employed an automobile driver to accompany her. The effects had been moved out when, the woman testifies, her husband "jumped at me with his hands out, as though he would catch me by the throat and strangle me. Then I shot. I had to, or he would have done me harm." The woman's story is denied by neighbors, who believe she was treated by her husband with all affection. Today it developed she had sent away for a revolver with which to do the deed, but tired of waiting for the weapon and secured one in Phoenix.

FEDERAL COURT.

The spring term of the United States Court now is in session in Phoenix. Despite the division of the district to allow court terms at three other points, the criminal docket is about as heavy as ever, with 165 cases up for consideration by the grand jury.

DEADLY WHISKY.

From Chandler a fortnight ago was mailed a flask of whisky, addressed to W. W. Brunner at Gila Bend. Thomas Henderson took a single swallow of the liquid and collapsed, narrowly escaping death. Analysis showed that a large amount of strychnine had been dissolved in the liquor.

REAL DETECTORS.

Victorio Valenzuela, long suspected of "rolling" intoxicated persons, lately was captured by sharp work on the part of a local officer, who disguised himself, simulated intoxication and apparently went to sleep on a bench in Valenzuela's vicinity. Soon there was a tug on the officer's watch chain and the officer's drunkenness forthwith vanished. Another Phoenix policeman happened by a furniture store as the proprietor of the store was bargaining for a bicycle recognized by the officer as one that had just been stolen from the merchant's own son, who had left the wheel in a school rack. The thief pleaded guilty.

PIONEER HOUSE GONE.

Last night fire destroyed the residence of A. Redewill, a local capitalist, at the corner of Van Buren and Second streets. The house was one of the pioneer landmarks of the city, considered a mansion in the pioneer days. The principal loss was in personal effects.

PROHIBITIONISTS.

A strong political fight has been entered on by the Prohibitionists of Arizona, who are headed by R. L. Morgan of Willcox, with George F. Rinehart of Tucson as secretary. According to the latter, the National Association of Liquor Dealers has authorized the expenditure of $100,000 in the Arizona campaign this fall. State-wide prohibition constitutional amendments will be offered at the next election in Oregon, California, Washington and Arizona.

NEW METHODIST CHURCH.

On plans drawn by L. B. Volk of Los Angeles, a handsome church structure, to seat 800, will be built by the Bethel congregation of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, to replace a chapel on Seventh street, three miles north of Phoenix.

TO DONATE PEWS.

The local council of Knights of Columbus has announced its intention to donate heavy oak pews to the Franciscan cathedral now being completed in Phoenix.

WILD RICE A PEST.

Much enthusiasm was manifested a few months ago by sportsmen upon a suggestion of the State Game Warden that wild rice be planted in the bottoms of the Gila and Salt River for the enticement of wild ducks. The plan has just been vetoed by the governors of the Salt River Valley Water Users' Association, who have found that wild rice might spread to be a farm pest of the worst sort. Evidence was presented that the plant had almost stopped navigation on a number of northwestern rivers.

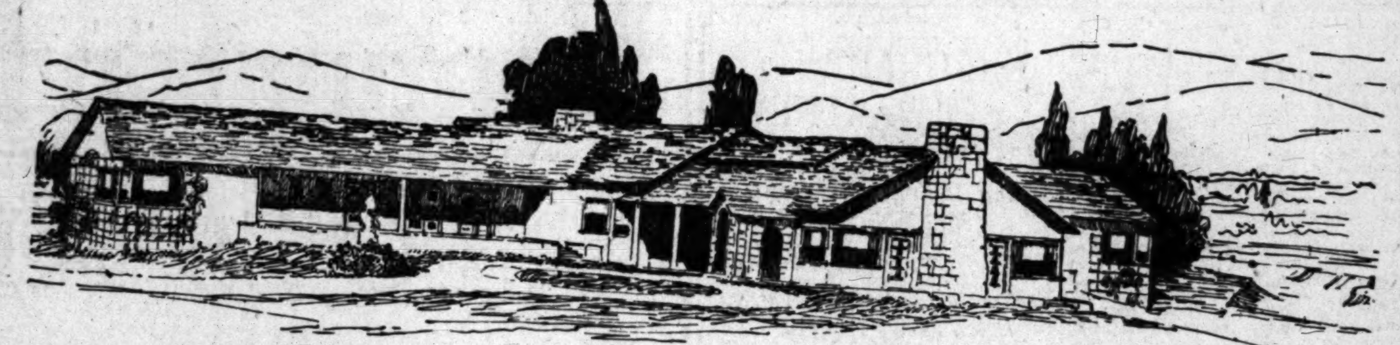
ARIZONA SPORTS.

In Phoenix May 7 will be begun a four-days tournament of the Border States Lawn Tennis Association, with many attendants promised from all over the Southwest.

The Copper Queen and Calumet & Arizona Mining Companies have announced they will provide two of the larger harness-horse stakes at the Arizona Fair this fall. The Copper Queen also will send from Bisbee without charge its fine military band.

April 18 at the Phoenix fair grounds track will be held an automobile racing meet, with five main events, from three to twenty-five miles. Any excess over expense will go to the Maricopa Automobile Club, to help out on the preparations for the annual Los Angeles-Phoenix road race.

For Sightly Knoll High Above the Surf Line.



Beach cottage to be built by Mrs. J. N. Burnes at Miramar, Myron Hunt, architect.

HIGH ABOVE BEACH.

Santa Barbara Woman to Build Picturesque Cottage on Heights at Miramar—Contract Just Let.

SANTA BARBARA, April 11.—Mrs. J. N. Burnes of this city, has just had plans prepared by Architect Myron Hunt of Los Angeles for an attractive and picturesque beach cottage to be built on the heights at Miramar. The contract for the place has already been let at a figure approximating $20,000 and construction is to be begun at once.

The house will occupy a large knoll a short distance back from the ocean, its grounds extending to the beach. The owner will build a six-room bathhouse at the water's edge. Back of the house tennis courts will be laid out. The garage will have a capacity for several machines.

The dwelling will be of the shape of a cross and will contain fifteen rooms. It will be of frame construction, with shingled walls and roof. The living-room will be twenty-five feet square and will be separated from the dining-room by a covered lanai, or porch. One wing will be given over to the quarters of the servants.

Silver Pick.

With the newly-installed two-stage air compressor and drills working perfectly, great headway is being made in the exploration on the 500-foot level of the Silver Pick Consolidated of the quartz body originally revealed at the 396-foot point in the shaft. Crosscuts, east and west, have been advanced a combined distance of ninety feet thus far without exposing either wall of the vein.

Organization.

STARTING WORK ON THE CANAL.

HOW THE FORCE OF WORKERS WAS ORGANIZED.

The West Indians Accomplished Little Till They Were Put Into Competition With Europeans and Were Compelled to Eat Wholesome Food and Enough of It.

[New York Commercial:] Theodore P. Shonts, president of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, has contributed an article in the current number of the North American Review dealing with his connection with the Panama Canal, in the early stages of its development under American auspices. Mr. Shonts throws considerable light on the organization of the canal strip and the preparations for the main work of rigging the canal, which were necessary preliminaries to that great task now approaching completion.

Mr. Shonts has practically nothing to say about the controversy which raged at the time when John F. Wallace resigned his position as chief engineer of the canal staff and was succeeded by John F. Stevens, formerly of the Great Northern Railway. Mr. Shonts pays generous tribute to Col. W. C. Gorgas and other members of his staff who performed the great work of cleaning up the pestiferous surroundings and reducing the mortality of the laborers to a normal percentage. The great problem which the builders of the canal had to face at the outset was the difficulty of securing efficient labor. The French engineers, who had preceded them, relied altogether on West Indian negroes and these men had proved very disappointing from the standpoint of health and efficiency. When the canal strip was cleaned up and a good supply of water secured the death rate fell and was no longer an obstacle to the progress of the work, but the negro laborers did not become efficient even when their surroundings had been made more wholesome.

Mr. Shonts was possessed of great experience in handling labor in railroad construction in the United States and he set himself to the task of finding out why these apparently husky West Indians achieved so little. The first conclusion at which he arrived was that they felt secure because they had no competition. He, therefore, drafted laborers from Spain, Italy and Greece, who were able to stand the hot climate quite as well as the West Indians and natives of the canal strip, but the West Indian negroes predominated in numbers and competition from Europe did not spur them on to greater energy.

In a brief but highly interesting paragraph or two Mr. Shonts describes the difficulty that still remained. He found that the West Indian laborers did not eat enough good food and this also applied to a certain extent to those imported from Europe. He then undertook the task of supplying them with an abundant quantity of wholesome food at very low prices and gave them the choice of buying good meals at 10 cents apiece or of buying the raw food and cooking it themselves. This did not prove satisfactory for these negroes would not pay for three meals a day and they would not take the trouble of cooking for themselves, or, if they did, they would not do it properly and get enough nourishment out of the food. As a last resort he tried giving it to them for nothing. Then they would eat heartily, and after experimenting a little, he adopted the plan of paying them a fixed wage that included three good meals a day without the option of cooking or buying their own meals. After that the efficiency of the working force became highly satisfactory and no further difficulty was encountered as far as the physical strength and well being of the laborers was concerned.

In explaining this improvement brought about by the proper feeding of labor, Mr. Shonts throws considerable light on the superior efficiency of workmen in the United States, though he does not go into that question. Foreign manufacturers have always been surprised to note the much greater output per man in the factories of the United States than they have been able to attain in Europe. As far as Great Britain is concerned, the lower output is due in part to the amount of time the men waste in sport and in observing holidays, but this does not explain the still lower output of Continental Europe. The superior efficiency of labor in the United States is not due to difference in race, because descendants of old American families are no longer an important element in our workshops. The same mill hands that they have in Europe migrate to this country and at once develop higher efficiency due to the better food and the greater quantity of it that they consume. The first thing that the foreigner learns when he gets to this country is to eat more meat and other strong food. The exact amount of improvement caused by the change for the better in the diet of men performing manual labor has been demonstrated with considerable exactness on the Panama Canal work, as Shonts briefly recounts.

By putting a good man at the head of the work and giving him practically unlimited authority the United States has been able to perform the greatest engineering task in the history of the world. As Shonts puts it, "It was this concentration of supreme authority in one man that has enabled Col. Goethals, as head of the military regime at Panama, to carry on and complete in such a manner as to command the wonder and admiration of the world the work planned and begun under the railroad regime, as it enabled me, encouraged by the unfailing support of President Roosevelt and by the loyal and able co-operation of the other members of the commission and heads of departments, to accomplish such vast results in so short a time."

In this article Shonts incidentally proves his own right to a very large share of the credit for carrying this canal work to its successful completion. He reorganized the whole service and solved the labor problem while he was in charge of the work. At the outset the construction of the canal was really a railroad problem because the vast amount of dirt and rock taken out of the cuts had to be moved by rail to the spoil banks, and the Panama Railroad was utterly inadequate for such a task when it came into his hands. The reconstruction of this railroad was a task of no mean proportions and for that necessary preliminary to the digging of the canal Mr. Shonts deserves full credit.

One for the Safety Razor.

[New York Tribune:] The safety razor industry ought to boom if all the world heeds a warning in "The Lancet" of the perils of the barber's chair. A French scientist has discovered on a shaving brush taken from a respectable barber a culture containing thousands upon thousands of bacteria. A razor had about three times as many after having been stropped on the barber's hand as it had before. One of the reforms suggested is that "brushes and combs should be kept in a hermetically sealed retainer containing a 40 per cent. solution of formol."

Inmates of Pioneers' Home Disagree in Testimony.

Little Colorado Falls Soon to Have New Road.

Sale of Horses by Mail Stopped by Inspectors.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PRESCOTT (Ariz.) April 9.—The investigation into the affairs of the Pioneers' Home has been suspended during the slight illness of State Auditor Callaghan, but already has been developed the fact that inmates of the home are by no means united on the prosecution. Witnesses have testified their belief that Superintendent Percy V. Coldwell is an unfit man for his position and charges have been aired that he is bad tempered, profane, inconsiderate, and a cigarette fiend, that he fed the inmates poorly and that he once kept a "blind tiger" at Ft. Bliss, Tex. In rebuttal there has been presented evidence that his character was of the best and that only drunken and disgruntled inmates have been back of the charges. One witness for the defense excited much adverse comment by a statement that he considered the Pioneers' Home nothing better than a poorhouse, in which only poorhouse treatment might be expected.

ACCESS TO FALLS.

By the building of a new road, soon will be made accessible the falls of the Little Colorado River, about forty miles northeast of Flagstaff, and twenty-five miles from the junction of the stream named and the Colorado. The falls are several hundred feet in height, with four cascades, all preserving, within a box canyon, the full stream width of 400 feet. The falls have rarely been visited heretofore, owing to their remote location and the lack of a highway.

SELL HORSES BY MAIL.

Postoffice inspectors have arrested a couple of Kansas men charged with misuse of the mails, in offering to sell a "brand" of horses on a range near Canyon Diablo. It happens the horses are just where the promoters claim they are, but they are so wild that even organized effort with the help of a hundred Navajo Indians has failed to round up an appreciable number.

BIG HUNTING RECORD.

R. E. Gardner, sometimes known as "Arizona Bill," claims a hunting record for the past winter of seventy-two mountain lions, twenty-eight bear, twenty-one wild cats and fourteen coyotes, worth several thousand dollars to him in bounties alone.

SOMERS SYSTEM.

Though much opposition has been manifest among the owners of property near the business center, the Somers system of taxation is to be adopted in Prescott, with the highest valuation, as a standard, fixed at $220 a front foot.

LARGEST DAMAGE SUIT.

The last and largest of the many damage suits that have followed the erection of the buildings at the Clarkdale smelter is that of Albert Parre, who wants $40,000 compensation for injuries received through the breaking of a truss upon which he was standing, forty feet above the ground.

LONG SERVICE RECORD.

Sarah B. Mayer is believed to hold the record of long service of the Postoffice Department within Arizona. She has been postmistress at Mayer since the establishment of the office, on July 11, 1884.

Five weeks ago in Prescott were married Francis M. Metzger and Miss Alice Fitzgerald, the couple leaving at once for a new home in Los Angeles. A few days ago the wife returned with the body of her young husband, who had been suddenly stricken by pneumonia. He was a Santa Fe employee in Los Angeles, promoted from the local office.

IMPERSONALITY IN LOVE.

The Sentiment is at First General and Maturity Must Be Reached Before There Be Exclusion.

[Atlantic:] Swedenborg says that in its early and elemental forms love is attached by sex, not yet by one of the sex. Even in babyhood [illegible] may show a decided preference for [illegible]en. Love of a whole sex is already awake in them, but they are rarely devoted to one man to the exclusion of all others. A newcomer is especially welcomed. This means that their love is at first general and vague, though later it may attach itself to one individual and cleave to him, forsaking all others. This lesson we sometimes fail to learn. We then remain impersonal and desire the emotions of love as many people desire the emotions of music, without any awareness of an individual or of the meaning of the piece. To yield to such a desire is villany in case we really know better (as we usually do;) but not otherwise. When we listen to good music we are actually listening to the outpouring of the composer's heart. He is speaking to us earnestly and intensely, and we are listening to him, not to it. And yet it is often no crime to drink in music merely as pleasure; indeed, for most people it cannot be a crime because they know no better. But it is always a ghastly mistake, for it is treating music, which is a bit of a person's life, as a means of sensual gratification.

A PAINTED MUSTACHE.

A Pot of Blacking Enabled a French Soldier to Obey the Military Regulations.

[London Chronicle:] The beardless sailor compelled to shave suffered only rather more than the beardless soldier compelled to acquire a mustache. Marbot tells how, when he joined the First Hussars at Nice, his smooth face was brought to conformity with the rest of the regiment. Sergt. Pertelay "took a pot of blacking and with his thumb made two enormous hooks covering my upper lip and reaching almost to my eyes. At that time the shakoes had no peak, so it happened that during reviews or when I was doing vedette duty, and was bound to remain perfectly motionless, the scorching rays of the Italian sun pouring down on my face used to suck up the liquid part of the blacking with which my mustache had been made, and the blacking, as it dried, drew my skin in a most unpleasant way."

Our soldiers are debarred from wearing a beard, but may, if they choose, let their side whiskers grow. One of the army regulations runs: "The hair of the head is to be kept short. The upper lip is not to be shaved, and the chin and under lip are to be shaved. Whiskers, if worn, are to be of moderate length." William IV appears to have been keenly interested in the observance of this regulation. Six weeks before his death an army order was issued stating that the King desired "to call the attention of general officers and officers commanding regiments to the repeated orders that have been issued by his majesty's command against wearing long hair and whiskers. Lord Hill will be under the disagreeable necessity of reporting to his majesty any officer who shall deviate from these orders."

She Expected It.

[Philadelphia Telegraph:] The conversation in the lobby of a Washington hotel the other evening turned to careless habits, which recalled one to Congressman Lincoln Dixon of Indiana.

Recently a rather unsophisticated woman from one of the back counties took a sea voyage with her niece, and just as the ship glided into a harbor one day the good aunt heard a rattle, a clank and a splash.

"Look here, Mister Officer," she cried turning to the steward, "what has happened?"

"Nothing at all, madame," replied the steward, "we have just dropped the anchor."

"I expected it!" declared the aunt with large emphasis. "It's a wonder that it didn't happen before. That thing has been hanging out there all the morning."

BUSY BUYING REALTY.

SAN JACINTO, April 11.—After disposing of eighty acres of land in the Fruitvale district, two weeks ago for $14,000, R. S. Smith, local manager of the Cawston Ostrich Farm, purchased recently through Public Administrator Polkenhorn, 240 acres of land in the Auld country, the Joe Blacker estate being the seller. Within a few days Smith exchanged the 240-acre tract for five lots on San Jacinto avenue and Sixth street, belonging to Sanders & Meier. On the lots are a store building, mill and warehouse, garage, hay shed, stables and other improvements, representing a total valuation of $12,000. Sanders & Meier retain the stock of merchandise and equipment and will continue the business. Smith also bought a ten-acre tract on San Jacinto avenue south of town from W. H. Sanders, as well as an adjoining ten acres from Walter Sanders, and a house and lot on Santa Fe street belonging to Walter Sanders. Smith's total investments in San Jacinto property in the past two weeks amount to $18,000.

CLUB TO REBUILD.

East Newport Ebell Having Plans Drawn for New Structure to Replace Place Lost in Fire.

BALBOA, April 11.—The Ebell Club of East Newport, whose building was destroyed by fire last year, is having plans drawn for a new structure to be erected on Bay avenue, opposite the park, and work on this will be started shortly. The new building will cost about $2000. The bungalow court at the corner of Central avenue and Second street is nearly completed, and will soon be ready for occupancy. Eight bungalows are in course of construction in Balboa and East Newport at this time.

N. E. Witherspoon will build a residence at First and Central. Robert Fager is planning a five-room house at Bay avenue and Ninth. Miss Cora Finch is completing a seven-room bungalow on Surf near Fourth. Sam Rust is building a seven-room house on Bay avenue. Robert Herold is finishing a six-room bungalow on Surf between Third and Fourth. Dr. W. S. Young is finishing an eight-room house on Bay.

Miss Frances A. Brown has purchased a lot on Surf near Fourth and will build at once. George Phillips has purchased a lot on Bay avenue at Ninth, and will build a bungalow.

AWARD PAVING CONTRACT.

Los Angeles Man to Handle Street Improvement Work at Huntington Beach—To Celebrate Pier Opening.

HUNTINGTON BEACH, April 11.—Frank Oswald of Los Angeles was the lowest bidder for the paving of Seventeenth and other streets and was awarded the contract at a meeting of the City Trustees last week. The bid totalled $24,570. The streets to be paved will connect with the boulevard from Santa Ana, which is already complete to the city limits. There will be a concrete pavement and an oiled macadam wearing surface.

The Ninth-street Improvement Association has definitely decided on the paving of Ninth street from Ocean avenue to Olive. The City Trustees have been asked to have the street paved with concrete base and asphalt surface, and to have bids taken immediately in order that the work may be completed by July 4.

The Board of Trade has called a mass meeting for the purpose of arousing enthusiasm toward the celebration planned to commemorate the completion of the new pier. The finishing touches are now being put on the pier and, at some suitable date in the near future, not yet named, the members of the Board of Trade wish to arrange for a celebration that will attract all of Southern California.

BUYS IN FREMONT PLACE.

David Barry & Co. report the sale to Dr. Martin G. Carter of a building site at No. 113 Fremont place for $7500. The lot, which is 75x190 feet in size, is situated on an eighty-foot private drive. Dr. and Mrs. Carter are leaving for a trip to New England and on their return will build a handsome residence on their site.

SELLS ORANGE GROVE.

The San Dimas Real Estate Company reports the sale for D. H. Crook of San Pedro to Harry E. Walker of a ten-acre navel and valencia orange grove at the corner of Sunflower and Bonita avenues, in Charter Oak. Crook took in part payment twenty-two acres of vacant land, with water, about one mile southeast of San Dimas. The orange orchard is set to full-bearing trees, and was purchased by Crook about two years ago. The vacant land is to be set out to lemons and valencias.

NEW VERMONT SQUARE.

The Southwest Land Company reports new houses started in New Vermont Square as follows: F. A. Miller, six-room bungalow, No. 1857 West Forty-third place, $2000; F. H. Redpath Company, two six-room bungalows, $200[illegible]ne at No. 1730 West Forty-first place, and the other at No. 1730 West Forty-first street; W. L. Buxton, seven-room chalet, No. 1527 West Forty-seventh street, $2250 and F. H. Holgren, seven-room chalet, No. 1060 West Fifty-first street, $2000.

Reduces Public Works Salaries.

Mayor Curley of Boston has ordered a 5 per cent. reduction in the salaries of all officials and employees in the Public Works Department, receiving $1000 a year or more. If taxes keep on piling up in Los Angeles similar action may be necessary here.

BEACH TRANSFERS.

Stewart & Tinklepaugh report the following recent sales at Manhattan Beach and Long Beach: Victor H. Steele to Lulu Pickard, lot, $325; Guy C. LaTouche to Martha M. McCleary, lot, $475; J. L. Van Norman to George W. Shires, lot, $1000; Mr. Chase to Mr. Strong, house and lot on Twelfth street, $1200, and an acre lot on Signal Hill, Long Beach, for Clara A. Butterfield to Clara Waterman, $2300.

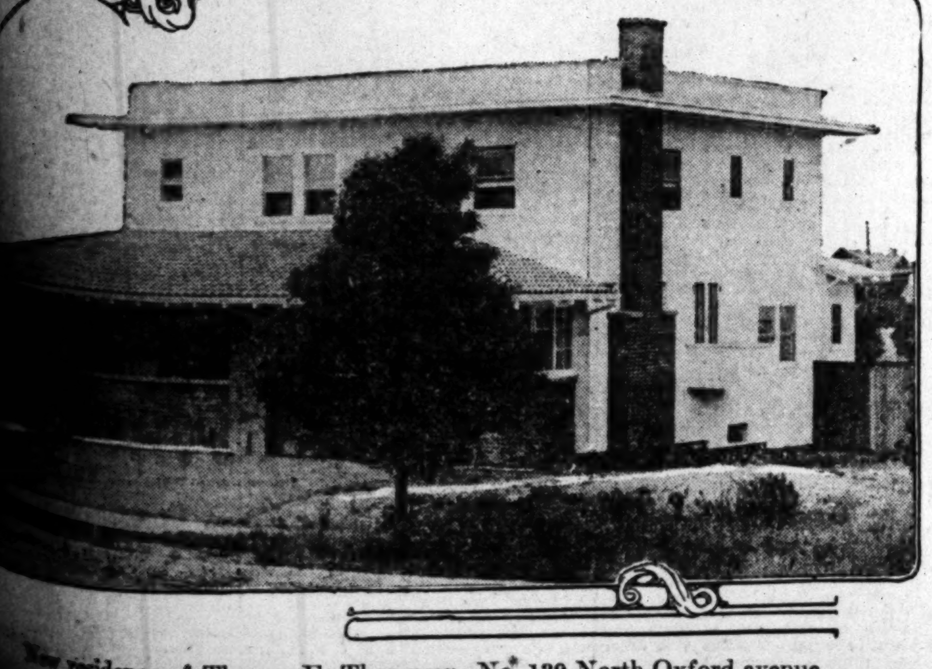
WANT SAFER SCHOOLS.

[Southwest Contractor:] While the election held in Los Angeles to vote on two or three questions propounded by the Board of Education to test out public opinion for their guidance in determining future policies did not call out more than one voter out of every forty-four, there was a preponderance of opinion expressed on the question of the type of construction that should be used in the buildings to be erected in the future. There were 531 votes cast as favoring frame construbction on account of the lower cost, but 3720 voted for a better type of structure. Public opinion ought certainly by this time to be thoroughly formed against the unwise, dangerous and unsanitary frame schoolhouse. Building frame structures of this character is today a pennywise but pound foolish policy.

Doors Checks at Cock Fights.

[Chicago Inter Ocean:] At the cock fights in Manila it is customary for the doorkeeper to place a red stamp on the bare feet of those who have paid their admission. This serves the purpose of a receipt quite as well as the more modern ticket stub. According to Thurston, the magician, the custom also prevails in other parts of the world.

"While playing in Hongkong, China," he said, "I noticed that every person in the audience who would leave the theater between the acts would have the palm of the hand stamped with a large initial so that he could easily be recognized on his return. Whether such a 'pass out' system would be popular in America, where so many are called out to see 'a friend,' is open to question. The number of stamps on a man's hands, if he were married, would be an indication to his wife as to how many 'friends' he had seen."



New residence of Thomas F. Thompson, No. 139 North Oxford avenue.

BUILDING DANGERS

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA $ THRIFT HOME BUILDERS

When you build for yourself you are responsible under the Employee's Liability Act for injury to workmen. You may have to take care of a crippled employee for life.

Protection can only be had by insurance, either by yourself or your contractor.

If a contractor or sub-contractor, without financial responsibility, is not insured, a single accident may mean the loss of your entire property.

Neither have you any redress against mechanic's liens should contractor or subcontractor not pay material or labor bills.

Use the same wisdom in building your home you do in placing an order for thousands of dollars' worth of merchandise. Deal with responsible concerns.

Unless an expert builder, you are absolutely dependent upon the integrity of your contractor.

We build from your plans or our own. We make a specialty of lovely homes at moderate prices. They are absolutely standard in quality, as to design, material and workmanship.

Nothing is too good for your home, if it is not extravagant. We prevent this, avoid useless expense and protect the inexperienced from the errors that make so many homes impracticable and unsalable.

Telephone and we will call for you with automobile any time. It will cost you nothing to inspect many examples of these houses in our own tracts and you will be pleasantly surprised and interested in the comments of those for whom we have built, and to whom we have sold.

If you do not want to build, we sell houses in these tracts on easy payments.

Get our prices. Talk to our building superintendent. Let our architect make rough sketches for you. Look over our houses. It will pay you many dollars in actual value to do this before you build or buy on your own account.

NEXT DOOR TO THE CITY

Get That Little Ranch Right at the Gates of the City

Get it NOW, ahead of the great rush of 1915!

Buy 5 acres or 10 acres, just as much as you can afford. Buy it in the rich San Fernando Valley—not 50, 60 or 100 miles from the city, but right next door, where the increase in values is bound to be big with the enormous growth of the city.

Here's where the newcomers will look for 1, 2 and 3-acre country homes—here's where the men from Europe, coming via the Panama Canal, will make their gardens to supply the great, yawning market of Los Angeles.

Here's where you should double and treble your money when you subdivide in 1915 or 1916.

Finest deep, sub-irrigated soil, producing wonderful crops today with little care and attention.

Peach, apricot and walnut orchards are returning $250 an acre annually—chickens and melons, a splendid income the first year. With electric car and paved boulevard to the heart of the city. Wonderful transportation facilities. Little "suburban" farms at real acreage prices.

VAN NUYS-LANKERSHIM LANDS

5-Acre Tracts as Low as $375 an Acre—10-Acre Tracts $250 and $300 an Acre

One-quarter cash—balance in three years.

Do not delay—today over $5,000,000 has been sold and scores of orchards planted and homes built. 200,000 fruit trees were set out last season.

Get in NOW—own a chicken farm, country home or fruit orchard—the last great lands at the gates of the city. Think what 5 acres will mean to you in a few years—INDEPENDENCE. Call, 'phone or write. Come in and get more information. If you live out of town—use the coupon.

Needs of the Puente district and opportunities for new comers.

Names of property owners who will be glad to give further information to the stranger.

Once more, in its majestic and impressive way, the hand of progress has undertaken to mold another virgin agricultural district of our Southland.

This time, it is the Puente section, with its thousands of acres of wonderful grain fields; with its great subterranean reservoir of the finest well water; with its ideal climate for citrus fruits, ahuacates, and all other products which good soil will produce on the continent.

Lying in the southeast corner of the famous San Gabriel Valley, on the northern slope of the oil-laden Puente Hills, the Puente district stretches back from the broad, open plains of the wide valley to the enchanting dells and canyons of the bounding, southern hills. This spring one can look upon a verdant, cushiony mat of grain and alfalfa covering approximately 20,000 acres of this territory.

It is a sight to gladden any nature-loving eye to see this spacious green lawn of fine feed growing so full, heavy-headed and rapid. In the middle of March the crop stood waist-high to the farmer, and his children playing hide-and-seek within its close, thick growth, were entirely lost to view.

AN OUTPUT.

There will be 20,000 sacks of grain produced in this district inside of a few months. This will represent the product of 3500 acres. Then there are some 7000 or 8000 acres growing grain for hay. The grain-hay output will be in the neighborhood of 12,000 tons. During the year, there will be from 10,000 to 12,000 tons of alfalfa hay raised. Two thousand acres of this valuable land are growing 20,000 sacks of beans of such superior quality that much of the entire crop will be used for select seed by many of the Southern States.

With the exception of a very small area, nearly all of this land could be planted to citrus crops, walnuts, ahuacates or other fruit trees, and the land thus be made to produce a revenue several times greater than its present returns. The great body of it lies with a smooth and gently sloping, and it is well adapted for orchard planting without any preparation. Up to the present time the largest portion of this country was owned by a few wealthy men and has been cultivated as grain land by them for many years. But the time has now arrived when this land has become too valuable to be any longer held for this purpose. This extensive grain field would make one of the finest horticultural gardens in the world if it were more intensively farmed, and could be made to produce a living for over 4000 families, and an annual profit of several hundred dollars per acre instead of about $50, which is the maximum ever derived from grain crops.

SUBDIVIDING.

One by one, the big land owners in the Puente district are relinquishing their hold on the large tracts. This fact has given a new life and a new stimulus to the already progressive district.

The big issue in the agricultural world—that of intensive farming—has been driven home to some of the great land owners. They have realized there is more money made with less effort on the average ten-acre farm in Southern California than on the average quarter section anywhere else in the country. They see the impractical side of holding big tracts in this country where the demand is so great for small farms.

Several large tracts surrounding Puente have recently been subdivided and put upon the market. Each of these sold very rapidly and they are all in the constructive period of a high state of cultivation.

There are several hundred five and ten-acre tracts which have been sold off, and oranges, walnuts and ahuacates are being planted and the owners are doing well. The district is gaining in population and the prospects are brighter for the future than ever before.

WALNUTS, ORANGES, AHUACATES.

Nine years ago there was less than 1000 acres planted to walnuts in the Puente district. During the following year, 1500 acres were set out, and from that time up to the present, 1000 acres have been set to walnuts annually.

A number of these groves have, at eight years of age, been paying 9 per cent. interest on a valuation of $1000 an acre. The best full-bearing groves return $150 to $250 per acre. The president of the Puente Walnut Growers' Association has cleared $1500, net, on forty acres of walnuts at six years of age. It is only necessary to irrigate walnuts three times a year in this section, and during years of heavy rainfall they are only irrigated twice.

The limitations of commercial walnut growing are closely defined by climatic conditions. The tree is able to stand a considerable degree of cold, so long as it is not subjected to severe frosts and freezing outside the period of dormancy, and also provided the trees do not suffer for moisture outside the dormant period. The walnut will not stand an extreme summer heat. A fairly heavy, deep soil with an abundance of moisture, though at the same time thoroughly drained, are very essential.

The Puente district affords both the climatic and soil conditions ideal for the walnut, and this culture has developed into one of the leading industries here.

The trees are planted 50x40 feet apart, allowing from seventeen to twenty to the acre. As the trees take from four to five years to mature some of the ranchers manage to pay expenses, and sometimes a little more, by interplanting berries or other crops between the walnuts. Fortunately this is not an objectionable feature, as the walnut is a deep-rooting tree and if properly treated shows no injurious effects from judicious interplanting.

One man who has 100 acres planted to young walnuts has leased the ground between the trees to Japs for $20 per acre. This amount was net gain to the rancher, as the Japs also agreed to take care of the orchard trees and buy water from the owner. The Japs have planted berries and are delighted with their success.

The planting of orange trees on the foothills surrounding Puente has been going on for two years past, and the last two winters have proved this locality to be exceptionally free from frost. Soil and water conditions are all that could be desired for orange groves.

WATER CONDITIONS.

One of the most important assets of the Puente district is its water supply. This is chiefly derived from wells, although in the extreme eastern portion of the district part of the irrigation water is obtained from the San Jose creek.

One of the best wells in the district is owned by the North Whittier Heights Company. This is less than 200 feet in depth and from it a continual stream of 250 to 260 miner's inches is pumped. This well is operated for weeks at a time without stopping, and the continual pumping seems to make not the slightest impression upon the supply.

Close to Puente the La Grande Source Water Company has been operating a well for the past five years which produces 250 inches. This well is 180 feet deep and is operated with a fifty-horse-power engine. It is but twenty-two feet from the surface of the land to the water level in this well, and below that depth nearly the entire formation is a water-bearing gravel. The owner believes 500 inches could be pumped from this well with more powerful machinery.

Wells used for domestic purposes will average about twenty-five feet in depth throughout this section.

The Puente City Water Company is a $25,000 corporation. The company has three fine wells, averaging 140 feet in depth and pumping ninety miner's inches. Part of this is stored in a 100,000-gallon reservoir located on a hillside, about 200 feet above the town. This elevation furnishes a fifty-five-pound pressure. The water is piped through all the principal streets of the town to the residences. The domestic water rate is $1.25, minimum, for the first 600 cubic feet, and 10 cents per 100 cubic feet, for quantities used in excess of this amount. The company also furnishes irrigation water to several ranches.

The Puente Co-operative Water Company is a mutual company of land owners, representing 1800 acres to the northeast of Puente. This concern pumps 800 miner's inches of water, and distributes it to its stockholders at the cost of maintaining the system.

TOWN OF PUENTE.

Puente is an unincorporated town of approximately 1000 people. It lies nineteen miles east of Los Angeles on the Southern Pacific Railroad.

The regular passenger fare on the Southern Pacific is 60 cents one way from Los Angeles or $1.10 round trip. On Saturdays the railroad issues a round trip for 80 cents and on Sundays a round-trip ticket is sold for 60 cents. Twenty-five ride commutation tickets are also issued for family use and good for ninety days. By this ticket the single fare is reduced to 20 cents. There are three local trains each way daily.

Half a mile south of Puente is the station of Hudson, on the Salt Lake Railroad. The single fare on the Salt Lake from Los Angeles to Hudson station is 55 cents, and the round-trip, $1. There are five trains going into Los Angeles daily by this route and four coming out. As these run at different times to the Southern Pacific, Puente has a very convenient and frequent service.

Puente is on the Valley boulevard, between Los Angeles and San Bernardino. This is a splendid macadamized, automobile highway forming a link in the great Ocean-to-Ocean highway.

Much interest has been shown by the local people in the new Turnbull Canyon road, which will be opened shortly. This leads through a canyon in the Puente hills to the city of Whittier, and furnishes a direct opening for the southern part of the San Gabriel Valley to the beaches, shortening the present route some fifteen miles. This road will also benefit the people living in the Pomona and San Gabriel valleys.

When completed, the road will be thirty feet broad and at no place will the grade exceed 6 per cent. Its route leads through a country of exquisite rugged beauty.

Puente has a number of general mercantile stores representing the general lines of business. Commodities are sold at prices enabling the local retailers to compete with the Los Angeles houses. Lumber can be bought at Los Angeles prices plus the customary freight charges from the city to Puente.

Action has recently been taken by the Puente Improvement Association to have the main streets of the town paved. Every property holder along the streets to be so paved has signed a petition to the Board of Supervisors, which body has accepted it, and work will commence shortly on the streets.

The town and district are provided with electric energy for both illumination and power purposes by the Southern California Edison Company. There is also an adequate telephone service throughout the district. This is operated by the Home-phone Company of Covina. This company is now engaged in constructing a $3500 brick exchange building in Puente and will spend $15,000 upon the improvement and extension of its lines shortly.

Besides the good roads mentioned there is now under way in this district the construction of a macadam road between Puente and Covina, and a total of eighteen miles of other roads in different parts of the ranching section.

Recently there has been considerable building going on in the town. Three new brick structures are in course of erection and several residential houses have been constructed.

COMMERCIAL ACTIVITY.

The district has a number of successful business enterprises, steadily growing and enlarging every year, and new businesses are being added from time to time.

One of the leading factors under this heading is the First National Bank, which may be looked upon as an index to the success of all of the business being conducted in the district.

This institution was started in December, 1910, with a capitalization of $25,000 and deposits of $4200. By October, 1911, the deposits had mounted to $91,000. A year later, October, 1912, the deposits had crept up to $158,000 and the following year to $172,500. The present deposits are in the neighborhood of $190,000. The bank also has a surplus and undivided profit account of $11,000.

This fine showing of the First National is synonomous with the success of the local business houses and the ranchers. It has been a marked and decidedly progressive institution since its incipiency. Besides the wonderful increase in its deposits and its surplus account it has paid a good dividend to its stockholders from the first year of operation. There was a 25 per cent. increase in the number of its depositors last year. The bank is housed in its own brick and concrete building, which with furnishings and equipment is valued at $10,000.

Another evidence of the community's growth and wealth is the report of the freight agent of the local Southern Pacific Station.

Last year twenty-seven ten-ton cars of walnuts were shipped from the Puente station and the freight agent expects the output to be at least forty-five cars during the coming year. There were 150 cars of tomatoes shipped last year and provision is being made to handle [illegible] cars this year. There were twenty carloads of potatoes shipped from the station last year and the conservative estimate is that this product will total from forty to fifty carloads during the coming year. Last year about 300 carloads of grain were shipped.

Added to these freight shipments might be mentioned the quantities of fresh fruits and berries which are shipped by express in less than carload lots, annually, and which are steadily increasing in size each year.

The freight rate on the Southern Pacific for fourth-class commodities from Puente to Los Angeles is [illegible] cents per 100 pounds in less than carload lots and 7 cents per 100 pounds in full carload lots. Last year the total business of the Puente station amounted to something like $25,000 and it is considered the amount will be doubled during the coming year.

The Southern Pacific has erected a $3000 station building in the town and is contempating the immediate construction of another $1500 structure to more adequately handle its local service. The company will also park some of the land surrounding its station buildings.

PACKING-HOUSES.

The La Puente Valley Walnut Growers' Association probably controls the largest area of walnut groves of any association in the State. It is now handling the product of 11,000 acres of very young walnuts and when these come into full bearing the association will likely be the largest shipper in the United States. Last year this association paid the growers the highest prices for nuts. Budded nuts brought 19 cents, No. 1 nuts brought [illegible] cents, and No. 2 nuts brought 14 cents to the grower. The remarkable point was, that nearly the entire crop consisted of either budded or No. 1 nuts, there being but a very small percentage of the lower grades. It is generally conceded by the State authorities that the walnuts grown in this district are second to none in size and quality.

The walnut association has a $4000 packing-house at Puente with equipment for bleaching and [illegible] the nuts. The capacity of the house is for fifty tons a day.

The Puente Rancho Packing Company is a corporation capitalized at $100,000, which operates a [illegible] ranch southwest of the town and a cannery. This year the company will plant seventy-five acres to tomatoes, which they will can when ripe. They expect to ship 30,000 cases. Besides the tomatoes, various kinds of [illegible] fruits, vegetables, sauces and relishes are canned.

The Puente Canning Company has a $4000 plant, which will put up about 5000 cans of tomatoes during the year besides beans and [illegible] fruits. This concern has been paying the farmers $8 a ton for canning tomatoes and $40 a ton for shipping tomatoes.

The E. O. McCabe Company shipped 50,000 trays of [illegible] blackberries and loganberries from the district last year. This company paid the growers an average of [illegible] cents, net, per basket for berries through the season.

The Puente Mercantile Company handles most of the grain shipped out and last season shipped [illegible] cars of beans valued at [illegible]. They bought nearly [illegible] worth of this crop from the bean growers before the crop had been planted.

SOCIAL CONDITIONS.

Excellent grammar school facilities are afforded by several schools located throughout the length of the district and one in the town. The institution in the town, called the Hudson school, [illegible] plant represents an outlay of [illegible] and consists of an architectural [illegible]

Firms Appreciate Loyalty of the Workers.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PATERSON (N. J.) April 11.—The largest known contract for life insurance that has ever been made in this country was closed in Paterson by [illegible] L. Aumer, president of the National Silk Dyeing Company, and [illegible] Hunziker, vice-president, and [illegible] Cowperthwait, treasurer of the Weidman Silk Dyeing Company works of this city, with the [illegible] Life Insurance Company of Hartford, Ct., represented by H. S. [illegible] of this city.

The National Silk Dyeing Company insures all of the employees of the company in the various works located at Allentown, Pa.; Williamsport, Pa., [illegible] Lake and the works in this city. Every person connected with the two companies will be insured, from the president and officers down to the sweeper. The employees number about [illegible], and the aggregate amount of insurance carried will be about [illegible].

The adoption of this insurance for the benefit of the families of the employees is entirely voluntary on the part of the corporations, and it is a token of appreciation to the workers for their services and loyalty to the firm. The plan upon which the large risk is taken is what is known as "group insurance." Other firms here are expected to adopt the plan shortly.

REPORTS ON WAGES AND CONDITIONS.

[illegible] Bulletins from All Parts of the World.

After fifteen months' work the labor commission appointed by the provincial government, which has been making inquiries as to working conditions in the province of British Columbia, recently submitted its report, with recommendations that its findings be enacted into law. The principal of these findings are:

Compulsory State insurance against accidents to workmen, to be administered by a workmen's compensation board.

Weekly half-holiday for all stores.

Fortnightly pay in coal mines and other industries.

Abolition of privilege of subcontracting on railroad construction.

Time checks to be negotiable.

Eight-hour day declared to be matter for Dominion legislation.

Minimum wage not favored.

Women inspectors for shops and factories.

Licensing of operators of elevators.

Discrimination by employers against members of labor unions to be forbidden by law.

Municipal employment bureaus obligatory in cities.

Building inspectors obligatory in [illegible].

Miners entitled to supplies at cost.

Mine operators to be compelled to establish washhouses for employees.

Collective bargaining favored as means of fixing wages for miners.

Asiatic exclusion.

Assisted immigration to be confined to farm laborers and domestic help.

White women not to be employed [illegible].

Small holdings for workmen's [illegible].

Free text-books in public schools.

None but British subjects to be employed on government or municipal [illegible].

Regulations governing electrical [illegible].

The report comments on the growth of trade-unionism and the disappearance of all personal relations in the larger industries, and states that British Columbia, in regard to the number of men connected with unions, ranks higher than any province in Canada.

The report of the British Columbia Department of Labor for 1913 shows that during the past year there was a decrease in the membership affiliated with the Federation, particularly among the building trades organizations, owing to the prevailing financial depression, but the increase in the membership of the other unions was more than enough to offset this. The membership now affiliated with the federation is 13,950. Vancouver city leads with forty of the unions, followed by Victoria with twenty-seven, and New Westminster with fourteen. The new city and port of Prince Rupert has four unions.

Wage-Earners in England.

Speaking on "Women's Work and Wages" before the new Constitutional Society for Women's Suffrage at Cambridge, London, Mrs. Hubback said that the facts relating to child-employment were particularly appalling. It was a common thing for family earnings to be augmented by a child of 3 or 4 years sewing hooks and eyes on cards. Tiny children did such work because they were compelled to labor, whether they would or not. The babies were genuine wage-earners in the family. Five-year-olds were employed in fitting [illegible] on boxes. Employers (direct and indirect) and parents alike should be [illegible] for such dastardly [illegible] to this.

British Labor in February.

Employment in February, according to the Board of Trade Labor Gazette (a government publication) was good on the whole, but, compared with February, 1913, there was a decline. The coal mining, engineering and shipbuilding trades continued well employed and there was a seasonal improvement in the building trades. In most of the other principal industries there was a slight improvement. There was a continuance of the demand for labor in the shipbuilding trades.

[illegible] wages in February declined, according to the same official authority. Wages in the British iron and steel industries continued to fall in February, and in spite of some upward movement in other trades, the net general effect was a decline.

Workers Against Electrification.

Several hundred railroad employees of the lines entering Buffalo are up in arms against the electrification of those lines within the city, fearing that many of them would lose their jobs. Horses and mules might, could they have spoken, have made similar protest years ago against the introduction of trolley cars. It is for labor, like everything else, to adjust itself to the march of progress. From the very start labor objected to machinery, but today, with multifarious machinery, we are employing far more labor than ever before.

Salaries of Professional Men.

There is no concealing the fact, says the Engineering Record, that on the whole neither pay nor prospects of the engineering profession have of late been particularly encouraging. Technical pursuits of all kinds are, as a whole, underpaid. Yet in comparing the rewards of the engineering professions with those of other professions, the situation does not appear by any means as bad as it might be.

The average clergyman, as a matter of cold-blooded statistics, gets less salary than the average motorman or conductor of similar length of service on a first-class electric railway.

In law, the average earnings derived from strictly professional work are probably little, if any, higher than in engineering, although the exceptional lawyer unquestionably makes very much more than the exceptional engineer, or has done so up to the present time.

Medicine is notoriously a less well-paid profession than law, and particularly as regards the younger men, although those of high reputation can show large earnings. Doctors with incomes over $10,000 a year outnumber engineers, although the average in the two professions is probably not far from the same.

The average young engineer at the age of 30 is faring quite as well as his brother in any of the other learned professions. The big prizes in engineering are comparatively scarce, but if one reads the signs of the times a-right the outlook in this respect is steadily growing better. Every large enterprise in the future will have to depend on a high grade of technical ability in executive positions. High finance is somewhat less popular than it was, and the plain stockholders are beginning to look about for men of tried ability to take the place of those who are distinguished as clever jugglers of securities.

Many Steel Mills May Shut Down.

The Iron Trade Review says:

"Consumption of pig iron and finished materials continues at a fair rate, but new buying is extremely light, and it is evident that unless conditions improve soon many mills will be compelled to close entirely or curtail operations. The most discouraging feature at the present time is the almost entire absence of anything to indicate that improvement will set in at any time in the near future.

"Prices of pig iron are being firmly maintained in the North, but in the South there is considerable weakness. Buying by agricultural implement manufacturers and railroads continues very light."

BRITISH WORKMEN'S WAGES.

Have Increased Some, But Not in Proportion to the Higher Cost of Living.

[The Square Deal:] About the only thing in the economic life of the English workingman that has not risen materially in price is his rent, and this is due to the fact that even during one of the most prosperous years in England's history the emigration of high-class workers, agricultural and industrial, was greater than ever before. Food prices all over the country have advanced by 25 per cent. during the past seven years; what the British workingman could purchase in 1905 for $5 now costs him $6.25. The cost of clothing during the period has gone up 9 per cent. Wages have risen also, but not in proportion to the increased cost of living. In the Sheffield engineering trades molders receive $10.50 per week; pattern makers, $10.25; turners, smiths, fitters and millwrights, $9.75; electrical workers receive $0.17 per hour; upholsterers, $0.17 to $0.18; in the building trades bricklayers, carpenters, masons, plumbers, and plasterers are paid $0.18 to $0.19 per hour. Ordinary laborers receive $5.75 and semi-skilled men $6.25 per week. Several strikes occurred during the year under review, the most serious being among the molders in the big works. It was settled by an advance in wages of $0.25 per week, to go into effect in April, 1914.

FARMERS SUCCESSFUL AS STRIKE-BREAKERS.

They Quickly Settle Big New Zealand Labor Trouble. Complete Victory for the Employers — Marked Antagonism Between Capital and Labor—More Trouble Imminent—Disturbances Started by Socialists.

BY W. T. HORNADAY.

[SPECIAL CONTRIBUTION.]

AUCKLAND (New Zealand) March 15.—It has been found in New Zealand that American-made ax handles are powerful weapons of persuasion in time of grave crisis. It was during the closing weeks of last year that this dominion was afflicted with the greatest and most far-reaching uprising of union labor that had ever been experienced here. More than 25,000 workers were on strike. The industries of the country were paralyzed. The weeks went by and, instead of any improvement in the situation being apparent, the trouble continued to spread until a sympathetic strike was declared in Sydney, Australia, more than 1200 miles across the ocean from the main seat of turmoil. All of Australasia was likely to become involved if a settlement of the trouble could not be reached. The government of New Zealand seemed to be powerless to cope with the disturbing element of the strikers who prevented the loading of ships and interfered generally with the carrying on of industries and commerce. The wharves at all of the ports were in complete control of the riotous strikers. The harbors were full of vessels awaiting to take on and discharge cargoes.

It was under these distressing conditions that the farmers of the different provinces had the fact borne home to them that unless organized and concerted action on their part was taken to open the ports their perishable products, such as meat and butter, destined for export would be ruined. In fact, heavy losses had already been suffered by them, due to the tying up of the steamship traffic. The yeomanry of the country districts determined to take matters into their own hands.

ADROIT WORK.

The leaders of the strike-breaking movement, who were officers of the farmers' unions quietly communicated with the government authorities, inquiring if a volunteer force of constabulary, made up of farmers, for duty upon the wharves and upon the streets in the different cities would be accepted. The proposition met with the government's approval. So secretly was the work of perfecting the rural constabulary organization carried on that the first knowledge that the strikers in Auckland, Wellington, Lyttleton and other places had that such a thing was even contemplated was when they awoke one morning and found the wharves and principal business thoroughfares swarming with this volunteer force of farmer patrolmen. In all, more than 10,000 men enrolled in this volunteer army and performed active service. In Auckland 1200 mounted men and the same number of footmen were on duty.

When this volunteer organization was being formed, the question arose as to what kind of weapon the members should carry. It was unanimously decided that no firearms should be taken along. Why not select the American ax handle, one farmer suggested. Hurrah! It was done. The country stores were depleted of ax handles to arm the little army.

The sudden appearance of these 10,000 determined looking men from the country had an immediate subduing effect upon the strikers. Many of the volunteer constables went to work upon the wharves, and in a few hours the strike was almost completely broken, so far as the shipping was concerned. There were a number of lively set-tos, between strikers and the farmers, but the latter wielded their ax handles with a vigor that soon drove terror into the hearts of the idle workers.

Business in various lines quickly resumed its normal sway, and many of the strikers were given back their old positions. The affected employers, however, gave preference to the new workers who had stood by them during the trouble. Many new unions were formed and all were registered under the industrial conciliation and arbitration act.

HEAVY LOSSES.

It is estimated that the strike caused losses aggregating more than $5,000,000. The Dominion government appropriated $500,000 to meet expenses incurred in the trouble.

The history of this remarkable conflict is full of many-sided interests. It was the first time that syndicalism or sympathetic action over a labor difficulty had ever been attempted in New Zealand. For many years, following the enactment of the arbitration law, this Dominion was known as "a country without strikes." According to the preaching of the Socialists, an ideal state of conditions as applied to the relations between capital and labor, existed here. Employers and workers now freely admit that the antagonism between the two interests is very pronounced. Of course, the weeding out of a considerable percentage of the trouble-making element among the laborers, due to the recent strike, has improved conditions, but for how long no one ventures to predict. Certain it is, that Socialist and union labor agitators who were worsted in the recent contest are already laying plans for another supreme battle with the employers. Legal restrictions which the government has already provided, and additional ones that may be apodten in the future, may prevent, for a time, the inevitable renewal of the trouble.

Closely associated with events leading up to the general strike of a few months ago were the activities of Walter Thomas Mills of Milwaukee, Wis. He is known in Australia and New Zealand as "Prof." Mills, but Mr. Mills himself says the prefix is altogether honorary. He was delivering lectures on socialism in Australia about three years ago, when he attracted the notice of Edgar Tregear of Wellington, N. Z., who was prominently connected with the government labor bureau for many years and who has the distinction of being the author of practically all of the more important labor legislation of the Dominion. Mr. Tregear believed the time had come for the creation of a new labor party based on pronounced Socialistic lines, and he invited Mills to come to New Zealand and assist him in the work. Three years ago these two men drafted the constitution of what they called the United Labor party. The same organization was also intended to serve as a federation of labor unions. It had a rapid growth. Practically all of the labor unions belonging to trade councils were brought into the organization. Of the 70,000 organized laborers in New Zealand, about 30,000 became members of the United Labor party. The opposing organization was the Federation of Labor.

THE STARTER.

It was about sixteen months ago that the first of the series of events that led up to the general strike occurred. A coal miner at Huntley was accidentally killed and the miners who belonged to his union took a day off to attend his funeral. The mining company discharged the executive of the union for this alleged violation of their working agreement. The other miners went on a strike, and their places were filled by other men who organized a new union that was registered under the arbitration act. The strikers belonged to the Federation of Labor, which organization ordered them to return to work, join the new union and obtain control of it. This was done. When the company discovered that the old disturbing faction was in control of the new union, it discharged all of the men, sixteen in number, comprising the whole Executive Committee of the union. This action was taken on the plea of reducing the force of workers. The next day the company took on fourteen new men. The demands of the Federation of Labor that the discharged miners be reinstated was refused by the company and a strike on the ground of victimization was declared.

DIVISION.

In the meanwhile the breach between the United Labor party and the Federation of Labor was growing. The Federation of Labor called a conference, which was held in Wellington in January, 1913, for the purpose of considering the differences that existed between the two organizations and arriving at some satisfactory settlement or consolidation. Mr. Tragear and Mr. Mills addressed the conference upon invitation. They were appointed as members of a committee to draft constitutions for two new and closely affiliated organizations, one to be industrial and the other political, and submit their plans at a general conference of all workers to be held in Wellington the following July. This later conference resulted in the birth of what is known as the "Red-Feds," or the United Federation of Labor, and the Social Democratic party. Both organizations were dominated largely by the Industrial Workers of the World, agitators of the latter organization coming here from Australia for the purpose of promulgating their doctrine. Socialism as preached by Mr. Mills also found its place in the organizations. The man from Milwaukee is the general organizer of the Social Democratic party, and that the new movement is making remarkable strides is shown by the fact that it has already won six seats in the Dominion Parliament and that the two by-elections held since the recent strike resulted in victories for its candidates.

A small portion of the United Labor party refused to join the United Federation of Labor, and the former still maintains its organization. The Federation of Labor was merged wholly into the new movement.

It became known to the larger employers of labor that the new element of agitators from the United States and Australia that had injected itself into the affairs of the workers of the Dominion was striving to bring about a strike and that the contest would be probably forced upon them as soon as the new organization felt that it had sufficient strength to withstand the test. The employers' associations raised a large protective fund and in other ways made provision for resisting the threatened contest.

ARBITRATION ACT FAILS.

It is well to state in this connection that both the workers and employers were dissatisfied with the operation of the industrial conciliation and arbitration act which was passed in 1894. All went well enough for a period of ten years after the law was first enacted, not a strike occurring during all that time. The act is not compulsory, but for several years nearly all of the unions registered under it. For ten years the unions obtained practically all the awards they asked for. Their demands finally reached a point where they could not be granted, and then the withdrawal of unions from registration under the act began. The law lost much of its original force. Gradually, however, the Dominion became more and more overridden by union labor. Employers and a large part of the general citizenship, particularly the farmers, claim that the many laws in the interest of the workers are doing grave injury to the best interests of the country.

The story of the operation of the industrial conciliation and arbitration act and other phases connected with the labor situation are well worth telling in a separate article from this.

TO THE RESCUE.

Going back to the subject of the recent strike and the events leading up to it, the interesting fact is noted that the walkout of 25,000 workers was directly caused by the discharge of thirty shipwrights at Wellington by the Union Steamship Company of New Zealand. These men had applied for an increase of wages and the company had refused to grant the demand. In looking into the question, the company discovered that these thirty shipwrights had been receiving pay for the time spent in walking to and from their work, amounting to $1.25 per week for each man. This had been going on for many years. The amount was cut off. The affected men took an hour off from their work to consider what action they should take because of the reduction of the amount of wages they had been receiving. They decided not to strike. When they returned to take up their work, they found that the company had filled their places with new men because they had knocked off work for an hour without asking permission.

This lockout quickly led to a general sympathetic strike that involved nearly every trade and industry in the Dominion. It lasted until the farmers came to the rescue with their American ax handles.

The defeat of the strikers and the Industrial Workers of the World agitators was complete. Not only did the men give up the struggle without a single concession having been granted to them by employers, but thousands of new workers found jobs and have formed unions under the arbitration act. The employers also gained by the enactment of a special law by Parliament during the strike which prohibits a strike being declared in the future without a conference being held between the dissatisfied workers and their employers. It also prohibits a strike being declared except by secret ballot of the members of the union.

Several of the leaders of the strikers were arrested during the height of the trouble and had to serve jail sentences for using language in public addresses that tended to excite their followers to acts of violence.

RULING ON ACCIDENT.

State Insurance Commission Lays Down Law to Govern In Cases of Employer and Employee.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 11.—In decisions by the State Accident Insurance Commission several new principles are enunciated.

Responsibility of an employer, the commission ruled, begins when an employee arrives at place of his work, and does not cease until he departs, providing he does not loiter.

Premeditated assault upon a peace officer, when injury or death results, shall be classified as an accident.

A third ruling was in the case of a man killed while blasting stumps on a ranch. The commission held that the decedent did not come under the provisions of the act, as he was either a farm laborer or a casual laborer.

Strikers Leave Their Union.

[Pittsburgh Gazette:] At a public meeting of the striking conductors and trainmen of the Monongahela division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, it was announced that the [illegible] had broken away from their organizations and joined the Industrial Railway Union.

The announcement was made by E. P. Getchell, a Pennsylvania Railroad conductor, who was chairman of the meeting. Besides the strikers, several hundred men from other railroads attended. Many of the strikers made speeches, declaring the Pennsylvania Railroad had broken faith with the men. They said the present organizations of railway men had been dealing unfairly with them. The strikers reviewed their grievances against their unions, and the railroad.

Strikers Endanger Traffic.

[Philadelphia Telegraph:] Reports of violence continue along the lines of the Monongahela division, Pennsylvania Railroad, in connection with the strike of the conductors and trainmen.

A fusillade of shots greeted the arrival of the south-bound coal train at Stockdale town on the Ellsworth branch early, but no one was injured. The strikers continue to cut the air hose on trains and have thrown cars from moving freights.

Track-walkers reported that they found several switches thrown open during the night, but replaced them before any damage could result. As a precautionary measure all the bridges and foundations along the division are inspected several times each day.

SOCIALIST QUACKS AND QUACKERY.

[EDITORIAL.]

NATURALLY a party which admits so frankly that there is nothing but antagonism possible between religion and Socialism has little sympathy with the so-called Socialists, who are trying to dupe the people by making them believe that there is complete harmony between the two.

In the opinion of those who formulated the "Socialism and Religion" manifesto of the Socialist party of Great Britain, "Christianity is the very antithesis of Socialism," and they have no respect for Socialists who are "creating confusion" in the movement by professing that religion and Socialism are not "irreconcilably opposed to each other."

In proof of the attitude which all Marxist Socialists take toward such "quackery" as the doctrines of "Christian Socialism" and the theories that are promoted by the politicians in the party for the purpose of catching votes, one chapter in the official pamphlet is devoted to a consideration of these "quacks."

After quoting J. Ramsey MacDonald, M.P., as saying that, "Socialism has no more to do with a man's religion than it has to do with the color of his hair," as it "deals with secular things, not with ultimate beliefs," the writers set over against that statement the still more emphatic assertion of E. Belfort Box, of the Social-Democratic party.

"The saying of Tridon, subsequently repeated by Bebel and others, to the effect that Socialism stands for a system of life and thought expressing itself in economics as communism, and in religion as atheism, embodies in a few words a large measure of truth. It may be convenient for Socialists with a view to election expediency to seek to confine the definition of Socialism to the economic issue, abstracted from all the other issues of life and conduct."

While admitting, says Josiah Fenton, in the Paterson Press, that the attempt to harmonize religion and Socialism is good material for use by those who are trying to find a bait at which a Christian man may be persuaded to nibble, the members of the Socialist party of Great Britain have no use for this kind of cheap politics. Thus, when Keir Hardie, the English Socialist member of Parliament, in a 1900 election address, made the declaration:

"My cause is labor's cause—the cause of humanity—the cause of God. I first learned my Socialism in the New Testament, where I still find my chief inspiration," there was an immediate reply from the honest Socialists:

"This may explain some of the vagaries of Mr. Hardie," they said. "It certainly shows that his creed, whatever else it may be, is not Socialism."

And to this the writers of the manifesto, add:

"The religious appeal, indeed, betrays the political mountebank. To attempt to obtain electoral support by the display of decomposing religious sentiment, is to play the game of the enemy and to fatten on ignorance. Those whose standpoint is the welfare of the working class can make no appeal on the ground of religion; for religion is an instrument of domination which cannot be used as an agent of emancipation at this stage of social development. The great theoretic weapon of the wage-workers, in their fight for freedom, is science, not religion; and religion and science are as incompatible as fire and water."

Frankly as this states the Socialist party's position, however, the manifesto writers are willing to go still farther:

"It may be urged . . . that since Socialists look upon religious ideas as shadows of society . . . they should ignore religion entirely. This, however, is incorrect, for, apart from the necessity of frankly facing every implication of Socialism, there yet remains the fact already noted, that ideas, religious and others, have an important reflex action on society that cannot be ignored. Moreover, as Marx has put it:

"Religion is the opium of the people. The suppression of religion as the happiness of the people is the revindication of its real happiness. The invitation to abandon illusions regarding its situation is an invitation to abandon a situation which has need of illusions. Criticism of religion is, therefore, the germ of a criticism of the vale of tears, of which religion is the holy aspect."

"Not only, indeed, is the struggle against religion intellectually useful, but it cannot conscientiously be avoided."

Unfortunately for those who are trying to convince the masses that religion and Socialism are practically one and the same thing, there are other Socialist bodies in England which are honest enough to admit that the charge that Marxism is distinctly anti-religious in its philosophy and purpose is fully justified by the facts. The "Clarion Group," of which Robert Blatchford is a leading light, is frankly irreligious, while the Free Thought Socialist League, which boasts a membership of several thousands, has published anti-religious pamphlets that have not been equaled for their blasphemy and scurrility by the works of Socialists in any part of the world—and this is a pretty broad statement.

One of the works which the members of this Socialist League have distributed widely is entitled, "Christ, the Great Enemy of the Human Race." It opens with the following words:

"Among the abominable, curious and ridiculous things in human history 'Christ' is one of the worst. It has been used for countless different opinions; all more or less contradictory; all mutually antagonistic; but all pushed and advertised under the name of 'Christ.'"

As might be expected, Socialists maintaining such frank opinions are not likely to approve of the attempts to harmonize religion and Socialism which men like Hardie and Macdonald have fathered, and, as to the "Christian Socialist"—the idea alone is sufficient to make the members of this league lose all semblance of self-control.

"The growth of the great labor movement has been threatening Christism," the writer of this pamphlet declares, "and God's funkeys have been seriously worried about their waning influence and the danger to their jobs (and salaries.) These black-coated gentlemen know that they can keep their position, power and pelf, only so long as they can 'kid' the people. . . . The Socialist movement, in its comparative success, having drawn many away from the churches, the reverend hypocrites have suddenly discovered that 'Jesus Christ was a Socialist!' They denounced Socialism as atheism (which, it really is, being entirely concerned with this world, and with purely human and natural agencies.) Now finding their power petering out, like the hypocrites they are, they declare themselves 'Socialists.' They discover all of a sudden that 'Christ' is in the Socialist movement; 'God' means the Socialist movement to succeed. But they only found that out when Socialism was succeeding and 'Christ' was going."

To prove his three contentions, that (1) Christ is the enemy of Socialism; (2) Christ's morality is distinctly antagonistic to Socialism, and (3) Christ's teaching is destructive of all human and social progress, the author summarizes his arguments as follows:

"(a) Socialism stands for universal wealth; Christ for universal poverty.

"(b) Socialism stands for rebellion; Christ for submission.

"(c) Socialism stands for this world; Christ for the next world.

"(d) Socialism stands for reliance on human effort; Christ for reliance on God.

"(e) Socialism stands for courage; Christ for meekness and humility.

"(f) Socialism stands for the human race; Christ for God's chosen people.

"(g) Socialism stands for equal justice; Christ for intolerance and bigotry.

"(h) Socialism stands for the emancipation of woman; Christ for her degradation.

"(i) Socialism stands for human reason; Christ for faith in God.

"(j) Socialism stands for human knowledge; Christ for revelation from God."

Yet there are persons who declare and insist that they are "Christians" and Socialists at one and the same time. "Christian Socialists," as such, are Socialist quacks and "Christian Socialism," as such is Socialist quackery.

PLANS BUNGALOW COURT.

Long Beach Man Buys Attractive Site in South Pasadena — Business Block Projected in Lincoln Park.

SOUTH PASADENA, April 11.—A. H. Baldwin of Long Beach has purchased from Charles N. Taylor the northwest corner at Fairview and Hope streets, 150x160 feet, running back to the Santa Fe tracks. He will immediately start the erection of a bungalow court. It is his intention to build five bungalows of four rooms each, two facing Hope street, two facing Fairview avenue, and one on the corner. The consideration in the purchase was not named.

A business block is one of the improvements planned for the Lincoln Park section of the city. It is projected at the corner of Pasadena avenue and Hawthorne street. The building will be of brick and will contain a drug store, a grocery and a barber shop. For the present only one story will be built, but the foundation will be so constructed that when conditions warrant another story can be added.

The Dorn-Sykes Company of Pasadena reports the sale of a two-story brick business block on the north side of Mission street, between Diamond and Meridian avenue, to H. J. Chaffee. The consideration is not named.

TO "JERSEY" MAN.

Among recent sales reported by C. A. Harshbarger, manager of the bungalow department of Robert Marsh & Co., is that of an eight-room house at No. 3710 Arlington street to Charles G. Davies, of Jersey City, N. J. The lot is 50x150 feet in size. The purchaser expects to make Los Angeles his permanent home and to occupy his new place within the next thirty days.

CASH FOR GROVE.

SAN DIMAS, April 11.—The ten-acre, 10-year-old navel orange grove of G. W. Bisbee was sold this week to Mrs. Durand, who is the mother of C. W. Durand, one of the largest orange growers in this vicinity. The grove is situated on Ferry avenue in La Verne. The consideration is given at $18,000 cash. D. E. Lutter, a wealthy brick manufacturer of Chicago, has acquired the W. N. Bender ranch on Foothill boulevard, near Lincoln avenue, northeast of San Dimas. He will build a fine bungalow upon the property.

Purchased by New Jersey Man for Home.

Farming at Puente.

brick and plaster building built along the mission design. It contains an auditorium seating 250, offices, restrooms and recitation rooms. It is equipped with a fine heating and ventilating system. There are 118 pupils enrolled and the faculty numbers three teachers. There is approximately ten acres of ground surrounding the building, part of which has been parked. The school has been built four years.

The enrollment has steadily increased from fifty pupils in 1911 and at the present time action is being taken to commence the immediate construction of an additional building to keep pace with the demands placed upon the school.

High school accommodations are afforded at Covina, which is six miles north of Puente. The Covina school sends out a free automobile bus to carry the pupils living in the Puente district, to and from the school, daily.

It is expected Puente will have a High School of its own in a very short time.

In connection with the local school work there is an active Parent-Teachers Association of forty-five members, which holds regular monthly meetings in the Hudson schoolhouse.

The Methodist Episcopal and Catholic churches are represented in Puente and each denomination has its own house of worship.

Several of the leading fraternal orders have lodges or chapters at Puente. The local Masons have leased lodge rooms in one of the new brick buildings under construction in the town.

The Puente Improvement Association is an organization of the leading business men who are acting in lieu of an organized civic body on all matters appertaining to the welfare of the community and in the protection of their business interests.

The Puente Journal, a live weekly sheet, keeps the inhabitants well posted upon local happenings.

ROWLAND.

On the Salt Lake railroad about three miles east of Puente is the thriving community of Rowland. This place has its own postoffice, railroad station and general store and is in the heart of a very rich agricultural section.

From this station from 1300 to 1400 trays of berries a day are shipped during the berry season. From ten to twenty-five tons of tomatoes are raised to the acre and over one hundred acres in the vicinity will be planted to this crop this year.

At Rowland is a large substation of the Southern California Edison Electric Company which transforms the electric current received over the high tension wires for use in the Puente district. The plant consists of a neat concrete building in which is housed the customary transforming and condensing equipment.

Located in a secluded part of the hills south of Rowland is the plant of the Satanite Explosive Company. This is a corporation capitalized at $50,000 and the only one of its kind in this part of the State. This company manufactures an explosive powder which is considerably different from ordinary gunpowder or dynamite, differing chiefly from these in being much more safe to handle. Satanite, which is the name of the explosive, is a chloride preparation and can be hammered or burnt without danger of exploding. The company has a plant with a capacity for turning out ten tons per day.

Rowland is the logical site of a good town. Some day when a few big land owners subdivide their holdings about this place a fine will undoubtedly be materialized.

NEEDS AND OPPORTUNITIES.

In the town of Puente one can buy business lots for from $300 to $1000 each, including all public improvements such as domestic water, electricity, etc. Residence lots are from $300 to $400 each. These are exceptional values when prices are compared to those prevailing in other towns surrounding Puente.

Walnut groves with water and planted with five-year-old trees can be had from $700 per acre and up, while excellent orange land planted to young trees runs from $800 per acre up. Raw land suitable for either walnuts, alfalfa or oranges can be had at from $400 to $500 per acre.

There is a fine opening in Puente for a small but first-class hotel and persons interesting in this line of investment would do well to investigate the inducements.

There is a large assembly hall in the town in which electrical current is provided and other conveniences required for a motion-picture theater. There is no kind of an amusement attraction in the town at the present time and a show of this nature should pay well.

A rooming-house and an up-to-date steam laundry are needed. The town has nothing of this nature at the present time.

Should the reader desire any further facts on the Puente district than that contained in this article, he may secure the same by correspondence with any of the persons whose names are given below. These people are all property holders in the district and will be glad to give the inquirer reliable facts and data. Mail addressed to them at the Puente postoffice will reach them safely.

"DOC" WHITE WINS HIS THIRD STRAIGHT GAME.

[illegible] Jack Ryan for Pitching Honors to Date — Expensive Errors Rob the Great Southpaw of Shutout. Crabb Driven from Mound in Seventh—Broken Finger Forces Metzger from the Game.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

G. HARRIS WHITE yesterday [illegible] a 1-to-4 pill and crammed it down the unwilling throats of the Angels.

No slight hope is entertained for the recovery of the patient. This victory puts the Tigers in front for the [illegible], and they need but one of today's games to put the same under lock and key.

This is the third straight victory which White has chiseled out with his left hand since coming West to grow up with the league, and ties him with Jack Ryan for the twirling topnotchery down to the present typewriting.

Pitted against the great southpaw was "Luxuriant" Roy Crabb. Roy was completely overmatched, and after having been in trouble up to his rosy ears in every inning, made a dive for the shower bath in the seventh, after the Tigers had upheaved for three runs in a lump. Frank McKenry succeeded in domesticating the Tigers. The only advantage of this was to shorten the suffering and permit the fans to reach home by pot-roast time.

White, save for a strain of wildness that speckled his performance with six passes, and gave rise to many ticklish situations, was in a baffling mood. His failure to shut out the Angels was due to a series of "help the blind" performances in his rear.

"Doc's" support collapsed completely on two or three occasions. Franz Hosp, better known as the "human bulwark," wasn't bulwarking with marked success yesterday. His drop of a thrown ball that should have been the pivot of a double play, and poor playing of Maggert's drive, gave the Angels three runs in the fourth that come under the head of unearned increment. "Babe" Borton became infected in the seventh, and his error on a drive by Ellis let another run leak in.

The cost of this victory to the Angels cannot be measured simply by its effect on the percentage table. It left their infield structure without a corner stone, George Metzger being forced to leave the field with a broken finger in the fifth. His hand was wrecked when he fell on it after making a wonderful stop of a man-killing drive from Leard. He will be out of the game for five weeks at least.

All of which goes to show that the Angel "jinx" is in good working order after a winter of discontent.

Not content with merely pitching his opponents blue in the face, White

HUGE SUBJECT FOR AUTOISTS.

Expositions to Bring Many Thousands Here.

Want Two Routes for Tours from the East.

Auto Club Men Return from Inspection Run.

BY O. K. PARKER,
Chief Engineer, Auto Club of Southern California.

One of the pertinent subjects of interest to motorists is that of transcontinental touring. Particularly is this true because of the two great expositions to be held on the Pacific Coast in 1915. The thoughts of at least 50,000 motorists are turned toward a trip across America next year.

As an indication of what this means in a commercial way to the country in general, it may be noted that these motorists will spend at least $750 each, representing nearly $40,000,000 to be distributed along the several transcontinental routes over which these cars will pass.

It is a matter of statistics that 96 per cent. of the tourists to the Pacific Coast desire to take the westward trip over one route and return eastward over some other route. Probably the best advertised transcontinental motor route of today, from New York City to the Pacific Coast, is via the Lincoln highway, passing through Chicago, Omaha, Cheyenne, Wyoming, and Salt Lake City, crossing the Sierras between Reno and Sacramento. The easterly portion of that route is a very favorable one, as far west as Cheyenne, Wyo., but from that point west the route is not as favorable as some of the other transcontinental routes.

INSPECT ROUTE.

As an indication of how this subject is regarded by Lincoln highway officials themselves, Henry B. Joy left Detroit some time ago and motored to Denver, Colo., where he turned south and made an inspection of the route through New Mexico to Albuquerque; thence to Springerville, and over the Grand Canyon route through Northern Arizona. The object of Mr. Joy's trip, according to those who had occasion to talk with him along the route, was to ascertain a more favorable road for the westerly portion of transcontinental traffic to the expositions.

On the trip which we have just completed for the Automobile Club of Southern California, from Los Angeles to Albuquerque and return, we talked with a number of people who had been told by Mr. Joy that he would be glad to divert as much traffic as possible to the Grand Canyon route.

The Automobile Club of Southern California, through its route and map service department, has been advised many times during the past year of the great development which has been going on along the Grand Canyon route in Arizona, and it was with that in mind that an investigation has just been carried out, whereby it was ascertained that a very large percentage of the road between San Bernardino and Albuquerque has been reconstructed within the past twelve months and that, at this time, there is not ten miles all told of rough road between Los Angeles and Albuquerque. All severe grades have been eliminated, and a large proportion of the road has been made into a splendid boulevard, so that the so-called "terrors of the desert" have been transformed into a pleasurable motoring tour for every mile of the distance.

PICTURESQUE ROUTE.

When it is considered that motorists over the Grand Canyon route can enjoy such natural and historic wonders as the Petrified Forest, Painted Desert, the cliff dwellings of Walnut Canyon, near Flagstaff, Montezuma's Castle, Grand Falls of the Little Colorado, and the Grand Canyon of Arizona, and can travel that route over an improved highway which will be signposted this year by the Automobile Club of Southern California from Los Angeles to Denver and Kansas City, it is hardly to be wondered at that a large part of the traffic which will distribute the $40,000,000 en route to the Pacific Coast next year will select the Santa Fe-Grand Canyon-Needles National highway as their transcontinental route.

One of the tremendous advantages to be enjoyed along this road is that of nightly accommodations for the personnel of the party motoring to California, and the fact also that every fifteen or twenty miles along the entire route there are supply stations where gasoline, oil and attention to the car may be had.

As an indication of how much alive to the advantages of this route the various supply houses are, it may be noted that the Bowser Company, makers of gasoline pumps purpose to install at each town along the Santa Fe-Grand Canyon route one of their modern gasoline and oil tanks, designed especially for that route, and having the emblem of the route emblazoned on each tank. They are installing a like system for the Lincoln highway, thus conclusively demonstrating that this far-seeing commercial automobile supply establishment recognizes the many advantages of our more southerly road to California.

Carlton Wright Steps Into Shoes of Norman Macbeth by Defeating Morris Phillips of Redlands at San Gabriel—Is Youngest Player to Obtain Possession of the Coveted Title.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

CARLTON WRIGHT, the boy wonder, is the new champion of Southern California. He defeated Morris Phillips of Redlands in the 36-hole finals yesterday by 2 up and 1. He supplants Norman Macbeth in the title, that champion failing to defend his laurels.

He is our youngest champion and succeeds to a crown that has been worn by E. S. Armstrong, Judge Frederickson, Charles E. Orr and Walter Cosby in the dim religious past, when youth was not quite so insistent, when thirty was not really passe, when these blessed children

SLAUGHTER OF INNOCENTS PROVES GLEEFUL PASTIME.

San Francisco Piles Up Fourteen Runs Before Smoke of Battle Clears, Batting Trio of Portland Heavers With Ease—Salveson Does Good Work.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 11.—Walt McCredie staged the "Slaughter of the Innocents" at Recreation Park today, and after the San Francisco baseball public had laughed until its sides ached from the unusual exercise, the score that was pinned up on the bulletin boards looked like this:

San Francisco, 14; Portland, 4.

"The Slaughter of the Innocents" was a case of working recruit pitchers in the face of certain defeat. With Higginbotham literally batted out of the box in a little more than three innings, McCredie turned the engineering of the game over to a couple of his youngsters—Harold Peet, who hails from the Northwest, and Herb Salveson, whose claim to fame is the fact that he was produced in Southern California.

The recruits, caught in the vortex of a storm, looked to be worried and they played the part. Peet, left a legacy of a 6 to 3 score against him by Higginbotham, found himself in sore trouble in the fifth, and what didn't happen to Harold, who was removed with two on the bases and none out, occurred to Herb Salveson.

The Californian was deathly sick of his job, even in that short length of time it took him to walk from the bench to the pitcher's mound, and with all the kindly assurances of Capt. Bill Rodgers, he couldn't settle down to his task in that inning.

The Seals ran the bases merrily, swung at the ball gleefully, and when they were finished there were eight runs to be registered.

It wasn't high-toned baseball, but the crowd liked the sensation and demanded on the instant that the bell ring out the story of just what had happened. After that, be it said to the credit of Salveson, he straightened out some of the kinks in his arm and held the Seals runless and well-nigh hitless—or had the boys enough for one afternoon?

Lefty Leifield, never wasting a motion or taking an extra step, must have enjoyed the spectacle. He was out in front all the way from the first inning, when, with two on bases, Mundorff dropped the ball out of sight over the right-field fence.

Kores, with a penchant for long-distance driving, causes the St. Louis twirler most of his bother, scoring once in the second when he opened with a double, and again in the fourth when the same Portlander laid the sphere away over center-field fence.

Once—just for a brief moment—the Beavers were as close as 4 to 3, but they never had a chance after

AUTOISTS AFTER BALBOA ROUTES.

One of the tours in which motorists are particularly interested at this time is over the road to Balboa.

In answer to requests for the best route the Automobile Club of Southern California is routing automobilists both by way of Santa Ana or via Whittier Pump Station, Los Nietos, Santa Fe Springs, Norwalk, Artesia and Cypress.

Opportunity is thus given for a round trip which will cover only a portion of the same territory twice.

SEATTLE WINS BOAT RACE.

STANFORD AND CALIFORNIA END IN ORDER NAMED.

Washington for Second Time Captures First Honors at Interstate Regatta—Cardinal Freshmen Win Their Event, Thanks to Coxwain's Skill at Critical Turn.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BERKELEY, April 11.—Invincible Washington is now a title doubly secured by the oarsmen from the northern University. Beating Stanford by two lengths and distancing California by nearly four, the Washington eight carried the "Seattle Spirit I" to victory today in the third interstate regatta for the championship of the Pacific Coast and for the second time in the annals of Washington rowing history.

The three-mile course was pulled in 18m. 58s. by the winners. Stanford was clocked at 19m. 24s., California at 19m. 37s. Heady work on the part of Coxswain Walter of the Stanford freshmen crew brought the Cardinal babes victory in the contest of the first-year men. Washington finished four lengths in the rear with California stroking five lengths and a half behind the winners. Time for the two-mile course was 13m. 19s.

VARSITY RACE.

The Washington varsity was fortunate enough to draw the inside course least affected by the tide. Stanford fell to the middle position while California drew the outside lane, a handicap which contributed considerably to her defeat. At the starting gun the shells jumped into action on the initial sprint for a lead. Washington pulled off at thirty-eight strokes to the minute, Stanford at the same and California pulled for advantage with forty beats.

For the first three quarters of a mile the shells bunched closely and the strokes settled down to a steady working gait. But after the three-quarter-mile distance the abilities of the rivals came to a test.

From the mile on, the winner was only too apparent and as a race the regatta resolved itself into a fiasco.

The freshmen race belonged to the Cardinal from the start. In jockeying for position at the start the Stanford crew had nearly six feet lead when the gun was fired, but great credit should be given Walter for the consistent course he steered. His course did not vary three degrees from a line from start to finish, while his competing coxswains exhibited far less skill. Thomas of Washington steered his crew to defeat when he swung along the curve of the estuary and lost distance that he could not regain. Camper of California did better, but allowed his crew to shorten their stroke as the end hove in sight, hoping thereby to attain more speed. At this juncture Washington drew into the lead, giving California a wash which she was forced to follow until the finish was reached.

LOCAL DEALER MAKES FLYING TRIP TO FACTORY.

Lands Additional Allotment of Cars for Present Season's Trade and All Are to Be Equipped With Tops that Can Be Raised by One Person from Rear Seat.

Roscoe Anthony of the local Regal agency returned from the factory at Detroit last week, after a flying trip to the annual Regal distributors' convention.

The convention was in session for a week and in addition to the regular convention business, young Anthony made arrangements for an additional allotment of Regal cars for the 1914 season.

One of the striking features of the new Regal models is the one-man top. This new top is part of the equipment of all touring cars of the line and is a great improvement over the old top used in the past.

Some of the high-priced cars are equipped with the one-man top, but the Regal is claimed to be the only car in its class using the modern accessory. From the rear seat, one person can easily raise the top without any assistance. When the top is up, the view from both the front and rear seats, is not obstructed by numerous bows.

LOCAL RACERS ENTER EVENTS.

Second Place Winner of the Grand Prize There.

Huntley Gordon Is to Drive at Bakersfield.

Oldfield Will Not Drive in Dirt Track Numbers.

Huntley Gordon has entered the Mercer in the Bakersfield fifty-mile track race and will drive the car himself. This is the same Mercer that Ralph De Palma drove at Santa Monica, May 4, 1912, winning the medium car event. The car is as fast as when De Palma handled it and is picked as the favorite in the long grind.

Guy Ball, who won second place in the Grand Prize race with the Marmon, is to drive the same car in the fifty-mile event. The Marmon is as good as when sent around the Santa Monica course in such fast time and Ball should give Gordon the race of his life. These two cars with the two fast drivers, are to be the main attraction at Bakersfield.

This race is attractive to many drivers. It is for a purse of $1500 for first, $800 going to the winner. The Bakersfield course is one of the fastest in the West. It was here that Barney Oldfield smashed the world's one-mile dirt-track record. The turns are carefully banked and the track has been resurfaced in preparation for these races.

Oldfield will not drive at Bakersfield, because of other dates. Barney is bending all his efforts toward the big Indianapolis speedway events, which are to be sensational enough to lure the best men in the game.

There are two other races, a twenty-five mile event for cars of 300 cubic inches and under for a purse of $1000 and a $1000 trophy. This will call out a number of privately-owned cars and several of the Bakersfield drivers will figure in this event. The distance is suitable to speed and the track is one of the safest on which a dirt-track race can be staged.

The other twenty-five mile event is for cars owned in Bakersfield. Another $1000 is offered for this race.

The committee in charge of the races includes C. A. Barlow, president Home Coming Week Committee; S. P. Wible, J. Kelley Russell, W. G. Hudlow, Angus Crites, L. E. Chenowith, J. A. Hughes, J. M. Jamieson, A. E. Hoagland and Alfred Harrell.

Several cars with four-wheel drive and equipped with cannons, one for each car, for use against dirigible balloons have been furnished the German army administration.

MOTORCYCLE SURGEONS.

Eleven motorcycles with sidecars have been installed in Chicago to enable police surgeons with lungmotor equipment to reach, in the shortest possible time, victims of asphyxiation, electric shock, drowning and other classes of accident, in which it is possible to restore life by means of artificial respiration. Motorcycles have been adopted for this service because they are capable of high speed and can be handled in close quarters at a higher speed than would be safe with an automobile. The machines are distributed at police stations in such a way as to cover the city effectively, and each is kept loaded with a lungmotor and other first-aid appliances so that it will be ready to answer a call instantly. These machines are capable of carrying three persons with all equipment at the rate of a mile a minute.

TRUCK RECORD IS WORTHY OF NOTE.

J. A. Stoner, manager of the Seller Company, local agents for the Mack and Sauer trucks, believes the record of a Sauer truck owned by Harris & Blake and used for road oiling is worthy of notice. This truck has run 17,000 miles at a total upkeep expense of $11.20.

The tire service of this truck has also been of the best. The front tires have gone the entire distance without a change and the rear tires went over 11,000 miles.

The Mack truck which has been built for stage work on the [illegible] son road will be delivered this week and is to be put into service at once.

Eighteen entries have been received by the Indianapolis Motor Speedway management for the 500-mile sweepstakes to be decided on the Speedway Decoration Day, May 30. The race will be international in character, as English, French and Italian cars will compete against the fastest American-made machines, and the advance sale indicates the biggest crowd in motor history. Preparations are being made for 100,000 persons.

How Would You Select the Best Car?

If you were not limited by price, prejudice, or time, how would you choose it, and what would it be?

A Los Angeles man recently investigated the matter in a logical, conclusive way.

His method was to question Chauffeurs. He would step to the curb and ask the driver of a waiting motor car which particular make ranked the highest, and why. Many chauffeurs, in charge of all kinds of cars, readily answered his questions.

As a result of his inquiries, he purchased a Locomobile. He bought it on account of its standing among well-informed and unprejudiced men.

The practical automobile driver recommends the Locomobile because it is safe to drive at speed. It is economical in fuel consumption. It is well-balanced and easy on tires. It is reliable—little trouble to maintain.

Chauffeurs like an up-to-date car as much as the owner. They like four speeds instead of three, just as they like six cylinders instead of four; they like the disc clutch better than the cone clutch once used everywhere; most of them like left drive and center control instead of right drive.

Analyze Style as a most important matter. The best car will be in the best taste, and without conspicuous features. Have you ever considered style in this way?

There is no label on the Locomobile. It is designed for the Owner, and the usual conspicuous features tending to advertise the manufacturer at the expense of the owner are omitted.

Look for yacht-like effects, smooth body surfaces without external door hinges or door handles. Spare tires should be carried at the rear to leave the running boards clear.

Investigate comfort personally. Never take the riding qualities of any car for granted. The Locomobile has been given preference in recent years because of its deep, soft upholstery, and easy riding.

Look into Safety. Give us the opportunity to show you why our car is particularly safe.

Do not overlook Service. The Locomobile idea is: Service Above Sales. Our chain of sixteen branch houses gives direct Locomobile Service throughout the country. Our limited output (not more than Four Cars a Day) enables us to build a better car by watching it more carefully during its construction. It also enables us to give more personal attention to owners.

Select your car because it has the most good points and the fewest bad ones. The best car must have the best chassis. Its comfort must be proven superior by comparison with other cars. Its appearance must be modish, but refined, to rank highest.

The more carefully you make your selection, the better it will satisfy us. We have such faith in the Locomobile that the more thorough you are in choosing the car, the more likely we will be to secure the order.

Our car is at your disposal to examine, test, and compare with all other cars.

Going Some.

EMIGRANT IS NOW MOTORIST.

Came from Spain to Locate His Fortune.

Worked as a Laborer on Great Roosevelt Dam.

Doubled Income, Bosses Gave Him the Can.

The year construction was started on the now famous Roosevelt dam Gonzales arrived in America in the steerage, direct from Spain. He had just enough education and worldly goods to gain admission into the promised land.

Last week the same emigrant started for Phoenix, Ariz., in a new Winton "Six" touring car. And thereby hangs a tale that reads like the romance it is.

Gonzales arrived in America full of hope and ambition. When he reached New York, he was ready and anxious to start his battle for the wealth every emigrant dreams of. His first stopping place was a cheap water front hotel, kept by a countryman. About that time, work was under way on the Roosevelt dam and the builders, J. M. O'Rourke & Co., were finding it difficult to get laborers.

For the purpose of getting men, an office was maintained in New York. It happened that one week after his arrival from Spain this emigrant was on a train bound for Arizona. He literally dreamed Arizona was so far away and often thought he was going to the end of the world.

Arriving, after a forty-mile stage ride from Globe, he found other foreigners on the big job, and he had not been there a month before he was figuring out a scheme to make more money. He worked out a plan which proved so unique that for six weeks he doubled his income without being discovered. Dave Robinson was superintendent of the day work and Andy Sennett had charge of the night shift.

Gonzales's scheme was to work on both shifts, but under different names. Fred Turner, the head timekeeper, discovered it and Gonzales lost his job.

But he was full of fighting spirit, and when he was being sent on his way, exclaimed to Robinson that some day he would drive up that road in his own automobile. That poor emigrant may not have believed his prediction would ever come true, but within another week he will do just what he said he would do, and in one of the finest motor cars built in the world.

After losing his place on the dam, Gonzales became a barber. The workmen there did not demand swell tonsorial service and Gonzales soon discovered that he was making three times as much money as he had made in working for O'Rourke.

Then he sent for his brother, and with the money they saved the first year they bought and fattened cattle. All the time they were saving, and two years later they bought a ranch in New Mexico. They sold that and bought another. All the while their wealth was increasing.

Last week the brothers came to Los Angeles to secure a motor car. They bought a Winton "Six" and are taking it to Phoenix over the Ocean-to-Ocean Highway, then up to the Roosevelt dam, and on to their home in New Mexico.

Better Boulevards.

SUM IS NEEDED FOR THE COMPLETION.

Government Funds Would Be Great Help to State Highway Commissioners and Would Enable the Authorities to Devote Time and Funds to Tributary Stretches.

Approximately one-tenth of the 2,200,000 miles of public highways in the United States has been improved by grading and hard surfacing. At a minimum of $5000 a mile, the total cost of improving the remaining 2,000,000 miles would be $10,000,000,000.

The plan suggested for the accomplishment of this, is that the burden of improving the highways be divided between the Federal government, the State, county and township.

The government to lend its aid to interstate and transcontinental roads that connect principal cities and State capitals. The State to improve the main roads between county seats and extending to the State line. The county to supervise market roads. The township to be responsible for the streets and roads within its territory.

The roads that are most traveled should be improved first. In many States a large percentage of the total traffic is carried by one or two main highways. The largest number of individuals are benefited by the improvement and maintenance of these roads.

The farmer who lives a mile from the main road and five miles from a town derives more benefit from the improvement of the main road than from the improvement of the road that passes his door.

The Shackleford road bill can accomplish great good if enacted after being amended so that the Federal appropriations will go to the State Highway Commissions of various States instead of being parceled out in small amounts to local road authorities in the Congressional districts. The use of the government funds on the interstate routes will relieve the States and counties of a great burden and enable them to devote their funds to the shorter county roads and tributaries.

WATCH THE DUST.

Small punctures in inner tubes are hard to find without the aid of a pail of water. This is not usually at hand on the road, unless in the shape of a creek or a muddy ditch. A good way to find the hole is to roll the inflated tube slowly in a dusty rut, and watch for the dust to fly. Having located the hole approximately, a moistened finger should be passed slowly over the territory, when the air escaping from the hole can be felt.

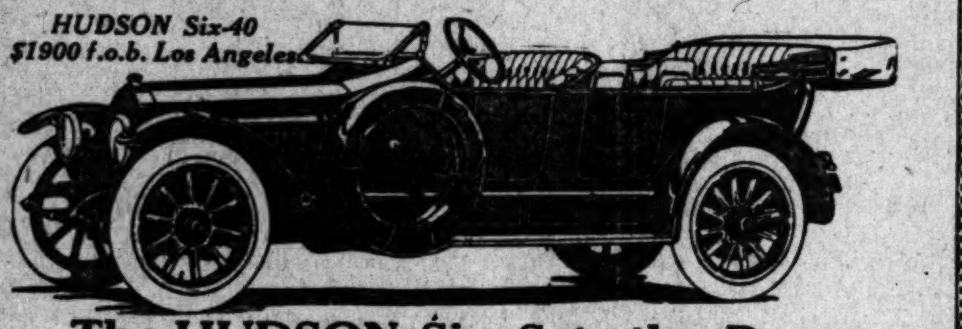
LIGHT AND WEIGHT.

A special committee of the City Council of Cleveland, O., delegated to prepare several new automobile ordinances, has succeeded in drafting one regulating headlights and the size of trucks and number of trailers. The proposed ordinance would make it unlawful to operate an automobile equipped with headlights so powerful as to blind pedestrians or occupants of other vehicles. Wisely, it makes no attempt to set a standard for the lamps. The other section of the ordinance limits the weight of trucks, with their loads, to fourteen tons, and the speed of such a vehicle to eight miles an hour.

In order to be better able to check up the work of its drivers and to punish violators of the speed laws, the Cleveland Taxicab Company, of Cleveland, O., has ordered its cabs equipped with a recording device, connected with the speedometer. The device is of the tape-printing kind operated by clockwork.



The HUDSON Six Sets the Pace

In cars above $1250 the Four is practically no longer considered by the careful buyer.

It becomes merely a matter of "which Six?"

HUDSON Leads the Sixes

Here the HUDSON Six is supreme. At the largest shows in the country, the HUDSON Six sold two to one compared with its nearest six-cylinder competitor.

In a dozen economy contests every one was won with the greatest of ease by a HUDSON Six.

In California and other Western States, the HUDSON Six climbs the mountains as no other car ever has done.

In every condition in which the HUDSON Six has come into competition with other Sixes the HUDSON has been the victor. Any HUDSON dealer will tell you of local examples.

The HUDSON the Handsomest Six

The beauty of the HUDSON Six is admitted even by other makers.

Numerous attempts were made by other designers to copy the HUDSON lines after the car came out. But the HUDSON remains the original and only true streamline body type.

A beautiful car is not only a constant delight; it is a tangible asset. It is worth more and depreciates less than an inferior design.

Los Angeles Endorses the HUDSON Six

Scan the popular motoring boulevards on a Sunday afternoon. Count the cars at the leading theaters or clubs, or at the principal churches.

Ask any prominent garage and supply man. Or go to any dealer on "Automobile Row."

Every test will prove to you that in Los Angeles the HUDSON Six sets the pace.

Every unprejudiced observer will tell you that the HUDSON Six dominates.

And owners will tell you also that in all Los Angeles there are no cars so well looked after or kept in such perfect condition as are HUDSON cars under "Arnold Service."

Come see this famous Six. Let us show you why it sets the pace. Why it is the leading Six. Why people who formerly owned the highest priced cars are turning to HUDSONS.

If Everybody Knew as Much About Packard Cars as Owners Do, No Other Cars Would be Sold Above $3000!

It is a positive, indisputable fact that—

There is more advanced study, design and experimental work done on Packard cars than on any other two makes combined:

More strenuous road tests are given Packard cars than any other. Witness, the three test cars driven every three months across the continent and return:

The Packard Company has never marketed a failure:

Every year's production is more successful than the previous one:

The Packard factory is the greatest builder of high-grade cars today:

The Packard car is the most efficient piece of machinery that ever went upon the highways:

Packard owners enjoy the most efficient service department in the world:

Packard is the only motor car that has had the same uninterrupted local representation for TEN CONSECUTIVE SEASONS.

Hupmobile

Precedence

The Hupmobile takes precedence in low cost of operation—in gas and oil economy, in tire economy, in repair economy.

It excels in these most important features because Hup engineers, scientifically applying the small-bore, long-stroke principle, build throughout for quality and long life and untiring service, and for them alone.

One Cent Per Mile

And because of these things, Hupmobiles uniformly command a price higher by 25 to 40 per cent. in the second hand market.

The Hup owner figures depreciation at an average of one cent per mile traveled.

Isn't that an unanswerable argument for good motor car investment?

Visit the Hup dealer. He will add specific instances that will delight and convince you.

TIRES SHIPPED FOR GEN. VILLA.

LOCAL AGENCY FILLS A RUSH ORDER FROM FRONT.

Believed that Rebel General Wants to Stock Up with Supplies for Military Motor Cars Before Pushing Operations into Southern Territory.

In response to a hurry-up request from El Paso Manager C. O. Du Mars of the local Fisk agency shipped three cases of tires to El Paso last week. These are to go direct to Villa's army to be used on the war autos now taking part in the campaign.

Du Mars thinks that it is being planned to push operations southward and Villa wants to secure a large extra supply of tires before the cars are too far removed from the base of supplies.

Villa has forty-five motor cars for officers and a number of trucks that carry ammunition and supplies.

The third British War Office subsidy trials are about to commence, in order that other builders of commercial motor vehicles can submit their machines for road tests and become subsidy vehicles.

RENTON HAS NEW AGENCY.

OLD-TIMER ON AUTO ROW BACK IN GAME STRONG.

Goes to Factories and Returns with Bright Prospects After Contracting for Sale of Many Cars in Southern California of Line Unknown Here but Popular in East.

P. A. Renton, one of the well-known local automobile dealers, who came into local prominence as agent for the Overland, has taken over the Allen car.

This is a low-priced production that is appearing for the first time in Los Angeles. After a tour through the factories in the East, during which he looked over the different lines and inspected the offerings for this year, the former Overland man contracted for the new Allen line.

The car is finished in a roadster and a touring car. It is a line that has many features that prove it to be strictly down to date. At a price that is surprising, the Allen people equip their car with an electric self-starter, electric lights and the latest accessories.

Though this car is little known in the West, it has made a good impression on the trade in the East. All the car needs, according to the way Renton figures, is to be given the right chance in the local automobile field and the car will become one of the most popular of its class.

The plans already made by Renton include a wide campaign. He expects to tour through Southern California, visiting all of the cities and establishing agencies. Renton expects to begin this tour in the near future, and plans to sell at least 200 of the new cars this season.

HASTINGS SHIFTS.

Charles D. Hastings, formerly secretary and general manager of the Hupp Motor Car Company, has given up the latter position to look after the export business of the Detroit concern. In the notification of this change sent to the Greer-Robbins Company, local distributors, was also an announcement that F. A. Harris, formerly assistant general manager, had assumed the position of commercial manager.

Automobile picnicking should have a great vogue in Southern California during the coming spring and [illegible] season.

This branch of motoring has always been popular. Even in the days of the curved dash Oldsmobile and the mythical motormaid, Lucile, the automobile was king of all [illegible] but with the modern touring car, [illegible]est outing equipment and improved roads, the one-day tour is more popular than ever before.

There are many places in Southern California where the motor party can find most anything desired in the way of scenery. Some want the canyons, others want the beach; [illegible] desire nothing but miles of [illegible] roads.

For the motorist who wants to spend the day on the beach away from the crowds, there is no place like the strand along the Malibu road, according to Dean Cromwell, Harry Sarver and Bob Paulson. The Malibu road has been rebuilt and is in excellent condition. The beach along the coast north of Santa Monica is said to be safe; and, better than anything else, this place is not far from the city.

Last Sunday, Cromwell and Sarver, who are connected with the local Pierce-Arrow distributors, took a big Pierce Arrow "48" and a [illegible] out for the day and had a beach to themselves. Bob Paulson of the B. H. Dyas Company was a member of the party and supplied some of the fixtures which made the party a success.

Parrent thought differently, and purchased a little Hupmobile "20" roadster. At first he supplemented the efforts of the machine by walking where the grass was particularly long or the ground unusually soft. Little by little, though, he found out what a car could do. Now he never gets his feet dusty.

The last orchard inspected was a twelve-acre orange patch. Parrent figured that the distance he must travel to look all the trees over was at least two miles. With the machine he finished up his work and made a bid on the crop in a short time. The old system of "hiking" would have kept him on the job all day.

Such figures throw a light on the problem of traffic conjestion in all large cities. The situation is worse in London than in any American city. The Board of Trade report shows that London's population of 7,250,000 is confined within an area of 693 square miles, an average of sixty persons to the acre. The 4,150,000 inhabitants of Greater New York average but twenty-six to the acre.

THREE ROUTES OPEN.

Transcontinental route activities of the American Automobile Association have been so comprehensive that the association now has available for motorists making the trip from coast to coast three different routes, with a fourth to be added in the spring of 1915. Already inquiries coming into the offices of the A.A.A. indicate that most of the automobile tourists like to go by one route and return by another, in order to see as much of the country as possible. It is expected that the number of routes now available will make transcontinental touring more popular than ever.

YOSEMITE IS DUE FOR BIG SEASON.

Automobile Club reports show since the completion of two transcontinental highways cross-country tours are an every-day occurrence. Six cars have left Los Angeles in the last five days for eastern points.

"Indications are that Yosemite will have a big season this year," said Frank Jordan of the Auto Club yesterday. "In the last ten days forty-eight calls for information on this tour have been received at club headquarters."

It is reported that Thomas Enright of last year's Phillip Exeter football eleven and nine other members of the team intend to take the examinations for Yale University this spring.

SALES FORCE IS ORGANIZED.

ATTENTION TO BE DIRECTED TOWARD OUTSIDE.

Specialist Handles Truck Models of Line and Pleasure Cars Are Handled by Expert Sales Force Picked by Gilbert Woodill for W. K. Cowan, Pioneer Auto Man.

Gilbert Woodill, sales manager for the W. K. Cowan Company, Southern California distributors for the new Jeffery line, has now completed the organization of his local sales force. During the coming week, Mr. Woodill will begin to direct his attention to the outside territory, where a number of agencies are to be placed.

The Jeffery "Four" and Jeffery "Six" have been attracting a great deal of attention locally during the past two weeks and the new sales manager has taken in a number of orders from persons, who had hardly known of the Jeffery car a few weeks ago.

In addition to the pleasure cars, there is a Jeffery truck line. George W. Dean, secretary of the local company, is the truck specialist of Woodill's sales force.

F. E. Lewis, A. G. Woodill and T. A. Tibbot, are with the Cowan forces in the capacity of salesmen. With this organization and the backing of the $3,000,000 plant of the Thomas B. Jeffery Company, the W. K. Cowan Company should stir up more than its share of business in Southern California this season.

The Jeffery factory is claimed to be one of the most thoroughly equipped in the country. The company has been operating a manufacturing plant for the past forty years, and the concern is rated as one of the strongest, financially, in the field today.

NEW MAPS ISSUED BY THE AUTO CLUB.

For the use of members, the Automobile Club of Southern California is issuing a more complete set of new maps.

In the past the Auto Club has issued sets of strip maps numbering thirty-seven. The new set contains fifty-one maps, giving detailed descriptions of all new roads.

The club follows the opening of new roads and prepares maps for the information of members and visiting motorists.

TRUCK RECORD IS MADE FOR MONTH.

Indications point to another sales record for the Moreland motor-truck factory this month.

During the month of March, the local truck concern sold fifty-nine power wagons in Southern California and twenty-two have been sold during the month of April. Nine of these were sold to the Standard Oil Company, equipped with tanks for hauling oil.

Good Samaritan.

RACE WON ON CHARITY ACT AT STARTING LINE.

A. S. ROBINSON, manager of the local Pacific KisselKar branch, was at one time a racing driver of quite some reputation.

While sitting around a table at Harlow's with a crowd of "Ginks" the other night, "Bob" related a funny tale of how he won the one-mile championship of New England, a few years back.

The race was staged on a straight-away course in New Jersey. A number of speed events had preceded the one-mile arce, which was to be the final number on the programme. When the cars pulled up to the start, Robinson noticed that the water in the radiator of one of his competitor's machines was boiling.

It happened that this was the most feared competitor. He was driving an English-built Daimler, which was one of the fastest cars on the course; but that made little difference to Robinson. "Bob" suggested to Fred J. Wagner, the now well-known starter of automobile races, that the Daimler be allowed to take on some cool water.

Wagner consented and the car was driven a few yards ahead to a hydrant where the radiator was refilled. The Daimler driver then backed to the start and Wagner gave them the getaway.

Throughout the race, Robinson was expecting to see the fact foreign car come up alongside of him, but the Daimler was never heard from. After Robinson had won the race he discovered the reason.

The reverse gear on the English car was controlled by a third lever, which it was necessary to shift before the car could be brought into the forward speeds. In the excitement, the driver had forgotten to shift this lever after he had backed from the hydrant; and when Starter Wagner gave the signal, the Daimler started in the wrong direction.

This proved to be a handicap that could not be overcome in a one-mile race, and "Bob" Robinson says that virtue was its own reward for once, at any rate.

MERCERS TO RUN IN GRAND PRIX.

It was announced yesterday by George R. Beitel of the local Mercer agency that the Mercer racing team would compete in the California Grand Prix at Pomona, in September. Eddie Pullen, Spencer Wishart and Caleb Bragg are to be the drivers.

This is to be the opening event of the new Pomona Speedway and already great interest is being shown in the event by racing men all over the country.

The Manhattan Automobile Club of New York has sent out, as a part of its safety campaign, a large number of cards. The importance of co-operation with all users of the road is brought out, and any who may observe violations of the law are requested to notify the club, so that it may enter suit.

AUTOISTS MAY REACH STREAMS.

Motorists who wish to reach trout fishing creeks in their cars are advised to do so by the Automobile Club of Southern California through Mill Creek Canyon, Deep Creek and Plunge Creek.

Word has come to the Auto Club that excellent fishing can be had in Plunge Creek just east of East Highland.

Good fishing can also be had, they say, in Deep Creek on the desert side of the mountains via Victorville.

The Australian rugby team may not visit the Coast next year.

CHICAGO VISITORS COVER ALL ROADS NEAR PASADENA.

Spend Three Months as Guests at Hotel Green and Travel More Than Four Thousand Miles in Automobiles and Take Hundreds of Photographs.

Mrs. I. E. Geist and her mother, Mrs. A. Webster, of Chicago, probably hold the record as tourists for traveling in an automobile within the vicinity of Pasadena.

They were guests at the Hotel Green for three months and have just left for their eastern home after traveling in that time 4260 miles. On no trip did they go more than 100 miles from Pasadena, yet they declare that practically no trip was duplicated. They took 480 photographs on their rides, which colleection they have taken back to Chicago with them as a souvenir of their winter's recreation.

A majority of the guests at the large Pasadena hotels this season brought their automobiles with them from the East, or else procured automobiles here, but no other one, so far as known, traveled anything like the mileage of these two women without some long tour. They declared when they left that there could be no place in the world like Southern California, which they hold to be ideal.

Cole Four.

KENDALL PARTY CIRCLE BRITISH ISLES IN MOTOR.

TOURING Great Britain and Ireland in the same Cole "Four" with which they covered Continental Europe, the Kendall party, consisting of B. O. Kendall of Pasadena, his wife, his son, Jack, and Bertrand Greeley, traversed Ireland, Wales, England and Scotland for sixty-two days at an average car expense of $10.50 per day, according to the accurate account just computed by the party leader.

This cost includes all expenditures, including insurance, express, freightage twice across St. George's Channel, repairs, garage, tires, and all fuel and oil bills. No railway fares were incurred on the trip, their elimination establishing a handsome margin to the credit side of the car, as against ordinary travel.

As on the European trip, the American Express Company proved god-father to the tourists, handling the car at all points of shipment and debarkation, from New York to Paris and return, with all documents and information essential to carefree movements, for the small fee of $15.

GOOD ROADS.

Roads of England are smooth, but not so clean as those of this country, states Kendall. With gasoline as high as 35 to 37 cents per English gallon, and other items in proportion, the only saving found was in the cheaper tires. Tire wear was heavy, the gravel macadam cutting the rubber rapidly, and the fine dust which pervades all highways working havoc with clothing.

No top covers are carried on automobiles about England, the frequent showers, especially in South England, demanding too many shifts of hoods and curtains to warrant handling the covers.

Ireland was a delight, especially in the way of fine road maps, with whose aid the party wandered at will round lakes and hills, regardless of signs and instructions posted everywhere in the Irish language.

Map details were so minute and perfect that never once was the way lost in going from place to place. No such perfect guides to travel have been compiled in the United States, though badly needed by motor tourists.

IRELAND FINE.

"Roads in Ireland were found good everywhere, none being in bad condition. Not in the whole island," says Kendall, "did we find such shameful highway conditions as exist in some places between Los Angeles and San Diego.

"Eleven days passed in Ireland took us up to the Giant's Causeway, whence we returned through the northern scenery to Wales and England.

"Circling England and Scotland on their outer bounds, we visited all the principal cities and points of interest on those routes, and after doing Devon and Cornwall, down to Land's End, we covered an inner circle of English cities, and after a second stay in London passed down to Dover and thence to Paris.

"A week in Liverpool and its environs effectually removed the impression given us by many informants that the city is a dirty place, from which we should flee as a pestilence. On the contrary, we found it so clean and delightful that our intended stay of one day was lengthened into six.

"Chester held us for several pleasant days, as did other towns of infrequent mention. We carried no baggage except such as the machine easily accommodated, having no time or desire for social functions after our daily journeyings. Of course, when stopping in London and Paris we utilized our trunk luggage, which had been stored, at our call.

MANY PICTURES.

"We secured altogether 1000 pictures of scenes and incidents on our two trips, most of which would have escaped us in usual travel.

"Hire of a car equal to our own, with a chauffeur, would have cost at least $25 per day, plus the disagreeable feature encountered, nine times out of ten, in having the chauffeur dictate what we should or should not do.

"On returning to this country we toured New England in the same manner, finding refreshment in the autumn colors and vivid scenes of those States.

"Uniformed scouts in the employ of the Automobile Association of Great Britain traverse all highways, ready to assist any tourists whose cars bear the association membership label. Warning of difficulties ahead are volunteered by these men, but otherwise they never speak unless addressed. Twenty such patrols would be found on a stretch of highway equal to the distance between here and Riverside.

"Our car is ready for another trip of equal extent."

Hotel Man Puts Personal Machine Into Service When Los Angeles Visitors Are Unable to Make Run to Tango Special Train in Many Cars Furnished for Trip to Depot.

A new passenger-carrying record was made for the Cadillac by F. L. Botsford of San Diego during the visit of the Los Angeles Ad Club to that city last week.

While it has been whispered that the spirits of the Ad Club members who joined with Botsford on the record-breaking ride, may have been a trifle light owing to the cordial re- ception they were accorded, the fact remains that Botsford's Cadillac coupe carried eleven people from the hotel to the Ad Club's tango special train.

The Hotel Botsford was the head- quarters for sixty of the visiting members. Botsford arranged for the evening for autos to carry all the guests to the Santa Fe depot, where the gaily-decorated tango special awaited them. The autos arrived at the hotel on time, but either Bots- ford didn't count noses correctly or guests of other hotels availed them- selves of the transportation privi- lege.

When the autos rolled away, there were eight Ad men left without trans- portation. Then it was that Bots- ford showed the proper booster spirit. His personal Cadillac coupe was at the curb and in a few mo- ments the car loaded from hood to running boards sped stationward. J. F. MAJOR LEAGUES LAUNCH INTO SEASON TUESDAY.

Athletics Figure to Repeat, While White Sox Should Finish Higher—Giants Are Crippled, but Phillies, Their Closest Rivals, Are Torn to Shreds—Konetchy Will Help Pirates.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

THOSE old friends, the big-league [illegible], will make their appearance this week.

The East is due for its first blast of major baseball Tuesday, when both the American and National will lunge into another six months' agony.

One day earlier the Federal League will make its first bid for patronage, but not until April 16 will the baby organization have up a full head of steam. Several of the parks are in an unfinished condition, and this will prevent general firing all along the line.

Unless there is a thaw in the next few days, however, it is likely to be a rather chilly opening all around, with furs, scarfs, ear muffs and extra heavy woolen underwear all the go.

WEATHER BIG FACTOR.

With the players frozen stiff, and half of the benefits of the spring training trips undone as the result of the clubs veering into this cold spell after six weeks in milder climes, it seems safe to hazard a guess that few of the clubs will enter the race in tip-top shape. Consequently, some amazing scores may be inflicted on the public in the first couple of weeks.

The American League arrangement provides for Cleveland to open at Chicago, St. Louis at Detroit, Washington at Boston, while Connie Mack will pick on Frank Chance's hopefuls in New York.

In the National League, Boston will open at Brooklyn, New York at Philadelphia, Pittsburgh at St. Louis and Chicago at Cincinnati.

In the Federal League, according to the advance dope Buffalo will usher in the season at Baltimore on April 13, Brooklyn will play at Pittsburgh on April 14, and on April 16 Chicago will open at Kansas City, and Indianapolis at St. Louis.

The following tables are dragged from the records to remind the fans how the big league clubs finished last season, and in this way assist them to form their own conclusions as to what the pending race may bring forth:

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

	Won.	Lost.	P.c.
[illegible]	96	57	.627
[illegible]	90	64	.584
[illegible]	86	66	.566
[illegible]	79	71	.527
[illegible]	78	74	.513
[illegible]	66	87	.431
[illegible]	57	94	.377
[illegible]	57	96	.373

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

	Won.	Lost.	P.c.
[illegible]	101	51	.664
[illegible]	88	63	.583
[illegible]	88	65	.575
[illegible]	78	71	.523
[illegible]	69	82	.457
[illegible]	65	84	.436
[illegible]	64	89	.418
[illegible]	51	99	.340

Since these averages were compiled there has been some visible scrambling of the line-ups, while the solid [illegible] of the Federals has left some gaping holes in a number of the [illegible].

Consequently, some of the opinions formed along last fall as to what will happen in 1914 may have to be revised.

MACK LOOMS STRONG.

Connie Mack came through without a scratch. With his winning Athletics of 1913 intact, Coombs to attempt a "comeback" and his juvenile pitchers due for an improved season, it is doubtful whether anything short of the regular army can stop the Philadelphia bunch.

And if the Mackmen win in the American League, they will look like a cinch in the world's series, for the contenders in the National have been badly riddled.

Washington, Mack's nearest competitor last season, lost Gerome to the Federals, but with Bobby standing high among the pitchers last season, this should not prove a severe blow. With Johnson and Boehling in shape, Griffith should again be very much in the fight.

Cleveland, never any too strong in the pitching department, have been weakened by the loss of Falkenberg, and the desertion of Blanding may be felt. The latter, however, was an undependable quantity.

Boston is an enigma. The swift decline of that club in the short space of two months, is one of the real mysteries of baseball. If Wood gets back in shape, Carrigan may be able to pull the team together again. Comparatively few, however, have picked the Red Sox to finish better than fourth, and figure that they will have their hands full to keep their heads above the second division.

BOOST FOR WHITE SOX.

One eastern critic, who has been keeping close tab on the teams in training, places the Chicago White Sox to finish in second place. This certainly would be some tall hurdling, and is a forecast which it will be difficult to fulfill unless Comiskey can get hold of a clean-up hitter, who is a regular batter.

However, should Walsh "come back," Comiskey will have a pitching staff which can win with just a suspicion of run-getting behind them. Also, with Hal Chase apparently back in form, the Sox will start the season far better fortified at first base than at any time in recent years, while "Buck" Weaver, just entering on his period of greatest achievement, will make the Sox impregnable on that side of the infield.

Barring bad luck, the Sox should finish several notches higher than last season.

There seems to be no hope for Detroit unless Jennings can scare up a real pitcher or two. The loss of Willett didn't help the Tigers a little bit.

Frank Chance probably will be satisfied if he can move the Yankees up another peg.

The defection of Hamilton leaves the American League without even a good imitation of a ball team in St. Louis.

In the National League several of the clubs have been macerated in a manner to leave the issue much in doubt.

M'GRAW HAS TROUBLES.

The sale of Herzog to Cincinnati and the refusal of Artie Shafer to play ball, leaves McGraw minus a third baseman, and unless he manages to grab one, the other clubs will be driving a circus parade through that position.

He will also be without his third and fourth-string catchers, Grover Hartley and Arthur Wilson, but with Meyers and McLean in good health, he should fret. Otis Crandall, his prize pinch-hitting pitcher, also is among the absentees.

McGraw, however, probably is extracting considerable comfort from the fact that Philadelphia, the only club which really threatened him last year, has been even more riddled.

The defection of Pitchers Seaton and Brennan and Camnitz, Second Baseball Knabe and Mike Doolan, the latter rated as the greatest shortstop in the game, would seem to leave the Phillies in an acutely weakened condition.

No one is predicting anything for the Cubs. They have suffered enough without any one doing anything like that to them. Chicago lost a couple of fair players to the Feds in Bridwell and Miller.

Pittsburgh, picked by a lot of people to win the pennant last season, finds itself minus the services of Pitcher Hendrix and Catcher Simon. Both were valuable men. However, with the great Konetchy on the pay roll, the Pirates will have a real first baseman for the first time in many a season and one of the greatest in the business.

EYES ON EVERS.

It remains to be seen what Johnny Evers will do to Boston, but the Braves are bound to make a lot of trouble under the aggressive Mr. Stallings.

If pennants were won in the spring, Brooklyn would be a safe bet. But the Dodgers have a habit of running down at the heel along about August or September.

Cincinnati never was anything to brag about, and the loss of Pitcher Packard hurt like the duece.

And St. Louis—well, it is impossible to see any hope for the Cards with Steve Evans, the league's leading humorist, having gone to the Feds. Steve was the only read card that St. Louis had.

GOULD RETAINS TENNIS TITLE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, April 11.—Jay Gould, the world's open and national court tennis champion, successfully defended his American title in the challenge round of the annual tournament here today. He defeated Charles E. Sands of this city at the New York Racquet and Tennis Club, in three straight sets by the scores, 6-0, 6-0, 6-2.

Although Sands, the challenger, played a hard and consistent game, he was no match for the champion, who won by 18 games to 2 and 81 aces to 33. Sands was the national champion in 1905, but lost to Gould the following year and tae la:ter has sucfollowing year and the latter has succeeding year.

TIME CLAUSE WAIVED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ST. LOUIS, April 11.—Bert E. Shotten, Sam Agnew, Clarence Walker, George Baumgardner, D. A. Pratt and Gus Williams have signed 1914 contracts with the St. Louis Americans without the ten-day clause, it became known today. The elimination of the ten-day clause is considered a move by President Hedges to guard his team against further Federal League raids. Walter Leverenz, the left-handed pitcher, it is said, has signed an iron-clad contract which prevents him being released during the season.

Boy Is Golf Champ.

gave a chap a chance and flappers were not so oppressive.

Ah, well. They can't even leave us golf. What with Francis Ouimet, Jack Neville and Carlton Wright, we golfers of maturer charms feel a sense of waning confidence, of insecurity.

The Match.

But it was a thrilling match, all square at recurring intervals, throughout the thirty-six holes. The gallery formed a solid army, male and female, including the champion's mamma, whose emotions were at concert pitch, for was not father likewise contesting a final match on the other side of the course, albeit a mere second flight? The very young and the rather elderly all pulled earnestly, urgently for Carlton—one positively felt the halo round his young and innocent head as one conversed with them. The others, the medium aged, the interesting 30-40 stage, were tense for Phillips—and we exploded at intervals, according to our fancy.

Phillips had the better start and made a 38 for the first nine, when he was 2 up. But Carlton soon remedied this state of affairs and made a dazzling 34 for the next nine, in which Phillips never won a hole. The boy was 2 up at the end of the first round, with a succession of 3's at Nos. 14, 15 and 16—all par 4 holes. Their respective medal scores were 77 for Phillips and 76 for Carlton.

In the afternoon Phillips again shone in the first nine. Carlton took a 7 at No. 2, Phillips winning it in par 5. All square at No. 3. Carlton won No. 4, Phillips won No. 5. No. 6, the long hole, went to Phillips, his long driving telling to good advantage. They halved No. 7, but Carlton won No. 8 for a 3—all square. Phillips won No. 9, with 6 to Carlton's 7 and finished that half 1 up.

They squared the match at No. 11, where Phillips sliced his drive and encountered a tree, but he won No. 12, the wash hole, for 4. It was at No. 13 that Fate signified her real intentions and when Phillips's ball hit a tree and rebounded into the wash, and Carlton cleverly recovered a ball from the bank (with rather a lucky shot, which amiably hopped along the ground) we had a premonition how things would be. After that Carlton played strictly to par, making the sort of approach shots that one dreams about and holing the comfortable putts with precision. Carlton was 2 up at the 16th and they halved the 17th. The match being all over, Phillips proceeded to make the last hole in a masterly 3, making their respective medal scores 76 and 78, the latter for the champion.

Congratulations rained thick and fast upon the happy boy and he bore his blushing honors with grace.

The Second Flight.

And father won the second flight. E. N. Wright defeated George Cline by 3 up and 2, with a masterly medal score of 75, only exceeding par at 3 holes. George Cline, the club champion, made a heroic fight, but his entirely creditable 78 did not save him. The Wright family and the Annandale Country Club is monopolizing all the glory this time. They finished the first nine all square, but Wright played to par and better for the rest of the match and Cline didn't—quite. Father could certainly have beaten Carlton yesterday even if he didn't qualify in the first flight this time.

The Third Flight.

Julius A. Brown of the Los Angeles Country Club won the third flight, defeating Robert Devereux of San Gabriel by 3 up and 2. That's all the Los Angeles Club actually won, although Capt. Jack Jevne and Hugh McFarland each take home a consolation prize for being clever little runners-up.

* * *

The Other Flights.

McFarland played runner-up to F. D. Post of San Gabriel, who defeated him 4 up and 3 in the fourth flight.

Dr. Magee of San Gabriel wins the fifth flight. He defeated L. E. Atkinson by 7 up and 5.

'Twas in the first defeated eight that Jevne played second fiddle to Dr. West Hughes of Annandale as recorded yesterday. Virtue triumphant.

Frank D. Tatum, another Annandale man, wins the second defeated eight. He beat Charles Alkire by 3 up and 2, with a 40 and a 38, against Alkire's 80.

William Harper of San Gabriel had a narrow shave with another Annandale man in F. H. Gilchrist, who had serious designs on the cup. He carried friend Harper to the 20th hole before he acknowledged that he hadn't a true bill.

The fourth defeated went to Maurice E. Ginn (who is doubly distinguished, because he has such a pretty wife.) He won from A. T. Jergens 2 up and 1.

And Norman Murray of the Midwick valiantly upheld the honor of his club in the fifth defeated. But he had to work hard—pluck and endurance and all that, you know. He beat J. L. Boyle of San Gabriel at the 19th hole.

After which we all changed into our party clothes and proceeded to celebrate with a banquet, lots to eat and a little to drink, whereat the prizes were presented to their blushing owners and everybody said what a dear boy Carlton was. Amen.

MAY HOLD RECRUITS TO BALK FEDERALS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, April 11.—The rule by which major league teams send to the minors all but twenty-five of their players on or before May 15, may be abandoned, according to dispatches received here today from Columbus, O.

Manager Hank O'Day of the Chicago Nationals is reported to have outlined a new rule by which the majors may carry under contract as many players as they see fit and thus leave no loophole for the Federals to get promising recruits farmed out to the minors. It is said that a majority of the American and National leagues is aware of the contemplated change in the rules and is in favor of it.

Lewis "Six" Is Here!

The year's "six" sensation—the ultimate 6-cylinder car—has arrived here. It is now on exhibition at our salesrooms. The expected creation of such a car—a fully equipped automobile of the $3,000-$5,000 class—has been whispered in the motor car industry for five years. For here is a 6-cylinder car of 135-inch wheel base—with the finest upholstery, the body finish of a $3,000 car and every conceivable luxury—AT $1750!

Come See This Wonderful Car

Now, you who denied yourselves "sixes"—with all their new driving sensations, the remarkable "pick-up," the feeling of flying rather than being driven by machinery—because a good "six" cost $3,000 to $5,000 need no longer put up with the drawbacks of "fours."

—Because at the price of a good "four" you can now have the best "six."

The designer is M. Petard, famous French engineer—formerly with the Fiat, Italia, Daracqu and Unic.

Never before was such a car created—at a like price. Don't fail to see the new car, now on exhibition. Demonstration at your convenience. Come see the new car at once.

SIXES vs FOURS

More Facts

This feeble controversy of the "six" vs. "four" cylinder cars reminds me of a man trying to overturn a twelve-story building with a crowbar, and another excited little runt on the other side of the building trying to brace it from falling.

Which man is the most ridiculous—he who tries to support the "six" cylinder argument or the one who knocks it? The six-cylinder self-performance has closed the ground for argument. Men of experience admit it just as we do that the shortest distance between two points is a straight line. The man who can't see the "six" superiority is only hiding behind his "four" cylinder dust of ignorance.

Who Put the Six On the Map

A Bit of History.

Sixteen years ago there were a few one-cylinder, and a very few two-cylinder cars being used.

In 1898 John Wilkinson built a four-cylinder car. He equipped it with a compressed air self-starter, almost identical with several starters of today. The common people of Syracuse, N. Y., thought he was a harmless lunatic. Engineers were more charitable. They said it would run—but why hitch four ponies to a load that one good draft horse will pull? Wilkinson with prophetic genius went on with his experiments, and in 1902 he announced the "four" cylinder as the coming engine, put the car on the market and sold many thousands of them.

Six years after, 1908, the balance of the engineering world admitted the 4-cylinder, as laid down by Wilkinson, so that 1908 became known as the 4-cylinder year, and nothing smaller than "fours" have been built since.

But John Wilkinson continued his experiments, and found the weak points in the four cylinder engine. In 1904 he built a six-cylinder car. In 1905 he announced the "six" as the ultimate engine and put it on the market, and now in this year, 1914, after nine years of six-cylinder success, practically every successful car builder in America has bowed to the FRANKLIN chief engineer.

But since both "fours" and "sixes" are a pronounced success, what difference does it make if the FRANKLIN engineer originated both of them? There are things more important than glory.

The first FRANKLIN engine was direct air cooled. Engineers said it was impossible. We may dismiss argument on this point by simple reference to the FRANKLIN record run in 1906 from New York to San Francisco, the world's record, which has never been equalled, from New York to Chicago in 1908, winning the Los Angeles to Phoenix race in 1912; also the tens of thousands of Franklins in successful use particularly in hard, desert work, where the water-cooled cars cannot successfully compete with the FRANKLIN.

But just why does the FRANKLIN hold these world records of endurance and economy?

Weight

A baby elephant weighs about 400 pounds. It's a baby all right, but is it "light"? Since the FRANKLIN has hammered for light weight for sixteen years, and gained fame—behold the other so-called "light sixes!"—most of them weigh over 4000 pounds. The nearest approach to the Franklin is about 400 pounds heavier. The FRANKLIN "Six" Touring Car, with gasoline and every known equipment, weighs just 2794 pounds. No other builder dares advertise the REAL weight of his car. Yet the FRANKLIN "Six" has the same size tires as some cars that weigh nearly a ton more. Is it any wonder that the FRANKLIN averages over 10,000 miles per set of tires? —and the other cars average 3500?

Comfort

A car that is built stiff with steel frames and braces and pounds tires to shreds cannot be easy riding for the passengers. This needs no argument further than to ride in a FRANKLIN at twenty-five miles per hour, over a rough road and then try the same thing in any other car.

Economy

There are many Six-Thirty FRANKLINS running over twenty miles per gallon of gasoline, and averaging over four hundred miles per gallon of oil. The identical car that won the Phoenix Race is now running over 750 miles per gallon of oil. A stock Six-Thirty recently ran 36.7 miles over country roads on one gallon of gasoline. A 1911 FRANKLIN holds the world's record of 83½ miles per gallon of gasoline.

In an eastern city recently a prominent "Six" car was driven twenty-two miles on a gallon of gasoline, and it was advertised as a world's record. If that city had city authorities like Los Angeles, there would be some arrests and fines for fraudulent advertising.

FRANKLIN was first in America to put on the market:

- Four-cylinder cars.
- Six-cylinder cars.
- Aluminum bodies.
- Governor controlled spark.
- The graceful sloping hood, which is now copied as nearly as possible by all late cars.

FRANKLIN the only car that

- Is a genuinely light car.
- Has a flexible, laminated wood frame.
- Is flexible throughout.
- Drives flexibly through full elliptic springs without brace rods.
- Has tires big enough to carry the car safely.
- Absolutely eliminates the cooling problem.
- Will run all day in low gear, no matter how hot the day.
- Will use less gasoline, less oil and less tires—and no smoke.
- Holds every important official economy record.

Borgstrom and Kelly Worry Their Trainer.

A six-cylinder Pathfinder touring car trained with the track athletes of the University of Southern California last Thursday afternoon.

Evans Maxwell of the local Pathfinder Motor Car Company drove one of the late-model cars out to Bovard Field to watch Fred Kelly, Howard Drew and Charley Borgstrom work out for the conference meet. Before he drove away Kelley and Borgstrom had taken on some new records.

Boyd Comstock, track coach at the local university, was not on the job Thursday and his athletes were framing up an all-round meet when the automobile appeared on the field.

Borgstrom proposed to vault over the Pathfinder loaded with passengers. It was at first hard to get any of those present to sit in the machine while the clever vaulter went over, but Jerry Craig finally broke the ice and took a seat in the car. He was followed by others, and when Borgstrom went over the machine he cleared it by about eight feet.

It was not the height that bothered the Trojan pole artist; it was the distance he had to get to clear the wide car. He had cleared 12ft. 6in. in practice just before and the vault over the car was fully 12ft.

After Borgstrom had had his fun with the Pathfinder "Six," Fred Kelly, world's champion high hurdler, came out on the track.

"Let's see you hurdle the car, Fred," requested one of the understudies.

It was thought that the fellow was kidding, but Kelly stepped off and sized up the car. A hurdle was placed in front of the hood and it was seen that the car was about eight inches higher than a high hurdle and so wide that Kelly would have to go well over in order to clear the fenders.

There seemed to be no chance that Fred would attempt the stunt, but he stepped forward and went over almost unnoticed. One of those present asked him to do it again for a picture. He did, but the camera did not work and the hurdler had to take a third flight.

Trainer "Uncle" Lewis stood near and looked on anxiously. He was afraid that one of the sure point winners in the big conference meet would get hurt and thereby rob the team of a few counts; but he was glad to see the big car driven off the field with his boys still able to perform.

DINGLEY TO RACE AGAIN.

RUESS'S MANAGER REBUILDING SPEED VETERAN.

Frank Young Now Owner of Car Which Hung Up New Record on Santa Monica Course Two Years Ago and It Will Be Equipped with Special Motor for Pomona.

Bert Dingley is to re-enter the racing game. He is to drive a Young-Ding special.

Frank Young, the well-known local sportsman, bought the famous old 120 Fiat racer last week and the car is to be rebuilt for Dingley to drive.

This is the car that Teddy Tetzlaff drove into first place and a new world's record at Santa Monica two years ago. It has figured in practically all the great automobile races held in America during the past three seasons and made its last appearance in the Grand Prize at Santa Monica.

Young bought the car from the Savage Tire Company. It is to be rebuilt under Dingley's supervision in the shops of the William R. Ruess company and equipped with a special Portola-model Pope motor.

Young had hoped to be able to enter the made-over racer in the 500-mile race at Indianapolis, but it will be impossible to get the machine in condition for that meet. Dingley is planning on showing his speed first in the California Grand Prize at Pomona, September 9, if not in the Seattle meet, which is to come before the Pomona Speedway is completed.

COLYEAR TO GIVE OUT TOURING DOPE.

A touring information department is to be established by Curtis Colyear, the Southern California Velie distributor. This touring bureau is to be for the benefit of Velie owners and for all others who are desirous of obtaining the latest reports on road conditions.

Arthur T. Neeley, manager for Curtis Colyear, is to make an extensive tour of Southern California and keep the road records for tourists up-to-date.

AUTO CLUB WORKS FORCE OVERTIME.

For the accommodation of Southern California motorists, the Automobile Club of Southern California is maintaining a special information bureau at Auto Club headquarters for telephone calls, this bureau being open from 7 o'clock in the morning until 8:30, and from 5:30 in the evening until 9.

During the day the club doors are open. Only telephone calls will be answered during the morning and evening hours.

This should prove of great benefit to the motorists who have use for expert road information.

ELECTRIC ORGANIZATION FORMED BY BEARDSLEY.

VOLNEY S. BEARDSLEY, president and general manager of the Beardsley Electric Company, is organizing the Beardsley Electric Club. This organization is to be for the benefit of owners of Beardsley electric cars.

The first club run is to take place during the latter part of this month and the organization will grow rapidly. Club runs are to be made regularly every month to points of interest. On these runs every car will be watched by expert mechanics from the factory and the cars are to be tested for mileage, speed and power.

During the coming summer months, these runs are to occur on Saturday making a pleasant outing for the Beardsley owners. While the members of the electric touring club are enjoying luncheon, the mechanics are to inspect the cars and if any trouble is located, it will be taken care of at the company's service station after the return from the trip.

About two years ago, Volney Beardsley staged one of the largest electric tours, with Columbus Electrics, that has ever been held. More than 100 persons went to Long Beach for an outing and made their headquarters at the Hotel Virginia.

The news of the success of this tour spread throughout the entire country and it was the interest taken in this tour that prompted the organization of the new club.

STAGE-MOTOR CHAMPION DRIVES REGULAR MACHINE.

AL JOLSON, the popular comedian, does not restrict his automobile driving to the stage auto in the race with the Express train. For the benefit of a few doubting friends he proved last week that he could handle a real automobile at real speed.

During a dinner at Al Levy's after the show one evening a few laughing remarks were made that Jolson was the champion stage-motor car driver.

"Oh, I can drive a real car just as fast," replied the comedian.

"I can ride the hood as fast as you can drive," said Levy.

That boast was no sooner made than taken up and the next afternoon saw the most amazing sight on the San Fernando road. The restaurant man is anything if not game and when Jolson and a party of friends called for Levy in a Winton Six, Al, noticing that Harry Owesney was driving and not the comedian, crawled into the tonneau.

They drove out the San Fernando road and just beyond the city limits the car was stopped and Jolson took the wheel.

"Now, Al," said the black-face Al, "you crawl on the hood and make good."

Levy hesitated. This was more than he bargained for. But after a robe had been placed over the hood of the car Al finally got astride.

"Raise your hand when you get enough," said Jolson.

"You haven't the nerve to make me raise my hand," replied Al.

This was no sooner said than Jolson slipped the Winton into the first, second and third speeds and was on his way. The speed increased and Al hung on. As the thirty-five-mile mark was passed up went Al's hand toward his head and Jolson slowed up for fear Levy would roll off.

The car stopped and Levy jumped off.

"See? I told you," said Al.

"Why, you raised your hand," replied Jolson.

"Raised my hand nothing, I was motioning you to go faster."

And the bout was forthwith declared a draw.

Frank L. Kramer of East Orange, N. J., the American sprint cycling champion for the last thirteen years, who is now in Europe, will be given a banquet by Newark friends upon his return April 25.

REDLANDS BOY BREAKS WORLD'S TRACK RECORD.

Palo Alto High School Wins the Meet With Redlands and Pasadena Tying for Second Place — Remarkably Fast Time Made in Many Events — Several Local Records Were Shaded.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY (Cal.) April 11.—The ninth annual Stanford interscholastic track and field meet resulted in the breaking of the world's interscholastic mile record today when Samuel B. Berry of Redlands High School broke the tape in 4m. 24 2-5s., two-fifths of a second faster than MacKenzie of Phillips Exeter Academy, former holder, made in 1913.

finishing within a few inches of the winner, also went under the former record. The race was neck and neck for the last lap of the quarter-mile track until within a few feet of the finish line Berry lunged ahead.

The final score of the meet gave Palo Alto sixteen points, a lead of five over its nearest competitors.

Pasadena and Redlands tied for second place. Johnson, Palo Alto, scoring ten points, was the greatest individual scorer of the meet. Johnson tied the Stanford interscholastic record of 10 1-5s. in the 100-yard dash, broke the Stanford interscholastic record in the 220-yard dash by one-fifth of a second, running the distance in 22 1-5s.

House of Riverside tied the interscholastic record of 25 1-5s. in the low hurdles.

Fifty-eight high schools were entered, represented by 180 athletes.

Palo Alto, 16; Pasadena, 11; Redlands, 11; Santa Ana, 10; Riverside, 8; Hollywood, 7; Exeter, Long Beach, 5; Lowell, 5; Santa Ukiah, 5; Oakland, 4; Anaheim, San Francisco Poly, 3; Santa Cogswell, 1; Modesto, 1; Petaluma, 1; San Jose, 1; Salinas, 1.

The results:

HAP BEGINS TO REDUCE TEAM.

The first step toward reducing the Venice club was taken yesterday when President Maier announced that Pitcher "Hank" Chlette had been turned back to the St. Joseph club.

It was stated that Pitcher Roger Edmondson and Outfielder Wilhoit would be disposed of immediately. Edmonson is to be sold, while an effort will be made to place Wilhoit with Butte under an "optional agreement."

Manager Hogan believes that with another year's experience Wilhoit will be a valuable man.

JOE GLEASON WINS FLYING RINGS TITLE

Joe Gleason, champion of the Y. M.C.A. of New York in the game of flying rings, has just successfully defended his title for the metropolitan championship.

Gleason finds time to train for this game out of sheer love for the sport, as he is a busy man. He is one of the best illustrators in the country.

Gleason recently visited Los Angeles and took part in numerous athletic events around this city. He will make Los Angeles his permanent home soon.

BERKELEY BEATS OLYMPIC CLUB.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BERKELEY, April 11.—California and the Olympic Club met on the oval today for the final practice meet before the Blue and Gold combats with the Cardinals. The tonic of a score of 76 2-3 to 45 1-3 is expected to materially brace the Bear track men for the big meet of next Saturday.

Parker, the Stockton boy, who has been representing America in the Antipodes, was the star of the day. Three firsts fell before his prowess, two of them being bought at the cost of really good times. The 440 went at 50 4-5s., and the 100 was earned only by making 10 flat, the third five spot came from a 23s win in the furlong dash.

BEACH SCHOOLS IN HOT GAME.

Long Beach High beat Santa Monica High School in a wonderful seventeen-inning game of baseball played at the latter city yesterday.

In the third inning the score was tied up 2 all and remained that way until broken by the visitors in the first of the seventeenth. With two men on bases, Capt. Rolland Bones of the Long Beach team, hit out a home-run drive, turning the game 5 to 2 in favor of his team. Santa Monica failed to score in the last of the seventeenth. Score:

Long Beach, 5; hits, 12; errors, 3.
Santa Monica, 2; hits, 7; errors, 3.
Batteries—Stein and Wilcox; Simons and Scribner.

NEW CREW CAPTAIN.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 11.—Gustav A. Jacomini was chosen to lead the Stanford varsity oarsmen during the 1915 season this afternoon, after the annual regatta with Washington and California. Jacomini will succeed Philip P. Clover of Pasadena.

Elegance

SUPREME elegance—quiet distinctiveness—comfort and exclusiveness. In the "long-mileage" Beardsley Electric, these four qualities have been developed to the very zenith of social life's demands.

For the trip to the opera, for the afternoon function, for country club service—in fact, for every possible requirement—the Beardsley Electric is the correct conveyance.

How Goodyear Fights Loose Treads

After we ended rim-cutting we took up loose treads—another major tire trouble.

At the base of the tread in every tire there must be a breaker strip. In all tires save Goodyears this strip is made of closely-woven fabric. And road use often separates this breaker strip from the rubber.

We bought the rights to a patent fabric which we picture here. It cost us $50,000, and it forms our breaker strip.

This fabric rivets itself to the rubber. The tread rubber is forced down through these openings, while in a plastic state, forming hundreds of large rubber rivets. Then the whole tire is vulcanized en masse.

This lessens by 60 per cent the risk of this tread separation. And no other maker employs it.

Millions Saved

That is one way in which we save tire users millions of dollars yearly.

Another is our "On-Air" cure. No-Rim-Cut tires are final-cured on air bags, under actual road conditions. This saves the countless blow-outs due to wrinkled fabric. This extra process costs us $1,500 daily, and no other maker employs it.

Rivet Fabric

In these tires alone is rim-cutting ended in a satisfactory way. We control the method.

And these tires alone have our double-thick All-Weather tread—a smooth-running anti-skid.

16 Makes Cost More

No-Rim-Cut tires are the only tires embodying these costly features.

After years of tests on countless cars they have come to outsell any other tire in the world.

Yet there are 16 makes of tires which sell at higher prices. Some nearly one-half higher. Three such tires cost as much as four Goodyears. That's a curious situation.

Several Surprises.

TROJANS MAKE CLEAN SWEEP.

Dark Horse Neighs Loudly at Track Meet.

Occidental Beats Pomona by Two Points.

Kirkpatrick Beats Kelly in Low Hurdles.

BY WILLIAM M. HENRY.

U.S.C., 78 1-3.
Occidental, 29 1-3.
Pomona, 27 1-3.

The neigh of the dark horse was heard abroad in the land yesterday afternoon when the U.S.C. Trojans literally buried the Pomona and Occidental track squads under an avalanch of points.

Barring the races and events absolutely conceded to certain stars, and even in some of these, the dark horses were forcing their noses into the public gaze.

When a man with a "wooden" leg plays baseball all morning and then runs away from Kelley in the low hurdles in 25 1-5 as Kirkpatrick of Occidental did, or when men like Paul Pritchard, Larry Gillette, Fred Watkins and Cyril Tipton are shoved into the background, it is indeed time to sit up and take notice.

TROJANS SWEEP FIELD.

The Trojans had everything their own way from start to finish. They set up an 8 to 1 point lead over Pomona in the first event, and from that point on, they were never in danger. Occidental nosed out Pomona by two points, the final score being Occidental 29 1-3 and Pomona 27 1-3.

The 100-yard dash, the opening event, was run against a strong wind and here came the first surprise, when Bradley of U.S.C. nosed out Gillette of Pomona for second. Drew loafed across in front in 10 2-5s.

Another upset came when Bailey of U.S.C. won the hammer throw from Wieman of Occidental and Beefy Heath of Pomona kicked in with a third place.

The mile run was a cooked-up job that failed to be cooked. Bill Annin, wishing to save himself for the 880, fixed it up to let Pritchard win the mile. For three laps Welfer of U.S.C., Pritchard and Annin of Oxy and Walt Sturges of Pomona loafed around the track.

The last lap was an awful thing. Pritchard lit out like a scared rabbit with Annin right at his heels. Right here, Sturges spoiled the little job by going right after the Tiger runners like a shot. As they entered the stretch, Sturges passed Pritchard and Annin, seeing that his team-mate couldn't win, let out a link and beat Sturges to the tape by a couple of yards.

COSTLY VICTORY.

The effect of Walter Sturges's sprint was shown in the two-mile when Pritchard, unaccustomed to running a lap in 57s., came out tired and after trailing Dave Sturges all the way, was forced to take second to him in slow time.

The finish of the race was the closest of the meet. For the entire lap Pritchard hung on the Hun's heels. As they came into the stretch he seemed to pull even with him and for seventy yards the two weary boys sprinted, a final lunge at the tape giving first to Sturges by six inches.

Georgia Green of Pomona had too much pep for Laird and Cook in the 440. Laird got the pole and kept it until the stretch, when the Hun ran away and left him. Johnny Cook got a cramp on the back stretch, which showed him that riding ten miles on a bicycle delivering papers on the morning of a big meet, doesn't help his muscles any.

EVENT OF MEET.

The 880 was the big event of the meet and Bill Annin showed himself to be a real champion by running away from Tipton in the really wonderful time of 2.01 3-5. There was a terrific wind on the backstretch, but the plucky little Tiger never faltered, and finished with a spurt that left Tipton five yards to the bad.

Harry Kirkpatrick, the Occidental captain, running with his leg bandaged tightly, set up a five-yard lead on Kelly before the low hurdles were half over, and floated across the tape in 25 1-5. Kelly pulled up close at the finish. Laird finished third, but after a caucus of judges had been called, he was disqualified for running in three lanes at once and third given to Green of Pomona.

Kirkpatrick was the most surprised individual of all as he had practically thrown away his chances by playing baseball against Redlands in the morning.

George Bettinger of U.S.C. was a regular dark horse in the pole vault, clearing twelve feet at his first trial and leaving Watkins and Cookman of U.S.C. and Coffeen of Occidental to scrap it out for third.

They each took a shot at it and missed. Cookman tried to take the pole over with him by wrapping his leg around it, but failed.

Fred Kelly was the big noise in the high hurdles, nosing out Ben Word for first in the marvelous time of 15 1-5 seconds with a wind blowing in his face that threatened to blow him over the fence every time he left his feet.

The Trojan captain had a big day all around, his conquest in the low hurdles being the only mar on it. He took just one jump in the broad, disdainfully scorning even to watch it measured and took second place with it. The shot encroached upon Kelly's valuable time only sufficiently for him to get in one good put.

BICKFORD SURPRISES.

One real feature of the meet was the winning of third place in the two-mile by John Bickford of Occidental. Hitherto Jawn has made it a rule to enjoy a view of the race from the rear of the bunch, but yesterday in his last race representing Occidental, he ran like a champion, only a few feet behind Pritchard.

Pomona ran away with the relay, while Occidental sprang a big surprise by again beating U.S.C. Brigham Young of U.S.C. gave King a three-yard lead over Green of Pomona and a seven-yard lead over Montijo of Occidental. Green and Montijo both tore off speedy laps and Gillette started and finished with a ten-yard lead over Cook of the Tigers.

The meet was really a model. There was class to everything from the competition to the officiating. Fred Thomson and Jim Donohue, the two best all-round athletes in the country, gave demonstrations of how regular athletes behave by exhibitions with the hammer and discus. Freddie heaved the hammer ten feet farther than the winning throw, using only one hand in the operation.

Summary:

The 100-yard dash: Drew (S.C.) first, Bradley (S.C.) second, Gillette (P.) third. Time, 10 2-5s.

Hammer throw: Bailey (S.C.) first, Weiman (O.) second, Heath (P.) third. Distance, 127ft. 1½in.

The 220-yard low hurdles: Kirkpatrick (O) first, Kelly (S.C.) second, Green (P) third. Time 25 1-5s.

Discus throw: Elmore (S.C.) first, Clement (S.C.) second, Smith (S.C.) third. Distance, 115ft. 4in.

The 880-yard run: Annin (O.) first, Tipton (S.C.) second, Lafollette (P.) third. Time, 2m. 1 3-5s.

Two-mile run: D. Sturges (P.) first, Pritchard (O.) second, Bickford (O.) third. Time, 10m. 19 2-5s.

High jump: Kendricks (S.C.) first, Ward (S.C.) Watkins (S.C.) and Davies (P.) tied for second. Height 5ft. 9 in.

Relay: Pomona won, Oxy second. U.S.C. third. Time 3m. 36 2-5s.

The trustees of the English sculling championship have approved the challenge of James Paddon, the Australian champion sculler, to row Champion Ernest Barry of England on the Thames next August or early in September. The race will be for the double title of English and world's professional championship, with a side stake of $5000.

EVERY MOHAWK TIRE IS A GOOD TIRE

This tire has won a place for itself, not on account of a large advertising campaign, not because of better salesmanship, but because the motoring public was ready for a real quality tire.

The Mohawk is a long life, an honestly and conscientiously made tire.

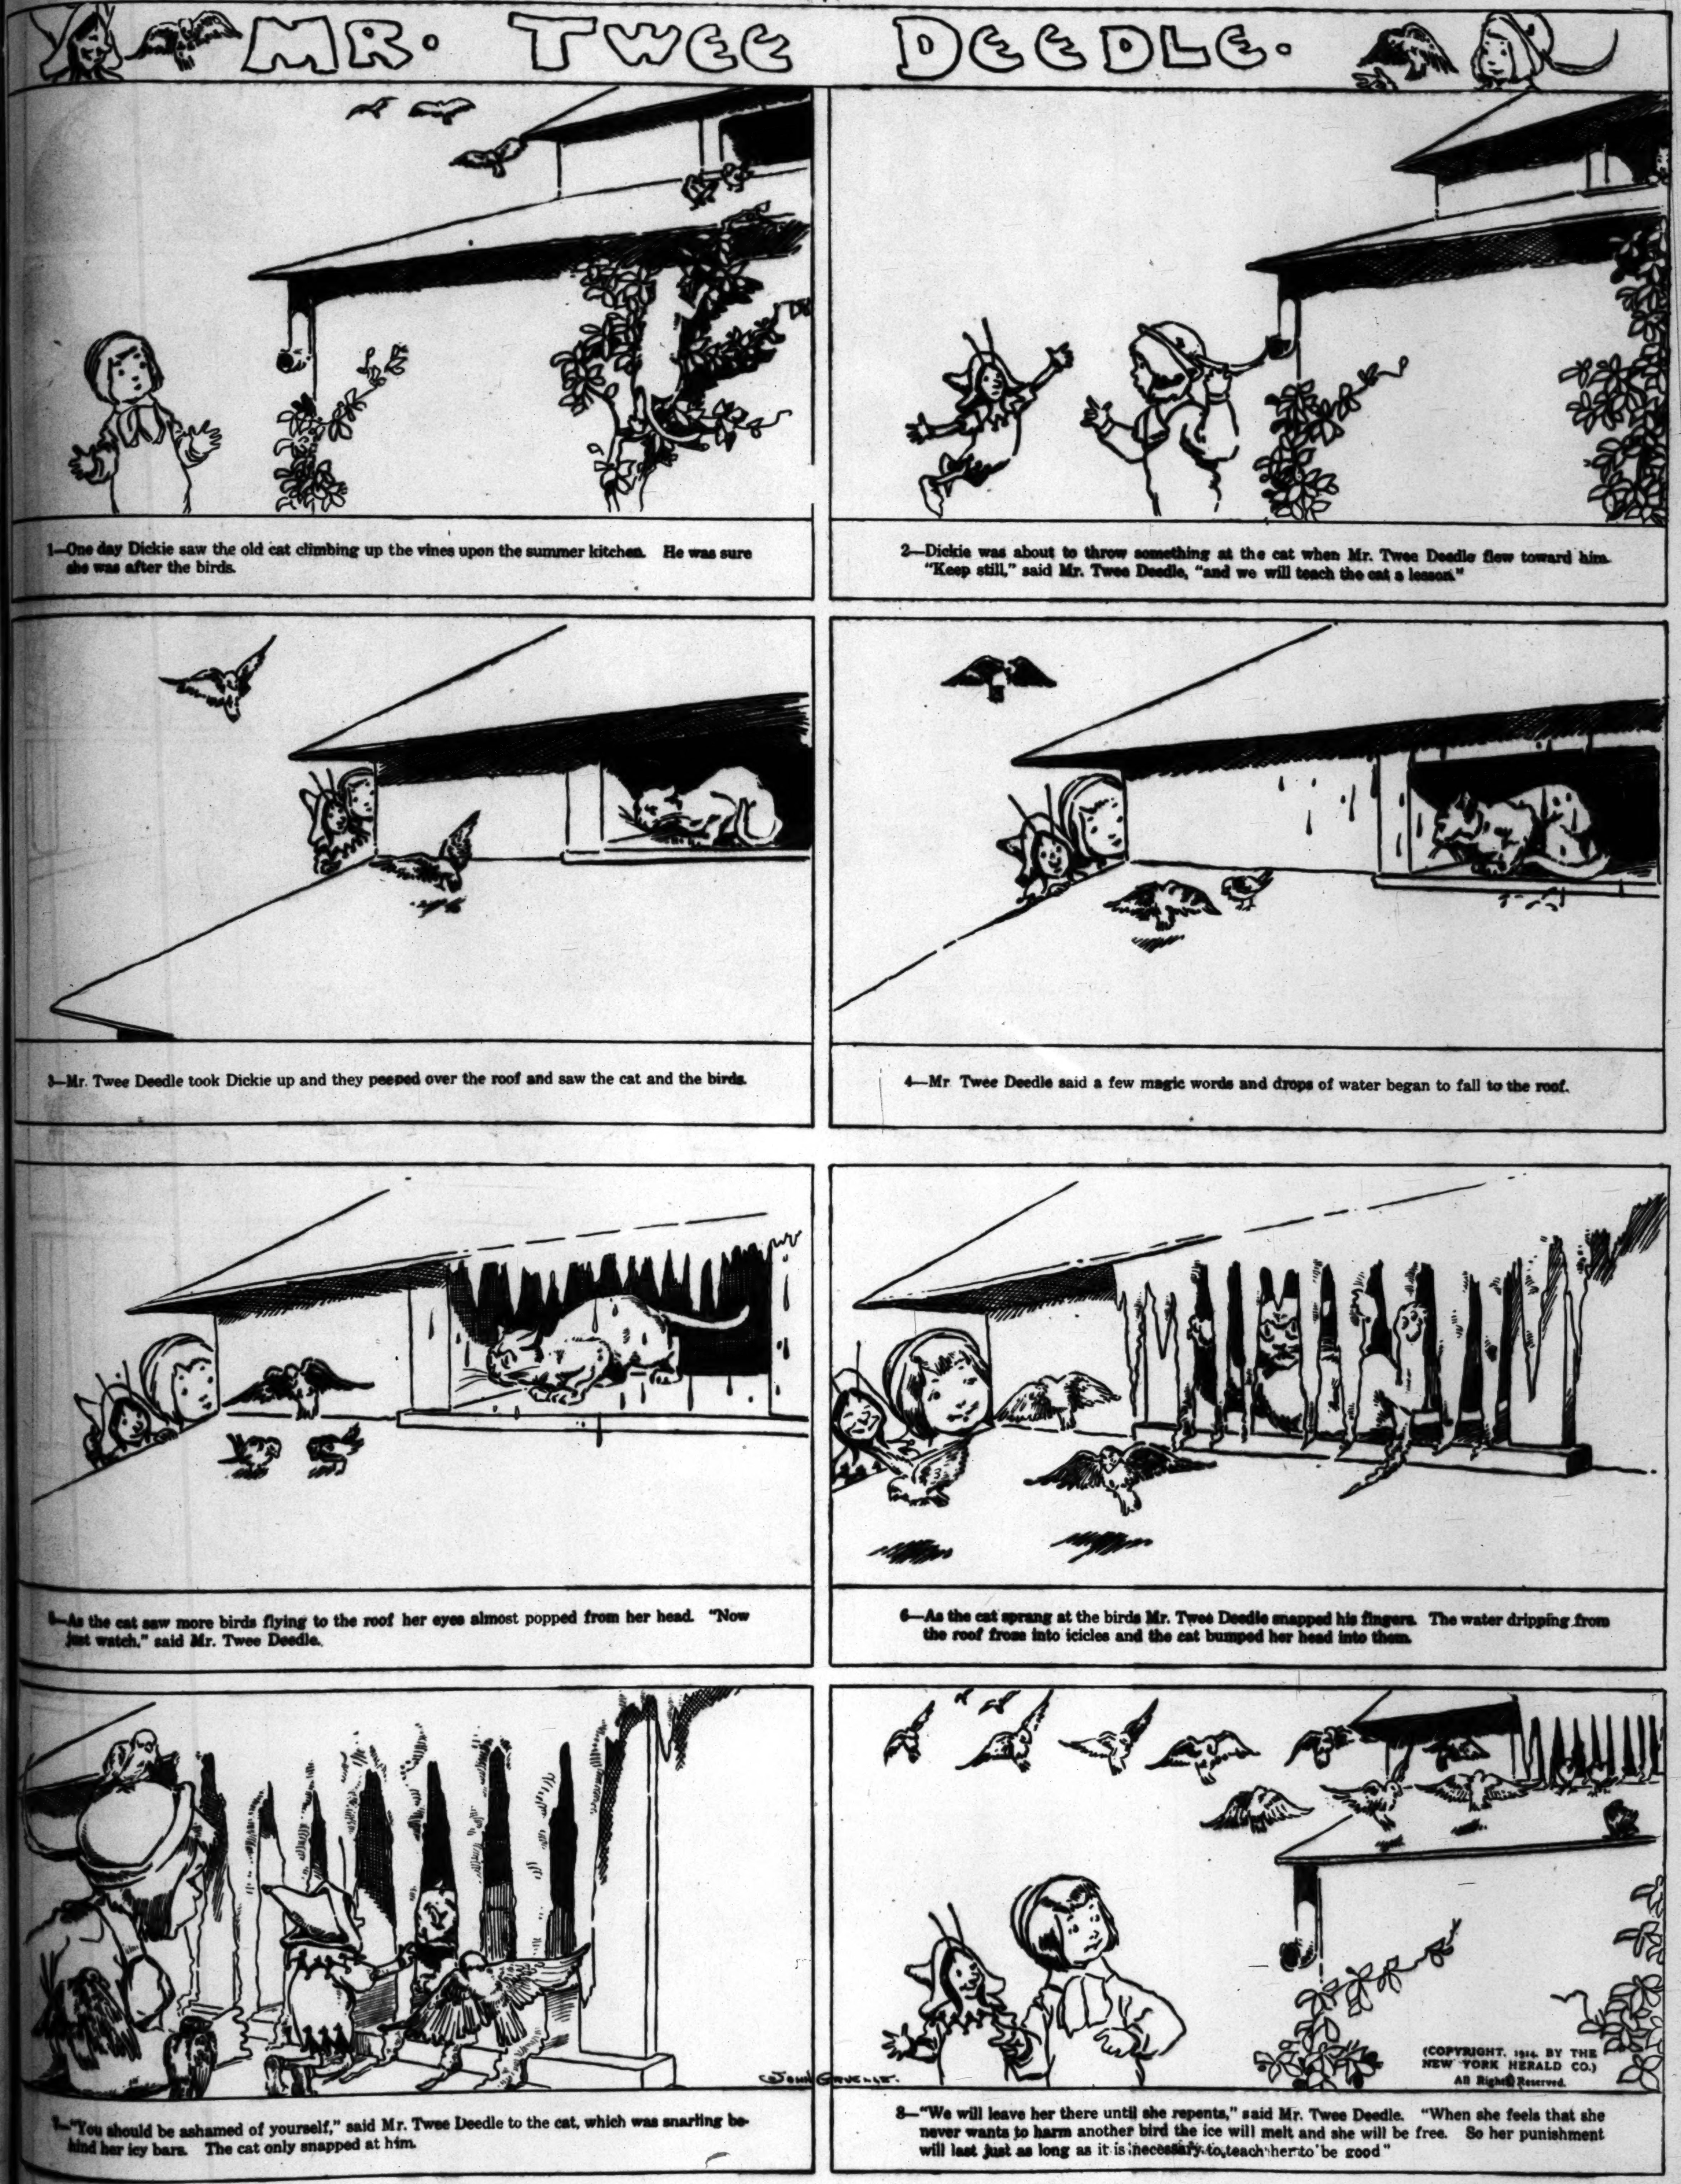
MR. TWEE DEEDLE.



John Gruelle

1—One day Dickie saw the old cat climbing up the vines upon the summer kitchen. He was sure she was after the birds.

2—Dickie was about to throw something at the cat when Mr. Twee Deedle flew toward him. "Keep still," said Mr. Twee Deedle, "and we will teach the cat a lesson."

3—Mr. Twee Deedle took Dickie up and they peeped over the roof and saw the cat and the birds.

4—Mr. Twee Deedle said a few magic words and drops of water began to fall to the roof.

5—As the cat saw more birds flying to the roof her eyes almost popped from her head. "Now just watch," said Mr. Twee Deedle.

6—As the cat sprang at the birds Mr. Twee Deedle snapped his fingers. The water dripping from the roof froze into icicles and the cat bumped her head into them.

7—"You should be ashamed of yourself," said Mr. Twee Deedle to the cat, which was snarling behind her icy bars. The cat only snapped at him.

8—"We will leave her there until she repents," said Mr. Twee Deedle. "When she feels that she never wants to harm another bird the ice will melt and she will be free. So her punishment will last just as long as it is necessary to teach her to be good"

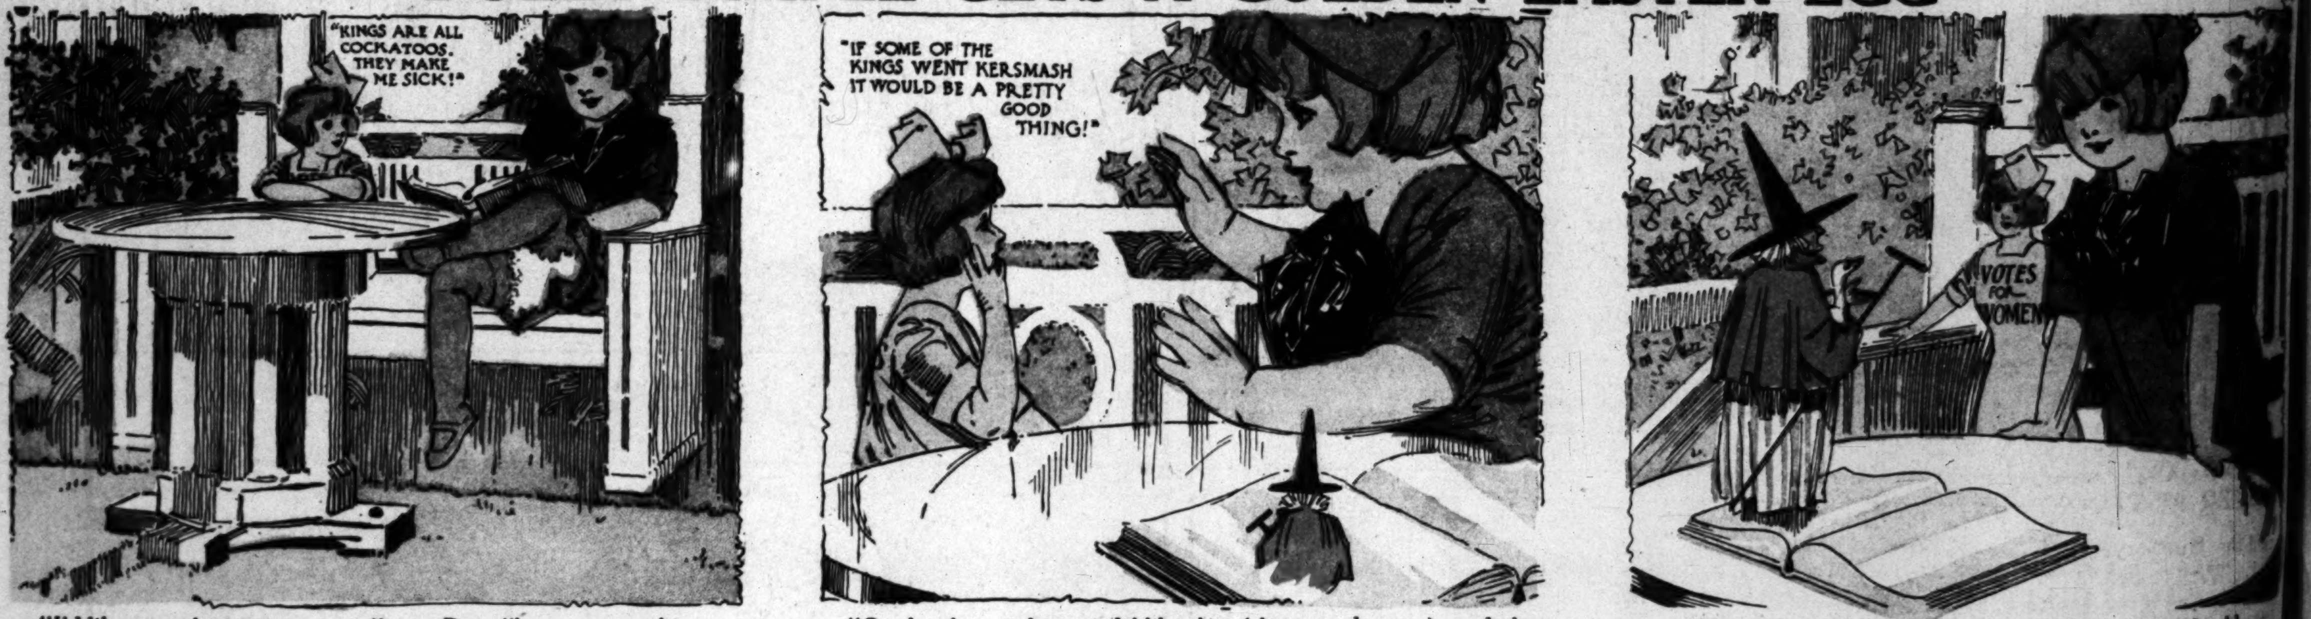
DOLLY DIMPLE GETS A GOLDEN EASTER EGG



"KINGS ARE ALL COCKATOOS. THEY MAKE ME SICK!"
"IF SOME OF THE KINGS WENT KERSMASH IT WOULD BE A PRETTY GOOD THING!"
VOTES FOR WOMEN

"I'd like to make an easter egg," says Dot; "but eggs are things
You have to handle carefully, like cockatoos and kings;

"Or else they go kersmash! like that (the eggs, I mean), and oh,
They make an awful mess!" A voice says, "Goodness, no!

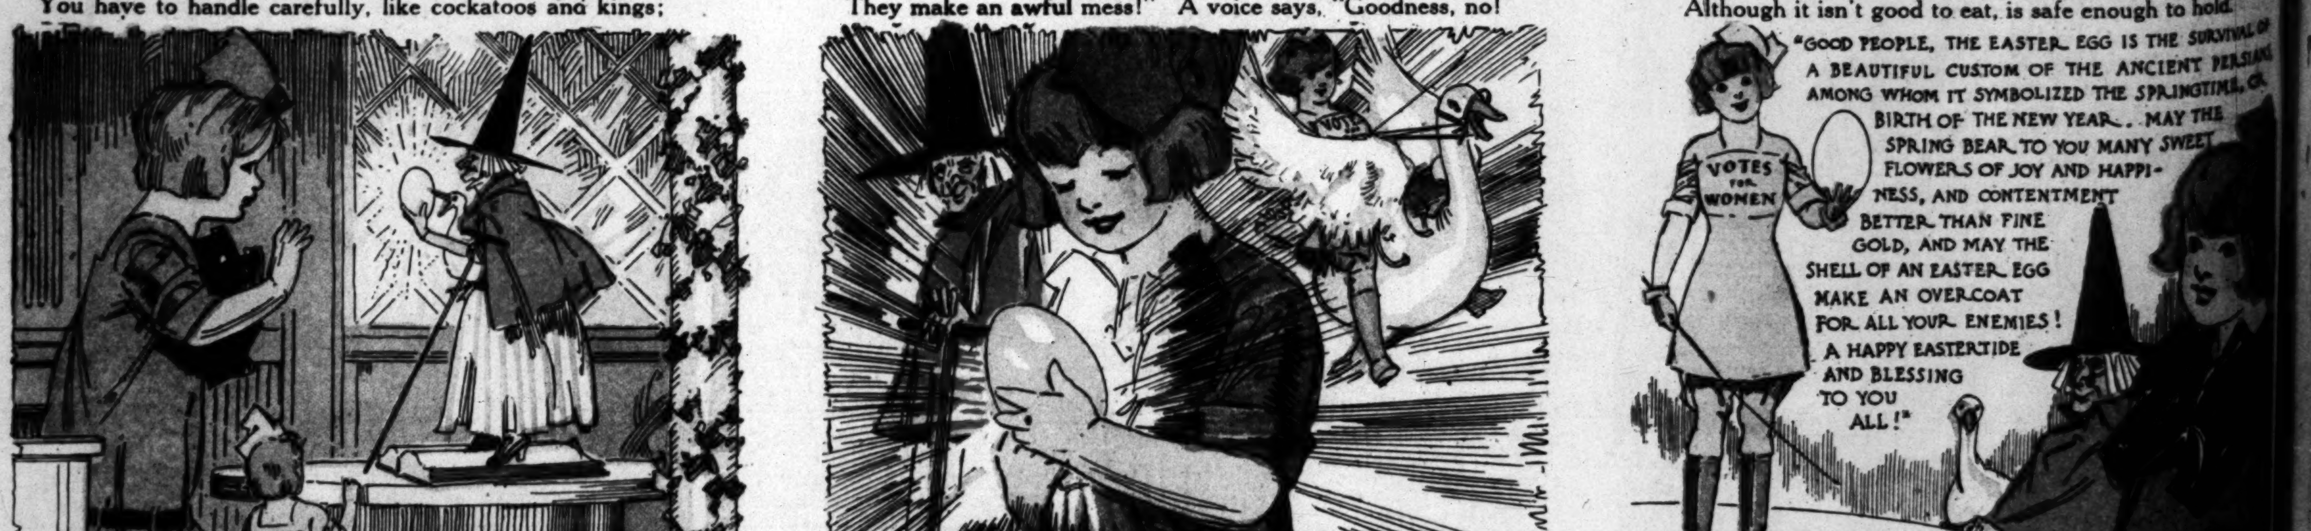
"Not if the egg is golden, dear. An egg of solid gold,
Although it isn't good to eat, is safe enough to hold.



VOTES FOR WOMEN
"GOOD PEOPLE, THE EASTER EGG IS THE SURVIVAL OF A BEAUTIFUL CUSTOM OF THE ANCIENT PERSIANS AMONG WHOM IT SYMBOLIZED THE SPRINGTIME, OR BIRTH OF THE NEW YEAR. MAY THE SPRING BEAR TO YOU MANY SWEET FLOWERS OF JOY AND HAPPINESS, AND CONTENTMENT BETTER THAN FINE GOLD, AND MAY THE SHELL OF AN EASTER EGG MAKE AN OVERCOAT FOR ALL YOUR ENEMIES! A HAPPY EASTERTIDE AND BLESSING TO YOU ALL!"

"I'm Mother Goose. I've brought an egg to give you. But I'm told You're quite a young phi-los-o-pher. Perhaps you sneer at gold?"

"I do not sneer at thoughtfulness," says Dot. "You're very kind.
A golden egg will make the dandiest Easter egg you'd find.

"And as for the philosophers, if they had gold (like me),
They wouldn't be philosophers. They wouldn't have to be."

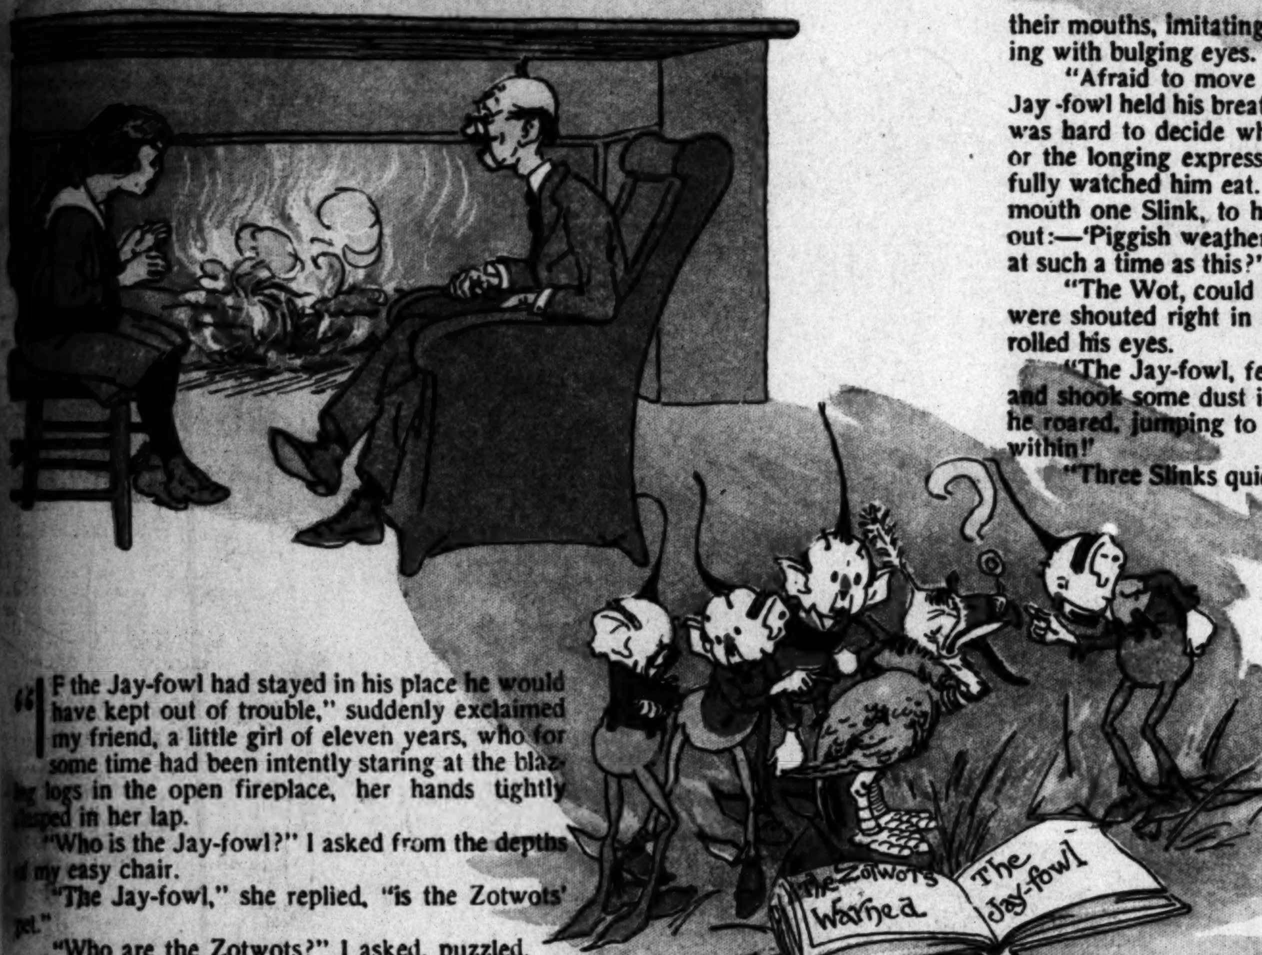
ZOTWOTS

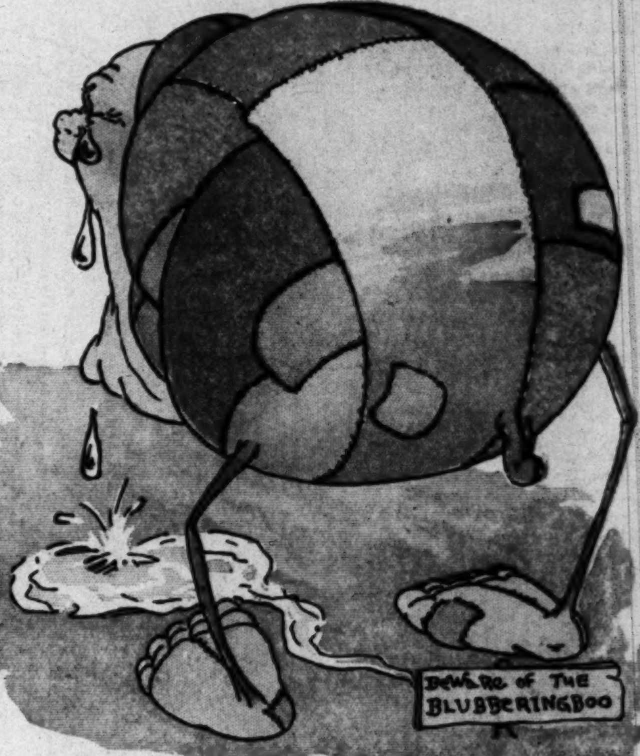
The Jayfowl visits the SPAKRUM

STORY AND PICTURES By "Bob" DEAN

"ZOTWOT" DEAN



The Zotwots Warned
The Jay-fowl



BEWARE OF THE BLUBBERINGBOO

"IF the Jay-fowl had stayed in his place he would have kept out of trouble," suddenly exclaimed my friend, a little girl of eleven years, who for some time had been intently staring at the blazing logs in the open fireplace, her hands tightly clasped in her lap.

"Who is the Jay-fowl?" I asked from the depths of my easy chair.

"The Jay-fowl," she replied, "is the Zotwots' pet."

"Who are the Zotwots?" I asked, puzzled.

"Have you never heard of the Zotwots?" she exclaimed in surprise.

"I'm afraid I have not," was my hesitating reply. She looked at me for a moment, then said:—

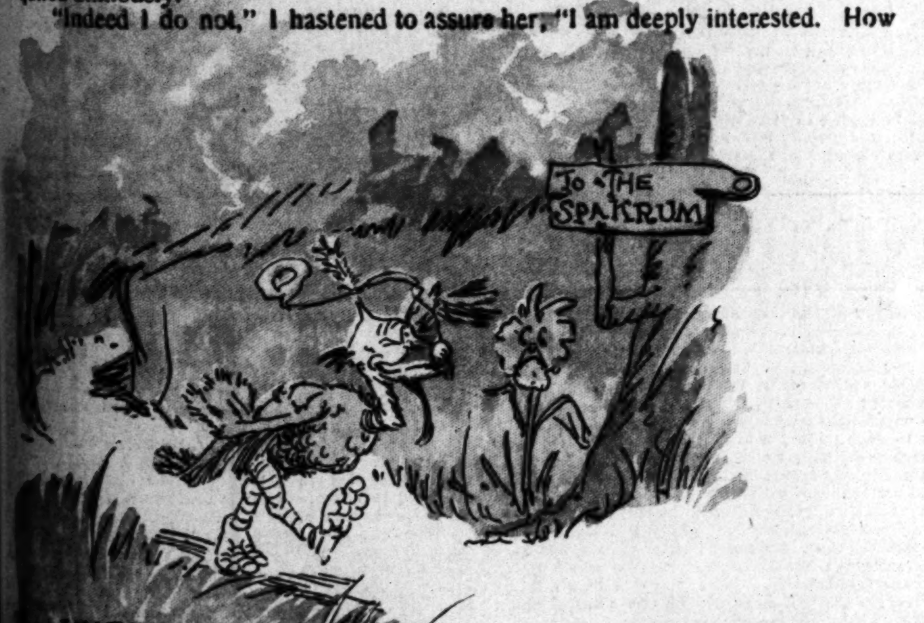
"The Zotwots live Near-Round-About, which is the capital of Anywhere. They seldom allow themselves to be seen unless they think it necessary to aid some little child who has been annoyed by a grown-up—they are the friends of children.

"Their ruler is called the Wot, and his assistants are Slinks. The Wot is really kind-hearted, but perfectly wild about making speeches; or, I should say, speech, as he has only one"——

"Are you serious about these Zotwot creatures?" I interrupted.

"Of course I am. I see them very often. You don't doubt it?" she inquired anxiously.

"Indeed I do not," I hastened to assure her, "I am deeply interested. How did the Jay-fowl get into trouble?"



To THE SPAKRUM

THE JAY-FOWL BECAME BOLDER AT EACH STEP

"Well," said the little girl, "one fine morning when the Zotwots were too busy to watch the Jay-fowl he wandered off and came upon a road leading to the Spakrum. He had always wanted to go to the Spakrum, where the Wot makes his speech, but the Zotwots had warned him time and again he must never venture in this directon, for the Wot would give him the Blubberingboo if he ever entered the Spakrum under any circumstance.

"He shivered and squawked with fear as he thought of the Blubberingboo, and glanced about with startled eyes. But everything he saw looked so quiet and peaceful he plucked up his courage and took a daring step in the direction of the Spakrum. He was ready to run if he saw or heard anything, but as nothing appeared he took another step, and another. Becoming bolder at each step, he finally broke into a run and ran on till he saw an open doorway.

"He listened a moment, peeked in, then entered and glared fearfully around. But, as the place seemed deserted, he snooped about until he noticed a chest so shaped he was unable to guess from which side it opened. It was so many sided he could not remember which side he had tried to open and which he had not. Still he would not give up—he felt sure the chest concealed some delightful surprise, and made up his mind to know what it was. Finally he tried to turn the chest over. As he pressed against it the lid flew open and the little Jay-fowl, with a joyful squawk, plunged inside. The lid closed with a sharp click. Right before his very eyes sat the Wot and four sly Slinks.

"The Wot was eating a slice of buttered bread, thickly coated with brown sugar, and the Slinks were intently watching him. He ate slowly, and loudly smacked his mouth. Each time he swallowed the Slinks stretched their necks and swallowed, too. When he took a bite they all leaned forward and opened their mouths, imitating every movement of his jaws, and staring with bulging eyes.

"Afraid to move for fear of being discovered, the little Jay-fowl held his breath and watched this interesting scene. It was hard to decide which the Wot enjoyed most—his lunch or the longing expressions on the Slinks' faces as they wistfully watched him eat. When he stuffed the last bite into his mouth one Slink, to hide his disappointment, suddenly cried out:—'Piggish weather we're having!' 'What can you expect at such a time as this?' said another Slink.

"The Wot, could not help hearing these remarks, as they were shouted right in his ears. He threw back his head and rolled his eyes.

"The Jay-fowl, fearing he'd be seen, wriggled nervously and shook some dust in the Wot's eyes. 'What, ho, Slinks!' he roared, jumping to his feet and blinking his eye, 'lead me within!'

"Three Slinks quickly led him away, but the fourth Slink remained where he was — a worried frown on his face. Clasping his head in his hands, he fiercely muttered, 'I saw the Wot blink his eye—he always blinks his eye at me when he wants to make a speech and is ashamed to admit it. The Zotwots are tired of his old speech. But I must get them here. How? How? Let me think!'

"The Jay-fowl, trembling with fear, slowly raised himself on his shaking legs and made a slight noise. The Slink's head snapped around and his eyes shone like stars as he stared at the Jay-fowl, who chattered with fright. Then, like a flash, the Slink leaped and, seizing the Jay-fowl, dragged him toward the alarm horn to call for help. As he reached for the bellows, the Jay-fowl with a sudden jerk broke away and dashed out of the Spakrum and down the road toward home, squawing at the top of his voice:—'I'll never disobey again—never! never! never!'"

"My, what a narrow escape!" I exclaimed. "Did he reach home in safety?"

"No, sir," replied my little friend, "not as soon as he expected. Because the Slink was so upset over his escape that he straddled his swiftest mount and leaped away. I must tell you about what he did the next time I see you."

"Very well," I replied, seeing the story was ended. I reluctantly took my leave and went home.

MORE ABOUT STEPMOTHERS.

THE three letters which follow I print almost unchanged. I believe all will be read with interest and I hope they may call forth further communications on the same subject.

"I would like to say a few words to you on the subject of the stepmother. I am just a plain working girl, 18 years old. I have had a stepmother since I was 7. She has a son five years younger than I am and he has always had the choice of everything, while I have had to take what I could get. If I ever had anything given to me which he wanted it was taken away from me.

"At the age of 11 the humane officer forbid my stepmother ever to strike me again and I have on my face a scar I shall carry for life where she threw something at me once.

"When I was 14 she took me out of school and told my father that I was big enough to work. I wouldn't have minded it so much if it had been really necessary, but my father was earning $35 a week and I thought that was sufficient to support a family of four. My father didn't say anything about it, so as long as I had to earn my living I thought I might as well do it for myself, so I left home. I have never been to my father's house since and I have never had to ask him for a cent towards my support. I have done several different things and am working as a maid now. At the end of the month I get my $30 clear to do as I please with, and I wish to add that the last three and a half years have been the happiest of my life."

Had a Bitter Experience.

The second letter follows the same line:

"I am yielding to the temptation to drop you a line on the stepmother question. Although I must admit they cannot all be alike, I have personally had such a bitter experience at the hands of one that I never can help feeling sorry for any child who misses the love and care of an own mother.

"No one who has not been through the ordeal can have the slightest conception of the heartaches some stepchildren must endure, or how entirely bare their little lives are of love and sympathy. Nor can they know what perfectly fiendish things a wicked stepmother will stoop to do to wreak her hatred on the children of the first wife.

"If I could write the story of the lives led by us two children who were left motherless at the age of 2½ and 5½ years it would make many persons wonder how such things could possibly take place, year after year, without coming to the attention of some one who could interfere.

"Although a stepmother's position may not be an enviable one, still she knows what she is taking upon herself when she marries a widower with a family, and I fail to find any excuse for her misuse of the little ones who are there through no fault of theirs. Most small children and some older ones can be conquered a great deal more easily by kindness than by harshness, and since cruelty leaves an indelible stain and sting, surely love and kindness will leave their mark as well."

Like an Own Mother.

After these rather somber letters the third letter is welcome as striking a more cheerful note:

"I have heard many unkind things said about stepmothers and I have known a few who were not particularly devoted to their stepchildren. But if I spoke from my own experience I could say nothing but good.

"My own mother died when I was a baby and my brother only a couple of years older and within two or three years our father married again. From that moment until her death I never felt the difference between her and any own mother I ever knew. She was dear to us in every way and, while she ruled us wisely and made us obey and punished us when we needed it, she always made us feel that her love was there, even when she had to make us suffer for our naughtiness.

"When our little half-brother came when she had been married a couple of years she made us feel that he belonged to us, too, and I could not see as he grew older that she treated him any better than she treated us. We all shared alike.

"I lived at home until my marriage when I was 22 years old and I don't know how I could have received more devotion and tenderness from my own mother than I had from my stepmother. She helped me with my trousseau, she shared all my hopes and plans during my engagement, and my early married life; she was with me when my babies were born. And when, only a few years ago, she went home to her rest—my father died years ago—my brother and I mourned with the desolation very own children must feel."

More Kindness than Cruelty.

I am glad I have this third letter to offset the other two, for they give a depressing idea of the relationship between stepmothers and stepchildren. Personally I have known both kinds, but I really think my experience has been that there is more kindness than cruelty.

One stepmother I recall whose stepchildren adored her and who was worthy of all the love that could be bestowed upon her. True, she had no children of her own, but even if she had I cannot believe she would have been unkind or unjust to the others. Another I knew who had two stepchildren and two of her own was such a tender and devoted parent that when she died, after they had all reached womanhood, the stepchildren begged the privilege of paying every expense connected with her last illness and burial. "We have never had the chance of doing anything which would begin to show how dearly we loved mother and how much we appreciate all the goodness she has shown us throughout our lives," said one to me through her tears. "This seems so little and yet it is all we can do!"

These are only examples and I could match them with many more, even although I do not for a moment question the statements contained in the first two letters I print. I also indorse the statement of the writer of the second epistle who says that when a woman marries a widower with a family she knows what she is about. If a woman feels that her jealousy of her predecessor is such that she is bound to dislike the children of the first marriage she has no business to make it. I have known of women who made it a condition of their acceptance of the father of a family that the children should be banished and that the wives should not have to live in the house with their stepsons and stepdaughters. My opinion of a woman of this kind is on par with that I hold of the father who will accede to such a request and turn his own flesh and blood out of the house at the bidding of any woman alive.

Also, I may add that I believe that a woman who would suggest such treatment of helpless children, who, to quote my correspondent again, "are there through no fault of theirs," is the sort who would not hesitate to be unkind to them when they happened to cross her will in any way, to interfere with her work or pleasure, or to take anything for themselves which she wanted to bestow upon her own offspring.

Subjected to Harsh Criticism.

Still, let me go back to my defense of stepmothers. They may deserve many of the unkind things that are said about them—that is, some of them may—but there can be no doubt that much blame is bestowed upon them which they do not merit. The old proverb: "Give a dog a bad name and hang him!" fits their case. Certain bad stepmothers have put their class into a bad eminence and all are credited with the faults of the few. Even their good is evil spoken of and the discipline which no one would notice if exercised upon their own children is considered harshness and cruelty if they let their stepchildren have the benefit of it.

Yet what is the stepmother to do? She knows she is subjected to much harsher criticism than an own mother would be and at the same time she understands that if she is too indulgent and her stepchildren turn out badly her lack of training will be blamed. Whichever way she does she is sure to be condemned by some one. I am reminded of the old story of the drunken husband's soliloquy on his way home.

"If my wife's sittin' up when I get home I'll beat her! What business has she sittin' up till I come home?" Then, after a few moments' cogitation: "If my wife's gone to bed when I get home I'll beat her! What business she's got goin' to bed before I get home?"

Placed in Hard Position.

Two conversations I had on this topic with friends within the last few weeks were brought to my mind by the letters above quoted.

"My heart aches for that poor child," said an elderly woman of a girl of [illegible]. "Just see the way she dresses and wears her hair. It is frizzed up until she looks disreputable and she wears her skirts to her heels when a child of that age ought to be clothed like a child and not like a grown woman. But I suppose it's all that can be expected from her stepmother. If she were the girl's own mother it would be different."

By one of those queer coincidences which come about now and then the stepmother in question called on me the next day and naturally enough we fell to talking about daughters and she poured out her mind to me on the girl of the day.

"There is Nannie, for instance," she said [Nannie is the stepdaughter]. "To my old fashioned eyes she looks perfectly absurd with her skirts that length and her hair frizzed up like a hurrah's nest—whatever that may be. But when I try to make her see how ridiculous it all is she says that all the other girls dress like that and I can see she considers me a back number. Of course, if she were my own child I would put my foot down and say she must dress as I think best, but you can imagine the things that would be said about me then as a harsh stepmother. So I just let matters go and hope she may learn wisdom as she gets older."

There is the case. The mother is blamed for her conduct because she is not dealing with the stepchild as she would with her own, and yet all the while she is erring on the side of overindulgence, and she knows she would not be called harsh for awarding her own child the treatment that will never be taken as a matter of course with her stepdaughter.

Either way it is a hard position. We have heard something dealing with the stepmother. Can some one give us equally interesting accounts of the attitude of the stepchildren toward the parents? What is their standing and is the stepmother the only one to blame? Are all stepchildren impeccable or do they, too, possess faults in their relations with their [illegible]?

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND.

Paper Dolls for Small Girl.

"I HAVE seen several requests for paper dolls. I should be glad to send my supply to some little girl who has none to play with. I will also give a recipe for good, easily made custard: One egg, beaten light; half cup sugar, half cup milk, into which has been stirred a tablespoon of flour, tablespoon of melted butter, lemon flavoring to taste. Part of the grated rind and the juice of one lemon may be used instead. This quantity makes one custard. If any one has magazines of fiction or silk pieces to dispose of, I should appreciate them, as I am still unable to get about much after an operation.

"L. C. J."

There is no doubt that there will be more than one little girl—or her representative—putting in a claim for these paper dolls. I already hear the lament of the many disappointed children, since, after all, only one can be blessed by the gift. As to the custard, while I am glad to give the recipe, I would like to ask the cooking contingent among the Cornerites if they have as good results with custards in which flour or cornstarch is used as in those which depend upon eggs alone for thickening. Frankly, I have not. To my taste there is always a flavor of the flour which makes the thickened custard decidedly inferior to the other. I grant all that can be said about the price and scarcity of eggs, but I would rather have one custard without flour than half a dozen with it. Still, I am quite likely to be in the minority, and I would like the opinion of other housekeepers. Does the use of the lemon in flavoring make a difference? My experience has been principally with custards flavored with vanilla. The request of this correspondent for magazines of fiction and for pieces of silk will be put on file and I hope it may receive a prompt and generous answer. She has certainly paid her way by the offer of the paper dolls and the gift of the recipe.

Trying to Start a Library.

"We are trying to establish a little library in this rural community. Of books there is no end, but of good books alas! there is a great dearth. Knowing that many such good books are stored away and not in use, it seemed to me there might perhaps be philanthropic individuals who would rather the volumes would be performing their great mission than lying idle. We would be truly thankful for any and all contributions of books of merit and would gladly acknowledge them. Only those who are not near libraries can realize the great need of good books to those who are unable to buy and are not in a region where libraries are accessible. This is especially the case in rural communities. Cannot space be given to my appeal in order that this movement may be furthered without delay? You will have the gratitude of the petitioners.

"MRS. N. D."

This appeal touches me deeply, as I hope it may others.

A Contribution of Pieces.

"I have some pieces of cotton and wool and a few silk ones I could give. Your talk about children in today's paper should be read by every parent. It seems as if the mother is always blamed for the children's conduct and it seems a pity good mothers can't have a little help now and then from kind hearts without the sting of charity. If we can't help by deeds we can sometimes by thoughts and words. We try to teach our boys and girls to be honest and good and sometimes years of training are upset by some bad companion. Often children are found fault with for naughtiness when they need a doctor more than a scolding. My own 7 year old girl had her tonsils and adenoids removed and is better natured since then, sleeps better, and eats better.

R. R."

Thank you for your offer of the pieces. As the correspondents whose names you mention are already supplied, I print the offer, knowing it will be welcome to some of our readers. I am glad if the talk about children was of any help, and I agree with you that the children's naughtiness is sometimes due to physical causes. I have known improvement that seemed almost miraculous wrought by the removal of the tonsils and adenoids in young children and older boys and girls.

* *

Some Plants to Exchange.

"I want to exchange seventy-five lovely 2 year old privet hedge plants for potted plants, violet plants, and ivy leaf plants. Will some one who is in the gardening line make the exchange? MRS. J. H."

This request I hope may meet a reply. Now that plants can be sent by parcel post, the expense of transporting them is not severe, and I trust the exchange may be arranged before the best period for transplanting, etc., has gone by.

Gasoline for Bedbugs.

"Quite recently there have appeared requests for ways of exterminating bedbugs. While all of them may be good, I have never noticed a method which I consider so effective as the use of gasoline. Of course, it must be used with caution. It has the advantage over kerosene that it evaporates more quickly and leaves no disagreeable odor. It may be poured right upon the mattress without the least injury, and the best way to clean the bed is to fill a small oil can, such as one has for oiling a sewing machine, and inject the gasoline into every crack and crevice. The user will find that it causes instant death to both insects and eggs. May I ask if there is some one among your readers who has an atlas of the world of not too remote a date? I am asking for this for a family of children, that they may use it at home to aid them with their school work. There are no reference works of any description in this home, and the family is unable to procure any. Such books would be used freely and greatly appreciated.

"MRS. B. C. W."

I trust the atlas and any other reference books which would be of service to a family of studious school children may be forthcoming for the benefit of this family. The gift will be felt well worth while by any one who has been aided to get rid of bugs by this correspondent's advice. I know the gasoline is good, but I wish to repeat and emphasize the need of caution in its use. Never must it be employed in a room with a light or fire.

Bread That Never Fails.

"I can indorse the following recipes I send as good. The first one is for making bread that never fails. Soak one cake of fresh yeast in a half pint of water. Cook three medium sized potatoes in three pints of water, and when thoroughly cooked take from the water and mash fine. Put the water back on the stove and allow it to be scalding hot; in a bowl put one tablespoon of flour, one of sugar, three teaspoons of salt, and one of shortening, if you wish, but not absolutely necessary. Mix this with a little cold water, so it will not form lumps, and stir in the scalding potato water; set to cool, and when cool enough, stir in your yeast. Do this in the morning, when you are doing your morning work. In the evening thicken this and make a medium stiff batter and beat it well. Allow to set until morning, and make into a dough and knead thoroughly. Let it rise until light, put in your baking pans, any size loaves you may prefer—I like them small—and make five loaves from this amount. Allow to raise again, and bake in a hot oven that is a good even heat. It is no trouble at all after you make it once.

"Here is my direction for making pie crust: Six tablespoons of flour, two tablespoons of shortening; mix the flour, lard, and about one teaspoon of salt together and dampen with the coldest water you can get. It never fails.

"Another that I can recommend as successful is jelly roll. I tried for three years before I got a recipe that I could do a thing with: Five eggs, three-fourths cup of granulated sugar, two teaspoons baking powder, any flavor you may prefer. Beat the eggs and sugar together, then stir in the flour a little at a time. It takes about one cup of flour. Last of all, add the baking powder and vanilla or other flavor, and beat hard. Put in a greased pan that has a thin paper in it, with a little flour sprinkled over it. Watch closely, as it cooks quickly, on account of so many eggs. Lay on a dampened cloth, spread with jelly, roll up, and wrap the cloth up around it, and allow to cool that way. This is a perfect recipe.

"HOUSEKEEPER."

Thank you for these recipes, as well as for the others you have sent. We have always Cornerites struggling to get a good bread recipe, and I foresee that this one will be more popular even than the others. Let me beg those housekeepers who like the recipes to cut them out and put them away safely, so that in a few weeks I may not receive a chorus of lamentations over the loss of the instructions and a plea to have them repeated.

Makes Tough Fowl Tender.

"I have a recipe to give you for smothered chicken. After your chicken is dressed, carve it into regular frying size and have ready a skillet with about a tablespoonful of lard or butter; wipe the pieces of chicken dry and place them in the skillet and keep turning often, but do not brown. This process merely keeps the juice in the chicken. As the pieces are heated through lift them out and put into a stewpan with hot water enough to cover them. When the pieces are finished, put grease and all in stewpan, season with pepper and salt, and boil steadily and slowly until the chicken is done. The time for this depends upon its age. When tender lift out and cook either potatoes or dumplings in the gravy. If potatoes are used, lift them out when done and thicken the gravy with flour and water beaten smooth. If dumplings are cooked no thickening is necessary, as they do the work. The toughest kind of fowl is tender when cooked in this way. MRS. F. [illegible]"

This recipe is from a correspondent who sent us other good recipes. This method of smothering chicken is unfamiliar to me; the dish I know under that name is prepared in a different fashion, but this sounds as though it should be good. We are all grateful for any method by which a tough fowl can be made tender and appetizing.

Flower Seeds to Exchange.

"I love flowers and have several kinds of seeds some one might like as a [illegible] exchange for plants. I will be only too glad to send the postage required for them. Perhaps there could be a little club arranged of flower lovers by which we could exchange seeds, and bulbs, and talk on flower culture. I just make the suggestion.

"[illegible]"

I am sorry that the friend who offered the flowers you would like to have had given them away before your letter came, but I hope some one else may like to arrange an exchange with you, and in that hope I print your letter. I think it altogether possible that we have enough flower lovers in the Corner to make such a club as you suggest a pleasant thing, and if they will write to me, sending their addresses, I will be glad to put them in touch with you. This is a good time of year to begin, when gardens are being made and plans are on foot for raising flowers.

Student of English.

"Having been in this country only [illegible] years I am striving to learn not only the English language but also all things a man in civil life ought to know. Yet I cannot afford to buy a reference book or an encyclopedia which I most [illegible] have. Having had some education in my native land I think I can make good use of such a work if any of your readers would be kind enough to send one that he or she would not mind giving away. I am willing to pay express charges and to tell the giver who I am and my intentions [illegible]

This is a request I would be glad to see granted and yet I doubt if an encyclopedia would supply quite the knowledge our "student" wishes. Will not some [illegible] advise him, write for his address and send him such a book as will be of help to him or tell him what to do to fit himself for citizenship?

For the INDUSTRIOUS NEEDLEWOMAN

By ADELAIDE BYRD

FOR BREAD TRAY AND LUNCH CLOTH

Designed by Annie J. Loos

I am giving today a favorite design, this time applied to a doily for a bread tray, and, in addition, a motif that can be applied to a circular or square lunch cloth. The butterfly and field flowers make as attractive a combination as the heart and eye of an embroiderer can ask. In this design the combination of stitches is effective and easy, and the beauty of the arrangement speaks for itself. Use linen of a medium weight and a soft mercerized cotton. After transferring the design to the linen according to directions, pad the outer edges of the wings of the butterflies and work in over-and-over stitch, continuing the outline around the wings in the stem stitch or an outline. Pad the body of the butterfly lengthwise and work in over-and-over stitch. The antennae should be outlined.

The wings are effective when filled with punched work, which is an old favorite. Use a coarse needle or a three-sided needle that comes for the work. Punch the threaded needle through the material, working in parallel rows, joining two opposite dots each time. When passing down to the underneath, use a diagonal line on the under side. Make the stitches all in the same direction first, then work in the other direction, completing the rows of stitches that radiate from each hole. Do not pull the material. The frequent punching of the needle will give a sufficient openness in the field.

If you do not wish to have punched work, fill in the wings with French knots or seed stitches, which are small back-stitches in parallel rows. Outline the stems in outline work or in the stem stitch, and after padding the long leaves with a few strands of darning cotton or the embroidery thread, work in over-and-over stitch. The wild carrots are made by grouping French knots of different sizes, as shown in the dots. Make the ones at the outer edge smaller. Work the leaves in the center with solid stitch and make large French knots there.

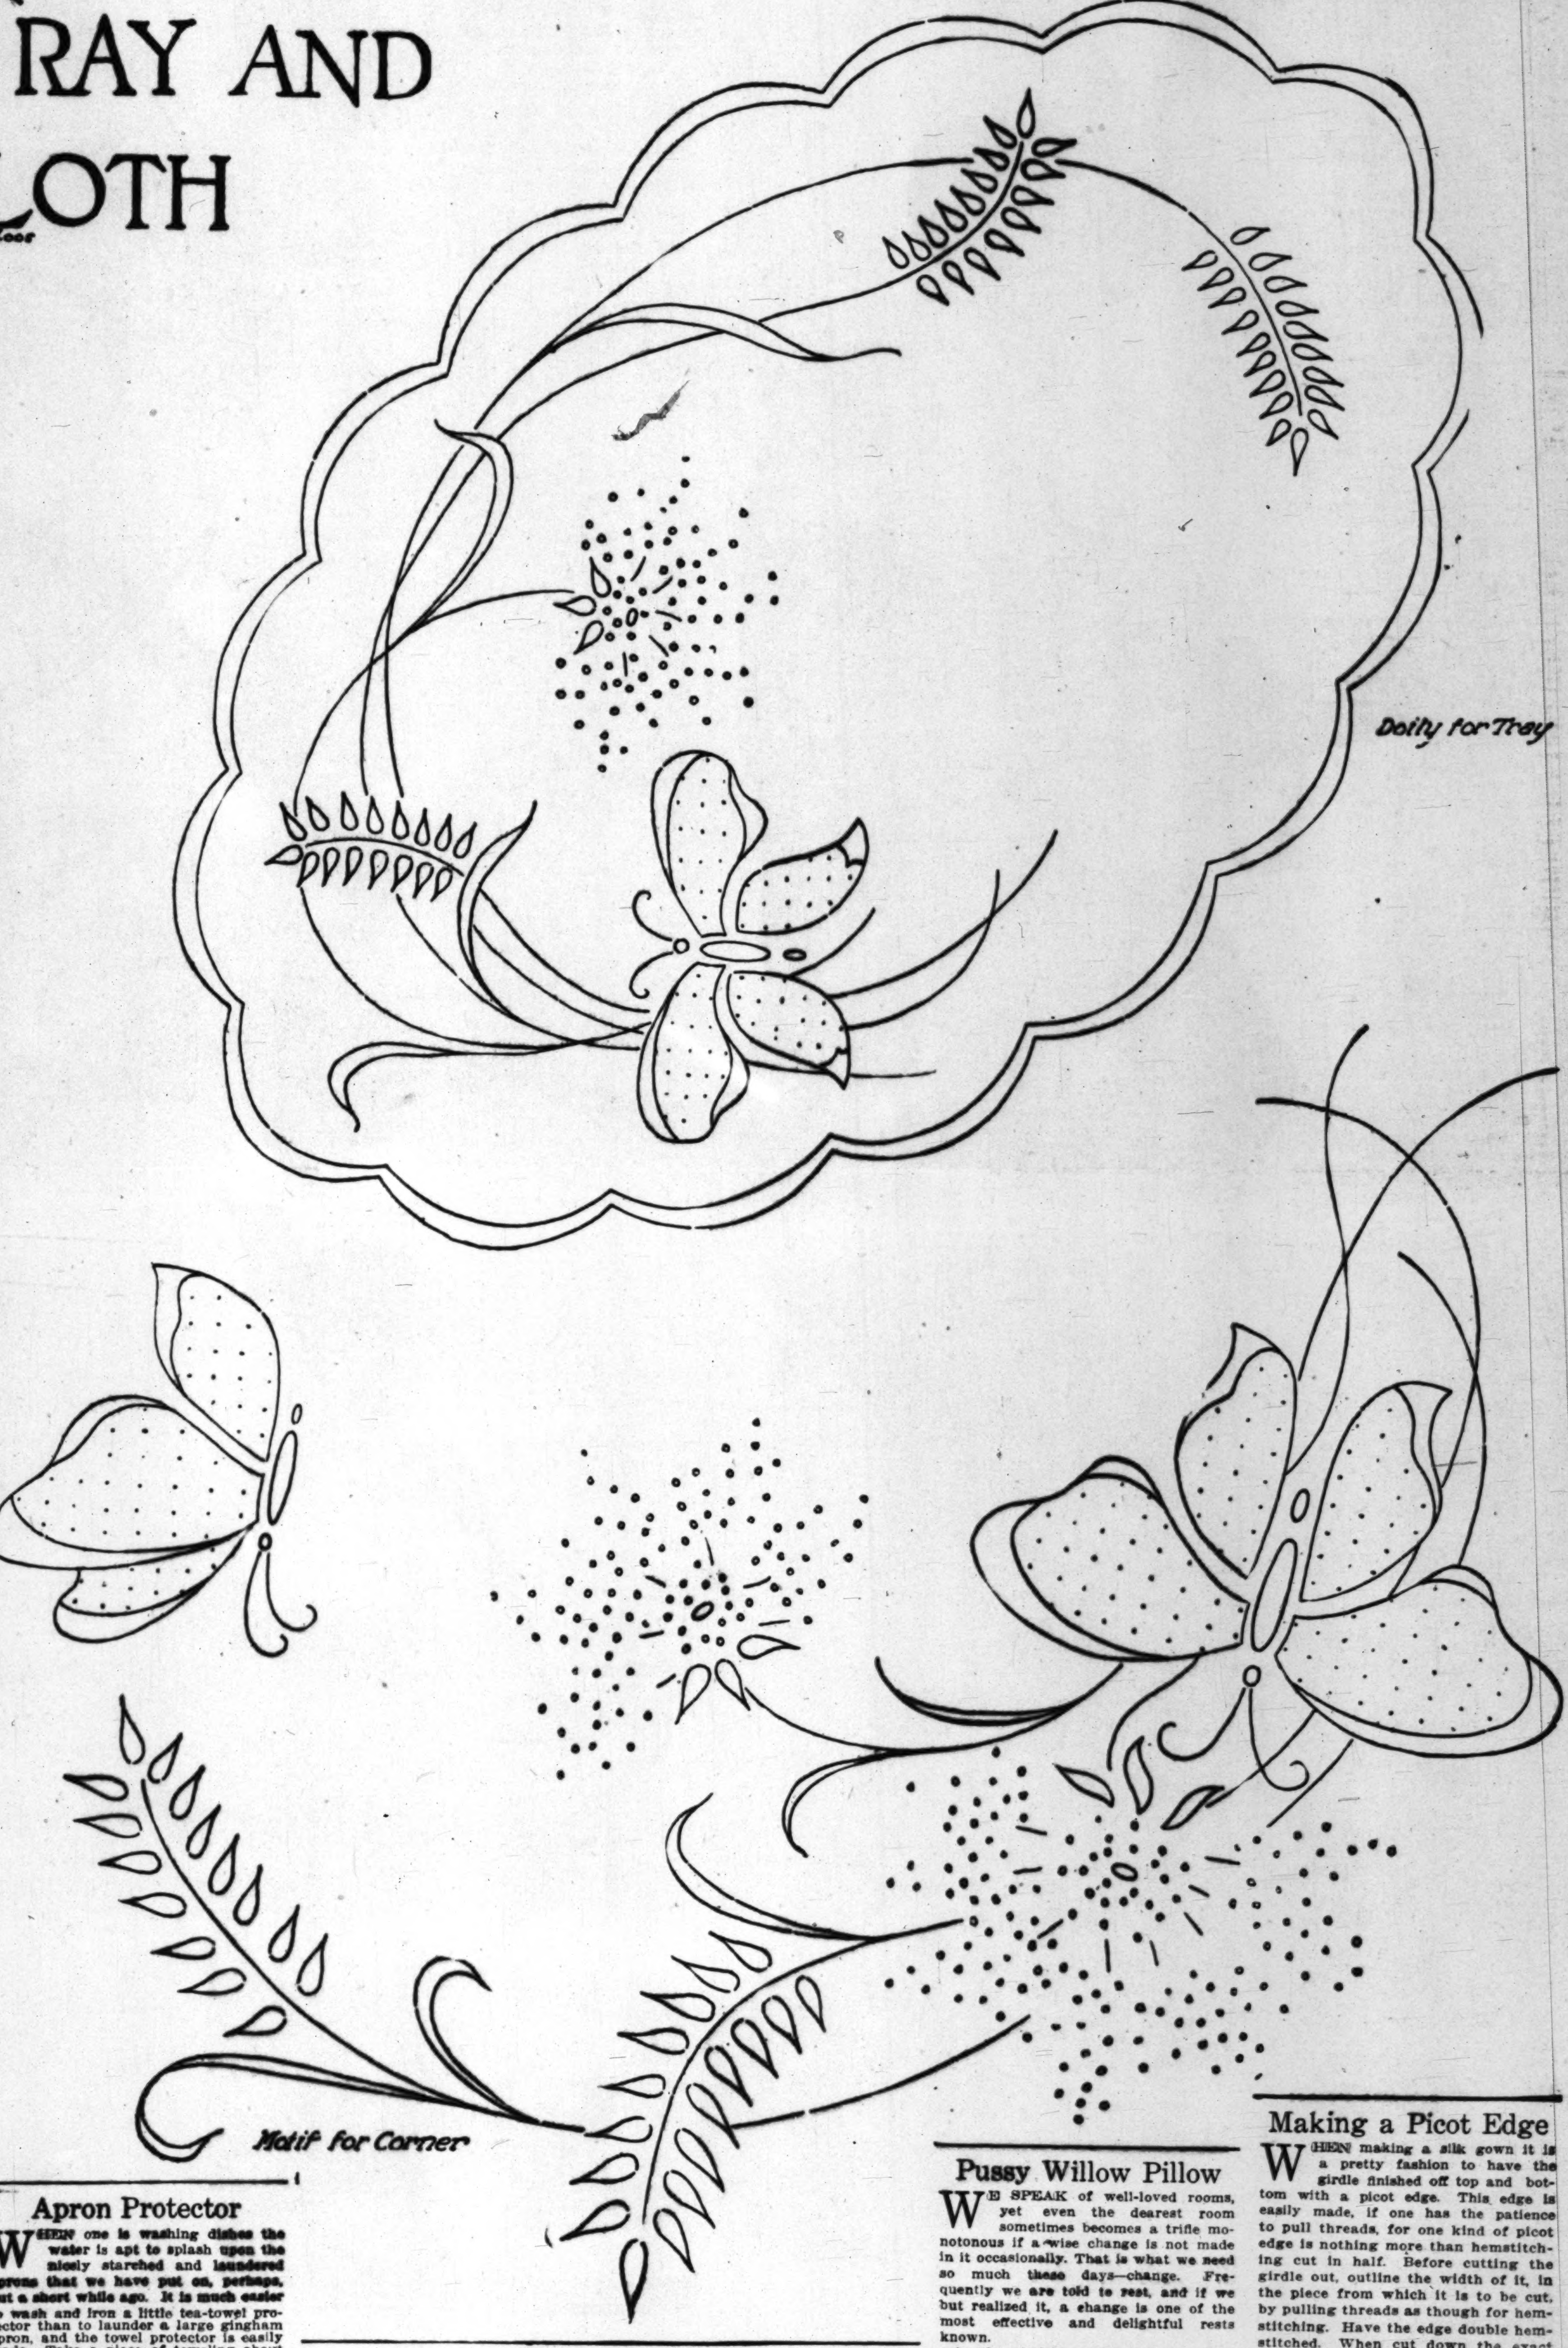
The wheat is done by placing two bullion stitches lengthwise in each oval that represents a kernel. A bullion stitch is a long French knot. Pass the needle through the upper end of the oval and wind the thread many times over the needle as you do in making a French knot. You will need as many twists of thread as it will require to fill in the oval space of the kernel. Pull the thread through the coils and pass the point of the needle through the goods, pulling the bullion stitch into place. Bring the needle out at the top again and repeat the work, placing a second bullion stitch beside the first.

These bullion stitches wash very well and give a solid effect with very little work. You will acquire a quickness and a cleverness in the work that will be very gratifying. This stitch is very good to fill in small petals of star flowers like forget-me-nots.

When putting the motif on the lunch cloth, place it in each corner if it is a square one. The work is the same as I have directed in the working of the doily. If you have a circular lunch cloth, you can place these motifs in three, in two or in four.

The size of the cloth will decide how many times you will use it. Place an initial under the spray if you wish to give your personal mark to the work. This can be worked in punched work or in solid work.

This design has many possibilities. The sprays can be used in a variety of ways on napkins, circular doilies and oval centerpieces. A whole set will be beautiful for the dining table, and I feel that in the offering of today there is enough to give any embroiderer an inspiration for making a field flower set that will be beautiful enough to set before a queen.



The Attractive Touch of Handwork

"THERE are so many delightful patterns for embroidering waists," bemoaned a poor little working girl, "but I can't begin to buy a waist after the pattern is embroidered, and wouldn't have time [illegible]."

"Well," said a sympathetic friend, "it is really wonderful embroidery during the little time you have, and there isn't any reason in the world why you shouldn't have an embroidered waist, if you want one."

"Oh, yes, I could do the embroidery well enough, for there are times at the office when Mr. Brown allows me to fill in spare moments embroidering or reading, but that isn't making the waist. As I just said, I couldn't do it if I had the time, because I'm positively stupid when it comes to dressmaking."

"Well," continued the friend, "there's a girl in my own office who can't get any one to sew for her, and she knows almost nothing about anything in the line of sewing but embroidery. She has such fascinating embroidered waists that the girls just rave over them. She buys plain waists of lawn or linen, but with very, very good material, and then proceeds to embroider them to her heart's content.

"The other day she had on a beautiful white waist covered with chiffon. The chiffon was in tones of brown, but the waist itself was embroidered in a beautiful shade of woodsy green. To carry out the green note there was a narrow piping in the sleeves of the same color. That waist was ravishing, and upon rather curious, inquiring questioning by one of the girls who knew her quite well, it was found to be a cheap little blouse of very good linen, but so plain that the price was small. Its buyer added embroidery in heavy silk and, the design being simple, did the ornamenting in a very short time."

"Oh," exclaimed the busy girl, "that's a splendid idea."

"Yes," added the other, "it's really amazing how effectually a touch of handwork on ready-made garments removes their 'store' atmosphere."

A New Quilling

The other day an importer showed in his shop window a taffeta gown trimmed with a finish of quilling that took the onlooker back to grandmother's young days in a rush. You've seen that same quilling in old-fashioned pictures. The quilling in this instance was not more than an inch and a quarter wide when finished, being double edged and box-pleated, and stitched down the center to hold the pleats in place and attach the trimming to the gown all at the same time. The picot edge is very easy to make by hand. It is not necessary for quilling to be on the bias, as pleated quilling is cut on the straight of the goods. First, however, a long piece of the silk is taken and two threads are drawn along it as though for hemstitching. These drawn threads may cover the space of one-sixteenth or an eighth of an inch. When these threads are drawn, they are hemstitched firmly and tightly, so that the threads will not slip, on both sides, making a double hemstitching. As many of the drawn spaces are so made, then the hemstitching is cut down the exact center, thus separating the strips and furnishing each with a picot edge.

The strips are then joined together by tiny turned-in seams, and the quilling is ready for box pleating and attaching to the gown.

Thousand-Flower Centerpiece

THERE isn't a housewife who doesn't long for drawers and drawers of hand-worked linen for her house, and yet there are some of us who have so little time for embroidery that our linen drawer boasts very few pieces. The question, then, is to find quickly worked but effective designs, so that when we have a few moments to devote to stitchery we can make the most of them. Thousand-flower embroidery sounds frightfully elaborate, but it is simple to the last degree, and can be worked up in a few hours, with the exception, of course, of the buttonholed edging of the centerpiece, which always takes more or less time.

A thousand-flower design is one that resembles a tiny sun, and looks not unlike a daisy. You have seen such centerpieces, to be sure. Each petal is composed of one stitch. It is a simple straight, single thread radiating from the center of the flower to the end of the flower. They should be worked with heavy mercerized or rope silk. Sometimes, upon other backgrounds than the conventional linen, this thousand flower is worked in colored worsteds with great effect. Such a centerpiece, with a wreath or row of these flowers about the entire edge, can be most beautifully made up of pastel shades. The flowers can also be made up in white, but the stitch is so simple that a color is needed to bring the work out. The tiny, spike-like leaves of the thousand flower are worked with the same stitch as the thousand flower. The center of the flower is usually worked in French knots, either close together or scattered.

It is surprising how many useful and beautiful articles can be made from the thousand-flower design—bureau scarfs, buffet covers, centerpieces, tray cloths, any number of beautiful things. This simple stitch can be used in colors for the dining room, where a more elaborate stitch could not.

Initialing

FOR plenty of us who are not expert needlewomen it is rather difficult to embroider in high-padded solid stitch an initial that is thoroughly satisfactory. To some women embroidery is a second nature, and to others it is a task to keep every stitch straight, especially in an initial. Why not use cross-stitch initials on some of the various things that you wish to initial? Cross-stitch initials are very pretty, but most people seem to have forgotten all about them. Have the art needlework store stamp the initial on the linen, or copy the initial from one of these little paper cross-stitch patterns that come especially for the purpose. They work up quickly, look well and answer the purpose of the high-padded, more elaborate solid initial.

Effective Frilling

A TOUCH of handwork upon net ruffling is distinctive. The objection to embroidering net is that the wrong side usually displays all rough defects, and stray threads may be seen through its sheerness on the right side. But with buttonholing the wrong side may be made to look quite as neat as the right side. The net may be edged with buttonholing of any color that is desired. Buttonhole-edge it with silk or mercerized cotton.

How to Transfer

PLACE a sheet of impression carbon paper between your fabric and the newspaper design, the latter on top. With a sharp pencil or a glass-pointed pen go over the outline. The design will be transferred to the material and will last until worked.

Apron Protector

WHEN one is washing dishes the water is apt to splash upon the nicely starched and laundered aprons that we have put on, perhaps, but a short while ago. It is much easier to wash and iron a little tea-towel protector than to launder a large gingham apron, and the towel protector is easily made. Take a piece of toweling about three-quarters of a yard long and sew tape strings to each of the corners of one of its narrow ends. When doing the dishes, slip this on over the regular kitchen apron. It may be doubled, if preferred, but the one thickness is usually sufficient. When the towel-apron becomes soiled it can be washed out with the other tea towels and either straightened out well before drying and left to dry, so that it will look at least partially ironed, or rubbed off with an iron. As no starch is required in the towel-apron, it is quite a simple matter to do the apron up.

Some housewives use a piece of stocking in this fashion, or pieces of white oilcloth, but the towel is neatest of the three. An extra long piece of towel can be used and the upper part of it acts as a bib. Attach the tapes at the waist line for tying behind the back, and put a long loop, made of three-quarters of a yard of tape, at the upper end, to slip about the neck and hold up the bib.

A New Girdle

ONE of the very new high girdles is pretty, and easy to make besides. The girdle can be in two colors, as those ultra-smart ones are, or of one color only, if you would be more conservative. The width of the girdle, too, depends upon your own taste. It is to be a crushed girdle, and we will presume that it is to be made of a dull silk, messalines and such shiny surfaces being rather "back numbers" just at present. Cut two bias strips of silk, each sufficiently long to go entirely about the waist, both of one color, or each a contrasting color to the other. Seam the two pieces of silk together, making one long strip, and hem down the raw edges. If wide ribbon is used, there will, of course, be no necessity for turning in the selvage edges. Then gather each narrow end with a drawing thread, and join these ends to braid frogs to which are attached loops. Then put two large buttons, braided or silk covered, in the exact center of the girdle, one under the other, about two inches apart. The girdle is now ready to wear. Place the center of the girdle at the center front of the waist, wrap both ends about the waist, crossing them in the back, and bring the ends to the front, there to fasten the loops to the two buttons. A more graceful kind of girdle you wouldn't want. The girdle may also be made in velvet, and fancy or velvet-covered buttons used. Either braid or frogs and loops made from the velvet may be used.

Pussy Willow Pillow

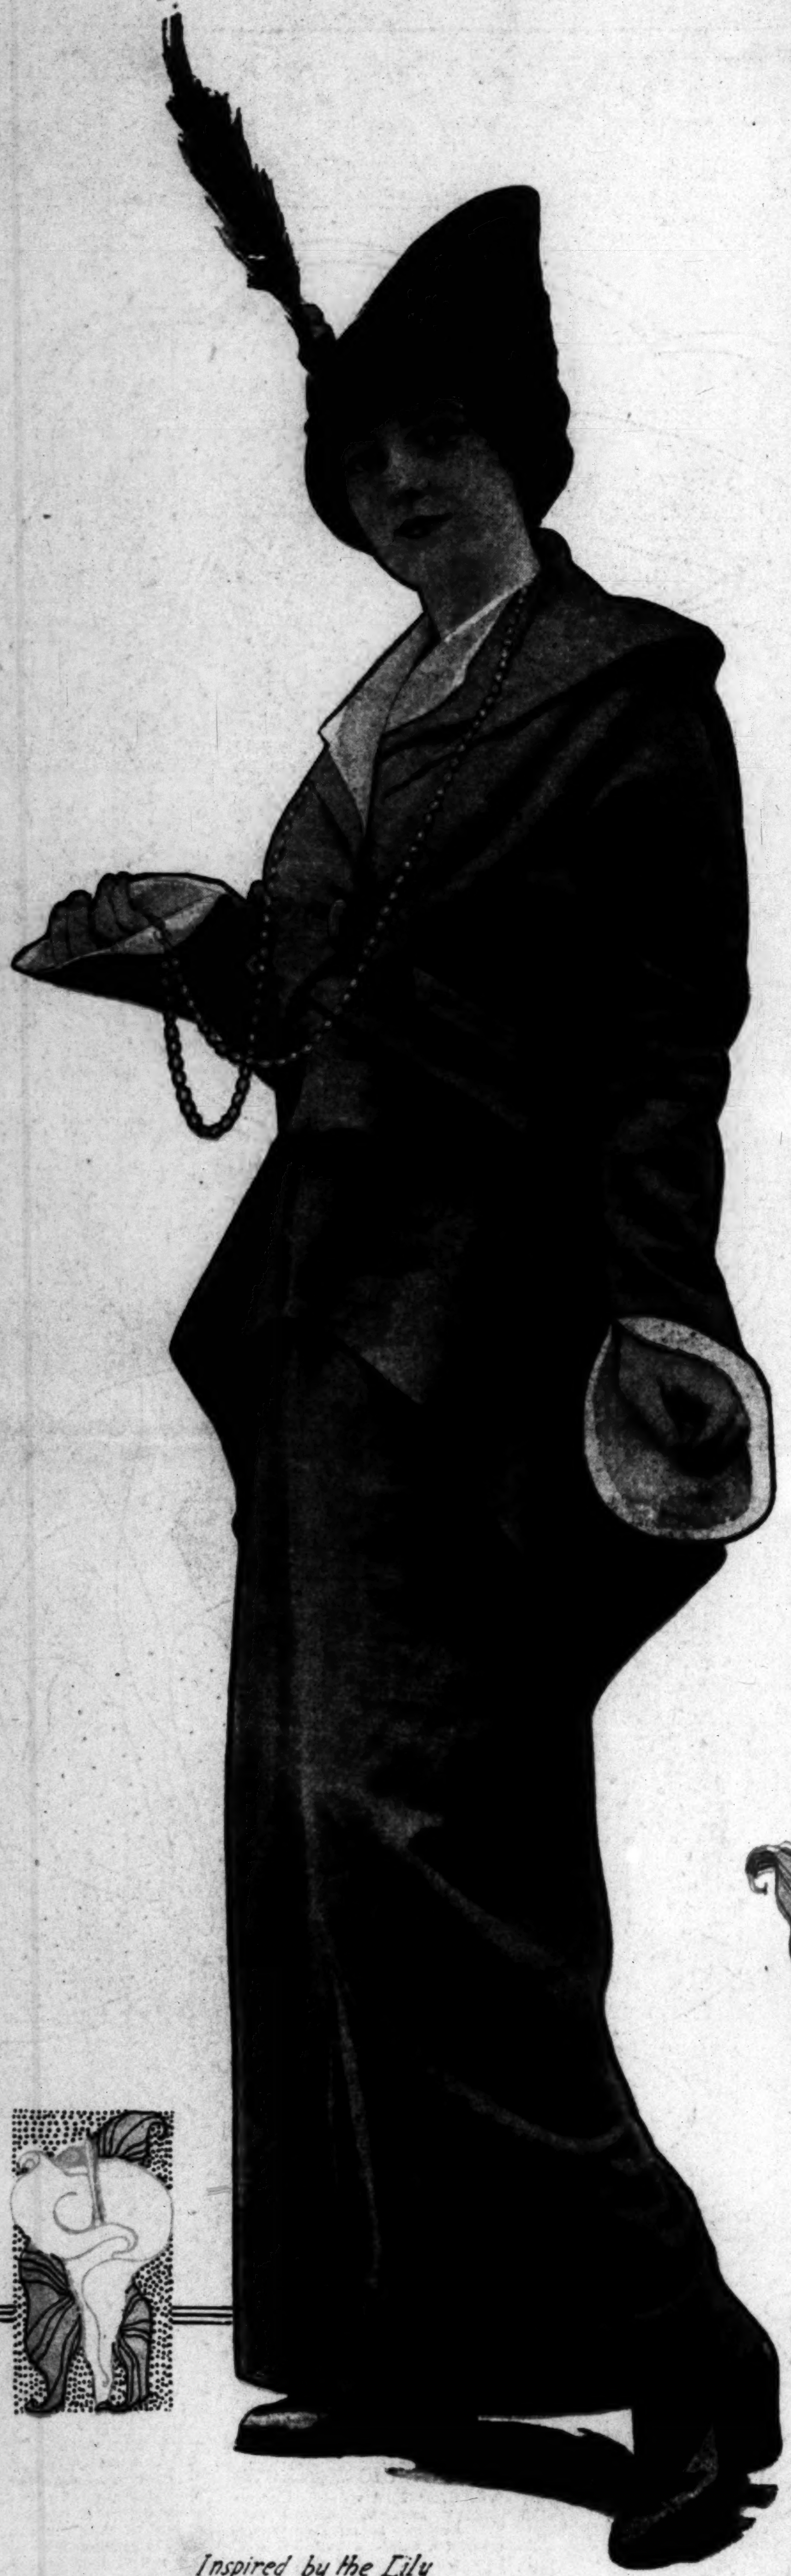
WE SPEAK of well-loved rooms, yet even the dearest room sometimes becomes a trifle monotonous if a wise change is not made in it occasionally. That is what we need so much these days—change. Frequently we are told to rest, and if we but realized it, a change is one of the most effective and delightful rests known.

A thoughtful mother of excellent taste endeavors to make the rooms of her house always attractive to her somewhat numerous and nearly grown-up offspring, and she never fails to change the furnishing of the house—or, that is, numerous little details—with the season. In the springtime one may be sure of finding a pussy willow pillow on the davenport, while in the fall one is just as sure of finding both real and embroidered chrysanthemums about. In short, she has certain small interior decoration schemes for each season of the year. As a consequence, her living room never grows monotonous. The gray pussies with their brown stems can be worked so realistically that one instinctively wants to put them into water. A satin stitch is used for the pussies and stem stitch is used for the brown stems. A pretty and natural design for such a pillow is to have two bunches of them, one on either end of the pillow, four stems to each spray.

Making a Picot Edge

WHEN making a silk gown it is a pretty fashion to have the girdle finished off top and bottom with a picot edge. This edge is easily made, if one has the patience to pull threads, for one kind of picot edge is nothing more than hemstitching cut in half. Before cutting the girdle out, outline the width of it, in the piece from which it is to be cut, by pulling threads as though for hemstitching. Have the edge double hemstitched. When cut down the exact center of each row, an edge of picoting will be found upon each strip of silk. These strips may then be joined together at the ends, and a piece long enough for the girdle obtained. The outer rows of pulled threads in the piece of silk, before the girdle is cut, need only be hemstitched on the one side, for the edge which is cut off is not used in making the girdle unless, of course, one wishes to use these narrower pieces for a trimming of the bodice. In that case the hemstitching should be double. Needless to say, each stitch should be taken firmly and carefully, so that there will be no danger of its slipping off after the rows of hemstitching have been cut in half. The shops which do accordion pleating will do hemstitching by the yard, if requested.

THE CALLA LILY COSTUME



Inspired by the Lily in Form and Color

WHAT could be more inspiring than the graceful, beautiful lily that has been the subject of poem, of picture and of song? Small wonder, then, that the designers clasped their hands in rapture at the calla-lily costume that just evolved from the original flower idea, and in its wonderful charm wound itself around the form of woman, from head to toe, giving as perfect an expression of the calla lily as it is possible for dress to give. And, madame, what can you ask more appropriate on an Easter morning than a calla-lily costume that hints of the sweetness and beauty of spring, and moreover presages the styles that are going to be?

Do you remember that little verse of Shelley's? It runs like this:

> And the wandlike lily, which lifted up,
> As a maenad, its moonlight-colored cup
> Till the fiery star, which is its eye,
> Gazed through clear dew on the tender sky.

Well, the lily has lifted up the idea of dress into the realm of flowers. From the green of the stem, the golden yellow of the inside and the pure white of the leaf, it is contributing to beauty in the costume of the wearer, and blessed is she who can walk out very soon in hat, suit and parasol that prove how well it is to take a hint from nature now and then—maybe all the time.

In the lily suit of green the inspiration has been taken so decidedly from the blossom that it speaks for itself. The rolling collar of white forms a cup for the throat of the wearer, which, let us hope, is as snowy as the satin. The fitted jacket and the overskirt lap over in loose petal form and suggest the leaves of the plant; while the long sleeves with their petal cuffs are lilies as surely as ever cuffs rolled over hands.

The lily costume has a crown in the green straw hat, with its coronet of white satin petals wired and bent in grace around the head. Sometimes this type of hat will have no top except a golden spike of hair, if you are clever and a blonde. But at all times the hat will cap the climax in a fitting manner.

To make assurance doubly sure—but who of you would doubt the beauty of the lily costume?—there is another black-and-white suit with a rolled, wired calla-lily collar and turned cuffs that flare from the hands in a lily curve. The vest is yellow and the hat is green. The result is perfection.

Be sure to raise between you and the sun the lily parasol in green, which, by the way, is the best possible thing for the eyes and very durable at the same time. The points of the shape are curved back, and in many new models they have a contrasting lining that accents the lily form. The petals are graceful and the latest thing. What more can our Lady of the Lilies ask?

Verily the ways of the designer are hard to understand. The calla-lily costume is so beautiful that the astonishing thing in the consideration of the styles is that it has never inspired the fashion artists before. Well, let us not worry at lost opportunity, but grasp the present beauty as it is shown and make it serve our ends. And may you be worth a sonnet or a popular song all your own!

The Day of Days.

Easter Day! "If a man die shall he live again?" Who said that? It is a question that has welled up from the lowest and innermost recesses of the human heart since man first consciously looked upon that perpetual mystery of a setting and a rising sun, and since the first agriculturist saw that other perpetual mystery of life springing from death as he cast the first handful of seed into the fertile ground in expectation of a coming harvest.

The quotation in its form as given above comes from the oldest work of the human mind known as a book that is extant. It is from the book of Job. But the inquiry was age-old, eon-old when it passed from the lips of the man of Uz. There has never been a normal human being on this earth from the beginning until now whose heart did not ask that question.

The agnostic today will stand up and say he is not sure of it. Who is sure of anything? Profound philosophers have been uncertain as to their own physical existence, and doubts of this kind have crossed the minds in more or less definite form of all human beings. If we were certain of life beyond death the question would not have arisen.

Of course the conception of human immortality involves the conception of eternal deity. And, like deity, many men who could not justly be catalogued as fools have entertained doubts of their own immortality, and some not very wise have emphasized these doubts in words spoken and written perhaps too much. It is only the fool who has said positively in the depths of his own heart: "There is no God." It is probably not going too far to say that they are the wisest men of all who in mature years and after long and careful reflection are able to say: "Doubtless there is a God which judgeth the earth."

The place for the agnostic to test his faith in his negation is to stand by the closing grave where the mortal remains of some loved one are being put away forever. Robert G. Ingersoll was far from being a bigot in theological tenets. He ranked in America as the leading agnostic of his time, according to the usual conception of the term. He was more than that; he was disposed to deny in positive terms the existence of a deity or the immortality of the human soul. Who will ever forget that tragic scene where he stood over the grave of his beloved brother and, after giving expression to all his doubts in that horrible moment could not face his own creed, but with uplifted hands and streaming eyes turned heavenward, closed the oration with these significant words: "But it is given to us all to hope."

Normal human beings in all ages, climes and places, of all races, periods and degrees of civilization or savagery, have entertained the hope expressed by Ingersoll on that very memorable occasion. The question: "If a man die shall he live again?" is surely the most important that ever occupied the human brain. If he is immortal, then surely nothing else in life amounts to anything like as much as his immortality. Indeed, nothing else amounts to very much in any way, compared with that momentous question. If a man is to live forever beyond the portals of the grave, then surely the world and all that therein is is a very negligible quantity in comparison with that endless life in some other sphere of existence.

And supposing one takes the negative and answers: "No. When a man dies that is the end of him, just as much as it is the end of his horse or of his pet dog." Then what does the world and all that is in it amount to? Of course, upon that premise the ancients were right who set a skull to decorate their feasts, with the motto: "Let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we die." But if we die not to live again, what do all the feasts of Lucullus, what does all the wealth of Midas, what does all the power of an Alexander or a Napoleon, amount to? What matters to us the universe and all that is in it?

In either case, compared with the momentous importance of the interrogation, the universe and all belonging to it are as a bit of rotten, broken straw whirled before a hurricane into the seething waves of a tempestuous sea.

How Durst He?

Last August, when the fragrant hop flowers were hanging in thick clusters on the vines that had grown up to the tops of the tall poles in the Sacramento Valley, a lot of hop pickers went on strike and violently committed murder, killing peace officers sent to restrain them from destroying the property of their employers.

A State commission was sent out to inquire into the affair, and made a rather drastic report favoring radically the strikers and condemning radically the employers, with a tendency to make the punishment of the men guilty of murder difficult if not impossible by showing that they were provoked to their violence by great injustice.

The employer or hop grower on whom this report bore most heavily, Ralph Durst, whose ranch is near Wheatland, asked to be heard in his own defense. The hop grower disputed the investigators' statements and appealed to Gov. Johnson for a hearing.

The investigator was one of the Governor's own kind, and therefore the Governor replied to the hop grower that "he was satisfied with Parker's report and would not order a new investigation."

Why should anyone be obliged to listen to any reply made by an employer with whose treatment employees were dissatisfied? How durst this hop grower bother the Governor and infer that a Progressive politician could do wrong in any respect?

Crisis For Wool.

A London showman was once exhibiting before a "Cockney" audience a bunch of wild animals. When he reached the African hyena he told of a foxy device of that animal in enticing its prey by crying like a human child. The showman added: "Another case, my friends, if such were wanted, of the depravity of human nature."

The proponents of the abolition of protective tariff imposed upon imports from abroad in favor of American products since Cleveland's time have been particularly insistent about taking the duty off of wool, alleging that by so doing everyone in America would be able to buy winter and summer suits, woolen underwear, warm socks, blankets, and every other woolen product, at a lower price. That was theory.

Let us look at the facts. From San Joaquin Valley comes the following report: "Sheep and wool men of the valley are in shape to make money. Mutton and lambs are selling for higher prices than ever, while offers on wool are also in excess of those made heretofore. Not only offers, but actual sales, have been made at advanced prices." Of a similar tenor are all reports from Boston and other wool markets where prices are soaring skyward, California scoured wools selling at 50 cents a pound.

A Rich Vein Here

It was as impossible that W. J. Bryan and John Bassett Moore should work quietly in harness together as that May and January should live together in matrimony, or that oil and water should mix.

Having disembarrassed himself of the ability of Counselor Moore, something had to be done to bolster up the ignorance and weakness of the Department of State. So William Phillips was made Third Assistant Secretary of State. They went to the right place to get a man in some respects to replace John Bassett Moore. Mr. Phillips held the same office under Presidents Roosevelt and Taft, and also had been in the diplomatic service of the United States in other posts. If the Democratic administration wishes more solid material and competent ability in this and in other branches of the government, it may apply to former Republican incumbents and not be disappointed.

By the Western Sea. Land of the Great Southwest.

Business Humming Everywhere.

ALL along by the Western Sea from the British boundary to the Mexican frontier and throughout the whole Great Southwest from where the waves break on the shore inland across the fertile valleys and to the mountain regions where mining camps exist, business of every kind is exceedingly active. New harbors are planned, new railroad contracts let, orchards of every kind of fruit being set, and all the farming interests in a most promising condition. The call everywhere is for men to do the work on railroad lines, at new harbors, and in all the farming industries of the section. The cry goes out for thousands to do the work, where only hundreds are answering. The next twenty-four months promise to tax the patience and energy of every willing brain-worker and muscle-worker in this whole section.

A Good Plan.

AT COVINA the citrus-fruit growers have opened a campaign which it is hoped will embrace the whole State to stop the shipping of cull fruit to the market. Last year the citrus-fruit crops were so scant that almost anything found a buyer in the eastern markets. Yet the policy of shipping poor fruit was not wise. The poor stuff affected the market disastrously for the best sent out, and not only for the current time, but affected the market in the earlier part of this season. This year the citrus-fruit crops are the largest ever produced in the State, and the best. Consumers at the East soon learned the difference between the excellency of the crop of this year and the poorness of that of last year. But the present crop is so abundant that it will hardly pay to ship culls to market at such a heavy expense as the freight charges. These culls can be used here to profitable advantage, and the withdrawing of this class of fruit from the markets East will result in marketing good stuff at good prices. There is no way to accomplish this desirable end but by concerted action in which all growers will agree, and then see that the agreement is enforced on the part of those who would break their word.

California Almond Crop.

EVERY kind of crop throughout the whole great western country from Washington to Southern California is promising wonderful results this season, and almonds share in this promise, the crop of the State being estimated at a value of about a million dollars. Almonds are one of the fruits in which California has an absolute monopoly in America, and almost in the world. When California raisins became so abundant as to furnish a supply practically for the markets of the world, the Malaga-raisin growers were forced out of business. Rooting up their vineyards, they planted almond trees, and this crop is now proving more remunerative than ever the raisin crops were. The spring is developing very great activity all over the State in the setting out of new almond orchards.

Small Acreage Suffices.

ALL through the Middle West in years gone by the farmer with only a quarter-section was considered a rather poor man, and very often found great difficulty in making ends meet at the end of the harvest season. In California and throughout the Great Southwest it is different, and the difference is attributable largely to the practice of irrigation. Under an irrigated system the usual tendency is to smaller and smaller holdings. Under one such system last year the average holding was 46.7 acres, compared with this year 42.8 acres. In the Middle West the quarter-section used to be divided into four forty-acre fields usually. Here forty acres with a good stand of alfalfa properly handled will feed the year round a band of about forty milk cows, and the milk will raise quite a litter of pigs with a little alfalfa mixed, while a thrifty household will pay most of the current expenses of the family from a flock of carefully-attended hens. As for citrus-fruit orchards, a man with five acres properly cared for is independent, and one with ten acres is rich.

All Look Our Way.

THE other day on the Coast a Danish novelist and newspaper editor from Copenhagen announced that his people were looking forward to the opening of the canal with great interest, expecting to come in large numbers to the Coast. Let them come. We have had a great many immigrants in America from Denmark and from all Northern Europe who have proved eminently worthy of American citizenship and have done their full share in developing the resources of all parts of America, increasing its wealth year by year. The Danes and other northern Europeans have great skill in general farming, particularly in dairying. From the Mediterranean countries we shall get a great many people skilled through generations of practice in fruit farming. It would be as unwise from the standpoint of our own interests as it would be unkind from that of the overcrowded populations of Europe to put any unnecessary restrictions in the way of these people coming here and finding opportunities for bettering themselves.

Are You Coming to the Fair?

THE world has heard for ages of the proverbial foolishness of the fellow who came "the day after the fair." Had he come on the day of the fair he would have found everything gay and interesting, full of life, motion and commotion, whereas arriving too late he found everything as dead as a graveyard with no funeral in progress. California is going to have next year absolutely the greatest fair ever known in the history of our race. The best way to see the fair will be to get here in time, and the man who waits until the year after the fair will "get left." This fair is estimated to cost in one way or another $328,500,000. The exhibitions will weigh 70,000 tons, and the cost of "putting on" the exposition will be $100,000,000. The railroad people estimate that the number of people visiting the fair will be 2,175,000. You see, dear reader, you can hardly afford to stay behind. If you do you will be awfully lonely. The transportation people will get $125,000,000 for carrying people to the exposition and $3,500,000 for carrying the exhibits. Los Angeles is moderate, expecting only 1,500,000 of these visitors to come to this city, the most interesting and inspiring in the whole wide world. It has more to offer in the way of attractions and instruction than any other city, and those who visit the fair and leave Los Angeles out will be like the celebrated play of Shakespeare with no Hamlet in it. All California wants for this unparalleled entertainment is a gross sum of $100,000,000. Cheap enough, everything considered.

Santa Ana's New "Poly High."

DID you see in the industrial section of last Sunday's Times the illustration at the top of the first page showing the new polytechnic high school about to be erected at Santa Ana? It was an eye-opener to those thinking of settling in California, and an inspiration to make all wish to do so. Classical in its outlines as the Erectheum on the Acropolis at Athens and stretching hundreds of feet across the level plain on which Santa Ana is built, catching sunlight at every point, this group of educational buildings is typical of what is going on everywhere in Southern California, all along by the Western Sea, and into the very heart of the Great Southwest. This section has won for itself the epithets of pulsating, advancing, and progressing, and in no respect does it pulsate, is it advancing or progressing more than in its educational facilities. It is called the land of opportunity for all, and in no respect does it offer opportunities greater than in the way of a finished, practical, useful education.

Tillamook Harbor, If You Please.

PORTLAND-ON-WILLAMETTE, metropolis of Oregon and of the whole Northwest, lies some 125 miles from the sea by way of the Columbia and Willamette rivers. In an air line westward from the city the sea beats upon the rocky coast clad with evergreen firs about forty miles away. With a strong west wind one can get the tang of the sea upon the air. There lies a bay called the Indian name Tillamook, a favorite place of resort for Oregonians during the heated days of July and August. Now come the Hills of St. Paul, great railroad builders, and propose to convert Tillamook Bay into Tillamook Harbor. The work involves the removal of a bar across the mouth of this indentation which Neptune's realms make into the solid land, the construction of a railroad from Portland to the new harbor, tunneling the high range of mountains between the city and the sea. The government is expected to spend $2,000,000 on the harbor, and the railroad interests will do the rest. It is to be used for passenger business especially, and the Hills have had constructed two magnificent passenger steamers to ply between the new harbor and San Francisco, with extentions to Los Angeles and San Diego. It would make the passage shorter by a good many hours than occupied now in navigating via the rivers, and would also obviate the crossing of the Columbia River bar, one of the most dangerous and difficult bits of navigation on the face of the earth in stormy weather.

Will Help Imperial.

INFORMATION comes from San Diego that negotiations are under way for the sale of $10,000,000 of bonds of the San Diego and Arizona Railroad. John D. Spreckels has proposed to the City Council of San Diego that the citizens there devote $1,500,000 to the purchase of the Moreno dam and reservoir, water interests owned by Spreckels to be acquired by the city, and he will use the money in furthering the railroad. The Spreckels brothers first and last will spend $5,000,000 on the road, and also take a part of the bond issue. This road will be of particular benefit to the Imperial Valley country, affording it a direct outlet to the sea.

Scientific Farming Sure.

THE California lemon industry is one of the most remunerative in agricultural annals, and one with the surest future before it from all present appearances. California has only one rival in the world in lemon-growing worth speaking of, the island of Sicily, off the southwestern corner of Italy. The industry in that island is many centuries old, and pretty nearly every available spot of the right quality on the island is planted to lemon trees. The output is quite twice that of the California crop, and all Europe and part of America depend on these orchards for the supply of lemons. In California the amount of land available for lemon culture is much less than that suitable to oranges, and that is small enough. We are informed from Santa Barbara that a Santa Fe Railroad official has secured a large tract of land at Montecito which he is preparing scientifically for lemon culture, by ripping up the soil to the depth of many feet and giving scientific treatment to the soil. The Hayne ranch at Montecito has been leased by a syndicate and the land is to be devoted to the same purpose. Carpinteria, in Santa Barbara county, has proved to be excellent for orange culture, and a ten-acre lemon grove there is said to yield a gross income of $17,000 and $19,000 a year. It must not be taken for granted that this is usual, or can be duplicated in many groves. It is an exceptional result only attainable here and there by untiring care and vast expenditure in cultivation, fertilizing and other incidents of the industry.

Standardizing Fruit.

AT SEATTLE, in the State of Washington, the National Producers' and Consumers' Alliance and the Producers' and Consumers' Alliance of Washington have been incorporated with a combined capitalization of $21,500,000. One, as the name indicates, is intended for local operation, and the other to extend through all parts of the United States. The purpose is to organize all fruit growers and other crop producers into a great combination looking to the standardizing of all farm products sent to market. It will eliminate all culls and poor fruit and turn them into by-products, and thus keeping the refuse off the market will make more stable markets for good fruit and result in better prices. All the farming and fruit-growing interests of the country have needed for some years past has been some concerted action of this kind to apply business methods to their business. This is the way the great manufacturing industries have been developed and, in spite of all the hysterical opposition of shallow-minded reformers to large combinations, they are absolutely necessary to the successful carrying on of modern business. There are ways of regulating these vast industries and forcing their managers to conduct them on honest principles without breaking them up.

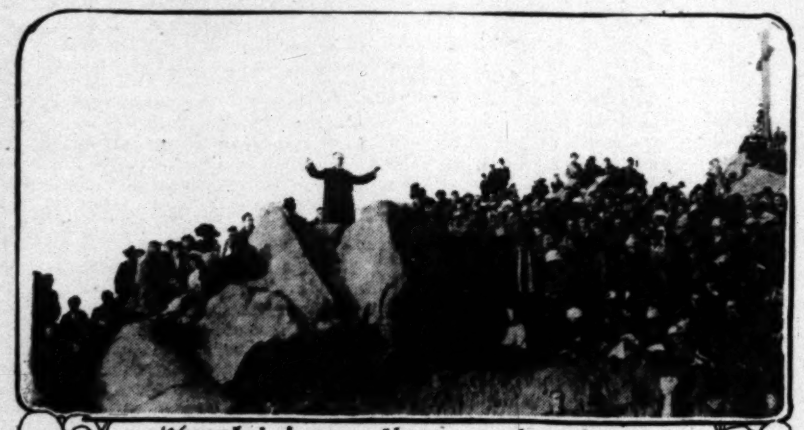
An Easter Pilgrimage. By Gussie Packard Debois.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICE.

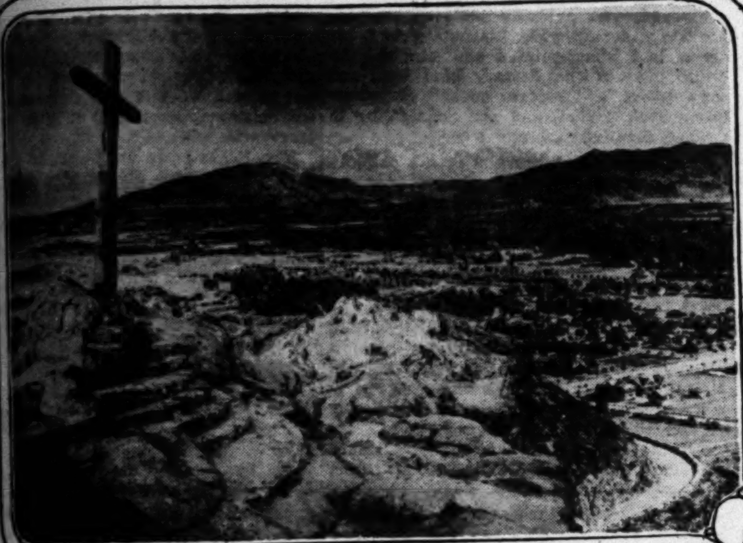
PILGRIMS and pilgrimages have been many from the time of Chaucer down to this twentieth century. Year after year the great pilgrim centers like magnets have steadily drawn the massed crowds. The very words call up pictures of long processions of footsore, weary human beings toiling upward toward a distant shrine; men in motley garb with fez or turban, their strange looking earrings flashing in the sun; girls with folded kerchief on their braided hair; women, sad, overweary; lagging children, dusty, unkempt—a long procession, ever toiling, toiling upward.

The shrine toward which they wend is, perhaps, some wonder working image before which burn silver lamps or many candles in tall, silver candlesticks, their light flaring on a kneeling crowd striving for favor, for healing. Censers swing, priests are chanting, and with mass and choral, with gorgeously robed dignitaries, ranks of nuns, white coifed and black-robed the throng is awed to silence.

So, with cockle hat and staff, and sandal shoon, the pilgrims have toiled on through the ages, up, up through the mists of evening where night vapors deep in the valley begin to dwindle, till the pale moon drops behind the hill, and the sunrise fires kindling in the east burn their incense to the Dawn.



Worshiping on the mountain top.



The view from the mountain.

The cloistered inn.

I, too, have been on pilgrimage, and this was the way of my going. When an April dawning shattered the dark, I took my flight due east. The meadowlark rose, a flash of mottled brown and white, and, midair, dropped down on our heads his delicious melody. The foothills crouched in a dim circle like half-reclining guards. The mountains were still at matins their curtains of turquoise closely drawn, blue incense smoke rising here and there from their hidden altars. The air was saturated with the perfume of spring, orange blossoms, roses, the odor of field brown from the plow, and a breeze stealing in from the sea added its tang.

Since the days are shorter than they were in Chaucer's time, sunrise and sunset coming nearer together, I made my pilgrimage in a motor car, with goodly wallet well filled, with pewter plate and black bread strapped on behind. On and on we fared over smooth roads, and the grasses jostled against the flame of the poppies in the swift breeze of our going. Nature had spread the fields with vivid color, gold of the poppy, red of the cactus, of every shade from the flare of flame to dull pomegranate, glint sapphire, the whole scale of blues from indigo to delft, and all veiled by the opalescent fog. Mountain sage greeted our nostrils, its pungent odor like a tricksy sprite of perfume running after us as we went. Bird song, color, perfume; rare companions on a pilgrimage.

As the sun climbed higher, the great mountain peaks, their orisons over, parted their mist curtains and stepped forth, solemn and full of grandeur, their cloud hangings of turquoise so shot with crocus tints and opaline red that the very colors seemed to sing. Shining white against the sky's blue stood their crowned heads, while along the horizon ran the familiar line of the Sierra range.

There was time enough for many a pause, for the black bread and refreshment of body, for cloudless sky and purple shadows and refreshment of soul, and so the sun climbed to the zenith and down toward the clear glow of the west. My pilgrimage was to a mountain top, but I ended the first half of my journey among the palm trees at a long, low cloistered building from whose windows shone welcoming lights through the dusk. As I rode into the court, evening chimes sounded from the old Mission bells hung in the arches overhead in the familiar melody, "Abide With Me." Rest and quiet breathed from the quaint architecture. I entered to find blazing fires in the great fireplaces, and went to my room to discover that the door opened with an iron latch ushering me into the yesterdays, a high post bedstead and raftered ceiling, a candle and fireplace. Later I discovered the electric lights and telephones. There was an abiding spirit of peace. So I rested until the morrow.

It was a quarter before four o'clock in the gray dawn of Easter morning when the call came that the hour was at hand for the continuation of my pilgrimage, and a few minutes later I descended to join the company in the court. The assembling of the crowd was a scene long to be remembered. Coffee and sandwiches were served in the little adobe house in the court, and here gathered the pilgrims, warmly wrapped, the automobiles arriving and departing with their loads. The brilliant lights, the people, the early dusk all seemed unreal under the Mission arches. Everywhere was a pale, gray opalescent fog. Trees, walls, motors, people, all were weird and dim. Presently we were in a big car and after a swift whirl through the streets we began climbing toward the mountain top. Crowds of people were about us, for many walked the entire distance. Up and up we went, winding around and around; down precipices we looked; great rocks loomed before and beside us and were gone. At last the top was reached; all the valley was hidden from view; we were on the Mount of Transfiguration, we were at the beginning of the world. Earth and earthly things were gone. At the summit of the mountain stands a cross, and an hour before sunrise throngs were massed against the side of the mountain below this cross, yet as others climbed upward there still was room for all. San Antonio lifted his majestic, white-crowned head above the clinging mists on one hand; on the other, faint green and saffron pink heralded the dawn. Then a silence fell upon that vast multitude of waiting people as they waited for the first rays of sunrise, and just as the golden rim of the sun stood out above the dark bulk of mountains came the clear notes of a cornet, "The Holy City."

Oh, I wish I might have words to tell of the impressiveness, the reverent beauty of the service that followed; the Lord's Prayer by 3000 voices, the scripture recitative, the familiar hymns, and then Dr. Henry Van Dyke's "God of the Open Air," read by himself. A massive boulder had been chosen for a platform, the people below and at either side, back to the foot of the cross and even on the adjoining peaks. As the notes of melody and of speech floated out over the peaks and across the valley, the sun rose slowly higher and higher above the dark outline until it flooded the rugged bulks with color, and the speaker's voice rang clear over all the throng. The words of the benediction fell upon a multitude hushed to a reverent quiet, and almost in silence we came back down the mountain's foot and to the court, the arches and the open fire.

The service which I have tried to picture was the Easter sunrise service on Mount Rubidoux at Riverside. It is a permanent religious institution, recurring each year. It is a service belonging to Southern California yet already world-wide in note. It is the outgrowth of an inspiration of Jacob Riis while on a visit to Riverside, and this coming Easter of 1914 will commemorate the fifth annual event. A conservative estimate places the number of persons attendant on the mountain last year at 3500. Those who are familiar with the splendid highway up the mountain will understand how, in order and without delay, all motor cars, after unloading, are parked on the downward slope, ready at the close of the service for the descent. Very many make the trip on foot.

This Rubidoux service is not a Catholic service; it is for all people of all creeds, it is for people of no creed; it is universal. Devout it is, and marvelous for its simplicity, and so it is to be kept, that all may participate. It is a lifting of the heart in prayer, as if from the very mountain's crest the spirit might still rise to a finer height of spirituality.

The mediaeval trappings, sandal shoon and staff are missing, but the pilgrim has not gone. Sensitiveness of soul sets one upon pilgrimage, and every true worker has the pilgrim soul. The pilgrim looks forward and upward eagerly, and he who succeeds in any quest is not the man of the backward look. While he walks our streets his gaze is afar, yet curiously keen for passing events. This was strongly emphasized by the presence and devout attitude of those who, well known kings of finance, are drawn each year to this Easter pilgrimage because of its devout simplicity. France has her Lourdes, but it is for those of one faith, and this is true of all great pilgrim centers of the old world. It is left for this new land of promise to establish this universal event, a contribution of permanent value to the religious institutions of the world, that for many rests like a benediction upon all the year.

Mors Mortis.

A something wondrous sweet and strange
  Awakens with the morn,
The heart leaps up in ecstasy
  As with a life new-born.
    There is a rapture in the sky,
    A note exultant in the cry
Of bird and insect, and the stream
  Within the woodland deep
In gleeful lyrics shouts and sings
  The joy it cannot keep!

A mystery pervades the air,
  The birds are whispering
A secret to the field and wood,
  The leaves are gossiping.
    And tree and vine and bough and bole
    Are thrilling with a pulse of soul.
And even daylight's common beam
  Grows tender and more kind
As it with fond embrace would win
  You to its gentle mind

O mystery most wonderful,
  Proclaiming year by year
The hope our longing hearts so crave,
  And all who will may hear
    The word that quickening Nature saith,
    "Behold in me the death of Death!
O sons of men, away with doubt,
  Death's mockery defy!
Lo, God within and Earth without Declare, ye shall not die!"

—[Zitella Cocke, in Youth's Companion.

"EVERYONE who hath ears to hear" has heard of the "eagle eye." Hon. Champ Clark, when speaking against the repeal of the free-tolls act in Congress, could not deliver himself without a verbal reference of this kind. He is himself a man of the eagle eye, and therefore spake not "unadvisedly with his lips."

The eagle eye is supposed to look down from the apex of the sky and take in with clear, piercing glance a larger horizon of the earth beneath than any other eye on which the light of heaven shines. This particular Eagle which represents the Eagle journal of America is particularly keen of vision and embraces the whole world and all that is in it, and the stars that circle in the midnight sky.

There is not so much heard about the eagle ear, and yet the Eagle is puzzled to account for this lack of appreciation on your part, dearly beloved of the human race. The ear of the bird is about as keen and almost as far-reaching as his eye. When it comes to this emblematic Eagle that typifies the great journal of all civilization, the ear of the bird is in no whit inferior to his eye. He sits in lasting bronze upon his granite tower and hears about everything, from the departure or arrival in the city of some business man, statesman or politician, to a fierce fight around Torreon, desert-encircled in the center of Mexico and nestling among gigantic hills. The Eagle's ear hears about the fate of the good ship Carluck imbedded in Arctic ice, and about happenings along the torrid zone on either side of the equator. Not a Cabinet in the world can rise or fall that the Eagle does not hear of it.

And more than the current events of contemporary history reaches the ear of this bronze Eagle. It takes in discussions about ethics, art and literature, painting, sculpture and music. An ancient person of philosophic mind declared that nothing human or divine was alien to his mind. That is just the way with the ear of your good Eagle, dearly beloved. "And thereby hangs a tale," which the Eagle will now proceed "to unfold."

The tale is a tale of a tale, and the tale is a novel of the day known as "The Precipice." It was written by a woman, who does not tell us whether she is young or old, brunette or blonde, handsome or plain. She is not too young, for she must have lived a good deal of life to have absorbed so much profound philosophy about that good old friend of yours, "Human Nature." The Eagle has heard a good deal of literary discussion in his time, and is supposed to be somewhat of a critic therein. After hearing the chapters of this tale read he delivers it as his deliberate opinion that it is one of the greatest stories of the time. So far as the Eagle is able to speak from personal experience it is the greatest of many a day, albeit written by an author heretofore a stranger to both the eye and the ear of the Eagle.

The Eagle is not pessimistic about modern literary art, even regarding it in its worst phase perhaps, that of fiction. There have come to his ears a good many thrilling stories well told, but he sets "The Precipice" away above all those he has come to know for many a day. It is a modern story in every respect. It is a problem novel, and that is a type of literary art utterly abominable to the ear and the heart of the Eagle, and yet he loves "The Precipice."

It is a problem novel which involves one of the most abominable problems of the time, that known as the sex problem. This is a matter about which in the Eagle's opinion entirely too much has been made in our days. The sexes are too sex-conscious to suit the Eagle's old-fashioned philosophy, yet "The Precipice" handles the question boldly, resolutely and strongly and yet absolutely without offense, even to the very "standpat" mind of the Eagle.

How was it done? By being very different from all the problem novels whose story has reached the ear of the Eagle in many a long day. The difference is as simple as A, B, C, or as two and two make four, yet so radical that it goes to the very lowest depths of the human heart and soul, and analyzes human nature as an anatomist would a dead body placed on the table and separated by his scalpel and other sharp instruments until every muscle, nerve, tissue, tendon and bone were duly tied in bundles, classified and ticketed.

Comparing it to the very greatest analyzers of human affections and passions, to men like the French writer De Balzac and to the English writer Miss Evans, known as "George Eliot," the modern novel referred to can stand up straight, hold its head high and not blush for itself. The Eagle does not mean to say that "The Precipice" is in all respects as profoundly analytical as "Pere Goriot" or "Adam Bede," but it stands so high as to merit the comparison.

While a problem novel, "The Precipice" deals in every chapter and page, and almost every line and word, with human nature. It recognizes the broad radical fact that, try as they will, women can not be men and that the sex problem is the problem of all of both men and women of our age, as it has been of all ages. Behind every bush, in every lane trod by the feet of the young people who figure in "The Precipice," our old friend Dan Cupid lurks keen-eyed, with a lovely smile on his lips, his wings spread wide, his bow strung, his arrow laid, sharp-pointed and winged. An Eagle man of the literary kind long ago sang about a "maiden queen" at whom Cupid took a shot, and she "passed by in maiden meditation fancy free."

The Cupid who takes aim at the palpitating hearts of men and women in "The Precipice" is a better shot than the one who figured "in the glorious days of great Elizabeth." He smites the men and maidens in "The Precipice" at every shot, and he smites them "hip and thigh," or rather heart and soul.

Here is a maiden of Celtic blood and thoroughly Irish sentiment who tries to forget that she is a woman, to unsex herself, defy Cupid and his arrows, and pass on "in maiden meditation fancy free," devoting herself to the art of opera music. Her name is "Morna Cartan," and she makes her debut in "Madame Butterfly," thrilling the souls of all her hearers with exquisite pleasure—except one.

There is a young Irish doctor, Fitzgerald, in the audience, and every sound of applause is a stab in his tender Irish heart. While the prima donna comes out of the playhouse radiant, the young doctor hangs around the outskirts of the applauding mob with a scowl on his forehead and death in his heart. As she steps out of her carriage at her own door, Dr. Fitzgerald is waiting to hand her down. He has never said a word of love to her until that moment, and then in just one-quarter of a minute with the slightest little pressure of the hand he tells her that her success is his death-knell. The eyes of these two young Celts meet, and Cupid's arrows flash forth crossing one another, and pierce both hearts. "Morna Cartan," having become Mrs. Fitzgerald, in due time is found with a little bunch of pink flesh in her hands and a baby's tiny fingers as they touch her cheek or breast trill every fiber of her soul as never did the most ecstatic music from her own lips.

Another feature of this story which commends itself most highly to the bronze heart and metal brain of the Eagle is that the story is told in excellent English where not the slightest rule of Lindley Murray, Goold Brown or any other grammarian is violated in the slightest degree. To the Eagle ear have come heretofore stories of our time with many excellencies in them, but marred beyond all endurance by the slovenly, ungrammatical style in which the story was told.

The Eagle is an old bird, and often feels pessimistic after the manner of the aged about many features of modern life, among them the literary feature as portrayed in the problem novel. By the recital of this tale, "The Precipice," he takes heart of grace, with the conviction that human nature will come into his own and keep its heritance.

THE LANCER

SO EVEN in metropolitan San Francisco grand opera was a failure. It paid even less there than it did in Los Angeles and the Chicago grand opera company has shaken the dust of its feet upon the Pacific Coast and mournfully assured us, with a covert sneer, that we shall see it no more for lo, these many years.

And a few sweet souls are hurling the usual reproaches at us, particularly at our wealthy classes, that such sublime luxury should have been beyond our proper appreciation, beyond our mental capacity, beyond our dreams of culture.

It is, of course, quite horrid. And yet we cannot help feeling that perhaps there is some excuse for us. You see, the trouble is that grand opera insists upon catering exclusively for the very rich—the cheapest seats for grand opera are as dear as the most expensive for anything else—and it so happens that musical appreciation and the soul for harmony are very rarely embodied in the same person as a proud purse and gorgeous raiment. The latter are usually more than willing to patronize the first night of the opera and give their diamonds, their imported gowns, their picturesque women, an airing. For them it is an interesting form of grand penance and a novel opportunity of exhibiting themselves all together in all their glory. But the music means nothing to them, one night therefore amply sufficing for their needs.

Yet an opera management persists in expecting regular and expensive patronage from this class of person and in making it as difficult as possible for the musical man, minus the money, to see more than one performance.

The Cult of the Over-Paid.

IT IS quite unthinkable that such people as Mary Garden and Titta Ruffo could be overpaid—and yet! It really would appear that nothing short of a city of three million can be induced to support grand opera in sufficient numbers to make it pay. Indeed, even London, with her seven millions, comes under the same reproach as poor dear Los Angeles and San Francisco, and, if Oscar Hammerstein is to be believed, is even more of a vulgar Philistine in the concrete than could ever fall to our lot. As a matter of stern fact, even London can support grand opera only for a short sweet season of three weeks at a time of year when the capital is chock full of everybody who is anybody, half of them foreign visitors, most of whom go for the self-same reason that our aristocracy goes. In proportion, we are inclined to think we did the opera extremely well—it was only up to us to fill the Little Theater for a week to make as good a showing as London according to our population.

So we are dismally forced to the conclusion that grand opera is either altogether superfluous or too expensive. How can the prima donnas and impresarios command such mighty salaries and get away with such extraordinary swank, when it is so very obvious that the merest handful of people regard them as a luxury worth paying to hear! For an art with such lofty ideals, grand opera strikes one as being extraordinarily greedy and mercenary, with an unpleasant predilection for catering to wealth alone. Well, it is their funeral, so we won't rub it in. And, of course, it must be exasperating to discover one has a grand opera voice that ought to be a gold mine, and before which the whole world ought to make obeisance, which is extolled to the skies by every ambitious critic, but which people simply won't pay more than a dollar to hear, and that reluctantly.

Fireproof.

IT WAS thoughtful of the Orpheum management, when Mariė Lloyd was here last week, to remind us that their building was absolutely fireproof. The information immediately preceded Marie's name on the advertising bills and was happily reassuring. Some of her songs were certainly alarmingly ignitious.

She had to share the public devotion with Evelyn Thaw. Evelyn was quite an attraction, wasn't she? A male correspondent wrote me a properly excited letter pointing out the disgusting enthusiasm with which the women of Los Angeles rushed to see Evelyn—it hurt him so that they should be "so immodest and unwomanly."

Unwomanly wasn't the right word, old man. They were being just as thoroughly womanly as they knew how. Personally I think it was perfectly natural that they should wish to gaze upon one of their number who had experienced so much at the hands of chivalrous and protective man and to stand aghast at her pluck, or impudent bravado, whichever you care to call it, when it was her solemn duty to take a little arsenic or otherwise anticipate the wishes of her Creator.

Evelyn is no heroine but an interesting example of the feminist movement in one of its phases. In a garish, rather unpleasant way, she symbolizes the new era for women. They will still be about evenly divided into good and bad women, in the same way, but rather more conspicuously than men, but there will be a tremendous difference in the ultimate effect. Virtue will be more ostentatiously its own reward than ever.

Still More Shocking.

A FAR more shocking episode to my mind was the lynching of the negro woman by some nice, self-controlled, superior white men in Muskogee, Okla. That is the sort of news the foreign newspapers lick their chops over, that is the sort of thing that makes the modern American such a splendid example of courageous manhood. Of course, that negro woman had stabbed a white boy doubtless a noble-hearted lad of whom the nation would have been proud; so these white gentlemen were eminently justified.

And that same week the highly amusing gentlemen at Ellis Island arrested and held for examination Flora Annie Steele, a white-haired lady 67 years of age, famous the world over as a novelist in high esteem. But she was traveling alone, so that looked fishy, and anyway they meant to prove her respectable before they let her into the United States—she might have contaminated the white gentlemen who lynched the negress at Muskogee. That piece of news is also the sort of stuff the foreign papers love to lick their chops over.

The Blakeslee Suicide.

ONE feels entirely sympathetic with Blakeslee, the famous art dealer, who shot himself when he found that he had accidentally bought a real Rembrandt for £30 and sold it for £120 before he knew it was genuine! And to think it was actually worth about $150,000 all the time! Enough to break any man's heart.

It incidentally came out at the inquest that he had one and a half million dollars worth of "old masters" on his hands which American millionaires were failing to [illegible] for as they should. Of course we are sorry that Blakeslee couldn't sell them, but there is hope for a nation that has left off going into ecstacies over spurious old masters or even genuine ones for that matter. The spectacle of an ignorant but wealthy business man masquerading as an art connoisseur and throwing the necessary [illegible] spasms before grimy canvases of doubtful charm, is a sorry one. The character inherited from our entirely worthy forefathers, plenty of grit and backbone, [illegible] good sound common sense, love in our hearts and reverence in our souls, gave us an inimitable standing in the world which these arty-cum-lynching escapades are doing their best to undermine.

Mercantile Conditions of the 50's.

By Genevieve Farnell-Bond.

BUSINESS BEGINNINGS.

MANY peaceful, pastoral years elapsed before the commercial spirit broke into the "sensuous Southwest." What industries there were had been instituted for home benefits alone. By stern, systematic insistence, Padre Jose Maria Salvadea of the San Gabriel Mission had instituted soap and tallow works, tanning yards, [illegible], and copper, blacksmith, carpenter and other shops. There were large spinning rooms, with fifty or sixty women working at the looms, weaving wool, flax and cotton. Up until the coming of a young American, even the milling of flour was done through a long tiresome process, usually being performed by hand. It remained for Joseph Chapman—the first American to settle in the vicinity of Los Angeles—to make the horsepower grist mill practicable, introducing level gearing. And it was under Chapman's direction that the Indians prepared the timbers used in building the church of Our Lady of the Angels. These same timbers still serve in the old church, for they were used in the reconstruction of 1861. Chapman also contrived the different parts of a schooner—to be used in otter hunting—in the mission workshop, carrying them down to the sea with the aid of the Indians, and there fitting them together. It was the second one built in this region. The boat was successfully launched at San Pedro.

SOME EARLY BUSINESS PLACES IN LOS ANGELES.

There was some traffic with the American trading companies between 1820 and 1830, agencies being established at Monterey. Through these, hides and tallow were exchanged for various necessities. But home mercantile establishments—outside of what the missions afforded—followed in the wake of the coming of the foreigner, particularly the Americano. Santiago McKinley, a Scotchman, 21 years of age, arrived in Los Angeles in 1824, and later entered into merchandising. But the earliest parties of trappers coming overland from the East, furnished the pioneer merchants of Los Angeles. Strangely enough, the foreigner who came by water was made welcome by the Spanish settlers. But the latter seemed to regard the people who braved the dangers of that vast, unexplored region that divided the East from the West, with a peculiar dread, resenting their advent. The very first party, consisting of fifteen trappers, under the leadership of Jedediah S. Smith, which came by way of the Colorado River from Salt Lake in 1826, was promptly ordered out of the region, its members becoming scattered. Some remained, but the majority went back.

However, prohibition could not prevent the inevitable after the initial step. A party of eight, led by Sylvester Pattie, a Kentuckian, in 1828, came through New Mexico and Arizona by way of Gila River, into California. They were not welcome to Gov. Echeandia. Why should they be? They came to disturb the established order of things—the dolce far niente of an idyllic life with Yankee energy and restlessness. So he promptly tore up the American passports, and threw the intruders into prison. Sylvester Pattie died in confinement. When it was discovered that the son, James, understood vaccination, he was released, and the other members with him. Three of them, Nathaniel Prior, Richard Laughlin and Jesse Ferguson, settled in Los Angeles. Prior was a silversmith. He at once made himself a useful citizen, and married into the Sepulveda family. Laughlin was a joiner and carpenter, working at this trade, and occasionally hunting and trapping. Presently he possessed himself of land east of Alameda street, planted a vineyard, and married a native lady. For a time Ferguson conducted a store on Main street, not far from the Plaza, for William G. Dana of Santa Barbara. But he was not the pioneer in this business.

The very first general merchandise store in the pueblo of Los Angeles was established by John Temple. He and John Rice, both natives of New England, came here from the Sandwich Islands in 1827. They formed a partnership, and opened business in an adobe house on Main street, where the Downey Block now stands, then the extreme limits of the town. Mr. Rice withdrew from the partnership in 1830. John Temple conducted it until 1845, when he went into real estate speculation, building, and ranching, becoming one of the most extensive landholders and stock owners in the country. But to go back a little—in 1830 he followed the custom of many of the Americanos, and could not resist the charm and beauty of the Spanish Senorita. He married Dona Rafaela Cota. In the same year he erected an adobe house, afterward changing it to brick, which served as the nucleus for the Downey Block. What he did for the city later in the way of building exploits is a matter of general knowledge.

After dissolving partnership with Temple, Rice continued in the mercantile business on Main street between Downey Block and the Cosmopolitan Hotel. He, too, married into a Spanish family.

In 1827 came J. D. Leandry, who opened a store near the Plaza on Nigger Alley. He purchased an interest in the San Pedro ranch, and later owned "Los Coyotes."

The famous Don Abel Stearns, who came in 1828, began his Los Angeles career by merchandising in a store located on the site of the present Baker Block, where later he erected a house so large and elegant, according to the standards of the time, that it was dubbed a palace. Marrying Donna Arcadia, he, too, cast his identity in with the Spanish. He was a Midas who, in the many lines of business in which he later engaged, found everything turned to gold in his hands.

Then, through the wrecking of the American brig Danube, at San Pedro, came Samuel Prentiss and John Groningen—the latter name being changed to the less difficult one of Juan Domingo, he being absorbed into a Spanish family in the usual way. This German Don acquired a large vineyard at the corner of First and Alameda streets, and also purchased from the city the original site of Yang-na, compelling the few remaining Indians to find homes elsewhere, and redeeming a "sink-hole of filth and iniquity."

This first German was followed by the first Frenchman, Louis Bouchette, in 1829, who acquired a vineyard on Macy street. And he was supplemented in 1831 by the renowned Jean Vignes, with his famous Aliso vineyard. The commercial importance of these pioneers in vineyarding will be realized presently. The first grapes produced from California soil were planted and raised in Los Angeles, even preceding our great grape region of Sonoma.

In February of the same year came William Wolfskill, overland—hunter, trapper, and adventurer—in the good sense of the word. He, too, procured a tract of land—a very large one—and set it out to vines. In 1841 he planted two acres to oranges—a grove which in 1860 had grown to over 100 acres. He was the orange pioneer of California. Jonathan Trumbull Warner—rechristened Juan Jose Warner—came in the same year, to be closely identified with the industrial history of the pueblo. He it was who made the earliest move—in 1840—in urging the construction of a railway to the Pacific Coast, making a trip East for the purpose, although there were no railroads here until in the '70's.

John Rhea and William Day came about this time, Rhea establishing a grocery, saloon and billiard room, while Day opened a small groggery near the Catholic Church. Then there was Joseph Pawlding, who made the first two billiard tables manufactured in California, one for Rhea, the other for George Rice.

Lemuel Carpenter, in 1834, established the first soap factory of this region, on the San Gabriel River, a mile or two below the Paso de Bartolo. Outside of this, manufactories did not spring up very rapidly until toward the '50's. There were necessarily flour mills. Don Abel Stearns had one just under the bluff, and in the rear of the site of the present Baker Iron Works. The mill was operated by an undershot waterwheel supplied by the zanja which ran past that property—the same zanja that furnished water to the bath-house on upper Main, or Bath street. This mill was destroyed by fire in the early '70's, when a modern equipped mill, run by steam, was built by Isaac Lankershim and I. N. Van Nuys, immediately west of Alameda street on Commercial. This was the first modern flour mill in Southern California.

"When I arrived in '54," declares "Uncle Billy" Workman, "I was considerably surprised by the number of mercantile establishments that seemed to be doing a thriving business. It must be remembered that at the time there were not over 3000 people in Los Angeles, and only 350 of these were English-speaking—some of them being German and French. When I went to clerking as a mere lad I had a very hard time of it indeed. Almost all of our customers spoke Spanish, the Americans who had married into Spanish families having adopted the language. Of course there was nothing for an enterprising young fellow in such a position to do but learn the language likewise.

"Where did the houses get their goods, and to whom did they dispose of such quantities after receiving them? The great amount of supplies carried could not be consumed locally. The explanation was that most of the merchandise was shipped around the Horn from Boston and New York, and that Los Angeles served as a distributing center far inland—to various points in California, to the mining towns of Arizona and New Mexico, to Nevada, and to Salt Lake City. From these localities ten and twelve-mule teams would come to Los Angeles, carrying away large quantities of dry goods, groceries, farming and mining implements, leather goods, harness, saddlery, and whatever else was needed. Joseph Smith, president of the Mormon church, himself came upon one of these trips. I was in the saddlery business at the time, and sold him a large bill of goods. He remembered the transaction some time later, when I met him in Salt Lake City. This sort of traffic was exceedingly profitable.

"Solomon Lazard had a dry goods store in the Alexander Bell Row—at one time Mellus Row—at the southwest corner of Los Angeles and Aliso streets. Corbett & Barker traded in general merchandise in a house on the corner of Los Angeles and Nigger Alley—that lively little lane that served a dead man for breakfast every morning, and which was wiped from the map of Los Angeles in 1886, when Los Angeles street was cut through.

"Goodwin & Polaski had a dry goods house on the corner of Main and Commercial streets, the present site of the United States National Bank. Mrs. Goodwin, by the way, is that good lady who made possible the building of the Children's Hospital on Sunset boulevard and Vermont avenue. She donated a lot on Broadway to the trustees, who sold it for $300,000, and put the money into the institution. The Polaski sons are well known in business enterprises today.

"I. W. Hellman bought out Polaski & Goodwin. There were no banks in Los Angeles at the time, but Mr. Hellman had a safety vault, and the rancheros would deposit here the money that had been paid them in town by the drovers who came down from the mines to buy cattle, and to drive them off to the mining camps. Mr. Hellman thus held a great deal of the trade from ranches and mining settlements alike. Mr. Hellman was well-liked, and universally trusted."

But Mr. Hellman's establishment was not the only one that served as a temporary banking house. One of our old-timers, with memories of those days, tells of a sheepherder who came from Catalina Island to spend a few days in Los Angeles. Having the magnificent sum of $21 about his person, he carefully handed it to the bar-keeper in a saloon at Ord and Fernando streets. "It happened that at the time the money was given into the care of the bar-keeper the Constable was near by and saw the proceeding. Now, it is said that the Judge had confided to the Constable the fact that he was a little short of expense money, and had advised the said Constable to keep his eyes open, and make some sort of arrest, so that a fine could be imposed. Here was the opportunity. Two loiterers, nothing averse to a mix-up, were induced to 'start something' in the saloon. The good sheepherder, who was for peace, interfered between the two, who adroitly disappeared, leaving Mr. "Boregero" in the hands of the Constable. The Judge stared tremendous with a threatening frown. The peaceful boregero tried to explain. It was useless. The Judge fined him $21 for disturbing the peace!"

But to return to Mr. Workman's story. "There was the firm of Alexander & Mellus—general merchandise—for which I clerked for a time," he continued. "There were Johnson & Allanson, who preceded us. Joseph Newmark had a store at the corner of Main and Requena streets. He was a

THE VIEW FROM MOUNT CRISTOBAL—A LOOK AT THE CHURCHES AND PEOPLE OF A TOWN THAT KEEPS ITS SUNDAYS—THE GREAT CATHEDRAL AND THE BONES OF PIZARRO—HOW LIMA IS BUILT—A TOURIST RESORT TO BE OPENED BY THE CANAL.

From Our Own Correspondent.

LIMA (Peru.)—Climb with me to the rocky top of San Cristobal Mountain and take a look over the city of Lima. We are on the edge of the Rimac Valley, within eight miles of the Pacific Ocean and about 1000 feet higher up in the air. Sitting on this bleak desert hill, the sea seems a wide streak of silver, beyond which are mountainous islands bordering the coast. Right in front of us, on the edge of the water, is the port of Callao with its mole reaching out into the ocean, and opposite it are the islands of San Lorenzo, which are to be joined to the mainland, to form one of the finest harbors of the eastern Pacific. At our backs, lost in the clouds, lie the high peaks of the westernmost range of the Andes; and right under us, so near that we could throw a stone on to its roofs, is the great low city of Lima, spread out on the plain. That winding stream which runs through it is the Rimac. It springs forth from the glaciers of the high Andes, and gives life to the irrigated valleys below. It alone makes Lima possible; and it waters the orchards and vineyards and great fields of grain which form the emerald setting for the yellow city, between us and the sea.

At the door of Pizarro's cathedral

Now let us take our glasses and look more closely at the Peruvian capital. It was originally named the City of the Kings, and it was laid out by Pizarro only forty-three years after Columbus discovered America. There was a great city here 100 years before the ground on which Chicago and Cincinnati now stand had been trodden by the feet of white men. The city is one of the oldest of the hemisphere. It was born long before New York or Boston. It was the capital of all South America when the United States was subject to England, and today it is the quaintest and most interesting town upon the two continents.

A City of Many Churches.

Look at it as it lies there below us. The roofs are all flat and the houses are mostly of one and two stories. There is a vast expanse of low buildings, with a great cathedral and magnificent churches rising here and there out of the whole. The cathedral is almost in the center, with its great green plaza in front. That church was laid out by Pizarro before John Smith landed at Jamestown, and its original cost was more than a half-million dollars. It has been thrown down again and again by earthquakes; and altogether it was ninety years in its building. It contains the bones of Pizarro, which we shall see later on.

As we look over Lima we can see other churches and convents whose spires extend high over the roofs. The city has seventy churches in all, and nearly every one will pay visiting. The church and convent of San Francisco is said to have cost $15,000,000; and the altar of Santa Rosa, the patron saint of Lima, had in it, when at its best, 1500 pounds of gold and silver and jewels, which embraced 1400 diamonds, 1200 emeralds, 120 fine pearls and 600 rubies.

If you look closely you can see beyond the cathedral the Plaza de Armas, where stands the building which is now the Peruvian Senate. It was once the seat of the Inquisition, and on the space in front of it hundreds were executed and many were burned to death, the victims of the autos de fe.

Now let us turn from the sacred to the secular parts of the town. There is one just below us. It is the great round Plaza de Toros, the immense bull ring where fights are held every Sunday, and where the Limenos come by the thousands to see their favorite matadors butcher the bulls. Some of them are quite as bloodthirsty as the Romans when they looked at the gladiators in the amphitheater at Rome. Only last Sunday, for instance, the bulls were not considered as fierce as they should be, and the crowd hissed the fighters and drove them out of the ring. They even began to tear up the seats, and set fire to the building, and the soldiers had to rush in and put down the mob.

The bull ring is on this side of the Rimac. The main part of the city is over the river, and there we can see the palace of the exposition, which contains the museum, the government palace near the cathedral, the great university, the oldest in the new world, and the vast numbers of low yellow houses which are the stores and the homes.

Unique Features.

But let us go down from the mountains, and make our way over the Rimac and wander about through the streets. There is no city in Europe that compares with Lima in quaintness, and but few in historic interest. The streets are narrow, and they cross one another at right angles. There are many great plazas or squares which have fountains and gardens; and, extending out from these, run narrow thoroughfares walled with low buildings. The buildings are all close to the street, and in the residence section the ground-floor windows are covered with great iron bars. Where the houses consist of two or three stories, there are balconies that extend out above the street, and some of these are so wonderfully carved that they make you think of the harem quarters of Cairo, or those of old Spain. In the business parts of the city, most of the people live over the stores, and stretching from one end of the street to the other are long lines of these balconies, each house having its own peculiar architecture. The main business streets are not more than thirty feet wide. They are so narrow that the single street car line is close to the sidewalk, and one must be careful lest he lose a leg as he walks through the streets.

The stores are far different from ours. Only the newest of them have plate-glass windows, and there are no fancy fronts with gorgeous window displays which may be looked at Sundays and evenings. The most of the stores have no windows at all. They are shut off from the street by great doors that are taken away during business hours. The shops are separated by thin walls, and going along them is like walking through a museum or an oriental bazaar. The sidewalks are narrow and the goods are displayed close to the streets. Many of the dry-goods stores hang fancy patterns of cloth from the ceiling, and the larger establishments will have piles of goods put on the floors and stacked up near the street. Notions of all kinds are hung from strings stretched across from wall to wall high up, and all sorts of queer ways of display are contrived. The light of the stores comes in through the doors or from the roofs. Many of the business establishments are large, with stocks of fine goods. The prices are high. The best from all over the world is brought here for sale, and the city, while not a rich one, has thousands of well-to-do people.

The Street Crowds.

The chief shopping hours are from 4 to 6 o'clock in the afternoon. At that time the streets are crowded with women and men, and the crowd is as thick as that between the Treasury and the Patent Office on F street in Washington at about the same time. Moreover, it looks much the same. No one is in a hurry. The people saunter along or stop and chat with their friends. Nearly everyone is well dressed and neatly

The Street Crowds.

The chief shopping hours are from 4 to 6 o'clock in the afternoon. At that time the streets are crowded with women and men, and the crowd is as thick as that between the Treasury and the Patent Office on F street in Washington at about the same time. Moreover, it looks much the same. No one is in a hurry. The people saunter along or stop and chat with their friends. Nearly everyone is well dressed and nearly every man, old and young, carries a cane. The Limenos are very polite. The men bow and lift their hats when they meet, and they lift their hats and bow again as they pass. There are many well-dressed women, wearing the fashionable outlandish styles of today, and there are also many who are clad in the dead black that the lady of Lima of the past always wore when she went out to walk. Such women do not wear bonnets, but they wrap fine shawls of black goods about the head, pinning them back so that the face alone shows. This background adds to their beauty, and the costume is far better than the monstrosities our women now wear. It saves the buying of new hats and bonnets and it is easy to put on or take off.

And this brings me to the crowd which one sees here on Sunday. Lima is a godly city, although we have a Methodist bishop here in my hotel who says it is the most bigoted on earth. It is altogether Catholic, and that not of the modern Catholicism of America and Europe, but somewhat the same as it was in the days of Pizarro. There are priests and nuns everywhere and great monasteries and convents galore. The most of the people are rigid churchgoers and Sunday morning the streets are filled with families on their way to the masses which are celebrated at the cathedral and churches. Everyone is dressed for the occasion, and almost all of the women are clad in black. None of them wears hat or bonnet and none goes to church merely for the sake of showing her clothes. The usual headdress is the cloth shawl covering the hair and neck so that the face only shows out. Some wear mantillas or shawls of lace over the head and not a few are now beginning to wear dresses other than black. I am told that women would not be permitted to enter a church in a bonnet, and that those who do so are tapped with a long stick by the sexton and told to take their hats off. In the churches the men sit by themselves on one side and the women have their seats on the other, making you think of a collection of nuns who are dead to the world.

I am told it is different when church is over. The people then put on their gay clothes. Some go to the bull fights and others have evening parties and dances. I would say that the costumes at church are far more seemly than those of our country, where one looks over a tropical garden of flowers and birds-of-paradise feathers in a vain attempt to reach the eye of the preacher.

No Business on Sunday.

The Sunday sights of the streets are also more seemly. There is no business done in Lima on the Sabbath. The stores are closed and you walk between blank walls or great doors fastened with padlocks. Every store has its windows of boards, and there is not a sign of goods of any kind to be seen. Sometimes there is a grating at the top of the door for ventilation and sometimes a round hole has been made at the height of one's face so that those within might look out; but there is no business carried on anywhere. This is so also in the evenings on week days. The ordinary business hours are from 9 until 6; and at night there is no walking along and looking into the store windows. Indeed, after dark the streets are almost deserted, except near the moving-picture shows which have recently captured Lima by storm.

And just here I would say that there is a great liberal movement going on in this country. The people are demanding liberty of religious thought and worship. New laws have been passed by the national congress, and it is now possible for any person to establish any kind of a church where he pleases. Until now the Protestant missionaries have not been permitted to push their religion into the interior, but the new laws provide for full religious freedom throughout the country.

This movement is at its beginning in Peru, but it has been going on throughout South America for several years past. Ecuador, which was once very intolerant, has established complete religious freedom. Paraguay has done the same, and Uruguay is about to adopt a new constitution in which a section shall be inserted providing that there shall be no union of the church and state. Similar demonstrations are going on in Chile, and there a general demand is expressed that from now on religious and secular institutions shall stand alone.

The Cathedral.

But before I leave the churches I want to take you into the cathedral of Pizarro. It faces the Plaza Mayor with its palm trees and its beautiful fountains. It is in the heart of the city, and its towers can be seen almost anywhere over the Rimac Valley. The building is said to be the finest church edifice on the South American continent with the single exception of the cathedral at Mexico City. The interior is very impressive, and it makes one respect the Catholic religion when he remembers that Catholics have worshiped for more than 300 years on that spot. The high altar is a fine example of massive silver construction and the stalls of the sanctuary are extraordinary specimens of Indian carving, when Indian carving was still in its prime.

On the walls are fine paintings by Murillo and other great masters, and the chapels are of exceeding beauty. I was especially impressed by that of Pizarro. The little verger of the cathedral took me into it, and under the altar he showed me the coffin in which Pizarro's bones lie. The coffin is of white marble with glass sides and top, so made that one could see plainly the remains lying within. The verger lighted a candle and waved it up and down over the glass. As he did so, I could see all that is now left of the great Spaniard who first explored and conquered the west coast of South America. It consisted of a skeleton lying upon a red velvet cushion embroidered with gold. The skeleton is black as mahogany and it looks as though it were varnished. The skull lies on a pillow, the neck being fastened to it by wires through the ears. The jaw is a trifle drooping, the nose is prominent and the great eyeless sockets looked up at me as I gazed down through the glass top of the casket. As I looked more closely the whole seemed merely a shell. The skin has begun to peel from the shins and there are little worm holes in the bones. I am told that in times past patches of skin have been cut off and given to relic hunters, but as far as I can see the most of the corpse is intact, though decidedly leathery and the worse for wear. From the outside of the coffin I have copied these words:

"Captain General Don Francisco Pizarro, Fundador de Lima en 18 de Enero de 1535. Muerto en 26 de Junio de 1541." As I left I gave the verger a dollar, and Carl snapped a photograph of him as he showed me the door.

Dorothy's Easter Eggs. By Lannie M. Martin.

FAIRY COLORS.

DOROTHY DUNCAN had understood perfectly well why they could not have a Thanksgiving turkey. Even 10-year-olds can figure how much fifteen pounds at 35 cents a pound would be. And $5.25 was a considerable sum just now to the Duncans. Dorothy had accepted without protest the "just have to have" new shoes, sweater and bookstrap for her holiday presents, instead of the ribbons, dolls, candy and toys that the precedent of nine previous Christmases had led her to expect.

With all a child's gregarious desires, but with none of its bleating demands, she had seen the wonderful witches and pumpkin souvenirs that the other children carried with them to school at Hallowe'en; and on Valentine's day it was for no lack of places to send them that she walked resolutely by the gaily decorated windows in the downtown shops, clutching hard at the pennies which were to buy her tablet, pencil and spelling book. Those pennies had just pined to jump in that window and carry off one of those fluffy lace-paper affairs with their red hearts, little pink Cupids and blue forget-me-nots. And Tommy Taylor had sent—but no matter; Dorothy kept a firm hold on the pennies, even if she did turn as red as the hearts on the valentine.

All the cunning little hatchets and the dangling red cherries made their 22nd of February appeal to Dorothy just as strongly as to the other children who flaunted these coveted possessions, and when the shamrocks, green pipes and pigs and the dainty little Irish harps made their St. Patrick's bow in the windows, it was all that the color-worshiping Dorothy could do to get to the drugstore with the money for the prescription. That green pig had looked at her with such longing eyes! At least, that was how it seemed to Dorothy.

But those struggles had passed, and like all of childhood's past griefs were forgotten in present anticipations. Easter was coming! And that meant a new hat! Even if it was only a plain blue sailor with a ribbon band, instead of the white leghorn with the flower wreath that Susie Kelley was going to have. But best of all it meant Easter eggs! Gay red ones like gorgeous tulips, and blue ones like big turquoises, and purple ones the color of Mrs. Kelley's ostrich plume. Easter eggs were almost in the "just have to have" class, only they made you gladder than overshoes and handkerchiefs, and nut-butter sandwiches for your lunch. And now after always feeling that way about them, this terrible thing had happened: Her father had said there were to be no Easter eggs this year!

"But, father," she had been persistent enough to protest, "the dye would only cost 10 cents, and we're getting nine eggs a day now, and I'd be satisfied with just a few."

This had brought forth the denunciatory invectives against all those beautiful things which her heart had so longingly desired but so bravely resisted.

"It's nair zhust the aigs," said John Duncan doggedly, "it's all of the whifferin' trumpery truck that's bein' tooted out every day in the year; shamrocks, May baskets, Fourth of July fireworks, or something all the time."

He, too, had seen the green pigs, the cherries, hatchets, Cupids, pumpkins, witches, flags and a great deal more that Dorothy had not seen, and his struggle to get enough for just bread and butter and shoes and stockings for seven mouths and fourteen feet had made him feel bitter to see what he called useless extravagance of the rich and needless temptation to the poor.

Dorothy's first idea was that the Easter eggs were a sin. And in that case there was no use thinking about them any more. They might as well be forgotten, like dancing parties and playing with your dolls on Sunday. But when, after a final argument with her mother, she learned that it was only a question of expense her shrewd little mind began to figure out a way around the difficulty.

"How do people get coloring dye?" asked Dorothy.

Mrs. Duncan had but a hazy notion herself, and said: "Oh, they steep things in water, and the color comes out, and they boil that down and make it darker or dilute it to make it weaker."

This seemed a very simple process to Dorothy, and she had visions of all sorts of rainbow effects. Green seemed a good color with which to experiment, because it was so plentiful, and she loved green, too. There were the trees like great green genii, and the little weeds like a band of tiny Robin Hoods, and the grass like millions and millions of marching soldiers, and all of them seemed friendly, and she was sure they would give her some of their color.

She took her little shell pail and went out on the lawn and gathered several handfuls of grass, then she put in a few leaves from an orange tree and a weed or two, for, she said to herself, they might all want to help.

When she had gotten her little bucket almost full, she put on just what water she thought was sufficient and set it in a dark corner on the back porch to steep. Several times during the day she went to inspect it, but it was to the over-night process that she looked for the real results.

Getting up very early the next morning, she hurried out with eager expectancy to view her experiment. There was the grass, just as green as when it had been pulled from the lawn; likewise the leaves and weeds, and the water was as clear as the dew that sparkled at that very moment outside.

Two round, shining things like dewdrops rolled down Dorothy's cheeks, and then others followed them.

All at once she had a sudden thought. Her big, vivid, sky-blue eyes did not fade when water ran from them. It would not be very nice if every time she cried blue streaks would run down her cheeks, and perhaps it was best, too, that the grass did not fade, either; if it did, all of its color would run away whenever it rained or when they watered the lawn.

It was clear there must be some other way to get color. There were the flowers—may be they were not so stingy with their dye. Although she was no more successful in her steeping process with them than she was with the green things, she discovered by accident that when some of them were crushed they left a colored stain on her hand. Very much excited at this, she ran into the house, got a piece of white paper and began to make deliberate experiments. She found to her delight that the petals of the big marsh marigold left a beautiful streak of yellow when she crushed them and rubbed them over the paper. The ivy geranium blossom left a delicate pink, and after trying many leaves, she at last found a weed with a geranium-shaped leaf that would leave a faint green. The big crimson geranium bloom, instead of making a red stain, left a sort of muddy purplish color.

But Dorothy was not satisfied with just experimenting on the paper; she must first try it on the egg to be sure it would stick. When she gathered the eggs that day she selected the biggest, whitest one in the lot, and after she had carefully washed it, she repeated all the previous flower tests on it. Sure enough, the flowers left their color there just the same, and a striped egg with a streak of yellow, one of pink and one of green, was certainly a coveted possession! It was all so wonderful she just had to tell somebody. Only she didn't know anybody that would be particularly interested. Then she remembered the composition and the prize contest.

The compositions had to be written at school, so there would be no assistance given, and Dorothy could scarcely wait till the next day, so full was she of her subject.

On Friday afternoon, when she was called to the front, it was with a very quavering voice that she began to read:

"Once upon a time there was a little girl who was very unhappy because she had no colored Easter eggs. There were a great many genies living near the little girl's home, and they had great chests and chests of green stuff; and there were armies and armies of little green fairy soldiers that marched all day long over the lawn, and they carried knapsacks of green; and there were little Robin Hood fairies that hid under the bushes and darted along the roadside, and they all had green mantles and pouches. And the little girl thought that surely some of these would give her some of their green stuff. But each one of them said they needed it all their own selves and couldn't give any away.

"Then the little girl went to some beautiful fairy flower ladies who dressed in pink taffeta and red velvet and yellow satin, and she asked them for some of their lovely colors, but they just smiled and said: 'Oh, I guess you don't really mean it.'

"Then a little invisible fairy named 'Just Happen' came along, and he whispered to the little girl that if she would go to the flower ladies and squeeze their hands and say, 'Oh, please do give me some of your color!' that they would. And so she tried it, and they did. But the green genie and soldiers were all too stingy, and nobody would give any green but one of the Robin Hood men. But the beautiful yellow marsh marigold lady gave one of her yellow satin dresses, and the pink geranium lady gave a lovely chiffon scarf, and ever so many of them gave things, only the big crimson geranium would not give any of his nice new things, but gave some old faded last year's clothes. And the fairy named 'Just Happen' said that flowers were very much like people. And if it hadn't been for the 'Just-Happen' fairy the little girl wouldn't have had any color at all."

After the judges had conferred for a short time, it was announced that the prize for the best original composition, offered by the D.A.R. ladies for that grade, would be presented to Miss Dorothy Duncan. When she walked up and got it, and found that it was $5 in real money, that excited young lady gave a shout, right out in school, and said: "Oh, now I can have a hat like Susie Kelley's, and three dozen Easter eggs besides!"

Fatal April Fourteenth

HERETOFORE UNTOLD STORY BY AN EYE-WITNESS.

"THIS is the cottage," I said, as we left the narrow, dusty road one bright June day last summer and stood at the entrance of a garden path, "I know it by the syringa bushes and the grapevines creeping over the side of the porch where Mrs. Struthers reads to her blind daughter. I went up the porch steps and knocked. Mrs. Struthers came to the door, drying her hands on a blue gingham apron.

"Mrs. Struthers," I explained, after an exchange of greeting, "I want you to meet Mr. Busby. I happened to tell Mr. Busby, who is visiting me for the week-end, that you played the part of Mary Meredith in 'Our American Cousin' the night that President Lincoln was shot. Mr. Busby knew President Lincoln and was the official representative of the State of Kentucky at his funeral. When I told Mr. Busby that you were alive and living here in Milford, he was very anxious to meet you. I thought you would like to talk to him, as you both played your parts in that national tragedy."

"Yes, I would like to talk to Mr. Busby very much," said Mrs. Struthers pleasantly, but I am putting up currant jelly and I couldn't see anybody in these clothes, but if you will wait a few minutes I will be out."

When Mrs. Struthers again appeared she was becomingly dressed in black with white ruching about her neck, held together with an old-fashioned love-knot pin. In her youth, when Miss Jennie Gourlay, she was an accomplished actress of a marked patrician type of beauty, with a sweetness and magnetism that made her a popular favorite with audiences. Time and sorrows have dimmed her eyes and furrowed her brow, but her health is excellent, her memory unfailing, and about her is the atmosphere of motherly gentleness.

"So you have come to talk over those old, sad days," she said, as she seated herself in her favorite rocking chair on the shady veranda. "Well, I seldom talk any more of that fateful Friday night of April 14, 1865, but whenever I meet anyone who remembers Abraham Lincoln I always feel a sorrowful satisfaction in talking over the last performance of 'Our American Cousin' at Ford's Theater."

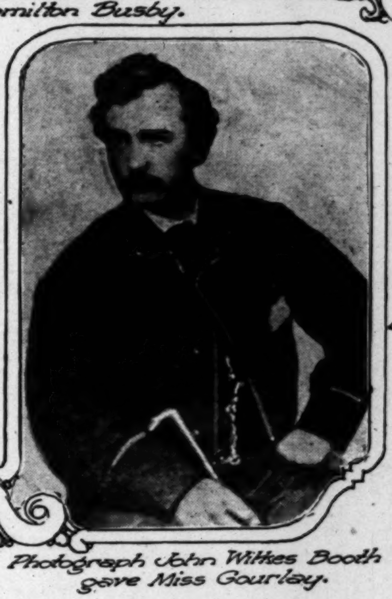
"Were you on the stage when the President was shot?" Mr. Busby asked.

"No, I am glad to say I was not. As I remember, I began the first scene of the third act. Harry Hawk, as Asa Trenchard, followed in the second scene, and held the stage alone at the time of the shooting. His words were probably the very last President Lincoln ever heard. But I have always felt that Booth selected the time I was acting my part to prepare for his attack. My scene was between Asa Trenchard and Mary Meredith, I taking the cast of the latter, although on the official programme I appeared as 'Mary Trenchard.' It was a printer's error. We sat down near the center of the stage and Asa asked Mary's permission to light a cigar. I gave consent, and with the match with which he lit his cigar he also set fire to a document. This document, according to the plot, was a will in which he was interested, or, rather interested in having destroyed. It was a vital point in the drama, and held the rapt attention of the audience. What more propitious moment could Booth have had to prepare for the shooting? While I was speaking, I saw Booth standing near the Lincoln box. As he had access to the theater at all times, I thought nothing of his being there. He was a very handsome man, was Booth, perhaps the handsomest I ever saw, and the very picture of health. But I remember that as I saw him then I was shocked at his pallor and a wild look in his eyes. It flashed across me he must be sick." Turning to Mr. Busby, Mrs. Struthers asked: "Do you remember John Wilkes Booth?"

"I remember him well," replied Mr. Busby. "A few weeks before the assassination he played an engagement at Louisville. At the time I was in charge of the army news of the Louisville Daily Journal and had the run of the theaters. I saw him nightly, and recall vividly his strikingly handsome face and athletic figure. After the assassination I witnessed in New York the return of his brother Edwin Booth to the stage. When the curtain went up the great actor stood with bowed head waiting for his reception. He could not tell whether it would be friendly or hostile. When he was given a sympathetic greeting he looked as if a great load had been lifted from his shoulders."

Mrs Struthers and Hamilton Busby.

Miss Jennie Gourlay (Mrs Struthers) as she appeared in 1865.



Photograph John Wilkes Booth gave Miss Gourlay.

For a few moments there was silence, and as Mrs. Struthers sat with downcast eyes it was evident that through her mind were passing memories of the long ago. Upon raising her eyes to us she said:

"I can well recall April 14, 1865. An early spring had clothed the hills with a coat of green, and as I took my usual morning walk I remember that the judas trees and dogwoods were in bloom. The sun was bright and I was very happy, as a benefit performance was scheduled on the programme to be given for 'Miss Jennie Gourlay on Saturday evening, April 15, when will be presented Boucicault's great sensational drama, "The Octoroon."' You probably remember that Laura Keene had performed in 'Our American Cousin' over 1000 nights, and the performance at which the assassination occurred was to have been her last, and it was given in her benefit. The following night I was to have had my benefit, but of course it never took place. Not only I, but everyone else seemed happy, for the war was over and bloodshed had stopped. North and South families were to be reunited, and the blessings of peace would help us to forget the sufferings and sorrows of war.

"In the box besides President and Mrs. Lincoln were Miss Harris and Maj. Rathbone. Gen. and Mrs. Grant were to have been in the party, but something, I forget what, detained them. The President was seated in a rocking chair, and why shouldn't a smile of gladness brighten his eye? He sat there a victor, but he showed no sign of triumph, only a quiet smile of relief. I don't believe he looked for glory or homage. His sympathetic heart was filled no doubt only with kindness and charity—then that awful bullet!"

"And in the moment of victory his genius was most needed to help the South and weld together in harmony a cruelly-severed country," remarked Mr. Busby?

"Without him, for awhile, the nation seemed like a ship without a rudder," observed Mrs. Struthers.

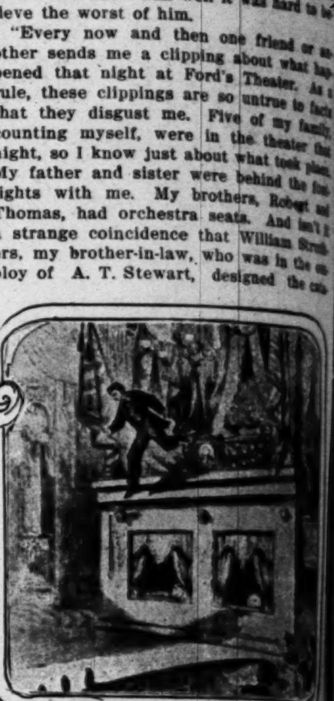
"Wasn't J. Wilkes Booth sort of a barroom Thespis, a brawling tragedian?" I asked.

Mrs. Struthers's eyes flashed with a trace of annoyance at the question: "Indeed he was not. John Wilkes Booth was a gentleman, a high-minded, cultured man. They tried hard to make him out a bar-room loafer, though. His mind was perverted with the belief that to slay the President would help an oppressed people. Lincoln's kindness of heart and goodness are well unstood now, but in those bitter days of strife and blood many of his countrymen, North and South, thought him a tyrant. They claimed he was careless of the blood that was shed. There was no personal gain for Booth in shooting President Lincoln; there could have been none. As Booth lay dying in agony after he was shot down in the barn, he feebly muttered: 'Tell my mother I died for my country—and did what I thought was best.' I knew Booth well. I also knew his brother Edwin and supported him in several plays. I and the rest of our company liked Wilkes Booth; everybody liked him. I believe he was sincere when he sent that dying message to his mother. Is that your idea, Mr. Busby?"

"No, I am afraid I differ with you, Mrs. Struthers. Booth was a gentleman and a man of culture, as you say, but at the same time he was the irrational son of a mad genius, and no doubt inherited a somewhat unbalanced mind. As an actor of merit he was used to the plaudits of the public. Facts seem to prove that he longed to be the star actor in a national tragedy. I believe in his muddled reasoning he thought that to kill the President would be proclaimed an act of heroic bravery and bring to him honor and fame."

After a short pause, Mrs. Struthers quietly observed: "Of course that may be so, but to us who knew him well it was hard to believe the worst of him.

"Every now and then one friend or another sends me a clipping about what happened that night at Ford's Theater. As a rule, these clippings are so untrue to facts that they disgust me. Five of my family, counting myself, were in the theater that night, so I know just about what took place. My father and sister were behind the footlights with me. My brothers, Robert and Thomas, had orchestra seats. And isn't it a strange coincidence that William Struthers, my brother-in-law, who was in the employ of A. T. Stewart, designed the catafalque upon which the body of Abraham Lincoln lay in state?" "It was a strange coincidence," observed Mr. Busby, and Mrs. Struthers continued:



Booth's leap from the President's box.

"A few years ago after reading a newspaper sensation that spoke of Booth stabbing people right and left as he escaped, I wrote to my brother Thomas, and asked him to write me just what he remembered. I have his reply to my letter. If you like I will read it."

As we were both anxious to hear the letter, Mrs. Struthers read as follows:

"Brooklyn, N. Y., Jan. 28, [illegible]

"My Dear Jennie: Yours of the 20th inst. inquiring about the Lincoln tragedy is at hand, and in reply will say most assuredly I was present at the time of the occurrence and the affair is so impressed upon my mind that I distinctly remember it as though it happened yesterday. I have read many articles in reference to the assassination and have never in all read the exact details as they appeared to me, an eye-witness. Brother Robert and I had arranged to go to the theater that night, and when we returned home from our work Mr. Williamson's son was at the house.* He was about the same age as Robert. (It was the first and only time I ever saw him.) He had called, expecting father to obtain a pass for him. Father told him to accompany Robert and me, so we all went together.

"When we got to the theater it fell to my lot to do the passing. We simply nodded to the ticket taker (who knew Robert and me) I explained that Williamson was our [illegible] when we were allowed to pass into the orchestra. After a short pause, Mrs. Struthers quietly observed: "Of course that may be so, but to us who knew him well it was hard to believe the worst of him.

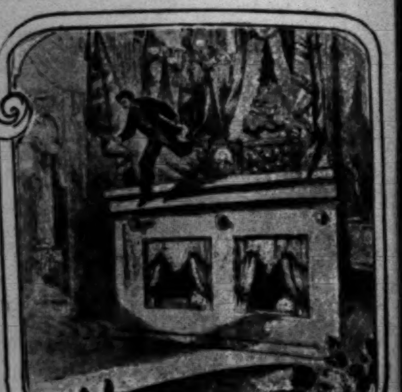
"Every now and then one friend or another sends me a clipping about what happened that night at Ford's Theater. As a rule, these clippings are so untrue to facts that they disgust me. Five of my family, counting myself, were in the theater that night, so I know just about what took place. My father and sister were behind the footlights with me. My brothers, Robert and Thomas, had orchestra seats. And isn't it a strange coincidence that William Struthers, my brother-in-law, who was in the employ of A. T. Stewart, designed the catafalque upon which the body of Abraham Lincoln lay in state?" "It was a strange coincidence," observed Mr. Busby, and Mrs. Struthers continued:



Booth's leap from the President's box.

"A few years ago after reading a newspaper sensation that spoke of Booth stabbing people right and left as he escaped, I wrote to my brother Thomas, and asked him to write me just what he remembered. I have his reply to my letter. If you like I will read it."

As we were both anxious to hear the letter, Mrs. Struthers read as follows:

"Brooklyn, N. Y., Jan. 28, 1906.

"My Dear Jennie: Yours of the 20th inst. inquiring about the Lincoln tragedy is at hand, and in reply will say most assuredly I was present at the time of the occurrence, and the affair is so impressed upon my mind that I distinctly remember it as though it happened yesterday. I have read many articles in reference to the assassination and have never in all read the exact details as they appeared to me, an eye-witness. Brother Robert and I had arranged to go to the theater that night, and when we returned home from our work Mr. Williamson's son was at the house.* He was about the same age as Robert. (It was the first and only time I ever saw him.) He had called, expecting father to obtain a pass for him. Father told him to accompany Robert and me, so we all went together.

"When we got to the theater it fell to my lot to do the passing. We simply nodded to the ticket taker (who knew Robert and me.) I explained that Williamson was our cousin, when we were allowed to pass into the orchestra. We took the first three seats on the right hand, the same side the President's box was on. Our seats were the first behind the reserved ones, but three or four rows from the dress circle.

"The play was 'Our American Cousin,' Laura Keene being the star. The curtain had risen and I believe the first scene was almost through before the President and friends arrived. When he was seen to enter, the whole audience arose and turned to welcome him. After he entered he stood at the head of the center aisle, in the dress circle, with his hat in his right hand, bowing to the audience. As he passed around to his box we all resumed our seats and the play continued.

"The President sat back in his box where he could not be seen by the audience. I believe it was the scene after your scene—the dairy scene—when a pistol shot was heard

The Passover of Gladness. By May C. Ringwalt.

AN EASTER STORY.

LEONTINE had come home to the ranch house for Easter, and every bright young spring thing on the place seemed to know it. Billie Burke, the rough-and-ready calf kicking up joyful heels in the pasture; the fruit trees bubbling over with blossoms in the orchard; happy-faced yellow primroses, jovial red tulips, gay-hearted daffo-down-dillies in garden bed and border; Angelina, the brightest young spring thing of all, her snatches of song in the house, out on the front porch, up a sunlit aisle between the bloom-laden trees, like the broken music of a meadow lark's call.

It was the secret of that meadow-lark music that Mrs. Ramsey's lowered voice was confiding to Leontine, as mother and daughter sat on the steps of the back porch shelling peas.

"Randolph Winston's his name. Belongs to one of the old families back East. Is a college graduate. Columbia, I think it is," the lowered voice went on in a proud purr. "Anyhow, he's chief construction engineer of the new branch road the S. P.'s building. Angelina met him at a valentine party at the Crosbys', and it's been going on ever since. He's coming to supper tonight, so you can see for yourself what a nice, likable young fellow he is."

"But that child!"

A pod full of peas irritatedly hit the side of the tin pan.

"Why, Lee, dear, Angelina is as old as you were when——"

Mrs. Ramsey's florid face turned a livid petunia.

"My word," she broke off as her conscious eyes shifted panic-stricken to the path at her feet, "if there ain't another slug, and me paying Bunny 5 cents a dozen for dead ones ever since Washington's Birthday!"

Leontine laid a quiet, firm hand on her mother's nervously fidgeting arm.

"Don't worry, Mummie, because you stepped on my toe," she smiled, "for the shoe doesn't pinch any more."

Mrs. Ramsey gave a relieved sigh.

"I'm mighty glad to hear you say so, Lee—at one time I was terrible fussed for fear you was going to let it spoil your life."

"A hospital training takes a lot of nonsense out of a girl, Mummie, and when she goes to nursing, it's good-by to all sentimental foolishness."

The older woman's soft brown eyes stole wistful glances at the younger woman's face. A fine, intelligent face, yet a subtle something there that perhaps only a mother's eyes would have seen—a shade of sadness, a shade of scorn—that troubled her.

"I want to color some Easter eggs for Pink and Bunny," said Leontine, gathering up the basket of shelled pods. "I believe, Mummie, I'll saddle Ramona and ride to town after the dyes now."

It had been a year since Leontine had ridden a horse—months since she had been away from stuffy city houses, from traffic-littered city streets, and she was a country girl born and bred.

"I love it!" she cried, gently flicking Ramona with the whip as she swung out the ranch-house gate and sped down the long, straight road that led between wide, open stretches of grain fields to the railroad and town three miles away. "I love it!"

As the glorious exercise whipped the blood in leaps through her veins and flooded her cheeks with color, the years of her professional life and their accumulated weariness fell from her. She was the same carefree age as Angelina once more. And sometimes it is dangerous for a woman to go back and be young again.

The blood in her veins, the glow on her cheeks, had quieted down, but the stir of youth and the beautiful country spring still ran riot in her heart, when half an hour later Leontine came triumphantly out from one of the shops with a package of bright dyes and a precious box of sugar eggs decorated in gilt bands and pink rosebuds.

She turned down the street toward the pepper tree where Ramona was tied—and almost collided with a slim little woman who at that moment shot out of the nearby doorway of a doctor's office.

The thing that she had dreaded—hoped against hope to escape—had happened.

She and Shirley Eastman had met face to face—so suddenly that neither woman had time to pretend she had not seen the other.

"Leon-tine!" faltered Shirley, her face aflame with embarrassment. "I didn't know that you'd come down!"

"I'm home on a little visit," said Leontine coolly—"until after Easter,"

"The country's real nice in the spring." Shirley nervously fingered the prescription in her hand. "I hope you'll have a pleasant time."

"Thank you."

With a scarcely perceptible inclination of the head, Leontine moved on toward the tree.

But in the midst of unfastening the hitching strap she heard the sound of hurriedly-approaching steps and turned to the touch of a hand timidly laid on her arm.

"Lee, can't you—won't you forgive me?" asked Shirley in a tremulous voice.

Leontine coldly regarded the slim little figure nervously standing before her—a delicate flower beauty in the upturned face in spite of the unhappy droop of the mouth, the hunted look in the lusterless gray eyes.

"What is the use of my pretending, Shirley?" she said disdainfully. "You were my oldest, my dearest friend, yet deliberately you made trouble between us—deliberately won the man I loved more than life itself away from me. And now you expect——"

"No, I don't expect. I only asked—on the impulse of the moment. Oh, Leontine, if you knew how I've paid!"

Leontine's lip curled.

"You misunderstand!" cried Shirley. "I'm not blaming him. He's never been anything except good to me. But always the wrong that we did you is there—in our thoughts—a shadow between us."

"I went away from home," said Leontine icily. "I have left you alone. What more can you ask of—— Hush, here come the Elliott girls."

Shirley rose to the warning..

"Now Will's away, I don't come to town much, so we shan't likely see each other again before you go back," the voice, lifted for the Elliot girls benefit, shrilled up to Leontine as she leaped into her saddle. "It was only little Vicky being under the weather that brought me in to the doctor's this morning."

The same spring loveliness that had so deeply stirred her as she rode to town followed Leontine home to the ranch house, but all sense of its beauty had dropped out of her heart.

"If only I could go back to my work right now!" she thought fiercely. "If I'd never come!"

Yet in the busy whirl of home life—in helping her mother with spring cleaning and Angelina with spring dressmaking—the days passed in a mad rush, and Leontine could hardly believe it possible when Saturday at dinner Mr. Ramsey looked twinklingly over Pink's and Bunny's little heads and said:

"Well, mother, I hope you've not forgotten to have a cake and candles ready—tomorrow's the Easter rabbit's birthday, you know."

"My word!" cried the panic-stricken Mrs. Ramsey, "what I have forgotten is those callas I promised Mrs. Leighton! And the Guild's to be at the church at 2 to decorate! Leontine, do you suppose you could drive in with 'em? The Heavenly Twins are already hitched up, and father isn't going to use the wagon again this afternoon."

When Leontine good-naturedly consented, she intended merely to deliver her flowers and come home again.

But when the ranch wagon loaded with its big bunches of beautiful callas drove up at the church she found little Mrs. Leighton, who was twittering about like a nervous, plume-ruffled bird, short-handed, and before she knew it was in the thick of the work—filling empty pickle jars with water, climbing stepladders, wiring wreaths and crosses.

In the busy midst of the decorating, the choir came in and began to practice the Easter music.

On mounting wingbeats of joy organ strains soared upward—then a soprano voice caroling its triumphant Easter message.

"The day of resurrection!
  Earth, tell it out abroad;
The Passover of gladness,
  The Passover of God.
From death to life eternal,
  From earth unto the sky
Our Christ hath brought us over
  With hymns of victory."

"It's Alma Blake, the blacksmith's daughter," little Mrs. Leighton proudly twittered to Leontine, as organist and singer paused in discussion over a note. "She's to sing the offertory tomorrow."

The twitter—its tone of pride changed to lament—turned to the nearby Elliot girls.

"Isn't it a shame about Vicky Eastman having the scarlet fever? Yes, Mame Hall's just told me. They think she must have caught it on the cars the day Shirley took her as far as the Junction to see her Pa off on his trip East. I certainly feel sorry for Shirley. She simply idolizes the child. And Vicky's such a delicate little thing, I shouldn't be a mite surprised if——"

The twitter was drowned in new peals from the organ—in the rise and fall of the triumphant voice.

"The day of resurrection!
  Earth, tell it out abroad;
The Passover of gladness,
  The Passover of God——"

Her face white, tense, Leontine stooped to some bruised calla leaves fallen on the chancel floor—gathered up a stained calla spathe.

She could not endure the music another instant. The words were a mockery. Life was a mockery.

"Now that others have come—now that you can spare me," she said in a hurried voice to Mrs. Leighton, "I must really go."

"Why, of course, dear," twittered the little lady. "It's sweet of you to have given us so much of your time."

With a lazy creak of the wagon at their heels, the Heavenly Twins plodded back to the ranch house.

The children were at the gate watching for her—in their eagerness to clamber up over the wheels could scarcely wait for the ranch wagon to stop.

Manwise, Bunny claimed the reins, but loving little Pink—soft and warm and sweet—made straight for big sister's lap and a kiss.

Leontine drew her close—with arms that tightened almost convulsively about her.

If it had been Pink instead of Vickey—if anything should ever happen to Pink!

"Did you know that Vicky Eastman has the scarlet fever?" was Leontine's first question as she hurried into the kitchen to her mother.

"Yes, Zeb Peters told your father," said Mrs. Ramsey, busy making the meringue for the top of a strawberry shortcake. "After the way she acted, I haven't any use for Shirley," she went on, a suppressed excitement in her voice," but, my word, I can't help pitying her. She isn't the sort to handle an emergency alone, and neighbor folks can't go in and help for fear of carrying the contagion home with 'em."

"Hasn't she anybody at all?"

"Zeb said she'd sent for Elmira Felton."

"Elmira Felton!" repeated Leontine scornfully. "I wouldn't trust her to nurse a sick cat!"

As usual, Angelina's suitor came to supper that evening, and afterwards, as soon as politeness permitted, the rest of the family evaporated, leaving the parlor to the young lovers.

Leontine went directly to her room, and when her mother came upstairs after setting a bread sponge, the crack of light under her door was already out.

"I'm glad the child's gone to bed," thought Mrs. Ramsey comfortably. "I noticed how tired she looked at supper."

But on the other side of the closed door Leontine lay stretched upon her bed, with sleepless eyes staring up at the darkness.

The next morning, just as the pale dawn began to creep in at her eastern window, she rose, dressed and hastily packed a suit-case.

Outside her mother's door she hesitated then turned and tip-toed down the stairs. There was no use in disturbing anybody now. She would telephone later.

The front door softly opened and shut. With quick steps Leontine took the path that led across the fields to Shirley and the sick child; her face uplifted to the sunrise glory overhead; in her heart, on mounting wing beats of music, the words of the triumphant Easter message:

"The day of resurrection!
  "Earth, tell it out abroad;
The Passover of gladness,
  The Passover of God.
From death to life eternal,
  From earth unto the sky,
Our Christ hath brought us over
  With hymns of victory."

Farming in Alaska.

[Technical World Magazine:] Imagine a giant bowl of ice, 300 miles long and fifty miles wide. Sprinkle it with a layer of dirt. Light it with a sun that beams down with tropic intensity twenty-two of the twenty-four hours of the day. Give it the climate of arid Arizona, with its ten inches of rainfall every year.

Now you have a fair picture of the Tanana Valley, located almost in the geographical center of Alaska, whose farms surpass in productivity and wealth of yield the best Dakotas or the cream of the Canadian Northwest prairies, to which thousands of our Middle West farmers annually migrate.

Barred from the softening influence of the warm Japan current by a range of high and precipitous mountains which include such giants as Mt. St. Elias and Mt. McKinley (altitude 20,500 feet,) the loftiest on the American continent, this valley is only made endurable for plant life by the fact that the whole region, except the surface, is frozen. The moisture arising from the Japan current in the form of clouds settles against these mountains and is precipitated as snow, forming the tremendous glaciers in the southern portion of Alaska. The air is then freed of its moisture and comes dry into the Tanana Valley. The valley has no more moisture, no more rainfall, than Arizona. The Tanana Valley would be an arid desert were it not for the fact that it is frozen from surface to bedrock and every drop of water and every snowflake which falls in that country is conserved. It sinks into the ground and is frozen there. It is maintained in cold storage.

When the warm spring sun touches the ground and the plowman turns up the clods, it begins thawing. Then the Fairbanks farmers plant their gardens, and as the moisture is needed it comes from below. The thawing continues all summer. The Tanana people have a sub-irrigation system which nature operates for them that beats any irrigation or reclamation system in any of the Western States, and which does not now and never will cost a cent to maintain.

The clearing of farm lands about Fairbanks is going on rapidly. Last year the area under cultivation was nearly double all that which had been cleared and cultivated in previous years. The yield of those crops is a matter of amazement and surprise to the producers themselves, because there, as elsewhere, it had been supposed that the lands were worthless for farming purposes.

The United States Experimental Farm is located at Fairbanks. There are about ninety acres under cultivation. The report of the 1912 crop shows Red Fife wheat yielding fifty-five bushels to the acre from the soil under natural condition there. Romanoff spring wheat, planted in 1912, and harvested about September 1, shows a production of sixty bushels to the acre. Wild Goose wheat grew sixty bushels to the acre.

These wonderful results can be directly traced to the fact that during the whole of the growing season there is no darkness. It is all daylight. From May to the beginning of September one can read a newspaper out of doors at midnight.

Highest Mountain in Idaho.

Idaho has only one named peak having an altitude greater than 12,000 feet, that is Hyndman Peak, near the Blaine-Custer county line. The elevation of this mountain is 12,078 feet. There are, however, several unnamed peaks near Hyndman Peak whose elevations are greater than 12,000 feet as shown by the contours on the Hailey topographic map published by the United States Geological Survey.

Wigwagging.

[Cleveland Plain Dealer:] Each of the ladies wore a brilliant wig. Strange to say, no two were alike in hue.

"Let's accomplish something worth while," said the lady who preferred green.

"But what can we accomplish?" asked the lady in blue.

"Women can accomplish anything if they put their heads together."

So they put their heads together and accomplished a rainbow.

The First Easter; Its Story in Art.

By John Elfreth Watkins.

WORK OF MASTERS.

TO THE great Easter pictures of the masters one turns with relief after having contemplated the famous canvases depicting the revolting scenes, the tragedies, the terrors and agonies which befell between the last supper and the entombment of Jesus—painful events which orthodox Christians have commemorated throughout the past fortnight, passion week and holy week.

To pass from these themes to the resurrection and the events directly following is to close one's eyes upon horrors enacted under lowering skies, and open them upon the dawn of a radiant springtime morning of sublime amazements and rejoicings.

The miraculous event which Easter commemorates was long avoided by artists as too tremendous, too sacred. Those who first dared the theme executed it with realism, depicting the resurrected Christ as actually stepping out of the tomb or standing upon it and as always bearing in His hand the "resurrection flag," with its red cross upon a white ground, a banner emblematic of victory over the grave. The only scriptural data which these painters had to guide them were these few words:

"Therefore one of the soldiers who guarded the tomb came, and said in the synagogue: 'Know that Jesus is risen!' The Jews said: 'How?' And he said: 'First there was an earthquake; then an angel of the Lord bearing lightning came down from heaven and rolled away the stone from the sepulcher, and sat upon it. And, through fear of this all we soldiers became as dead men, and could neither flee nor speak.'"

The Resurrection.

The earliest painting of the resurrection preserved among the world's art treasures is a panel by Giotto, which shows a clad figure of Christ bearing the banner described, and posed as if about to float upward from the edge of a coffin-like tomb, before which are seen the figures of two prone soldiers.

Giotto, the painter of this earliest resurrection scene, was a poor shepherd lad from near Florence. A noted artist once came upon him by accident, just as the boy, with a pointed pebble, was drawing one of his sheep upon a smooth rock. So remarkable was the sketch that the painter took Giotto back with him to Florence, where he became greater than his master. He became also the intimate friend of the poets Dante and Tetrarch, and after decorating St. Peter's Church in Rome he had honors showered upon him by the Popes. He was noted also as a wit, as we know from Boccaccio, and it was he who, when once tripped and thrown by some pigs, smilingly remarked: "Are they not right, when I have earned in my day thousands of crowns with their bristles, and yet have never given them so much as a bowl of soup?"

The three Marys are represented at the tomb as talking to the angel, while the Christ is suspended above them in the picture painted, somewhat over a century later, by Fra Angelico, the next master to attempt the resurrection theme. This artist, who might have earned wealth and ease with his brush, preferred to become a monk. After he had become famed as a painter Pope Nicholas V offered to make him Archbishop of Florence, but he declined because feeling himself incapable of ruling men.

Two Noted Models.

Another of the great pictures of the resurrection—one adorning the Vatican—shows an altar-shaped tomb surrounded by four soldiers. The slab covering the tomb has been moved out of place, and above rises the Christ between two adoring angels. He bears the resurrection flag in his left hand, while the right is raised in benediction. Of the soldiers represented at the base of the tomb three sit with eyes closed, while the fourth stands guard and raises his hand in amazement at what he beholds. This amazed soldier is said to have the features of the great painter Perugino, while the model for the sleeping soldier on the left of the picture is alleged to have been Raphael, then one of Perugino's pupils.

Some say that Raphael worked on this picture, and others now go so far as to claim that he painted it entirely. Perugino, to whom it has generally been credited, was another poor lad who went to Florence to find skill and fame. He became a talented portrait painter, and throughout his great decorative works are distributed wonderful likenesses of his contemporaries.

During his time, at about the period of the discovery of America, there seems to have been painted another striking picture of the resurrection—one now in the National Gallery, London. In the center of this canvas rises a sharp pinnacle of rock, against which stands the risen Christ upon a marble sarcophagus. He is partly clad in a red mantle, and carries the usual resurrection flag. Below, upon a ledge of rock, are five soldiers, four lying unconscious and the fifth apparently keeping watch.

One of the Mysteries.

Although there is some mystery as to the painter of the scene, he is generally supposed to have been Francesco Mantegna, the son and pupil of that great Andrea Mantegna who married Bellini's daughter and painted one of the chapels of the Vatican.

The stone of the sepulcher has fallen and crushed one of the soldiers represented in the resurrection painted at about the same period by Ravaellino del Garbo, a pupil of Fra Filippo Lippi. One other soldier is prostrate with terror, while two others are asleep.

Ivy has already covered one end of the more roughly-hewn tomb, shown in a contemporary resurrection group painted by Leonardo da Vinci. That many-sided genius, also born near Florence, painted the recently-stolen but recovered Mona Lisa, the most wonderful portrait in the world, and yet gained success also as a sculptor, architect, engineer, inventor, astronomer and musician. Raphael, Fra Bartolommeo, Caracci, Titian, Sodoma and Tintoretto also attempted the resurrection, with varying success.

Titian represents the risen Christ as soaring high in midair. Sodoma, whose conception is herewith reproduced, depicts Him in the act of stepping out of a very conventional sarcophagus. The left foot is still in the tomb, and the right, which has just been withdrawn, rests upon the ground. Close below, upon a terrace, are sleeping soldiers, while an angel leans upon each end of the tomb, and in the background the cloaked figures of the three Marys are seen approaching. Tintoretto represents Jesus as bursting out of the rock of the sepulcher with such force that the rent stones threaten to crush the guarding angels themselves. Rembrandt attempted the same theme. He represented the angel in the act of removing the slab covering the sepulcher from which the Christ is awakening. In the foreground the shadowy forms of soldiers flee in terror and disorder, and one of them is overturned, head first, by the lifting of the slab. These representations, thus hastily described, are not among the masterpieces of their painters, nor are they surrounded by incidents of particular interest.

The Marys at the Tomb.

One of the most beautiful of the great modern paintings dedicated to the first Easter morning is that of Hofmann, representing the three Marys halted just inside the deeply-chiseled doorway of a great tomb, far within which is seen the angel of the resurrection in a burst of light. Two of the women have dropped to their knees. One bears the bowl in which they had brought spices.

Bouguereau, the modern French historical and portrait painter, has used the same theme. As seen in the accompanying reproduction, he represents the three Mary's gathered at the door of the tomb, where they find the huge stone rolled away and the interior of the sepulcher glowing with heavenly light. In another painting, "Easter Morn," Bouguereau paints the tomb far in the background, as a rocky cave, at the mouth of which sits the angel. In the foreground are two of the holy women, amazed at the white, haloed figure of the risen Christ standing before them, banner in hand.

"Noli Me Tangere."

After the resurrection, the next happening of the first Easter Day to have inspired many of the great painters was the scene in the garden when Mary Magdalene, after mistaking Jesus for the gardener, approached Him and received the admonition: "Touch me not! (Noli me tangere.) For I am not yet ascended to my father." This scene has been represented by several of the masters under the title "Noli Me Tangere." Perhaps the most beautiful of these is the painting by Correggio, which hangs in the Prado Gallery, Madrid. He shows the Magdalene fallen upon her knees, while she looks up with amazement at the Christ, who gazes earnestly down at her as He passes before her with one hand pointing to heaven. The hand with which she has attempted to touch Him is drawn back in this view, but in the accompanying painting of the same scene by the great Titian she is endeavoring to touch Him and He is withdrawing from her the white robes in which He is partially clad. In this picture Titian oddly enough places a hoe in the hand of the Christ, to carry out the story that Mary mistook Him for the gardener, and Lorenzo di Credi, a contemporary, also placed a hoe, although a much stouter implement, in the hand of the risen Christ. In the painting of this scene by Barocci, who belonged to the next generation, the meeting seems to take place indoors, and Mary has a small jar in her hand.

The Supper at Emmaus.

The resurrected Christ's appearance to the disciples on their way to Emmaus and his supper with them there are the next Easter events which have inspired great pictures. For the painting of this supper scene by Titian (reproduced herewith) several well-known dignitaries of the time were used as models. Thus the disciple on the right, with a pilgrim's hat, is Cardinal Ximenez; the other disciple represents Ferdinand the Catholic, while the [illegible] of the inn is Charles V, and the page is Philip II. Another celebrated canvas devoted to this theme is that of Rembrandt, hanging in the Louvre, Paris.

The incredulity of St. Thomas, who, until he inspected the crucifixion wounds, refused to believe that he beheld the resurrected form of his Master—the event which gave us our phrase "doubting Thomas"—has been represented in numerous great paintings, notably that of Rubens, now in the Antwerp Museum. A great canvas depicting a scene directly following this is one of Raphael, showing the risen Christ in the act of sending His eleven apostles out into the world to preach the gospel and heal the sick.

The Ascension.

Painters long hesitated to attempt the ascension of Jesus, and Giotto, the one-time shepherd boy mentioned above, was one of the first to paint it. In the earlier representations Jesus is shown grasping the hand of God extended to Him through the clouds. Correggio painted the wonderful conception of this scene, but its seriousness is thought by some critics to be marred by the too-mischievous antics of the little angels who rejoice at the great event taking place. Another remarkable ascension is that by the aforementioned Andrea Mantegna, which is reproduced on this page. It hangs in the Uffizi Gallery, Florence, and represents the Christ in the conventional attitude of giving the benediction and bearing the resurrection flag. He floats upward upon a little platform of cloud, from which rises a nebulous background, whence peep a dozen little cherubim. Perugino, as seen in another of the accompanying reproductions, represented the ascending Christ as encircled in a wreath of cherub heads. Rembrandt painted a group of little angels clinging to the cloud on which the Christ was ascending to heaven.

Canon Farrar ranked the ascension "among the subjects which it would have been mucn wiser to leave unpainted, or, at any rate, to paint only in a purely symbolic manner."

Lima in 1914.

gated tracts are scattered through fifteen small valleys, and they consist altogether of about 70,000 acres of cultivated fields and woodlands. They are divided into 176 estates, many of the holdings being large. Practically the whole support of the city comes from this valley, and from the trade with Peru.

The conditions about Lima are such that it never rains. There is not a waterproof nor a pair of overshoes in the whole town, and umbrellas are used only to keep out the sun. The streets have no gutters, and the roofs have no chimneys. All of the cooking is done over charcoal, the fumes of which get out as they can. The town has practically no backyards, and only on the outskirts are there gardens. The most of the buildings run around courts or patios upon which the chief rooms face. The larger houses are fine, and they cover a great deal of ground, a single one often having twenty or more rooms, surrounding several large courts, in some of which play fountains amid tropical trees.

Many of the older buildings are beautiful and exceedingly comfortable. Some of them are largely constructed of sun-dried brick, or of plaster spread over a framework of wood, lathed with bamboo canes. The roofs are of this nature. The outer walls of such buildings are covered with stucco and the city has a very substantial appearance, whereas much of it, as I said in a former letter, is a combination of mud and fishing poles.

Of late they are putting up many fine structures of reinforced concrete; and along the Avenue of the Exposition, for instance, are residences that would be considered fine anywhere in the world. Lima has altogether now about 150,000 inhabitants. It is steadily growing, and when the canal is completed its population and business will greatly increase. It will be one of the chief tourist resorts of South America; and if it can only have some better hotels it will be the most delightful resort along the west coast.

As it is now, the hotel accommodations are limited. There are two or three large establishments which have rooms and board. You may take your accommodations on the American or European plan, and the rates are just about as high as those of the States. You will have chambermen instead of chambermaids, and your meals will consist of desayuno, almuerzo and dinners. Desayuno means the cup of black coffee and two little rolls which you eat for your breakfast. This the boy will bring to you in your chamber, and you may have it in bed if you choose. Almuerzo comes at 12 o'clock, when there is a fairly good table d'hote meal, and at 6 or 7 there is a table d'hote dinner. At both of these latter meals the dishes are Spanish, and they are recorded on a menu which most tourists need a dictionary to read. I am stopping at the Maury, which vies with the Grand as the best hotel in Peru. It is a great two-story structure with wide balconies extending over the street. I have a room facing the street for which they ask $4 gold per day without board. Back of this is a little sitting-room. There are no private [illegible] rooms to speak of, and altogether the hotel might be improved in a number of ways.

which He is partially clad. In this picture Titian oddly enough places a hoe in the hand of the Christ, to carry out the story that Mary mistook Him for the gardener, and Lorenzo di Credi, a contemporary, also placed a hoe, although a much stouter implement, in the hand of the risen Christ. In the painting of this scene by Barocci, who belonged to the next generation, the meeting seems to take place indoors, and Mary has a small jar in her hand.

The Supper at Emmaus.

The resurrected Christ's appearance to the disciples on their way to Emmaus and his supper with them there are the next Easter events which have inspired great pictures. For the painting of this supper scene by Titian (reproduced herewith) several well-known dignitaries of the time were used as models. Thus the disciple on the right, with a pilgrim's hat, is Cardinal Ximenez; the other disciple represented is Ferdinand the Catholic, while the landlord of the inn is Charles V, and the page is Philip II. Another celebrated canvas devoted to this theme is that of Rembrandt, hanging in the Louvre, Paris.

The incredulity of St. Thomas, who, until he inspected the crucifixion wounds, refused to believe that he beheld the resurrected form of his Master—the event which gave us our phrase "doubting Thomas"—has been represented in numerous great paintings, notably that of Rubens, now in the Antwerp Museum. A great canvas depicting a scene directly following this is one of Raphael, showing the risen Christ in the act of sending His eleven apostles out into the world to preach the gospel and heal the sick.

The Ascension.

Painters long hesitated to attempt also the ascension of Jesus, and Giotto, the onetime shepherd boy mentioned above, was one of the first to paint it. In the earliest representations Jesus is shown grasping the hand of God extended to Him through the clouds. Correggio painted the wonderful conception of this scene, but one whose seriousness is thought by some critics to be marred by the too-mischievous antics of the little angels who rejoice at the great event taking place. Another remarkable ascension is that by the aforementioned Andrea Mantegna, which is reproduced on this page. It hangs in the Uffizi Gallery, Florence, and represents the Christ in the conventional attitude of giving the benediction and bearing the resurrection flag. He floats upward upon a little platform of cloud, from which rises a nebulous background, whence peep a dozen little cherubim. Perugino, as seen in another of the accompanying reproductions, represented the ascending Christ as encircled in a wreath of cherub heads. Rembrandt painted a group of little angels clinging to the cloud on which the Christ was ascending to heaven.

Canon Farrar ranked the ascension "among the subjects which it would have been mucn wiser to leave unpainted, or, at any rate, to paint only in a purely symbolic manner."

Applied a Proverb.

APROPOS of his policy of silence, Mayor Mitchel of New York said at a dinner:

"In silence there is safety. They who want opinions often get opinions they don't want. Take the young planter's case.

"A young Mississippi planter had a servant, Uncle Jeff, who cared for him as a child and who was very devoted to him. The young man became engaged to a neighboring beauty who was credited with a very bad temper. Noticing that Uncle Jeff never mentioned his approaching marriage, the young planter said one day:

" 'Jeff, you know I'm going to marry Miss Lamar?'

" 'Yes,' was the reply. 'I knows it.'

" 'I haven't heard you say anything about it,' persisted the planter.

" 'No,' Jeff acknowledged. ' 'Tain't for me to say nuffin' about it. I isn't got nuffin' to say.'

" 'But what's your opinion about it?'

" 'Well, massa,' said Jeff with some hesitation, 'you knows one thing—the most pisenest snakes has got the most prettiest skins.' "—[New York Globe.

Getting the Goods on Grandpa.

"PA, DID you ever run away when you were a boy?"

"No, never."

"Did you always go to Sunday-school?"

"I never missed a Sunday."

"Did you ever do what your parents told you not to do?"

"I am glad to say that I never did."

"Didn't you ever make a fuss when you had to take a bath?"

"I should say not. I always took my bath without complaining. I liked it."

"Didn't it ever make you mad to be called in to do something for your mother when you would rather stay out and play with the other boys?"

"It always gave me the keenest pleasure to do things for my mother, no matter whether I had to stop playing or not."

"And did you always speak respectfully to your parents?"

"Always. That was one of the first things I ever learned to do."

"Gee, what a liar grandpa is!"—[Chicago Record-Herald.

Fresh Enough for Hilyard.

COMING down in the commutation train the other morning Hilyard Stokes conversed with a neighbor on how implicitly some people follow instructions. Mr. Stokes is connected with a fertilizer firm and is known by every farmer and is exceedingly popular.

While on a trip through the rural zone recently, Mr. Stokes said, he visited a farmer friend who was about to harvest a crop of veal, and, anticipating a beautiful Sunday dinner, Hilyard asked the farmer to ship him a chunk when he had done the killing.

"Thee knows I had to tease him a little," continued Hilyard, "so I told Henry that the veal had to be fresh and that if it was the least bit stale when I got it I would never pay him a cent."

"I see," was the amused rejoinder of the neighbor. "I suppose the veal was fresh?"

"Thee just bet it was!" declared Mr. Stokes. "Didn't thee see a calf eating snowballs in my side yard when thee passed this morning?"—[Philadelphia Telegraph.

Wasn't Impressed.

ANGUS M'TAVISH was a Lowlander, rich and thoroughly Scotch. He had never seen the Highlands or the beautiful lakes of Scotland, except from a long distance.

He paid a visit to America, and in New York was shown all the sights. However, he was not impressed, and still thought the Lowlands of Scotland far superior. As a final attempt to show Angus something that would impress him, his friends took him to Niagara Falls. Angus looked at them critically, and, when asked if he did not think them the most marvelous thing he had ever seen, he remarked:

"Aye, mon, they are grand! But do ye ken the aul peacock in Dumfries that had the wooden leg?"—[Cleveland Leader.

Waste of Energy.

CAROLINE LOCKHART, the novelist, said on a recent visit to New York:

"What amazing toilets the rich woman makes today! Her bath and massage require an hour; the coiffeur demands an hour more; then there's the manicure; then there's the application, before a Louis Quinze dressing table, of a dozen unguents and cosmetics from bottles mounted in old silver. And her actual dressing, the actual putting on of her clothes, hasn't, mark you, yet begun!

"It all makes me think of a shack I once put up at overnight in the prairie. I rose at daybreak and washed my face and hands in a creek behind the house. A piece of burlap bag hung on a branch, and I used this for a towel. Then I took a comb from my pocket.

"A boy of 12 had been watching me with a cynical smile. When he saw my comb appear he could restrain himself no longer. He gave a laugh of scorn and yelled:

" 'Hey, lady, ain't you a good deal o' trouble to yerself?' "—[St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

How He Could Tell.

A GEORGIA "cracker" tells this story of his own people: He says a northern man who had settled in Georgia was visited by a friend, who asked him how he liked the place and the people.

"Oh, all right," replied the man.

"Now, tell me," asked the friend, "what is a Georgia cracker?" How can you tell him from another person?"

"Well," replied the northern settler, "you see out in that field a black object?"

"Yes," said the friend.

"Now," said the man, "that may be either a 'Georgia cracker' or a stump. Watch it for half an hour, and if it moves, why, it's a stump."—[Chicago Journal.

Wrong Ideas.

EX-MAYOR SHANK of Indianapolis, discussing the high cost of living, said:

"It's the consumer's fault, after all. The consumer should make laws to protect himself against rapacity. Judging from present conditions, the consumer's ideas seem a good deal like the bride's.

"A husband, a few weeks after the honeymoon, came home and said in desolate accents:

" 'My love, I'm heart-broken. My salary has been cut down 15 per cent.'

" 'Oh, that's nothing,' cried the young bride cheerily. 'Cheep & Co. are advertising perfectly lovely things cut down 25 per cent.' "—[Unidentified.

A Candid Opinion.

MR. HARRIS had been considering for some time the advisability of approaching his son's school teacher in regard to that young man's studies. He was sure William was not getting along as fast as he should, and this fact worried the father greatly.

He was greeted kindly by the teacher, and after a few preliminary questions the father inquired:

"What branch do you consider the most profitable for my son William, Mr. Flint?"

"I can hardly say, but I think a good, stout blue beech or a long, sinuous birch would do him as much good as any."—[Lippincott's.

No Star, No Mercy.

LITTLE Everett was a member of the Band of Mercy Society, and was proud of the membership. He wore his badge, a small star, as if it were a policeman's insignia, and was often heard reproving other boys and girls for cruel treatment of dogs and cats.

One morning a woman of the neighborhood heard a commotion outside Everett's home, and, going to the window, was surprised to find Everett in the act of tormenting the cat.

"Why, Everett," she called, "what are you doing to that poor cat? I thought you belonged to the Band of Mercy Society?"

"I did," replied the little boy, "but I lost my star."—[Lippincott's.

He Was Cautious.

CONGRESSMAN MARTIN B. MADDEN was commenting the other day on the tendency of certain politicians to keep on the safe side. "Their bump of caution," he said, "is almost as well developed as that of a certain colored man named George Augustus White. A friend of mine, who had taken a farm in Virginia, was looking for somebody to clean and whitewash his chicken coop. He was referred to George Augustus White.

" 'George,' he said, 'if you have time tomorrow, I know of a hen coop that you can clean out.'

" 'All right, boss,' replied the darky; "guess Ah kin find time tomorrow night.'

" 'Tomorrow night! Why can't you do it in the daytime?'

" 'Look hyah, boss,' chuckled the colored one; 'yo-all wouldn't want me to take a chance of cleanin' out a chicken coop in the daytime, would you?' "—[Chicago Inter Ocean.

A Hard Proposition.

"HOW'S the family?" a fond parent was asked.

"Well, my children are at a difficult age now."

"Difficult? Why, they've all passed the measles and teething stage, have they not?"

"Long ago. But you don't know a father's troubles. My children are at the age where if I use slang my wife says I'm setting a bad example, and if I speak correctly, the youngsters think I'm a back number. Which would you do?"—[New York Herald.

Couldn't be Done.

THE talk topic turned to wifely devotion, when Congressman William H. Stafford of Wisconsin was reminded of the justifiable objection of a certain pretty little bride.

A young couple were married at the parsonage of a certain minister, and the good dominie essayed a little advice.

"It is the duty of the husband to love and protect his wife," impressively lectured the minister, "and it is the duty of the wife to obey her husband and follow him wherever he goes. She should——"

"But, parson," interposed the fair bride, with a serious look, "it is utterly impossible. You see——"

"It is not impossible, sister," hastily assured the minister, "in fact, you must——"

"But, parson," again interposed the bride, "I simply can't follow him everywhere. He is a letter carrier."—[Philadelphia Telegraph.

Seemed Too Personal.

A WELL-KNOWN university professor who has taken much interest in the woman's suffrage movement, was persuaded to carry a banner in a parade.

His wife observed him marching with a dejected air and carrying his banner so that it hung limply on its standard, and later she reproved him for not making a better appearance.

"Why didn't you march like somebody and let people see your banner?" she asked.

"My dear," meekly replied the professor, "did you see what was on the banner? It read: 'Any man can vote. Why can't I?' "—[Stray Stories.

Propitious Skies.

A GARRULOUS old negro in a southern city used to meet the judge of the county court nearly every day on the way to market. Long friendship between the two had let down the bars a little, and the black man's invariable salutation was:

"Mornin', jedge; what's the news today, jedge, sah?"

The white man once varied his usual answer: "No news, Jerry," by giving the negro a real bit. "The United States has just declared war against Spain," he said.

For a minute old Jerry was flustered by this departure from routine, but quickly recovered his balance, and, with a wise eye cocked up at the cloudless sky, he chirped:

"Well, jedge, dey's picked a good day for it."—[Everybody's Magazine.

The old Hunt mansion which adjoined the Ardmore place back in Virginia was left in the care of a faithful ex-slave, as Basil was the last of his family. No one, save occasionally his lawyer, heard from Basil Hunt, and no one, save faithful Aunt Huldah, knew that on certain special days each year a little brown-haired figure from the next lawn slipped noiselessly into the empty house with an armful of fresh flowers for the great vase which this same little figure had placed beneath the picture of a dreamy-eyed boy. Ruth had played her part well, and even the brother who had so long been father as well to his little sister, was deceived. When Basil left so suddenly Brother Jack had watched Ruth closely for a while, his heart sore for the pain which he thought must be hers. But she appeared unchanged, her social career was undimmed and she had continued to be the belle of the county, apparently njoying keenly her many conquests. So a ast he breathed in relief, putting her off s mind with the thought: "After all, Basil was not the mate meant for my little girl— e is still to come."

But Ruth's conquests d been to her as the apples of Sodom. Among the eager suitors who had hung on her words none could take Basil's place, a d she had grown tired of being called he tless. Then at length she had sent for a orphaned cousin in a distant State, whon she had never seen, a girl a few years unger than she and bearing her own full name, to make her a long visit. She was always conscious of a sen e of loneliness, and even in her gayest mo ents her heart cried out for its mate. Bu womanly pride and great will power we e depicted in Ruth's sweet, firmly cut lips nd determined chin, and now, as always, s put down her longing for Basil with th thought, "He would have come back if e had really cared," and her wounded pri e stormily upbraided her heart for its co stancy to one who had so easily forgotten

She had come to Cali nia with no thought of making it her home, but the lure of climate and the romance of Spanish history so appealed to her imagination that she had not gone back to Virginia. When her visit was over she had taken a tiny apartment, and had spent hours each day at the public library devouring histories of the early days. She had visited the missions, learning the history of each till it was at her tongue's end, and spending her substance for kodak films for pictures which were among her chief treasures. Then she had written charming articles of the days of the padres and the dons, but it seemed that the many editors to whom she submitted these papers were not so much impressed with the fascination of her subject as she was, and her purse strings grew quite slack. There had seemed to be nothing she could do. Teaching was an impossibility unless she should first take a post-graduate course in one of California's colleges, and that was out of the question. She did not want to write to Brother Jack for money, neither was she ready yet to go back home, back to that land of memories. Then a happy idea took possession of her brain just as despair was about to enter, and her problem was solved. She became a professional chaperon for the children of fich tourists, taking daily parties by private auto on sight-seeing expeditions, thus putting into practical use the vast store of information which was hers. Soon other tourists besides children were glad to have so well-informed a guide, and Ruth's patronage had grown until she now owned her own touring car and employed her own chauffeur. She also owned the little brown bungalow perched on the edge of the canyon and looking out of its maze of blossoming vines upon a wonderful panorama of ocean and purpling, snow-capped mountains.

Saturday dawned clear and bright, one of those shining April days when California seems a land of charmed and charming unreality, when the senses are dominant and one feels a kinship with the wild creatures of the woods which bask in the glorious semitropical sunlight. Ruth, skimming along in her car at noontime over the silvery, ribbon-like road to Rosemont, felt it a joy merely to be alive. The odor of orange blossoms filled the air, and pink and white Cherokee roses seemed to be running riot over the face of the earth. The soft green of the foothills was broken by great patches of bright yellow wild flowers, as if the gold of Ophir had been spilled there and lay glowing in the brilliant sunlight.

As Ruth Ardmore entered the lobby of the hotel she was herself a picture of rare loveliness. Her rounded form was beautiful in a suit of soft, rich brown, her blue eyes were sparkling and her cheeks aglow; while from beneath the close fitting rim of her auto cap clustering curls peeped out.

Her friend, the hotel manager, came toward her, and following him were several women and the tall figure of a man. Suddenly Ruth's senses reeled, the blood rushed to her head with such force that she was stifled and her heart throbs pounded in her ears like the blows of a hammer. She could hear only one name as Mr. Stansell's genial tones introduced his guests to their personal conductor. That name was as familiar to Ruth as was her own, and she found herself looking into Basil Hunt's dark eyes. She never knew how she recovered herself without betraying to the others of the party that she and Basil were old friends, nor how her brain became clear enough for her to tell of all the points of interest they passed. She was conscious of but one thing in all the universe, and that was the fact that she was once more in the presence of her lover, that his dark eyes were fixed upon her in mingled surprise, admiration and longing while she talked. In a whirl of intoxicating joy she did not try to reason out his being there, nor consider that he might be married, that the girl with fluffy yellow hair and a baby face, sitting beside him, might be his wife. His presence was all she knew, and it seemed to Ruth that her subconscious brain was doing all the talking as they sped along. But it was done so well that even Basil could not guess that his fair guide's whole thought was not on the subject of California's history and topography.

At last the afternoon was over. San Gabriel with its famed old bell-tower and its clambering centenarian rose vine had been seen and enjoyed, its history related and its dreamy spell from the long-buried past cast over all. The homeward spin had been made, and the little party drove up in the gathering twilight to the hotel. The women, full of enthusiastic praise of their trip, said good-by to Ruth and hurried in to get ready for the train to Riverside. Then Basil came for his "good-by," saying eagerly, "When may I see you alone?"

"Tomorrow morning," said Ruth, giving him her card. "Come early." And with that she was gone.

It seemed to Ruth that the sunrise on that Easter morning was more radiantly beautiful than any sight she had seen in all her thirty-three years. She arose from a happy, sleepless night when the first faint light of dawn appeared in the east and dressed herself with quick, excited fingers in a simple gown of softly clinging white. Then throwing a warm white shawl around her shoulders, she stepped out into her rose garden for a spray of Cecil Brunner buds, half blown, the unfolding pink of their petals shining with dew. Twining the flowers in her hair, she lifted her face and caught her breath almost in pain as the beauty of the morning filled her soul. The eastern sky was a sea of pink and gold, throwing soft rainbows of color on the billows of white mist in the valley below. To the north the big mountains towered, emerging from the purple shadows which enveloped them, their rugged, snow-crowned peaks rose-colored in the morning light. Ruth's eyes were filled with a glad new light, and her heart was aglow with praise as she hummed an old Easter anthem.

A quick step sounded on the graveled walk and in another instant Basil stood beside her.

"Ruth, darling!" he murmured, trying to draw her close. But she moved away, the hurt pride of her womanhood showing in her eyes.

"Oh, Basil!" she murmured; "if you really cared, how could you stay away so long?"

"I read a notice of your marriage, Ruth," he answered hoarsely, "and after that I ceased to live. Life for me was mere existence, and I had no wish to go home. What did it all mean? Tell me," he said, catching her hands fiercely.

"My marriage!" Ruth said vaguely, as if she had not heard aright. "I never thought of such a thing." Then a swift light of understanding illumined her face, and she exclaimed: "Oh, Basil! That was Ruth the Second, my little cousin! To think that after all, Ned Forester's marriage should have kept you from me all these years! It seems the irony of fate!"

"Ruth, Ruth, my darling!" breathed Basil tenderly, gathering her in a close embrace, "nothing can keep me from you now."

, in the Wide World:] It the latter part of June, 1911, laden with provisions and coal months' supply—lumber and for a winter camp, and all the that goes to make up a naval , our little schooner left the behind, and commenced the to the North land. Up past the Labrador cliffs we sailed, but- ged our way through the ice the Hudson Straits, and pene- and fields of the great north- a month of strenuous and we dropped anchor off the Nelson River. Two days preliminary examination; the pilotage of a native Cree, tide behind her, the the bar, nosed her way tortuous channel, and finally the sheltered waters of the vessel to enter Port Nelson. in August when we moved ashore and pitched our tents on the bank of the Nelson, that mighty stream that flows through the breadth of Keewatin, draining the finest game country in Canada, before emptying its mud-laden waters into the Hudson Bay. The ducks, black and mallard, sawbills, and the numerous other varieties that haunt our northern lakes, were already lighting on the marshes, or on the placid waters of the tidal creeks, their temporary resting-places on the long journey south. Accompanying them were the gray geese and their pretty cousins, the white swans, the former daily passing by in wedges, awakening the stillness with their "Honk, honk." Over the gravel beaches and the shining mud-flats skipped plover and yellow-legged snipe.

These were but the forerunners, the heralds of the game tribe, that throughout the long weary winter months passed before our door. Caribou and moose, polar bear, white whale and seal, Arctic and colored fox, marten, mink, beaver and ermine, rabbit, gray goose and white swan, black and mallard duck, spruce partridge, ptarmigan, plover and snipe, silvery-scaled white fish and rainbow trout—all these we shot, trapped, snared and netted in variable numbers, and all within a one-mile radius of our camp. Truly we had dropped into a sportsman's paradise.

Our first caribou, a magnificent buck, came as a gift from the gods. He was shot less than 200 yards from the door of our shack. It was really a case of "getting money from home without asking for it," for the poor animal had not one chance in a hundred of escaping. It was in the latter part of September, and the last venison steak had been eaten the day before. An expedition for the purpose of replenishing the meat safe was being contemplated. George had gone outside the shack and, happening to take a glance along the river, saw what appeared to be a tree drifting upstream on the rising tide. Looking more closely, he noticed that it was turning round and round. Knowing there were no eddies in the current there, the idea that it might be a deer occurred to me, and I hurried into the camp after my glasses. One look confirmed the suspicion, and I sang out to the boys: "Get the dory launched and drive that deer ashore."

Le Moineau

I am a common sparrow,
  Plainly feathered brown and gray;
I have no melodious chanson,
  Cannot sing a bit, some say.

Even worse: I'm christened greedy,
  A marauder in my world,
Where mankind the flag of warfare
  'Gainst my presence keeps unfurled.

And yet, heedless of the weather,
  On a bare or snow-clad twig
I can never cease my chirping
  Nor to wish to dance a jig.

So, despite my worthy scorners,
  If but for my steadfast glee,
Surely, there's a songful reason,
  Why I flit from tree to tree.

Schoolgrounds in 1915

THOSE IN RURAL DISTRICTS SHOULD BE BEAUTIFIED.

IT IS expected that during the year 1915 all of California will be on dress parade. If this is to be the programme, and everything at present points in this one direction, we must not overlook a single phase of the beautification scheme. The writer has in mind at this moment the rural district school. It is both interesting and satisfying to know that Los Angeles city schools will be well taken care of by the school-garden department and that it is doing noble missionary work with other and lesser municipalities, but will the gospel be carried to the outlying rural districts?

But yesterday the writer, on his way to Riverside, passed by a country school where not a single plant except weeds grew upon the grounds and the latter had no definite boundary to show separation from the vast fields surrounding. This school is but a few hundred feet distant from and in full view of one of our main lines of travel. Can we afford to allow such an advertisement to stand during 1915? Its remoteness or lack of relative importance should offer no excuse for its neglect; yet how true it is that what is every one's business is nobody's business. Strange that the one piece of property in a community in which all have common interest should be the one most neglected. County Boards of Education are advised that herein is suggested a fertile field awaiting "cultivation" a word fraught with much meaning and capable of various interpretations.

Even an inclosure of the schoolyard by a row of trees on two or more sides would serve to distinguish the extent of public ownership and provide both shade and protection from wind, rain, etc. A double or triple row along one or two sides would, in the case noted, afford much needed protection, rendering the schoolyard much more pleasant to all during every month in the year. A few flowering shrubs and herbaceous plants around the base of the building would make it more attractive in many ways and put a touch of life and color into an otherwise wholly unattractive property. If nothing more was done except to clear the yard of weeds it would provide sufficient area for the exercise of healthful play by the attendant pupils, whereas now no possible incentive is offered children for attendance except the dull round of study.

Walnut-Oak Hybrids.

THE University of California has for some years been carrying on careful experiments to determine if hybrids may be artificially produced between the two genera, as seems to have occurred naturally on the hills of Orange county.

Though much careful work has been done by Prof. E. B. Babcock and it is believed some results have been accomplished, nothing definite has been claimed by him in his late bulletin "Studies in Juglans." In a private letter to the writer Prof. Babcock states: "The supposed hybrids produced by the 1908 pollination work bore nuts last summer. These were planted last fall, and about 2000 have germinated. Among these seedlings not one has been found to exhibit oak characters." It is hoped that third-generation seedlings may prove that hybridization was actually accomplished, but time alone will tell the tale, so meanwhile we can but watch and wait.

The Yucca Family.

OF THE growing of yuccas there is no end, for so many species are known that Dr. Trelease of the Missouri Botanic Gardens a few years ago devoted a considerable volume to this one family. In local parks and gardens may be found many species, several of them native to this State. The better-known of the Californians are Y. arborescens, the giant yucca or "Joshua Tree" of the Mojave Desert, and Y. Whipplei, the "Spanish Bayonet," so common on the hills in all parts of Southern California. The one we illustrate is the variegated form of Yucca aloifolia, native to the south Atlantic Coast of the United States, being most common in the Carolinas and by no means rare in California gardens.

Ideal Eucalptus Plantation.

THOSE interested in the planting of eucalypts in local territory would do well to inspect the grove of William Malcom, principal of the Ramona School, Alhambra, said grove consisting of eighty acres located at Puente. The grove is now four years old and contains three species: E. globulus (Blue Gum,) T. tereticorns (Red Gum,) and E. corynocalyx (Sugar Gum.) No comment will be made on this plantation, it is merely mentioned because of numerous inquiries which are frequently received asking where a study could be had of an ideal grove in local territory.

Much Light on a Dark Subject.

LOCAL plant sharps will be pleased to learn that the first volume is out of Prof. Bailey's new "Cyclopedia of Horticulture," a complete revision of the original work issued thirteen years ago. Space at command will not allow of an extended review, but the value of the present volume as compared to the first volume of the old issue is at least "ten to one." The whole will be complete in six volumes and the second and third are promised during the current year, the last three in 1915.

Of Interest to Plant Breeders.

ANSWERING several inquiries regarding information on plant breeding, those interested in breeding of any kind are informed that an organization known as the "American Genetic Association," officered almost wholly by officials of the Federal government, has headquarters at No. 511 Eleventh street, N.W., Washington, D.C. They issue a magazine devoted wholly to breeding and all interested in the subject and recommended by a member are eligible for membership, with dues at $2 a year, including a subscription to the magazine.

HOME MADE.

Sewing-Basket Stand.

[New York Tribune:] This stand may be made of three bamboo canes or three broomsticks. These should be thirty inches long. Fasten them firmly in the center with wire. Fasten a shallow basket with wire near the end of the canes. It will be more secure if holes are bored in the canes to pass the wire through. White enamel the whole. If a cover is desired for the basket, sew a strip of pretty cretonne or China silk to the inside of the basket and run a drawstring of narrow ribbon or cord on top. Use bows of ribbon to cover wire where the canes cross and where basket is attached to stand. Ribbon used should match cretonne or silk that is used for basket trimming.

A Vacation Pillow.

This is made of linen or cretonne of a color that will not quickly show soiling. Cut two pieces eighteen and one-half inches, square for the pillow proper and one piece ten and three-fourths inches by eighteen and one-half inches, with the pattern running the ten-inch way if the material has an up and down pattern. The third piece is for the pocket. Hem this piece one-half an inch in all and stitch flat. Lay it on one of the large pieces, with the right side of both facing out; the smaller piece will extend ten and one-fourth inches on the larger one. Stitch down the center to make two nine-inch pockets. Now put the other large piece on the back, turn it wrong side out and stitch on the other two sides and bottom. Allow one-fourth-inch seams on all sides, pocket included. Turn right side out again., Place an eighteen-inch floss pillow inside and oversew the top to close the pillow. Make a strap one inch wide and twenty inches long from the remaining material and attach it to the top ends of the pillow. The pillow weighs very little and may be carried over the shoulder without being in the way. The pockets hold books, writing material or fancy work—whatever one may wish to carry when going in the woods or fields.

THE MENDING BASKET.

To Sew On a Skirt Braid.

[Denver Tribune:] When sewing on a skirt braid it is a good plan, after securing it in the usual way, to take a needle and strong thread and oversew the braid with a few stitches every here and there. Then, when the braid gets trodden on, it will not tear out.

For Mending Corset.

Often corsets, otherwise in good condition, will break at the hips. To make them as good as new cut strips of featherbone about four inches long, finishing the ends the same as for collars, and stitch these over the broken steels.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

[Indianapolis News:] To bake potatoes quickly, clean and pour boiling water over them, and let stand on the stove five or ten minutes before putting them in the oven.

Iodine is a healing remedy for wounds caused by rusty nails. Such wounds, however, should have the attention of a physician from the start.

If eggs are to be stuffed, they must be put into cold water as soon as they are taken from the stove. This will keep the whites in better shape.

Mending Holes.—It will be found a simple matter to mend a hole in a small boy's trousers pocket if a darning egg is slipped into the pocket and the darning done over it.

If salt fish is required for immediate use, it will freshen much more quickly if soaked in milk instead of water. Sour milk will answer as well as sweet.

An outdoor cupboard will be found useful and economical during the winter weather. It will do away with the necessity for ice for quite a long time.

Mix stove polish with equal parts of household ammonia and turpentine and apply to the coal stove. Rub off with a soft woolen cloth. It gives a high polish.

[Belfast Weekly News:] Common snuff put into the chinks of a fireplace will drive away crickets.

If a gloss is desired on linen add a teaspoonful of salt to the starch when making.

To disguise the unpleasant taste of Epsom salts, drop in a little lemon juice. Then you will find the salt solution quite pleasant to take.

To insure a Yorkshire pudding always being light, it is a good plan to add a tablespoonful of cold water to the batter just before placing it in the oven.

Powder the insides of new gloves to make them easier to slip on, and also, in the case of colored kid ones, to prevent the dye from staining the hands.

The cooler eggs are the quicker they will froth when whipped, so they should be beaten in a cool place. A pinch of salt always cools and freshens them.

HEARTSEASE.

Soul Storms.

[Florens Folsom, in Nautilus:] Sirocco, typhoon, cyclone and tornado—these ravage and devastate the soul of man, just as terribly as material storms bruise and rend physical nature.

Every soul is periodically swept by its own storms. As it grows in KNOWING, it learns to understand this rhythm, this alternating balance of spiritual nature. It becomes instantly conscious of the falling of its individual barometer. The calm before the hurricane does not deceive it. It foresees, and prepares for, and provides against the hurtling shock of great winds of despair, anger, or sensual desire. With each wisely-met attack, the strength of the Enemy diminishes, waning into a harmless ripple of diminuendo, until at last the conscious soul, exalted beyond seasons, rhythms, and alterations, rides serenely upon the long, even swells of a Life-Sea which, like that sea which recognized and obeyed the KNOWER, Jesus, has yielded to the smiling might of a Master.

Pass It Along.

"If you have a word of cheer,
Speak it where the sad may hear;
Can you coin a thought of light?
Give it wings and speed its flight;
Do you know a little song?
Pass the roundelay along;
Scatter gladness, joy and mirth
All along the ways of earth."

Precautions in Breeding and Raising Chicks.

By J. Harry Wolsieffer.

Warm Essentials.

CLEANLINESS AND COMMON SENSE.

[The poultryman's real troubles begin after the chicks are hatched. This is especially true of artificial hatchings, which seem to require more care than the naturally-raised chick.

Feeding, heat and ventilation all enter into the problem to a great extent. Prepared foods now appear to have supplied a long-felt want. Also there are many good appliances now that take the place of the mother hen. But care is constantly required to give the chicks just the attention needed. Some valuable advice is given in the following article.

The accompanying illustration shows White China Geese, a popular variety.]

AFTER the chicks have been properly incubated from good, strong, vigorous stock, or even hen-hatched, comes the real battle for success in poultry raising. If you cannot produce chicks that live and make a good growth each and every year your success in the poultry industry will be short-lived.

Generally speaking, there is no one "best way" to raise chickens that is suited to all persons and all places. It is largely a matter of locality—what is good for one place is not always as well adapted to another, although there are certain fundamentals that will hold good everywhere.

With hen-hatched chicks, where the chicks are allowed to run with the hen, more liberty can be taken than with chicks artificially hatched and reared. The average hen is not overburdened with sense from a human point of view, and it seems that the chicks hatched and reared by her can almost digest carpet tacks. If they do not die of over-exercise they will seldom fall victims to anything. Brooder chicks require greater care in feeding and, though there are several systems of feeding, there are some foods and mixtures that are coming into general use, due to their success.

Ready-made Foods the Best.

That commercial chick feeds, the "high-grade kind," have done more than anything else to solve the feeding question, both as to ease and economy, is undoubted. While the successful poultry raiser can usually secure results in feeding grown fowls by mixtures of his own, there are very few who will attempt to mix their own chick feeds after obtaining one of the high-grade chick feeds now on the market.

The chief reason for this fact lies in the difficulty of obtaining good seeds and good grains in small quantities, and this is especially so in the East. It is not a question of price; the grains are not to be obtained, and this is a handicap to those wishing to mix their own feeds. The large feed dealers have put together mixtures that are cheaper, sweeter and cheaper than the same ingredients could be mixed by the individual, and they are a great deal better balanced than they could be if mixed by a beginner, for, as a rule, these feeds are based on the advice of successful poultry raisers. This has simplified the feeding of chicks and has done much to make poultry-growing easier and more profitable than formerly.

Feeds for Little Chicks.

After the chicks are hatched, they need no food for at least thirty-six hours. One of the last processes in the period of incubation is the absorption of the yolk of the egg, and this furnishes them with food ready placed until they are in condition to take the first food man prepares for them. Feeding before they are ready and hungry is harmful, and the feeding of chicks too soon has been the cause of many deaths. In fact, for the first few days proper heat in the brooders and good pure air are more essential than any feed, no matter how good it is.

When chicks are "hen-hatched," first feed the hen whole corn—the larger grains the hen can eat and the chicks cannot. If commercial feeds are used, follow directions, which differ according to the mixture of the feeds. Some feed successfully by having food before the chicks at all times as soon as they are old enough. Others follow the rule of feeding little and often. This, of course, applies to the small grains, for the dry food can be placed before them after the third or fourth day with good results; of course the mixture of the dry mash is to be considered.

For the first feed nothing has given better results than rolled oats, but be sure that they are not damaged. This, crumbled in the hands and scattered on the board or in the chaff, is one of the main feeds for a week. After a few days, a good commercial chick feed, containing as little cracked corn as one can find in the different brands, is fed four or five times during the day. No chick feed should contain over 30 per cent. of corn, yet many do contain more, because corn is one of the cheap grains and the buying public does not care to pay a high price for chick feeds. Nevertheless the feeding of large quantities of corn to chicks is not the best thing to promote the growth of bone and muscle.

Milk in any form is one of the best developers, and can be fed with safety from the fourth day on; in fact, the results of feeding skim or whole milk for the first month in connection with the dry mash and grains has given good results. When purchasing good feeds at what many would consider a high price, it should be remembered that chicks do not consume a great quantity up to three weeks. Then they are past the danger mark, and the larger grains, and in proportion cheaper feeds, can be given them.

But every precaution should be taken and great care exercised during the three weeks, which is the period of either making or breaking the future usefulness of the flock. The dry mash can be started by feeding bran for the first week, and after this period the mixture can be made up of 200 bran, 100 middlings, 100 good ground oats and 60 pounds of high-grade beef scraps that contain 40 to 50 per cent. of protein. In the purchase of beef scraps, obtain if possible only the best grades, finely ground, so that it mixes well with the dry mash. No cornmeal has been placed in the mash for the reason that good results have been obtained by feeding corn either heavy or light in the grain as conditions warrant.

Green cut bone is another source of animal matter that will promote good growth, but it must be fed with judgment or it will cause scouring. The bones should be sweet—tainted, bad foods of any kind should never be fed to the chicks.

Importance of Water Supply.

From the first chicks should have an available supply of fine gravel, sand or grit, and charcoal in hoppers and on the floor, to eat from time to time. It should be so arranged that while the chick can readily water he cannot get into it. There merous fountains on the market, and them that can be easily cleaned wi bill.

There are still many advocates of mash. If one adheres to it, mak crumbly as possible and be sure that not get sour. Keep the feed dishes and sweet.

Undoubtedly the largest produ it is only a question of time when

Housing for chickens may be as hatched chicks is shelter from storms bad weather, shade and pure air. An cask, barrel or box may provide this clean and free from lice, and the chicks

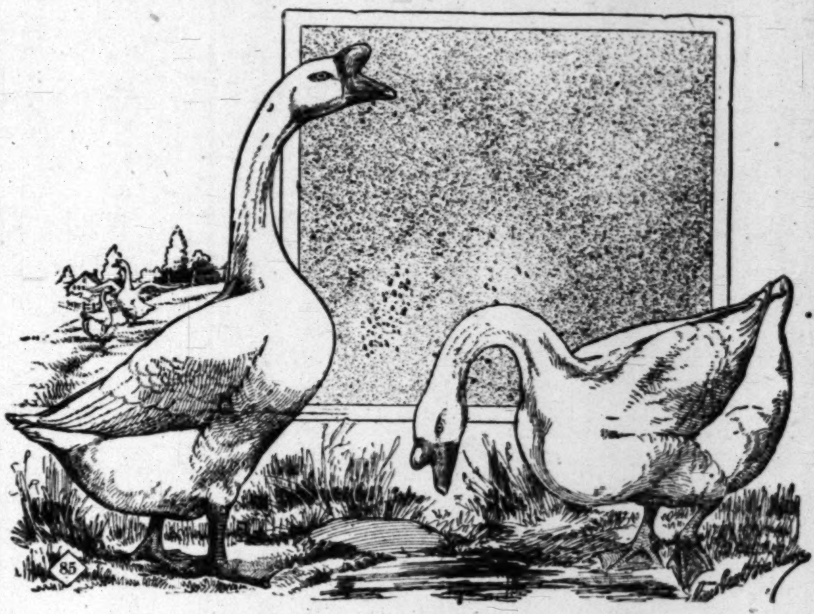
A Popular Variety for Breeding.



WHITE CHINA GEESE.

White China geese originated from "sports" or albinos of the brown variety, which they resemble except in color of feathers and of the eye, which is blue, as in all white geese. The bill knobs on the fore part of the head and the legs are yellow. The neck is long like a swan's.

This variety is one of two recognized varieties coming within the American standard of perfection of China geese, the other being the browns. They are favorites with farmers for cross-breeding with the Toulouse, Embden and African varieties for the production of "green geese" for holiday trade.

They are notable for their activity and their noisy qualities, and are heavy layers, sixty to seventy eggs from January to June being quite usual. Sometimes they are called the bantams of the geese family because of their comparatively small size. However, their standard weight is fourteen pounds for males and twelve pounds for females. The meat has an excellent flavor and the birds are easily fattened for market. The hen is a good sitter and mother, but the young should be confined with her for several weeks, else she will wander and tire them out. Plenty of grass is needed to raise them and a large yard or pasture should be afforded.

In New England, New Jersey and other sections the industry has grown extensively and excellent prices are obtained. In fact, many poultry raisers are giving their exclusive attention to geese raising.

[New York Sun:] In certain sections of the country the gape worm does a great amountof damage. This parasite is not amount of damage. This parasite is not entirely known. Apparently it is carried by the common earth worm, and is found in greatest numbers in lots or fields where chickens have been grown for several successive years. If this trouble maker appears it is a good plan to temporarily abandon the infected area and rear the chicks on uninfected land. In many cases this scheme cannot be adopted because of limitations of space, and it then becomes necessary to use other methods. The plan usually recommended is to apply a liberal amount of lime to the surface of the land, plow or spade deeply, and grow a heavy crop of green stuff. The writer cannot speak from experience regarding the results which follow this treatment of the soil, but at least it will do no harm and it will prove beneficial in many ways, even if it fails to accomplish the main object.

[New York Press:]. Lime may injure the dropping by permitting the escape of ammonia, which has deterred many poultrymen from its use; but if the house is cleaned daily and the droppings removed to the manure heap or mixed with an equal quantity of earth and kept moist, there will be no loss. Lime is one of the best substances that can be used in the poultry house, as it destroys disease germs and absorbs all bad odors, purifying the air generally.

[Sacramento Bee:] Housing is an item in favor of the small grower. Many highly successful home-poultry men raise their flocks in dry goods boxes that cost nothing and are placed around on the garden during the winter. All his hardy fowls want are shelter from the rough winds and a dry spot to roost in. The drop boards are thrown on the garden, sprinkled with land plaster, and the whole "house" is sweet and clean. Of course his hens are hardy and eager to lay. And incidentally the garden is improved almost one-half.

Plain Truths and Simple.

Cancer and Its Curability.

THOUGH cancer is the greatest mystery in the medical world, much has been learned about it during the last decade, which gives hope that a solution of its cause and cure will not be delayed many years more. While its cause has not been ascertained, it has been determined that the disease is common to all vertebrate animals, and may occur in horses, sheep, pigs, elephants, cats, dogs, hens, and even trout and cod. In 162 of the 67,849 cattle slaughtered in Great Britain in 1910 were found tumors, of which 120 proved to be cancer. In mice it has been discovered that the disease is transmissible from animal to animal, and that a kind of vaccination may be developed, suggesting protective inoculation as a possible future weapon against the disease.

The differences of opinion regarding the cause and cure of the disease are startling. Some specialists claim that it is a disease of the higher civilization and due in part to overeating, but this will not account for its presence in animals and fishes. At the aquarium in New York cancer is the chief cause of the mortality among the fish confined in the tanks. What is known as lumpjaw in cattle, one of the commonest of cattle diseases, is recognized as a form of cancer by health officers, and the use of the flesh of such animals as food is forbidden. There is no higher civilization in these cases, and it cannot be said with any certainty that fish and cattle are affected because of feeding upon the "left-overs" or because of human filth, as hardly enough of this gets into the sea to infect the denizens of the deep.

As to the cure of the disease, many authentic instances are known. A recent editorial in the Medical Record called attention to the success of Dr. Robert Abbe of New York, in the use of radium as follows:

"An experience such as Abbe has had in the last ten years—250 epitheliomas of all parts; 180 carcinomas of the tongue, throat, esophagus, breast, etc.; fifty sarcomas of the skin, parotid, bones, etc., with numerous failures, but with an ever greater proportion of success as knowledge of how to avoid errors in the application of radium increased—should compel attention."

At the same time the success of radium in the treatment of deep-seated cancer or tumors rests on a weak foundation. In superficial instances it seems to be a success. The same can be said of X-ray treatment, the use of "Coley's fluid," of fulguration and of metallic ferments. But with all the evidences and the hopes that radium is the blessing that has been waited for, Dr. Charles Ryall, chairman of the medical committee of the Cancer Hospital in London, said at a recent meeting of the governors:

"Radium has not come to supplant surgery in the treatment of cancer, but to aid it in fighting the disease. The properties of radium are comparatively little known, and we are therefore going through the experimental stage of radium treatment, endeavoring to fathom its effect on disease, especially cancer, estimate its dosage and classify what cases are suitable for treatment by it. That will mean some years of work, but we can wait with confidence for a definite pronouncement, as the radium research work in the country is being carried out systematically and is in the best hands."

Getting to Sleep.

There is no dispute about the advisability of getting a proper proportion of sleep, though what is a proper amount will differ with the individual. Edison, the tireless inventor of the present time, will go abnormal periods without sleep while he is working out some invention on which his absolute attention is centered. His is a rare case, and his example is not a good one for anyone to follow. Sleep is necessary for physical health, to say nothing about nervous conditions. The inability to sleep is a disease, and every legitimate means should be taken for its relief. An excellent plan is to take some exercise before retiring that will send the blood coursing through the veins, thus drawing it away from the head, and on retiring a person should lay away the worries of the day, and let the morrow take care of itself. One cannot sleep if he is worrying how he is going to raise the money to meet an overdue note on the following day. Counting black sheep as they pass through a hole in the fence and other mental devices to tire out the brain and compel sleep may do for a single night where a passing vexation keeps one awake. A brisk walk before retiring to induce physical fatigue is better, and when the head is laid on the pillow it should be with the firm intention of going to sleep. Such a determination has a hypnotic effect, and many a man by following this rule has saved himself from breaking down when he has been struggling from day to day against adverse circumstances.

Smoothing Out Youthful Kinks.

One of the most important aids in the reformatory work of the juvenile courts of Chicago is Dr. Healy, who acts through the Juvenile Psychopathic Institute, of which he is director and founder. For five years a privately-endowed volunteer laboratory run in connection with juvenile court work, the institute has studied the mentalities of juveniles of the court, especially those of the repeatedly delinquent, "repeaters," as the probation officers call them; "recidivists," in the scientific term.

So successful has his work been that the County Commissioners have made his laboratory an integral part of the Juvenile Court by appropriations for its expenses, and have also decided to establish a similar laboratory in connection with the Municipal Court work, thus lining Chicago up with the foremost courts of the country in the saving of children from lives of crime. When the judge is baffled as to the course to pursue regarding an apparently incorrigible youngster, he turns him over to a probation officer with the remark: "See Dr. Healy!" The doctor plumbs the child mind to its depths, and when he gets through he can lay his finger on the trouble and knows better than anyone else what social adjustment the child needs for its best growth. Many a child has been practically transformed by being sent into the country for a period with some family where his youthful desires could be satisfied, and the kinks be taken out that had been put in by the restrictive conditions under which he had lived at home. Joy of living took the place of discouragement, and school work became a pleasure.

Dr. Healy was first a neurologist. He had seen nervous cases get into jail and had made comment on this matter in his lectures. His suggestions came to the ears of persons interested and an institute was endowed with their private means, with Dr. Healy at the head, and thus Chicago became the pioneer in this class of reform work in the country. The movement has spread to Boston, New York, Seattle, Baltimore, Minneapolis, Detroit and elsewhere.

Homeopathic Vaccination.

The following correspondence in the Baltimore American regarding vaccination is of interest because comparatively little attention has been paid to the matter:

"Up to 1871 only the Jennerian or cowpox method was known or used, and that by the scarification method, which often gave great dissatisfaction, and was much dreaded by the people, when Dr. Samuel Swan of New York City, a learned and true disciple of Hahnemann, collected serum from the pure smallpox vescicles from otherwise healthy persons and prepared it by the exact formula of all remedies for homoepathists to be used in cases of sickness, and as prophylactics, potentized it very high, and named it variolinum, from varioloid, smallpox.

"He made extensive provings with healthy people, and tested by many experiments its powers to immunize to be equal to a well-developed case of smallpox. As it is used in a small dose in the mouth, it only causes a small disturbance during the following thirty-six hours of the digestive and nervous system for a few hours, and then passes off and like pure smallpox, leaves the party in good health without the chronic ills that so often follow the bovine vaccinations.

"Dr. Swan published the reports in all the homeopathic medical societies and journals, and it was used by homeopaths in every country in the world where homeopathy was used by State authorities as a system of medicine.

"In 1901 in the city of Des Moines, Iowa, several homeopaths were using it and it became popular. The health commissioner ordered that the certificates for variolinum vaccination must be rejected by the schools, and when little Doty Evans presented her certificate, which reads: "January 21, 1902, I hereby certify that I have successfully vaccinated Doty Evans of 1175 Eleventh street, Des Moines, Iowa. C. W. Eaton, M. D.," Doty was sent home. Mr. Evans was a lawyer, who at once filed a petition in the court for temporary injunction, which was granted at the expense of the city, and Doty went to school.

"Next, in 1904, the same thing occurred in Iowa Falls and Council Bluffs, the injunction granted, and the School Board paid the cost in the three cases.

"With the news of the conditions in Iowa, four adjacent States abolished compulsory vaccination, and now variolinum is in general use in the five States and giving general satisfaction with but little cost to States or people; and by comparison it is found that the bovine or common way, by scarifying, immunizes about 60 per cent., and the variolinum about 99 per cent. and leaves no after bad effects, no sores or scars.

"With the above facts known to the people, could anybody fail to know why a homeopathic physician would give a child a small powder in its mouth and call it vaccinated.

"The above article can be found in the Medical Advance, Vol. No. 36, published in Chicago, 1908."

Difference in Diagnosis.

Dr. Richard Cabot tells the following anecdote as showing how different may be the diagnosis of bodily affections by different medical men. In a conversation with the matron of a women's home she said to him:

"I hear that you are interested in the blood. Dr. R., the gynecologist, who was our attending man last fall, found that all the women had female trouble. Dr. C., the throat specialist, who attended last summer, found that all of the women had nose and throat trouble, and now I suppose you will find that all of them have blood trouble."

It would be unfair to say that either of these doctors was making up cases for himself, but it seems to be like the phrase: "If you go hunting for trouble you can always find it." Many a person has been told that he had Bright's disease because he had an excess of uric acid in his urine. Some other doctor will tell him that uric acid is one of the body wastes, and is normally present in most organs of the body: that it can be controlled by regulation of the diet, and does no great harm in the blood or elsewhere. This latter information is more generally the truth than otherwise, and because the urine, which is always acid, shows an excess of acidity there is no reason for excitement or undue fear regarding its effect upon the length of life.

Backache is one of the things about which the doctors differ. It is frequently attributed to pelvic troubles, but tests have proved that pelvic troubles may exist without producing backache. In a study of backache made by Dr. Cabot he found, after eliminating the fatigued, the neurasthenics, and those with acute fevers, that it did not indicate female trouble. He analyzed 2451 cases and found that 190 were cases of kidney stone, kidney tumor and kidney abscess, but not a single case of Bright's disease in the lot. Disease of the spinal column was responsible for seventy-eight cases, all but six of them being tuberculosis of the spine. In another series composed of women with pelvic trouble he found that 223 did not complain of backache or headache, and 149 did. Among the 223 that had no backache were nine cases of cancer of the uterus.

Backache from pelvic diseases Dr. Dercum found so rare that it was scarcely worth mentioning. In a study of 121 cases of backache in women, ninety-five had entirely normal female organs and twenty-six had some abnormality there. In a group of 181 women complaining of headache and backache, none had any "female trouble."

The specialist in female troubles is therefore likely to declare these pelvic disturbances are responsible for backache, while the specialists in kidney complaints will be equally emphatic that the backache indicates the presence of Bright's disease or some other renal disorder, the neglect of which will be attended with great danger. It is well to wait awhile before accepting anyone's diagnosis as final.

Pain in the lower part of the back, usually called lumbago, may be due to strain, an-

4000 Years Old These remedies have been used in China for over 4000 years, and the formulas have been handed down from father to son, generation after generation, until the present day. They have cured more men and women than any known modern treatment. The action of Chinese Herbs is entirely different from anything you have ever taken before and entirely unfamiliar to most American people. They quietly and stealthily steal through the meshes of your tissues, while you are waking and while you are sleeping. Like friendly spirits they steal into the dark nooks and corners of the human anatomy, to expel the hobgoblins of disease, and like good fairies, they always leave happiness in their wake. Remember, I am offering a proof treatment of these wonderful Herbs, ABSOLUTELY FREE. This is the opportunity you have been waiting for. Why hesitate about accepting it.

I Ask Nothing I will accept no pay, not one cent for the books and Trial Treatments I have decided to give away. I want to prove that my treatment will do in your case what it has done in thousands of cases. By proving my skill to you I hope to prove it to your friends and neighbors. If my treatment helps you—if it cures you, I want your good will—I want your gratitude—I want you to speak a kindly word for me to your sick friends when convenient to do so. This is all I ask. When I say free I mean FREE.

My Success Is Your Gain My professional and financial success has been wonderful. I have succeeded beyond my fondest ambition in doing good in the world—in benefiting humanity. I have acquired a liberal share of worldly goods. For all this I am grateful—am thankful. To show my gratitude I propose to do this kindness to humanity. I propose to help the sick and suffering free of charge, I will positively give away 1000 Home Medical Books and 1000 Proof Treatments to the first 1000 people who write to me. Lincoln's Assassination Recalled and immediately J. Wilkes Booth rushed to the edge of the box nearest the stage, where Maj. Rathbone was sitting (who was one of the guests) with a large knife in his hand. He slashed the major in the arm, who was then unable to intercept Booth, who dropped from the box, dropping in such a way as to break the force of his fall. While dropping he dragged one of the draped American flags to the stage; faced the audience, and in a dramatic attitude, flourished his knife over his head, shouted: 'Sic semper tyrannis!' and then rushed off the stage on the side opposite the President's box.

"As soon as Booth had disappeared, brother Robert (who knew Booth well) was one of the first to rise in his seat and shout: 'It's Booth! It's Booth!'

"I also remember seeing someone who occupied a seat in the lower box on the side Booth escaped from rush after him as he ran.

"Now, my dear Jennie, this is a correct statement, without any exaggeration, and about all any eye-witness could state.

"You surely must remember when we arrived home in the front parlor, discovering the clean cut in Mr. Wither's coat, on his shoulder, and clear through to his shirt, unintentionally received from Booth's knife pushing him aside in making his escape. Also of Ned Spangler coming to our door and father not admitting him.

"I know that Spangler was a kind-hearted, jovial fellow and liked by everyone. Nevertheless, I believe he was drawn into the conspiracy at the last moment and while under the influence of drink. His part, it was supposed, was to turn off the gas after the shot, but he was not able to get near enough to the box at the time on account of you and Mr. Withers standing near it conversing, while you were waiting to go on the stage again.

"Now, to back up my suspicion of the above, will relate what was told to me by Brother Robert. After the first act, Robert and Williamson went out to get a drink. They went into the saloon adjoining the theater and there saw Booth and Spangler drinking brandy at the bar. Robert declared that Booth filled his tumbler to the brim and quickly drank it down. I suppose Spangler did the same.

"Now, my dear Jennie, you have the most correct version of what happened in front. Behind the scenes (where it was necessary for you to be) you can relate what happened there. Enough said. Trusting that you are all the same, and with kind remembrance to all, and particularly Robert, I remain,

"Your affectionate brother,

[Signed] "THOMAS P. GOURLAY."

"A very interesting letter," said Mr. Busby, after Mrs. Struthers had finished, "and do you recall the tragedy about as your brother saw it?" "No," replied Mrs. Struthers reflectively, "for you see I was behind the wings, near William Withers, the orchestra leader, and therefore saw from a different viewpoint. I remember hearing the report of the pistol, which was followed by a buzz-like sound from the pit. I suspected nothing at first, but as the buzz grew louder I though that some little innovation had been introduced and that the buzz expressed mild approval from the audience.

"You remember, as my brother states in his letter, that after Booth fired the fatal shot he jumped to the stage. In doing so, his spur caught in the folds of an American flag and threw him, breaking a bone in his leg. As he stood on the stage, wild and desperate, fiercely trampling the flag to free himself, the truth was not realized, but when he cried: 'Sic semper tyrannis,' and a moment or so later Mrs. Lincoln screamed, the audience in a dazed way began to comprehend the awful calamity that had occurred. From the wings I saw Booth painfully make his way across the stage, and as he ran limping by us in the exit, he brushed me aside. William Withers had blocked the passage in front of me, and as Booth passed him he cut into his clothing with his dagger, slashed him in the neck, made his way to the rear door, hobbled on his saddle horse and escaped. About this time I began to realize the cause of all the confusion."

At this point of the narrative Mrs. Struthers opened a faded envelope and took from it a picture of J. Wilkes Booth that he had given her.

"Poor, misguided man," she said, as she gazed at the photograph. "He was not bloodthirsty, as commonly supposed; he was desperate. A bone in his leg was broken; the mark of Cain was on him; the loss of a second might mean his capture, and the vengeful wrath of a nation was at his heels.

"Brother Thomas, as you saw by his letter, believes Spangler was drawn into the conspiracy at the last moment while under the influence of drink. Dear me, I can never think that. Ned Spangler was a scene shifter, a harmless, good-natured sort of fellow without much sense. I can't believe Booth would ever have confided in such a man. But as he held Booth's horse that night when Booth rode up, and later drank with Booth, he may have been coaxed into the conspiracy. Booth was so magnetic and persuasive that he could have twisted a weak-minded menial like Spangler about his little finger.

"There was a call for water from Mr. Lincoln's box as the poor man lay stricken. My father, who was one of the company, upon hearing the call, helped to support Laura Keene across the stage so that she could go to Mr. Lincoln's aid. He unlocked a door of a private passage and took her to President Lincoln's side. She raised his head in her arms and his blood trickled down her dress. She turned his head slightly, and for the first time the wound was definitely located. The blood that fell stained her hands, and a moment later as she sobbed with her hands to her face, it got on her face and hair. Never will I forget the picture of this heretofore light-hearted, care-free comedienne, now blood-stained from head to foot, convulsed with sobs, acting her part in the most harrowing tragedy that ever took place in a theater.

"My father was one of the men who helped to move President Lincoln from the theater to the house opposite, where he died. I can see them carrying that gaunt, awkward form through the aisles. How my heart ached with pity for him; how I prayed for his recovery; how I deplored the cruelty that laid him low! My tears were mingled with those of the nation, for we all loved honest Old Abe. Great as he was, he was at heart only a big, brave, sympathetic friend to us all." As Mrs. Struthers finished speaking, she turned away her head, and I noticed her handkerchief go to her eyes.

A moment later she continued: "I have now related about all there is to tell, except I repeat the well-worn, oft-told facts that are to be found in the various stories of Lincoln's life.

"But won't you, Mr. Busby, tell us something about your experiences in those times?"

Mr. Busby stroked his Kentucky goatee with his left hand, a habit of long standing, and in his direct manner began:

"Well, when the Federal troops took possession of Iuka, Miss., I published a small paper there, which gave army and navy news and advocated the restoration of the Union. Later, at Clarksville, Tenn., I published within Union lines a weekly, the Clarksville Bulletin. The type and press of a Confederate establishment were used for this purpose. When a town passed from Confederate to Union control, office machinery was not carried away by the retreating army. Some time after this I joined the staff of the Louisville Daily Journal, of which George D. Prentiss was editor. The two sons of Prentiss were in the Confederate army, and Mrs. Prentiss sympathized with them. Paul Shipman, associate editor, reflected on several occasions the thoughts of Mrs. Prentiss. The management of the paper did not want to get into trouble with the Federal authorities. I, therefore, was engaged for the editorial staff, and the army news was placed under my control. It was my duty to keep in close touch with headquarters and interview prominent officers going to or from the front. Among the officers I interviewed were Gen. W. T. Sherman, Gen. John A. Logan, Gen. D. C. Stonby and Gen. John M. Palmer.

"The night of the assassination I had gone to bed early, being very tired. I was roused by the foreman of the composing-room telling me that reports had come in from Washington to the effect that Lincoln and all his Cabinet had been murdered.

"I got up and in slippers and night dress received the dispatches. Along toward morning I succeeded in sifting rumor from fact, and in writing my story I also wrote a double-leaded article on the situation, expressing the opinion that Vice-President Andrew Johnson should not be placed under suspicion. It was asserted by the hot-headed that he was in the plot to remove Lincoln to advance his own fortunes. Mr. Prentiss and Andrew Johnson were bitter enemies. Mr. Prentiss was commended, therefore, for the stand he took in the crisis, it being assumed that he had written the article. Mr. Prentiss highly approved my work, and asked me to go to Springfield to attend the funeral of Lincoln. He gave me a letter to Gov. Bramlette, requesting that I go under the authority of the State. I saw Gov. Bramlette at Frankfort, and received his commission. Gen. Palmer gave me warm letters to his friends and President Lincoln's friends at Springfield.

"I was quite a young man, and representing the State in which Lincoln was born, attracted attention. I stood as a guard of honor over the body of the great emancipator and followed it to the grave."

"Your appointment was certainly one of much honor for so young a man," observed Mrs. Struthers.

"It was; but I was not impressed as I should have been with the importance of the commission at the time. I little dreamed in those days that the lowly-born, rail-splitting Abraham Lincoln would become the towering figure he is today in the imagination of the world."

As the odor of frying chicken was wafted from within the cottage, and as the dinner hour was approaching, we arose to go.

"Mrs. Struthers," said Mr. Busby, "this call has given me a great deal of pleasure, and I feel I know a little more about the death of Abraham Lincoln than I ever knew before."

"I have enjoyed meeting you very much," replied Mrs. Struthers in her kindly way as she walked with us to the steps, "and what I told you was in confidence. I have always felt a hesitancy about being quoted as to my experiences that night at Ford's Theater. I never wanted to be drawn into a controversy. Ever since the tragedy, magazine and newspaper writers have from time to time tried to interview me, but my version of the assassination has never appeared in print and it is my desire that it never will.†

"But does it not seem strange, Mr. Busby, that here you and I are talking over the assassination together for the first time nearly half a century after it happened and when most of those who remembered the tragedy are silenced forever?"

"Yes, it is remarkable," replied Mr. Busby, "but yet it does not seem so long ago after all. Time passes quickly as age advances."

"That is true," replied Mrs. Struthers, "but nearly half a century is a long span of years. So far as I know, I am the only member of 'Our American Cousin' Company still alive, but the events of that dreadful night stand out as vividly in memory as though they happened but recently." For a moment Mrs. Struthers paused, and then continued:

"As you were a war editor, Mr. Busby, you will be interested to know that a distinguished contemporary of yours, Horace Greeley, often used to pass through this little village on his way by stage coach to Greeley, a community settlement in which he was greatly interested. While making the trip one time, shortly after the war, the front axle of the coach broke. Milford, the next stop, was ten miles away. Impatient at the delay, Mr. Greeley decided to walk the ten miles. It was about noon, carpet-bag in hand, that he reached here very hot, dusty and covered with perspiration. He walked into the combination bar-room and office of the old Dimmick House just around the corner from here.

Sam Dimmick, the proprietor, was behind the bar discussing politics with a farmer who was sipping a glass of beer. Mr. Greeley did not interrupt the conversation, but when the customer had gone, he asked courteously where he could perform his ablutions. Keen-eyed Sam Dimmick took in the very dirty stranger at a glance, and said brusquely:

"The pump is out by the horse trough."

Mr. Greeley hastened to the pump, doused his face and hands and taking off his boots and socks gave his tired and aching feet a good soaking. The pump was on the main street right in sight of everyone, and a storekeeper recognized the great editor and ran over to tell Sam who the stranger was. Sam, who almost worshiped Mr. Greeley, was all upset at the way he had treated the great editor, and lost no time in getting to the pump to apologize. Mr. Greeley was very much amused, and told Sam the pump "was good enough for him." After that nothing was too good for Mr. Greeley so far as Sam was concerned. That night Sam got the village band to serenade his distinguished guest, and the foremost local orator gave him a rousing speech of welcome."

We smiled at the reminiscence and Mr. Busby truthfully remarked:

"Horace Greeley and Abraham Lincoln, like most great men, were very simple at heart."

"And good," observed Mrs. Struthers, as we bade her good-by and left her smiling sweetly beside her syringa bushes.

In a recent letter to the writer Mrs.

"We must not overlook the old 'City of Paris,' the largest dry goods store in town at that time, conducted by Eugene and Constant Meyer. Further there were John Schumacher, Charles Brode, E. Greenbaum, Rivera & Sangueneta, Dr William Hammel—each running a grocery business. Jacob Philippi and A. Vignolo conducted liquor houses. N. A. Potter, Fleishman & Sichel, Harper, Reynolds & Co., Childs & Hicks were hardware dealers. Matthew Keller had native wines and brandies; A. A. Boyle, Thomas Leahy, and J. S. Mallard had boots and shoes; Samuel Meyer, crockery; H. Penelon, photographer; Moses and Isaac Norton, clothing; Baker & Bower, iron works; H. Heinch, saddles and harness; I. M. Hellman—cousin of I. W.—clothing; Jacob Kuhrts, teaming; and old 'Cuatro Ojos' Yarrow had a store with everything in it, from a needle to a threshing machine. Anything that could not be procured elsewhere was usually found here. The store presented the worst jumbled up mess you ever saw, but 'Four Eyes' was never at a loss to find what was wanted.

"John Goller, Louis Roeder, Louis Lichtenberger and E. L. Scott were among the pioneer wagon manufacturers. Carpenter was the pioneer in soap manufacturing in 1834, followed by Dodson & Wallace in 1859. Jesse D. Hunter made the first brick kiln in 1852, from which, in the following year, was built the house on the corner of Third and Main streets. From the second burning, in the same year, was built the brick jail. Joseph Mullally and Samuel Ayers established a yard in 1854, being later joined by David Porter and Tom Gass.

"There were tanneries, too, and breweries, both of which businesses were here inaugurated in 1854. Toward the end of the '60's many other kinds of manufactories were introduced.

"I may have overlooked some of our early mercantile establishments. I may have named some that were not in existence until in the '60's. But, in the main, I have set forth the situation as it was. In '63 and '64, during the terrible drouth, when cattle were dying by the thousands, business was, of course, dull, and we young men had little to do. The Hellman boys and I, and some others, would get out and play football in the street on Main near the Plaza. We made this the business of our lives at the time, and allowed nothing to interfere with us. We would not stop nor stand aside for teams. We blocked traffic, and compelled the drivers to take another route." And "Uncle Billy" chuckled with the memory of it.

Authors and Their Muscles.

[New York Sun:] James Francis Dwyer, author of "The White Waterfall," "The Spotted Panther" and other tales of adventure, believes that the first step toward success in writing is to let one's muscles get flabby. Many famous authors have had original theories as to what helps the muse. Shelley used to lie on the hearth rug with his head close to the blaze; Schiller kept his desk drawer full of decaying apples; Balzac drank bowls of black coffee; H. G. Wells is said to believe that the first essential is to ruin one's digestion. Mr. Dwyer, however, says the first thing is to abolish the old bosh about a sound mind requiring the body of an expert athlete. "I used to be a first-class amateur prize fighter," he said. "My muscles were as hard as iron, and I acted as sparring partner for the Australian lightweight champion. But I found that for all my perfect physical trim I couldn't write half a column in the evenings. I gave up the body culture and decided to cultivate my writing instead. So the first thing to do if you want to be a great writer is to let your muscles get flabby and grow a bay window. Look at Chesterton."

Peter's Repentance.

I have denied Him! Whither shall I go
To seek forgetfulness or ease my breaking heart?
I thought to die with Him, I loved Him so;
How could I act so cowardly a part?
Oh, Master, I can never more forget
That look of pity, as Thine eyes met mine.
Thou heardest my denial, Lord, and yet
Mine eyes saw naught but yearning love in Thine.

The darkness of those hours on Calvary!
The rending of the temple veil, the jeers
Of the fierce throng that watched Thine agony!
The faithful women's bitter moans and tears!
Dark pictures, these, but darkest of them all,
And saddest of all bitter memories,
The words I uttered in the high priest's hall,
As there I lingered with Thine enemies.

Oh, Master, can it be that nevermore
My feet shall follow Thine o'er hill and plain
Of old Judea? Or along the shore
Of Galilee? Shall we not meet again?

What, John, dost thou invite me to thy home?
Man, I denied Him whom thou lovest so!
And dost thou—knowing all—still bid me come?
HIS mother dwells with thee! How can I go?
Yea, I will bide with thee, true friend thou art.
The sun is setting; I will bide with thee
Until the morning, then my aching heart
Shall spend its grief alone on Calvary.

He lives! And I have met Him! Jesus lives!
O sacred moments spent with Him alone!
O love most wonderful, my Lord forgives!
The true light shineth, and the night is gone.

Wanted to Know.

[Unidentified:] Effie's Brother: Do you love my sister, Effie?

Effie's Steady Company: Why, Willie, that is a queer question. Why do you want to know?

Effie's Brother: She said last night she would give a dollar to know, and I'd like to scoop it in.

Are You Suffering from Painful Afflictions of the Feet, Broken-down Arches, Callouses, Bunions, Etc?

Call on us for relief.

There are numerous Arch Supporters put on the market to correct flat feet that are made over a form, and in some cases answer the purpose. There is no ready-made Arch Support manufactured in this way that will give the desired results in more than 10 per cent of the cases. The reason is that there are different ligaments in the foot that may be affected and thus cause pain in the various joints. Our Arch Supports are made by perfect measurements and are guaranteed to relieve every case. WESTERN ORTHOPEDIC APPLIANCE CO., 731 South Grand Avenue, Los Angeles.

The Savings Bank with the Personal Service

Many people have come to know the Los Angeles Hibernian Savings Bank by this name on account of the personal, efficient service that we render to depositors. We shall be glad to have the opportunity of rendering the same service to YOU.

Our location on the second floor, above the noise, dust and confusion of the street, is winning new friends and depositors daily.

Our low rental and other minimum expenses—including the saving we make by having no costly furniture and fixtures—enable us to pay with safety—

5% Compound Interest on Your Savings

This means a 25 per cent. increased earning power of your money over the 4 per cent. usually paid by savings banks on term deposits.

We pay 5 per cent. interest — compounded semi-annually—on term savings deposits of any amount from $1 to $5000 —and 4 per cent. on additional sums.

Both Savings and Commercial Accounts Solicited.

LEWIS HOWELL ROGERS
Discovers the Mainspring of Life

THE VITAL NERVE

Everybody, without cost, can reach the Electric Center of their own body without a moment's delay and obtain relief from the numerous ills of life, as recorded of the age of mystery.

"Good health is good circulation only, and due to all." Mr. Rogers finds this ancient practice to be strictly natural and used daily by California Indians, also by the sturdy Japs, who are models of health and the women strong like men. The Times Printing Co. has printed the full method with free trial in 16-page booklet, which will be sent free to all who are interested in the subject of health. Read the wonderbook. Address Mr. Rogers, 303 Ave. 61, Los Angeles, Cal.

THE REASON WHY

Many intelligent persons fail to understand why one pair of spectacles should be worth more than another. They fail to understand that a difference in the strength of the eyes, or the presence of astigmatic conditions, requires specially made lenses without which, while the vision may be improved, the health of the eyes is not improved. Only a careful test of the eyes will determine this question. It is better to be right than wrong on such an important question. The correct fitting of eyes calls for knowledge, experience, careful attention and proper facilities. My patients receive this care. Special attention paid to fitting Toric and Kryptok (invisible double vision) lenses.
